DAYTON, OH (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Philips Industries Thursday announced as preliminary results a net loss of $14,579,000 (51 cents per share) for the year ended March 31, 1990.

Last year's net income was $46,347,000, or $1.61 per share.

The loss for the year includes pre-tax charges of $59,240,000. Of these charges, $47,240,000 ($42,815,000 on an after tax basis, or $1.51 per share) relate to previously announced business dispositions and various organizational restructurings (totaling $42,890,000 pre-tax), and to provisions for certain liabilities (totaling $4,350,000 pre-tax).

The preliminary results also include a pre-tax charge of $12,000,000 ($7,500,000 after tax, or 26 cents per share) for costs related to the company's merger agreement with MLPI Holdings Inc., a corporation formed at the direction of Merrill Lynch Capital Partners Inc. (MLCP), which will be recognized if the merger agreement is terminated before the company releases its financial statements for the year.

If the merger agreement is subsequently terminated the related costs will be recognized in a future period, or if a merger under the agreement is consummated the related costs will be deferred and amortized.

The year's net loss is $7,079,000, or 25 cents per share, excluding the merger related costs.

Sales were $927,502,000 compared to $941,736,000 a year ago. Pre-tax income (excluding charges associated with the divestiture of product lines various organizational restructurings and possible merger related costs) was $52,711,000, compared to $74,027,000 a year ago. Approximately $8,000,000 of this decrease in earnings was attributable to a decline in operating income of those subsidiaries which the company intends to divest.

The company noted that it had announced on Jan. 11, 1990, that MLCP's proposed financing sources had indicated that they would be unable to participate in the financing of the merger transaction as structured on Nov. 28, 1989. MLCP has said that it remains interested in completing the acquisition of Philips and is evaluating whether an alternative structure of the transaction could be arranged which would be acceptable to all parties.

Philips Industries is a leading manufacturer of components for the building and transportation industries and provides quality material handling systems to manufacturers. The company is listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol PHL.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - First Nationwide Financial Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Ford Motor Co., Thursday announced record first quarter earnings of $35.9 million for 1990, compared with $4.9 million for the like period in 1989.

The company's record earnings for the first quarter represent an 11.6 percent return on equity for the period. Earnings performance resulted from widening net interest margins and operating cost improvements.

First Nationwide's net interest margin -- net interest income as a percent of average assets -- was 1.66 percent for the first quarter of 1990, compared with 1.17 percent for the like period in 1989.

First Nationwide's operating expense ratio -- a measure of the efficiency of doing business -- was 1.67 percent of average assets for the first quarter of 1990, compared with 1.83 percent for the first quarter of 1989.

''We are making good progress,'' announced Robert E. Lackovic, First Nationwide's chairman and chief executive officer. ''But we must continue to demonstrate that we can improve the quality of service to our valued customers while becoming more efficient.''

Total assets were $29.1 billion as of March 31, 1990, compared with $34.2 billion a year earlier. The reduction in assets reflects primarily the sale of certain real estate loans and properties, and the sale or transfer of nonstrategic assets such as TranSouth Financial Corp.

In addition to First Nationwide Bank, First Nationwide Financial Corp. operates three other thrift subsidiaries: Columbia Savings, Denver; Pathway Financial F.A., Chicago and Cardinal Federal Savings Bank, Cleveland. These First Nationwide Financial subsidiaries meet all federal capital requirements.

Together, First Nationwide Financial subsidiaries operate 287 retail branches in 12 states. First Nationwide is part of the Ford Financial Services Group.

SEATTLE (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Horizon Air, a subsidiary of Alaska Air Group Inc. (NYSE, PSE), reported Thursday that its April traffic increased 14 percent to 25.8 million revenue passenger miles (RPMs) from the 22.6 million flown a year earlier.

The passenger load factor (the percentage of available seats occupied by fare-paying passengers) for the month was 44.8 percent, down from the 49.2 percent in April 1989.

The airline carried 130,889 passengers in April, a 16 percent increase from the 113,299 carried in April 1989. Capacity during the month was 57.6 million available seat miles (ASMs), a 26 percent increase from the 45.9 million flown in April 1989. The increase in capacity is the result of the company's third F28 jet placed in service in late February. The 65-seat aircraft is used between Seattle and Spokane, Boise and Portland, and Boise and Seattle.

For the four months ended April 30, 1990, revenue passenger miles totaled 106.2 million, an 11 percent increase from the 95.3 million recorded a year earlier. The passenger load factor for the four months ended April 30, 1990, was 47.5 percent, down from 50.8 percent for 1989.

Capacity (ASMs) for the four months ended April 30, 1990, increased 19 percent to 223.7 million, up from 187.8 million flown in 1989. The airline carried 535,474 passengers through April 1990, up 14 percent from the 470,907 in 1989.

Horizon serves 34 cities in five states and Canada.

SANTA CLARA, CA (MAY 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Applied Materials Inc. Thursday announced Peter M. Joachim has been named director of Corporate Quality.

He comes to the company from International Business Machines Corp.'s San Jose facility, where he had been manager of Site Quality Programs since 1985.

Joachim worked for IBM for 30 years. Previously, he held the positions of program manager, function manager and materials manager for several IBM divisions with headquarters in the United States and Scotland.

He has extensive experience as a trainer and lecturer. He has earned a national reputation for developing quality improvement methods and has spoken at many seminars and conferences for professional groups, training schools and U.S. military bases. He also has taught classes at Stanford University, the University of California at Berkeley and the University of Santa Clara.

In his new position, Joachim will be responsible for building the world-class quality-management system required to support Applied Materials' global growth plans.

''Our focus must be enhanced to ensure customer satisfaction at all levels of an expanding global business while maintaining the traditional quality philosophies established in the past,'' Joachim said.

Joachim, a Saratoga resident, earned his master's of business adminstration in industrial management and his bachelor's of arts degree in mathematics at New York University. He also has completed advanced course work at Stanford University, Fairleigh Dickinson University and the University of California at Los Angeles.

He is a member of state Sen. John Garamendi's Task Force to Establish a California State Quality Award and is president of the DeAnza Cupertino Kiwanis Club.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, IL (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Household International Thursday reported that for the quarter ended March 31, earnings from continuing operations increased 18 percent to $52.2 million, and fully diluted earnings per share from continuing operations increased 12 percent to $1.29 from the year ago quarter.

Net income and fully diluted earnings per share declined from the prior year quarter because the prior year included results of manufacturing businesses spun-off to shareholders or sold in 1989.

Interest margin and other revenues from continuing operations rose 23 percent to $436.3 million compared with first quarter a year ago. Total finance receivables at March 31, 1990 were $21.4 billion, 27 percent above the year earlier level, and 7 percent higher than they were at the end of 1989.

The provision for credit losses of $93 million in the quarter compared with $44.3 million a year ago. During the quarter the reserve for losses increased 10 percent to $329 million from year end, and was 21 percent above a year ago.

Higher chargeoffs were due to sharply higher receivables levels, a faster chargeoff policy, increased delinquency compared to the earlier period due to conversion to centralized processing, and commercial real estate chargeoffs of $5.2 million in the current quarter.

Edwin P. Hoffman, president and chief operating officer of Household, said ''Higher consumer chargeoff rates are due to our more conservative writeoff policy. Higher first quarter delinquency levels, brought about by the initial phase of our centralization of collection activities, are expected to decline over the balance of the year.

''This trend has very positive future earnings implications. We increased consolidated credit loss reserves by 10 percent in the quarter and still generated an 18 percent increase in continuing income. This illustrates the strength of our operations.''

Donald C. Clark, chairman and chief executive officer, said, ''Results achieved in the first quarter are as expected and endorse our expectation for record net income in 1990.''

TUSTIN, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - CMS Enhancements Inc. (NYSE:CME) Thursday announced that its board of directors has approved repurchases by the company on the open market, at prevailing market prices, of up to 150,000 of the 3.1 million shares of the company's common stock which are currently issued and outstanding.

''This repurchase program is being initiated in response to the board's belief that the current market prices for the company's shares do not accurately reflect the true value of the company,'' stated President and Chief Executive Officer Jim Farooquee.

On April 30, CMS reported revenues for the third quarter ended March 31, 1990, of $46,383,000, down from the year-ago level of $52,876,000. Net income for the third quarter was $420,000, or 13 cents per share, compared with $1,118,000, or 43 cents per share, for the comparable quarter last year.

Net sales for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 were $154,153,000 compared with $157,554,000 for the first nine months of fiscal 1989, while net income for this year's nine-month period was $2,150,000, or 68 cents per share, compared with $3,585,000, or $1.49 per share, for the same nine months of last year.

Per-share results have been adjusted to reflect the one-for-four ''reverse'' split of Dec. 5, 1989.

CMS Enhancements is a producer and global distributor of mass storage devices and accessories for most major personal and laptop computers. The company markets its products through dealers and distributors in over 61 countries worldwide.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - To remain competitive in today's demanding business environment, companies of all sizes must evaluate and update their communications technology.

To use it or not to use it is no longer the question -- the question is how to use it well, according to a special report released today by Bank of America's Small Business Alliance.

The application of communications technology, once restricted to large companies, is now being surpassed in scope and sophistication by many small businesses, the report says. Called Insights, the report is the third in a series of white papers commissioned by Bank of America as part of a program for its more than 350,000 small business clients.

Communications technology -- the equipment and linking systems that allow a business to communicate by voice and data both internally and externally -- goes far beyond the traditional telephone. Today's equipment ranges from PCs, fax machines and copiers to local area networks (LANs), electronic cash registers and even artificial intelligence.

''The integration of technology into small businesses is growing at a more rapid pace than in business as a whole,'' said Anne Woodruff, Vice President, Small Business Product Management at the bank. ''For instance, some 25 percent of all personal computers (PCs) shipped today go to small businesses. An even more phenomenal growth has been experienced with local area networks (LANs) where the average growth rate is 130 percent for small businesses, compared to only 53 percent for businesses overall.''

The dramatic growth in the installation of facsimile machines in California is another example of this trend. The number of machines in small businesses in California grew from 14,850 in 1988 to 28,600 in 1989, an increase of 92.6. During the same period, the number of machines in all businesses in California increased by only 43.1 percent -- from 166,527 to 238,444. This is even more dramatic considering that a single large business may have installed several hundred units, while the majority of small businesses acquired only one facsimile machine.

''Many forward thinking companies are using communications technology as a business strategy to outpace the competition,'' said Woodruff. ''Well implemented communications technology, they find, can cut costs, enhance responsiveness, improve customer service, increase revenue and project a more professional image.''

The report shows how some businesses are putting technology to work. One company, an auto parts supply firm maintains an inventory of pre-1970 Mustang parts. The inventory list was put on a videotex system and is now accessible to any repair shop with a computer and modem, thus reducing the amount of time clerks have to spend on the phone. More importantly, because it is linked to an ordering capability, customers are more satisfied with the timely response they now get.

Another company, a specialty health food bakery delivers breads, chips and muffins to local grocery stores and restaurants each day. Drivers record both inventory and orders with a hand-held computer. Data is fed into a PC at the bakery and passed on to the overnight bake shift. Waste is down, freshness is up, expenses are lower and sales are higher.

It's clear the payoff is there for these small businesses, but for many companies knowing what technology will work for them can be a nerve-wracking, even mystifying, experience. And the potential cost of these systems adds yet another layer of anxiety to the process, especially since small businesses cannot afford costly experimentation.

Earnings in 1988 before income taxes were $851 million.

He said the analytical part of the process, which will be completed this year, has been costly ''in terms of turmoil and uncertainty among employees and to some extent among customers, but we feel that the thorough process we have undertaken will result in a real renewal -- where a subjective 'quick fix' would not.''

After giving the analysts an update on progress to date in portfolio reviews and business improvement planning, he said the company will be moving into the balance of the 1990s ''with a great deal more strategic and organizational clarity, a delayered and streamlined structure, much greater levels of employee involvement at the unit level, clearer customer and marketing focus -- and with much more clearly targeted investment

The company plans to have capital expenditures of about $950 million in 1990, he said, with two-thirds allocated to pulp and paper investments. These include completion of the Columbus, Miss., pulp mill, which will soon start up, adding 350,000 annual tons to Weyerhaeuser's market pulp system.

Also included is construction of a third machine at the company's North Pacific Paper newsprint mill at Longview, Wash., which will add 175,000 annual tons for sale in Japan and in the western United States. It will include a de-inking facility to allow the mill to use recycled newsprint. At the same time, the company's recycled fiber business' collection capacity will be increased by 450,000 annual tons to 1.65 million.

The recommended spotted owl preservation areas would, if accepted, involve ''substantial restrictions'' on management of about 96,000 acres of Weyerhaeuser's 2.9 million acres of land ownership in Washington and Oregon, he said.

Weyerhaeuser's 1989 sales in Japan were $1.1 billion, the majority of which were manufactured goods -- but pulp and paper product sales were far higher than manufactured wood products.

INDIANAPOLIS (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - "Recent legislation regarding bovine somatotropin (BST) should have no significant long-term impact on the use of BST in Wisconsin," said Brendan P. Fox, vice president of Elanco Products Co.

"For almost four years, antibiotechnology and antiscience forces have tried to prevent the further evaluation and future availability of BST to dairy farmers in Wisconsin," Fox noted.

"They have tried to ban the product outright and to unnecessarily label milk products. Most recently, they have tried to effect a moratorium that would have extended six months beyond the Food and Drug Administration's approval date. In each instance, the political leadership of Wisconsin refused to be intimidated, and the antiscience efforts failed," Fox stated.

Senate Bill 344, which was signed on April 27 by Wisconsin Governor Thompson, provides for additional research on BST and education on products of biotechnology as well as a partial moratorium on the use of the product until June 1, 1991.

According to recent news media reports, the Food and Drug Administration has stated that it is unlikely BST will be approved before next spring. "Therefore," Fox notes, "Wisconsin's testing of BST will continue, and the moratorium should have no significant long-term impact.

"We support the education aspects of the legislation. We have found that the more people know about the safety and usefulness of BST, the more comfortable they are with the product," Fox concluded.

DALLAS (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - National Gypsum Co. Thursday announced financial results for the three months ended March 31.

First quarter net revenues were $328.7 million, compared with $329.8 million for the same period last year. Net cash provided by continuing operations was $8.5 million, compared with $7.8 million of net cash provided by continuing operations in the first quarter of 1989. The company recorded a net loss of $12.2 million during the first quarter, compared with a loss of $11.3 million during the same period in 1989. This year's first quarter results included a $6.9 million gain from debt repurchases.

John P. Hayes, chairman and chief executive officer, said that despite a 10 percent decline in average wallboard prices, net revenues remained virtually even with those from 1989 because of continued strong billings by The Austin Co. and a four percent increase in wallboard sales volume.

Net cash provided by continuing operations increased slightly due to a timing difference that resulted from a March 31 interest payment date occurring on a weekend, which delayed the actual cash disbursement to April 2, and as a result of proceeds from the company's receivable facility. Hayes said that accrued interest expense decreased 7 percent due to a reduction of debt; however, this was more than offset by the decline in wallboard prices, resulting in an increased net loss.

SAN JOSE, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Businessland Inc. has reached an agreement to acquire the Albany, N.Y. based dealer Computer Professionals for an undisclosed cash amount.

Computer Professionals is a three location reseller with 35 employees that carries microcomputer and workstations products from Apple Computer Inc., IBM Corp., and Compaq Computer Corp. and provides a wide range of services including hardware maintenance, software and network support.

Robert Lento, the executive vice president of Computer Professionals, will continue to run the operation as general manager reporting to Michael Poehner, vice president of the Businessland Eastern Region, and his partner, John Gamble, will remain as a consultant to Businessland.

''This acquisition was driven by our strategy to expand our geographic presence from the top 50 to the top 70 markets in the United States. Albany has been on our list of target cities for some time,'' said David A. Norman, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Businessland Inc.

''Furthermore, Computer Professionals is very complementary to Businessland in terms of its product line, service and support capabilities and its quality customer base,'' he added.

Computer Professionals was founded in 1983. In 1983, Bob Lento and John Gamble joined and took over the active management of the company. The customer base consists of large and medium sized organizations, government and educational institutions.

Founded in 1982, Businessland Inc. is an international leader in the distribution, integration and support of microcomputer and workstation systems for business. The company integrates products from selected manufacturers to create systems tailored to specific customer needs and provides the high-level service and support to maximize their productivity.

Businessland operates centers and branch offices in 50 major metropolitan markets, five metropolitan markets in Great Britain, two in West Germany and five in Canada. It reported sales of $1.2 billion in fiscal 1989.

PASADENA, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Southmark California Inc. (''the company''), formerly Carlsberg Corp., Thursday announced it has entered into agreements with the three principal holders of its 9-3/8 percent subordinated notes due March 1, 1994 (''the notes''), who hold an aggregate of $11 million of the $13,358,000 principal amount of notes outstanding, under which the company has agreed, subject to certain conditions, to purchase at a discount the notes held by these three holders and to call the remaining notes for redemption at face value plus accrued interest under the terms of the governing indenture.

The maturity of the notes has been accelerated as a result of the company's failure to pay the interest installment that was due on March 1, 1990.

The agreements are conditioned on funding being provided to the company, in settlement of an intercompany claim, by an affiliated corporation (''seller''), from a portion of the proceeds of the sale by seller of certain real property (''the property'').

The sale of the property is presently scheduled to be consummated on or before May 22, 1990, but the obligations of the purchaser are subject to certain conditions, and there is no assurance that all of these conditions will be satisfied or waived or that the purchase and redemption of notes will occur.

The company and seller are indirect subsidiaries of Southmark Corp. (''Southmark''), the debtor in possession in proceedings under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code pending in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division.

The funding of the purchase and redemption of the notes in the manner contemplated by the agreements, as well as the sale of the property, have been approved by the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and by the Bankruptcy Court in which a separate Chapter 11 proceeding of the seller is pending.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Great Western Financial Corp. Thursday issued the following statement in response to a decision by Moody's Investors Service to reduce its debt ratings: ''Great Western is disappointed by Moody's decision to reduce its debt ratings.''

''The company believes that there has been no change in circumstances since the ratings were most recently reviewed in December 1989.''

''Moreover, the company believes the downgrade is particularly inappropriate in view of its excellent operating results, healthy capital levels and the underlying strength of the California marketplace.''

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - URS Corp. (NYSE:URS) announced Thursday that it is closing its wholly owned Mitchell Management Systems Inc. (MMS) subsidiary, a proprietary software firm headquartered in Westborough, Mass.

The company said MMS, which currently employs 59 people, contributed eight percent of URS' fiscal 1989 revenues of $99.5 million and had pre-tax losses of $1.4 million in fiscal 1989. Due to a decline in consulting revenue and a lack of software license sales, the pre-tax losses of MMS in the first six months of fiscal 1990 are estimated to be $3.3 million.

The company said estimated closing costs, the writeoff of URS' investment in the subsidiary, and MMS' second fiscal quarter losses, would result in posting a $7.5 million loss against discontinued operations in the second quarter of 1990. The negative cash flow impact of the shutdown will be in the range of $1.2 to $1.7 million.

The company's attempts to identify a buyer for the assets of MMS have been unsuccessful thus far, but are continuing. The estimate of losses from discontinued operations assumes that the company will receive no proceeds from any sale or other recovery; any such proceeds would reduce the loss from discontinued operations.

The closing of MMS puts the company in violation of certain covenants of its credit agreement with Wells Fargo Bank. The bank has provided the company a 90-day forbearance agreement regarding the bank's rights under these covenants while discussions with the bank continue.

The shutdown of MMS should have no significant impact on the company's ability to service its debt as it expects the closure to strengthen, rather than weaken, its future cash flow from operations.

URS Corp., through its subsidiary URS Consultants Inc., is a multi-disciplinary engineering, architectural, planning and consulting firm. It provides a diverse range of professional services to governmental, industrial, educational and health care clients to solve hazardous material, environmental, transportation and water treatment problems.

SANTA ANA, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - EECO Computer Inc. (ECI), a leading supplier of computer systems for managing hotel and lodging facilities, Thursday announced that it will operate as an independent corporation from EECO Inc.

Robert Bonney, chairman of EECO, stated that, under the new structure, ECI's operations, assets and banking affiliations will continue unaffected despite the current financial difficulties of EECO.

EECO Inc. has divested its healthy ECI business to assure ongoing business operations and non-involvement in any bankruptcy proceedings that may occur, according to ECI President Carl Jeremias.

In 1989, EECO reported that it had decided to divest ECI. As a result the hotel system subsidiary was listed as a ''discontinued operation'' in EECO's financial statements following accepted accounting nomenclature for operations which are for sale. Since then, ECI has generated positive cash flow and profit and has introduced a new family of property management systems for the hospitality, hotel and lodging industries.

Jeremias said: ''ECI is an established world leader today in its vertical marketplace and has been for over 20 years. We have continually invested in new high-performance software products and new key personnel in sales, marketing and systems support, making us a strong, independently operated company.''

Spokesmen from EECO confirmed that ECI was protected from the current difficulties of EECO, whose computer keyboard division has been particularly troublesome. ECI has never been a division of EECO; rather, it has operated as a wholly owned systems and service company, independent of the other EECO operations which are largely manufacturing businesses with plants in Tucson, Phoenix and Mexico.

STAMFORD, CT (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - In 1989, for the first time, America's 20 largest computer manufacturers sold more overseas than they did at home, but the overall selling pace has slowed, reported Gartner Group Inc., the leading research company covering the information industries.

This data was released Thursday in the Gartner Group annual publication, ''Yardstick Top 100 U.S.,'' which provides a five-year market and financial analysis of data-processing vendors.

Sales abroad for the 20 largest U.S. computer manufacturers increased to 50.1 percent of their total worldwide revenues in 1989, from 48.4 percent in 1988. The top 20 U.S. computer manufacturers produce 70 percent of U.S. computer hardware, software and services.

According to the publication, which also presents company profiles, IBM's mainframe market share within the top 100 increased from 73.1 percent in 1988 to 74.2 percent in 1989. Its PC share grew from 35.9 percent to 36 percent, after falling steadily from 50 percent in 1985.

However, IBM lost market share in several other data processing product segments including software and peripherals.

Sales of the 20 largest U.S. computer manufacturers to the Asia/Pacific region, including Japan, slowed to a 12.7 percent growth rate. In 1988, these companies enjoyed a 25.1 percent growth rate in this region, and the growth rate was slightly higher for the top 100, 26.4 percent.

The 20 manufacturers saw European sales growth slow to 9.5 percent, the first single-digit growth since 1982.

The Gartner Group Yardstick publications, which include Yardstick Quarterly and Yardstick QuickFlash, provide quarterly financial analysis of data processing companies, and are available for $1,995 a year by calling 203/975-6419.

With current annual revenues of more than $65 million, increasing at almost 50 percent per year, the 11-year-old Gartner Group serves than 6,00 clients worldwide with an array of research reports, electronic communication services, briefings, consulting services, and conferences.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Alan S. Becker, chairman of the board and Geoffrey C. Warner, chief executive officer of Fort Lauderdale based Guardian Savings and Loan, announced Thursday the successful approbation of the thrift to a state chartered commercial bank.

Commencement of operation by The Guardian Bank on May 2 will mark the first transition of a savings and loan in the State of Florida to a state chartered commercial bank.

In order to receive conversion approval, the former savings and loan met all qualifications and exceeded the rigid regulatory requirements of a primary capital ratio of 5.5 percent and a total capital ratio of 6.0 percent, far beyond the percentage required by savings and loans at year end 1991.

Chief Executive Officer Warner states the confidence placed by long-term Guardian customers has been an integral part of the successful move to a commercial banking operation. Warner further states that The Guardian Bank will offer expanded customer services and will remain insured by FDIC.

Additional services such as commercial checking accounts and credit lines, accompanied by new branch locations, and the future relocation of its executive offices to Boca Raton will offer further banking opportunities for customers of The Guardian Bank.

Alan S. Becker, chiarman of the board acknowledges that the strength and dedication of management and staff has been a determining factor in achieveing the corporate goal of conversion to commercial bank status.

SAN MATEO, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Increases in wagering handle and a successful quarter horse racing meet contributed to a significant increase in net income for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 at Bay Meadows Operating Co. and California Jockey Club, according to James P. Conn, president and chief executive officer of Bay Meadows.

As a result of the improved financial performance, Conn indicated that he intends to recommend to the board of directors of California Jockey Club at its May 17 meeting that the dividend for the first half of 1990 be increased from the 25 cents per share level paid in the first half of 1989.

Combined net income was $750,000, or 13 cents per share, compared with $156,000, or 3 cents per share, for the same period a year ago. Before giving effect to the impact of a change in accounting principle in the first quarter of 1989, net income for the quarter was $523,000, or 9 cents per share.

Combined revenues increased 18 percent to $10,377,000, compared with revenues of $8,771,000 in the first quarter of 1989.

California Jockey Club is one of the nation's three publicly-held real estate investment trusts whose primary asset is a horse racing track. Bay Meadows Operating Co. operates Bay Meadows Racetrack on the San Francisco Peninsula. The companies' share are traded as a single unit under a pairing agreement on the American Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - American International Group, Inc. (AIG) Thursday reported that its net income in the first quarter of 1990 increased 3.5 percent to $355.7 million, or $2.16 per share, compared with $343.5 million, or $2.08 per share, in the same period of 1989. Revenues rose 6.5 percent to $3.7 billion from $3.4 billion in the year-earlier quarter.

Income before taxes in the first quarter amounted to $451.5 million, representing an increase of 6.0 percent over the $425.8 million recorded in the same period of 1989. These results included realized capital gains of $49.2 million and $37.4 million in 1990 and 1989, respectively.

Included in the 1990 operating results was the "fresh start" tax benefit which reduced the provision for income taxes by approximately $10 million. In 1989, the comparable "fresh start" figure was $17 million.

At March 31, 1990, AIG's consolidated assets and capital funds approximated $47 billion and $8.6 billion, respectively.

AIG is the leading U.S.-based international insurance organization and the nation's largest underwriter of commercial and industrial coverages. RIVERSIDE, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Fleetwood Enterprises Inc. (NYSE:FLE) Thursday announced preliminary sales of approximately $432 million for the fourth fiscal quarter ended April 29, the highest quarterly sales total ever achieved by the company.

Preliminary sales for the fiscal year ended April 29 totaled about $1.55 billion, a decline of 4 percent from the record $1.62 billion achieved in fiscal 1989. In reporting the year-to-date numbers, the company noted that last year contained 53 weeks compared with this year's 52 weeks. Final sales and earnings as well as unit shipments by product line will be announced in about four weeks.

Manufactured housing sales for the quarter were higher than any previous fourth period, up 8 percent to approximately $136 million compared with $125.9 million reported last year. For the year, sales were off 1 percent to about $532 million compared with last year's record sales of $535.3 million.

Recreational vehicle sales for the fourth quarter were nearly $286 million a decline of 2 percent from the $290.4 million recorded last year. Within the recreational vehicle group, motor home sales were about $189 million compared with $200 million recorded in the same period last year. Travel trailer sales were about $88 million compared with last year's sales of $90.4 million. Sales for the company's folding trailer division, acquired from the Coleman Co. effective Jan. 1, 1990, were approximately $9 million.

For all of fiscal 1990, recreational vehicle sales totaled about $979 million, a 7 percent decline from the $1.05 billion recorded last year. Motor homes accounted for $655 million of current year RV sales, travel trailers $313 million, and folding trailers recorded $11 million during the four months that this division was owned by Fleetwood. Last year's RV sales were comprised of $719.3 million for motor homes and $334.5 million for travel trailers.

The company's supply and finance subsidiaries together contributed revenues of about $9 million for the quarter and $38 million for fiscal 1990. This compares with $9 million and $29 million, respectively, last year.

Fleetwood is the nation's leading producer of manufactured housing, motor homes, travel trailers and folding trailers. The company operates 26 manufactured housing and 20 recreational vehicle plants in 17 states and Canada.

FRESNO, CA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - WestAir Holding Inc. (ASE:WAH), the largest regional airline company in the United States, Thursday reported its operating results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Operating revenues for the first quarter increased 47 percent to $60.0 million, compared to the like period in 1989. Operating income for the quarter was $776,000, down 8.2 percent compared to the $845,000 posted last year.

Net profits were $167,000 (3 cents per share based on 6,574,000 common share equivalents), down 51 percent from first quarter 1989 earnings of $338,000 (5 cents per share based on 7,322,000 common share equivalents).

The company said the 650,377 passengers carried during the first quarter was an increase of 31 percent, compared to the 1989 period. Revenue passenger miles were up 41 percent to 146,124,000, and available seat miles were up 44 percent to 336,119,000, compared to the first quarter last year.

Load factor for the quarter was 43.5 percent, down .8 percentage point compared to the 1989 period.

''A solid quarter of growth in revenues, passenger traffic and capacity was impacted by the sharp rise in fuel expense incurred during the period '' said Timothy P. Flynn, chairman of WestAir Holding. ''Per gallon fuel prices during the quarter were up 18 percent compared to the same period last year and fuel expense jumped from 11 percent to 13 percent of our total operating expenses,'' Flynn said.

''The first quarter was also marked by investment in the continued build-up of our new Washington-Dulles hub which now includes service to 13 cities in the East. (WestAir Holding began its Dulles hub operations Dec. 15, 1989 with service to seven cities.)

''These quickly maturing new markets and our solid operation in the East will enable our Atlantic Coast Airlines division to soon make a positive contribution to WestAir Holding's financial performance,'' said Flynn.

''As we move forward we are also encouraged by the overall strength demonstrated by our West Coast franchise, particularly in our California markets, and by the recent decline in fuel prices,'' said Flynn.

WestAir Holding Inc., which operates through two wholly owned subsidiaries and one operating division -- WestAir/United Express, NPA/United Express and Atlantic Coast Airlines/United Express -- is the largest regional airline company in the United States.

The company operates over 800 daily flights and serves 56 cities in the West and along the East Coast utilizing both jet and turbo-prop aircraft. The company's major hubs are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Fresno, PROVIDENCE, RI (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Fleet/Norstar Financial Group Thursday announced a loss of $98 million for the first quarter ended March 31, largely due to a special increase in reserves for possible loan losses.

Quarterly results, normally announced in mid-April, had been delayed pending completion of examinations by federal and state banking regulators.

Fleet/Norstar also announced today that its board of directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 35 cents per share on the corporation's common stock. The dividend will be payable on July 1, 1990 to stockholders of record on June 15, 1990.

In disclosing results, the company stated:

-- Nonperforming loans increased from $319 million at Dec. 31, 1989 to $653 million as of March 31, 1990. This amount includes $342 million which is either contractually current or past due fewer than 90 days.

-- In addition, foreclosed real estate assets (including insubstance foreclosures) increased from $80 million at Dec. 31, 1989 to $275 million at March 31, 1990. Assets in this category have been written down to market value. $70 million of the assets in this category were either contractually current or past due fewer than 90 days as of March 31, 1990.

-- A special addition of $367 million was made to reserves for possible loan losses, bringing total reserves to $595 million. These reserves represent 91 percent of nonperforming loans and 64 percent of nonperforming assets.

-- Of the $928 million in total nonperforming assets, $552 million are commerical real estated-related.

-- Net loan chargeoffs during the first quarter totaled $171 million.

-- As noted above, the $367 million special loss provision was the principal factor in the reserve increase and in Fleet/Norstar's recording a loss of $98 million for the first quarter of 1990. This compared to net income of $92 million for the same period a year ago. On a fully diluted earnings per share basis, the loss amounted to 92 cents per share, vs. earnings of 82 cents per share for the first quarter of 1989.

RICHARDSON, TX (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Convex Computer Corp. (NYSE: CNX) and Rice University, Houston, Texas, announced Thursday that Convex has donated a C120 system to the Computer and Information Technology Institute (CITI) to support the university's extensive supercomputer research activities.

"From the very beginning, Convex and Rice have shared a mutually beneficial relationship," said Dr. Kenneth Kennedy, director of the Center for Research on Parallel Computation at Rice University.

"The Computer Science Department has gained valuable experience by exposure to important technological issues, such as compiler technology, that are of practical significance to the computer industry. This experience and research has in turn led to technologically advanced products for Convex," he continued.

Steven J. Wallach, senior vice president of technology at Convex, serves as a member of the Computer Science Engineering Advisory Board at the university and through his service has helped guide the Convex-Rice research efforts.

"Convex became the first corporate affiliate of the Computer Science Department, thereby developing a strong connection with the academic research being done on compilers for high-performance computers," said Wallach. "Dr. Kennedy has been an advisor to Convex since its founding and the theoretical basis of our compilers is based on the pioneering work done at Rice University.

As a result of this vectorizing and parallelizing research, we were able to build the best compiler in the industry for the Convex line of supercomputers." (A compiler converts or translates a high-level computer programming language, such as Fortran, C, and Ada into executable basic machine code.)

Researchers at Rice will use the Convex C120 computer for a broad range of compute-intensive applications. The system will be used to solve extremely large linear programming problems that arise in every industry, particularly in the petroleum market.

Oil refineries need computer power to determine the best settings for refinery controls and to plan the logistical allocation of resources. Antoher study involves testing the use of the new "wavelet" technology for seismic problems arising in oil exploration and earthquake source detection.

STAMFORD, CT (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Mr. Frank J. Kugler, chairman of Northeast Bancorp Inc. and Union Trust Co. announced that Northeast

Bancorp has filed legal action against The Bank of New York for materially breaching the company's long-standing merger agreement.

Under this action, Northeast seeks specific performance of the contract or in the alternative money damages resulting from The Bank of New York's breach of this agreement and plan of merger.

In addition, Northeast also seeks damages for The Bank of New York's violation of the Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act, breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing and libel.

In filing this five count legal action, Northeast seeks damages of not less than $350 million, plus interest in addition to general, special and punitive damages. The libel count results in part from disparaging and defamatory remarks made by The Bank of New York included in its April 30 letter which The Bank of New York distributed to the press.

In commenting on this legal action Kugler stated that given the circumstances, this action is consistent with our desire to seek full value for our shareholders as spelled out in our merger agreement. He further reiterated that given the impasse over the acceptance of Northeast Bancorp's stated book value as audited by Price Waterhouse the company is left with no other choice but to pursue legal action.

Kugler also noted that the banking Department of the State of Connecticut has completed its examination of Union Trust as of Dec. 8, 1989 and Union Trust has charged off all recommended losses to the loan portfolio.

This action is particularly critical considering the material difference in book value and the ultimate shareholder value at 2.5x book.

Bank of New York's statement of book value of $12.31 per share in their regulatory filing of April 16 results in a shareholder value of $30.78 per share as compared to $88.03 per share based on Northeast's first quarter fully diluted book value of $35.21 (assuming exercise of all outstanding options). It is Northeast's contention that The Bank of New York has clearly used arbitrary standards to establish book value in order to avoid paying full shareholder value as dictated by the merger agreement.

Kugler stated that Northeast is still anxious to consummate the merger agreement with The Bank of New York under the terms of the agreement. The first count of this action is intended to bring the merger to a satisfactory closure.

CHICAGO (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Ninety children from the Chicago Public Schools' All-City Elementary Youth Chorus will board a United Airlines flight this morning at Chicago's O'Hare Airport as they head for Carnegie Hall in New York.

United (NYSE:UAL) donated 101 round-trip tickets for the students, their parents and the conductor after the group fell short of raising enough money for the trip.

''These young people are exceptional representatives of the city of Chicago, and we are proud to help make their debut at Carnegie Hall possible,'' said Stephen M. Wolf, United Airlines chairman and president. ''We want the children of our public schools to know that they can reach their goals.''

Before the group boards their flight, they will treat O'Hare travelers in United's Terminal One to a selection of their songs.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - The Research Consortium Inc. (RCI), a source of qualitative information on the worldwide use and availability of high-performance computing, Thursday awarded its first annual High-Performance Computing Industry Recognition Award to IBM for delivering the "most significant recently announced new product" for the high-performance computing community.

The announcement was made at RCI's sixth annual North America Members Symposium in Washington. The award was presented to IBM for its RISC System/6000 family of POWERstations and POWERservers, announced in February.

In accepting the award presented by Dr. Judith Bostock, assistant to the science advisor, President's Office of Science and Technology Policy, IBM's Nick Donofrio, IBM vice president and president of the company's Advanced Workstations Division, said, "We are highly honored that the industry has chosen to single out IBM for its technology leadership with our new line of advanced workstations."

"Criteria used for selecting the RISC System/6000 series included: technological significance of the product's hardware and software; price/performance; quality of the product at first delivery; broad applicability of the product, and general perception of overall significance by RCI advisors and members, industry analysts, and the press " said J. Richard Sherman, president of RCI.

Research Consortium Inc., founded in the fall of 1987, conducts comprehensive studies of the high-performance computing industry including market analysis and forecasts of high-performance-related markets, applications, economies and technologies.

In addition to its research activities, RCI sponsors a number of forums for its members, including participative symposia in North America and Europe, and annual member management conferences in the United States and Europe. Activities in the Japanese market are being planned for 1990.

RCI members include leading edge users and vendors of high-performance computing technology. Some of the vendors include: Alliant Computer Corp., Amdahl/Key Computer Labs, Computer Sciences Corp., FPS Computing, Fujitsu America, Grumman Data Systems, Hewlett-Packard/Apollo, HNSX Supercomputers Inc., IBM Corp., Minnesota Super Computer Center, Myrias Computer Corp., Network Systems Corp., Science Applications International Corp. HOUSTON (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Texas Eastern Products Pipeline Co. (NYSE:TPP) (TEPPCO) announced Thursday that propane deliveries at the Selkirk, N.Y., terminal of TE Products Pipeline Co. L.P. will be resumed on May 6.

The company's 165-mile, 8-inch propane line from Watkins Glen, N.Y., to Selkirk has been out of service for repair and extensive testing following an explosion and fire, which resulted from a leak in the line near North Blenheim, N.Y., on March 13.

''We commenced filling the line at 7:30 a.m. today,'' said T.U. Hannigan, vice president of operations. ''It takes about three days to completely fill the 165-mile line and have propane available for delivery at Selkirk.

''The pipeline has been hydrostatically tested at pressures far in excess of normal operating pressures. Pipe containing defects that were found by the test has been replaced and retested. All tests and results have been thoroughly reviewed by the federal and state authorities, independent consultants specializing in pipeline safety, and TEPPCO. The Department of Transportation's Office of Pipeline Safety has authorized returning the line to service.''

The cause of the pipeline break near North Blenheim is still under investigation; however, Battelle Laboratories at Columbus, Ohio, has stated that ''this failure is believed to have occurred because of an unfortunate and unusual combination of circumstances'' and concluded that ''this set of circumstances is unique and would be unlikely to occur again.''

''We are working closely with the citizens of North Blenheim to provide individual and community relief following the incident,'' said Michael D. Burke, president of TEPPCO. ''The company has arranged for payment of medical and emergency costs incurred by the residents and is examining a number of possible community projects in cooperation with residents and the New York Secretary of State, Gail Shaffer, who is from the community.''

Burke also said that the focus of the company's recent efforts has been to ensure a safe startup of the pipeline. ''We successfully completed the hydrotest using procedures for newly installed pipe, and after reviewing the results of the failure analysis, we have reached a consensus among industry experts and state and federal officials that the line is safe to operate.''

TEPPCO Partners L.P. is a publicly owned master limited partnership which owns the product line extending 4,100 miles from Southeast Texas through the Midwest to the Northeastern United States. It is one of the largest common carrier pipelines of petroleum products in the United States. TEPPCO is the general partner for the limited partnership.

WELLESLEY HILLS, MA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Commonwealth Mortgage Co. Inc., New England's largest residential lender, announced a drop in the interest rate of its adjustable mortgage (ARM) to 7.99 percent.

Company President John J. Sousa Jr., stated that ''This rate drop should be significant to a lot of first-time buyers who are faced with increasing rates on fixed-rate home loans. We're heading toward 11 percent for 30-year fixed-rate mortgages, and I wouldn't be surprised if we start approaching 12 percent.

''For the first-time buyer this is a hard situation: on the one hand we have falling sales prices and, on the other, increasing mortgage rates.

The 7.99 percent convertible ARM lets the buyer get into a home, wait out the market, and then convert on the anniversary date to the prevailing market rate.''

On the other hand, those same conditions cause investors to show greater interest in short-term investments such as one-year ARMs. When the markets are uncertain, investors like the flexibility of short term situations. For the homebuyers, the one-year ARM is also an interim hedge against rising rates and provides a real financial alternative.

The convertible mortgage carries two points, an annual cap of 2 percent, a lifetime cap of 6 percent, and there is a 60-day lock on the rate from time of application. The cost to convert is $1.50.

Commonwealth has 19 offices throughout New England and was recently cited by Fannie Mae as its largest single lender in the six-state region. During 1989, the firm wrote more than $1.5 billion in home mortgages despite the ailing housing market. Commonwealth's residential loan portfolio stood at $4.2 billion at the end of April.

CINCINNATI (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - The Board of Directors of Federated Department Stores, Inc., announced today that the company has withdrawn its intention to sell its New York-based Bloomingdale's department store division.

''Market circumstances -- as well as Federated's own financial status -- have changed significantly since we offered Bloomingdale's for sale,'' said Allen I. Questrom, Federated chairman and chief executive officer, and James M. Zimmerman, the company's president and chief operating officer. ''Rather than divest Bloomingdale's, we believe the interests of our creditors, customers and employees are better served by retaining Bloomingdale's and aggressively managing this business to take advantage of its future potential, and that is our intent.''

The company originally expressed its intention to sell Bloomingdale's in September 1989, prior to the company's subsequent Chapter 11 filing on January 15, 1990.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Austrian Airlines has joined Scandinavian Airlines Systems (SAS), Swissair and Finnair in the ''European Quality Alliance,'' which SAS President Jan Carlzon has called ''one of the strongest forces in the airline industry today.''

The expanded alliance was announced in Vienna Thursday, with the signing of agreements by the presidents of the four member airlines.

The ''European Quality Alliance'' is designed to increase cooperation among the four airlines in sales, marketing, customer service and technical matters. The alliance will bring consumers more coordinated and efficient timetable, common quality products on the ground as well as in the air, joint check-in facilities and other passenger amenities at airports served by one or more of the partners.

In addition, as was announced in March, the four carriers have approached the aircraft manufacturers Airbus and McDonnell Douglas and indicated an interest in jointly ordering up to 239 medium-range aircraft in the 130-170 seat category. The aircraft, under consideration for delivery beginning in the mid-1990s, are the Airbus A320-321 and the McDonnell Douglas MD-90-30/40.

Among them, the four airlines operate 250 aircraft, transport more than 30 million passengers per year and employ 80,000 persons.

Noting that Austrian and Finnair already have close links - the two were launch carriers for the MD-87 - Potila also welcomed ''further opportunities for synergies and economies of scale,'' in telecommunications and distribution systems, marketing, sales and ground handling.

CINCINNATI (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Central Trust has drafted Roger Staubach as spokesperson for the bank in its future advertising campaigns.

Staubach recently was in Cincinnati filming three TV commercials for Central Trust, which begin airing Monday, May 14. He will return to the area several times throughout the year.

The attributes valued by Central Trust are reflected in the recently filmed commercials, said Terry L. Eschmeyer, Central Trust senior vice president and director of marketing. They include consistency, a mindset toward winning, and the distinct advantages a successful player brings to the winning team.

Finally, a winning team always seeks distinct advantages which will make the current season better than the past, Eschmeyer noted. ''In the same way, Central Trust always aims to provide distinct advantages to our customers--through new products and services that surpass what we have offered before.

In addition to the TV commercials filmed last weekend, which will continue in flights through the end of the year, Central Trust plans to incorporate Staubach as its spokesperson in all media on a continuing basis. ''The current TV advertising campaign is the beginning of a continuing relationship between Roger and the bank,'' Kocher said.

In his professional football career with the Dallas Cowboys, Staubach established himself as one of the top quarterbacks in NFL history. As starting quarterback he led the Cowboys to four Super Bowls, achieving victories in two of them and many awards along the way. He was selected for the Pro Football Hall of Fame during his first year of eligibility in 1985.

Staubach's professional football career followed fulfillment of four years of active duty with the United States Navy--including a year in Vietnam--following his graduation from the Naval Academy. He had received the Heisman Trophy his junior year at the Academy and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1981.

Born and raised in Silverton, Ohio (in Greater Cincinnati), Staubach is a graduate of Purcell High School, where he initially developed his football skills.

Currently president and chairman of the board of The Staubach Co., Roger Staubach is active in numerous civic, charity and professional organizations.

Central Trust is the lead bank of the Central Bancorporation Inc., an Ohio-based multi-bank holding company with assets of $6.2 billion at the end of the first quarter, 1990. Central Bancorporation, which operates 132 banking offices throughout Ohio and Northern Kentucky, is a member of PNC Financial Corp., the nation's 14th largest bank holding company with assets of $46.7 billion at the end of the first quarter, 1990. FRAMINGHAM, MA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Aritech reported that revenues for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990 were $21,300,000, compared with $25,100,000 in the same period in 1989.

Operations for the quarter resulted in a loss of $996,000, or $.33 per share, compared with a profit of $560,000, or $.18 per share, in 1989.

The first quarter of 1989 has been restated, for comparative purposes, to reflect the July 7, 1989 sale of the North American Distribution Division.

Commenting on the results, James A. Synk, chairman and president, said, ''Sales of our European Division continue to be strong and reflect the January 2, 1990 acquisition of ITEC Security Products (Ireland) Ltd. Sales in North America were disappointing and reflect the overstocking by distributors in the fourth quarter of 1989 because of anticipated higher demand and incentives indexed to increases in annual purchasing levels.

''Demand in general within the industry is soft, reflecting a weakened economy. In addition, shipments to the company's largest customer were restricted in the first quarter because of the failure to pay when due, approximately $7 million of receivables of which approximately $6.6 million is still owed to the company. The company is negotiating with this customer a schedule for the payment of these receivables. As a consequence of the continued delay in the payment of the receivables, the company was required to seek additional credit from its principal lenders. We are negotiating credit of up to $7,000,000, which would expire on December 14, 1990, with our principal lenders. In addition, the company has engaged the services of an investment banking firm to explore alternatives that would result in the enhancement of shareholder value.''

ARMONK, NY (MAY 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) emissions from IBM manufacturing sites in the U.S. were reduced 37 percent in 1989 over their 1988 levels, representing a 54 percent reduction since 1987 when the company's CFC-elimination program began, the company announced Thursday.

With these reductions, IBM is continuing towards its goal of eliminating all CFC use in its products and processes by the end of 1993, with several manufacturing sites scheduled to halt CFC use within this year.

This program also covers all of IBM's non-U.S. production facilities so that, on a worldwide basis, IBM achieved a 21 percent reduction in emissions for 1989 over 1988 and a cumulative reduction of 35 percent since 1987.

CFC's are believed to be a significant contributor to the depletion of the ozone layer in the earth's upper atmosphere, which screens out much of the sun's harmful ultra-violet radiation.

IBM's program to eliminate all CFC use from both products and processes by the end of 1993 is several years ahead of all deadlines currently embodied in major national and international agreements and protocols on CFC use.

IBM is replacing CFCs with a variety of methods, including water-based processes and through the use of other non-hazardous solvents. Several of these processes involve entirely new technology that has been developed specifically to eliminate CFC use.

IBM also announced that it had made substantial reductions in its emissions of methyl chloroform which is also believed to affect the ozone layer. By year-end 1989, the company's emissions of methyl chloroform had been lowered 70 percent since 1987.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - The organizers of United Bank of Philadelphia, a minority-owned commercial bank scheduled to open in the fall of 1990, Thursday announced the addition of four new members to the bank's board of directors.

James F. Bodine, former president of First Pennsylvania Bank; Angela Huggins, an executive at RMS Technologies Inc.; Dr. Niara Sudarkasa, president of Lincoln University; and career banker Alfred E. Roberts, have been added to the board, increasing the total number of directors to 16.

To date, United Bank's organizers have received commitments for about $2.5 million of the bank's $5 million capitalization goal. In addition, the organizers say the concept of establishing a black-owned bank, here, has met with wide-spread acceptance among community leaders and members of the city's black clergy, many of whom have made investment or deposit commitments to the startup financial institution.

Following his retirement from First Pennsylvania in 1978, Bodine, 68, served in 1979 and 1980 as Secretary of Commerce for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Since that time, he has been one of Philadelphia's most prominent civic leaders. He was a founder and served as a managing partner of the Urban Affairs Partnership, a leading Philadelphia civic organization.

Huggins, 49, is the director of Facilities Services for RMS Technologies Inc., a minority-owned information systems company based in Marlton, N.J.

Sudarkasa, 51, assumed her current position at Lincoln University in 1987 after a 20-year career as a faculty member at the University of Michigan and at New York University. A member of numerous boards, Dr. Sudarkasa is a director of the Pennsylvania Economic Development Partnership and the Barnes Foundation.

Roberts, 47, who will also serve as the bank's president and chief administrative officer, will bring 20 years of banking experience to the board and to his new position. A former senior vice president at EquiBank's Philadelphia office, Roberts also has been a consultant to Hopper, Soliday Corp., an investment banking firm.

He plans to join United Bank of Philadelphia as a full-time employee at its proposed opening date in the fall of 1990.

According to Emma C. Chappell, United Bank's chairman-designate, the four new board members will provide an important combination of experience and contacts to the new bank's organizing effort.

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Westpac Banking Corp., (NYSE:WBK) long term credit rating remains sound said the bank's managing director, Stuart Fowler, in responding to a one level re-rating by Standard and Poors Corp.

The adjustment by Standard and Poors (S & P) brings its rating in line with that of the other major rating agency, Moodys, and follows the downgrading of Australia's country rating by both agencies late last year.

The new S & P rating of ''AA minus'' places Westpac on the fourth highest level out of a possible 23 levels for long term debt. It is ahead of most major US banks.

The bank has no immediate plans to increase its long term debt raisings in external markets. Its short term debt is unaffected by the re-rating.

Westpac has a strong capital base, with a Tier 1 capital ratio of 5.7 percent, and an overall ratio of 9.7 percent, well above the 8 percent guideline set by the Reserve Bank of Australia.

Westpac Banking Corp. is an international financial services group headquartered in Australia, ranking among the top 100 banks worldwide in terms of assets and the top 50 banks in profitability. In its home markets of Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea and the South West Pacific, Westpac offers a full range of banking and financial services. Specialized services are provided through Westpac Group's offices in Asia, the United States, and Europe. Westpac's operations now extend offshore to 29 countries.

FAIRFIELD, NJ (MAY 3) BUSINESS WIRE - The following letter was sent by Peter E. Simon, chairman of the board of Prime Motor Inns, Inc., to the company's shareholders:

May 3, 1990

Dear Shareholder:

To ensure that Prime Motor Inns Inc. is positioned to build on its strengths and expertise in the changing hotel and real estate marketplace of the 1990's, we are aggressively pursuing a long-term strategic program designed to significantly strengthen Prime's balance sheet and cash flow and focus the company on its core businesses of hotel property development management, and franchising. Consistent with this program, we have already announced a series of transactions that have begun the process of debt reduction and monetization of assets. We expect to be reporting to you over the next several months additional transactions, and to complete this process within the next twelve months, at which time Prime will move forward with a streamlined and liquid balance sheet.

As a first step in this program, we announced in April that we had reached agreement on the sale of certain long-term notes receivable and finalized terms for payment relating to the sale of a major hotel property. We now have completed the sale of the notes receivable to an affiliate of Morgan Guaranty Trust Company for $38 million and received $40 million cash proceeds from the sale of this hotel property. Aggregate proceeds of these transactions, plus two previously announced debt financings, are $ 110 million. We have reduced our bank debt by $57 million and applied the balance for general corporate purposes.

At the end of the 1980's, the hotel industry found itself with substantial over-capacity, resulting in a highly competitive environment. However, we had learned from our own experience that there are niches which offer opportunity for growth and profitability. Our two new products -- AmeriSuites, which are limited service all-suite properties, and Wellesley Inns, a group of limited service hotels -- have been realizing strong market demand and success. We have determined, therefore, that Prime can best achieve long-term profitable growth in the years ahead by concentrating its resources on these target market niches. The successful introduction of these new brands further reinforces Prime's credentials as a developer, manager and franchisor with hotel property investors and lenders.

Intense competition in the hotel industry, and its near-term dampening effect on both operating margins and development income, have had their impact on Prime's recent financial performance, particularly for the fiscal third quarter ended March 31, 1990. For these three months, Prime had income of $ 209,000 or $ .01 per share. Total revenues for the period were $ 82,387,000. For the fiscal third quarter of a year ago, Prime had net income of $ 18,176,000 or $ .55 per share, on total revenues of $ 99,861,000.

The current status of the hotel industry and real estate and financial markets has affected Prime's ability to sell developed properties. As a result, revenues and earnings decreased because no development income or property sale gains were generated in the quarter as compared with approximately $13.6 million in development income and $ 6 million in property sale gains in the prior year's quarter. The figures for the 1990 third quarter do not reflect any accruals of income relating to the Servico transaction. Interest expense increased by approximately $ 8.5 million in the quarter primarily due to borrowings associated with Prime's investment in the Servico and Ramada transactions.

Given the current over capacity and pricing conditions affecting the industry, we expect that Prime's financial performance will continue to be under pressure over the next several quarters -- a near term outlook which virtually every company in the hotel business is experiencing. This does not diminish our confidence in Prime's long-term prospects and represents an appropriate time for us to be undertaking our strategic actions.

We, like you, are shareholders of Prime, and we are most disturbed by the sharp decline in the price of Primes' common shares. We are committed to maintaining Prime's leadership position in the hotel industry. By ensuring that Prime has a strong, liquid balance sheet, we are confident that Prime will be able to maximize the potential of its core businesses to the benefit of its shareholders and that the share price will reflect this value.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) COMTEX - A Congressional hearing on regulatory control of the nation's financial markets took an unusual turn today with allegations of market manipulation by Wall Street firms and countercharges of "wacko" against the witness who made the claims.

The verbal fracas occured before the House subcommittee on telecommunications and finance, which convened to hear proposals to merge the Securities and Exchange Commission and Commodity Futures Trading Commission into one agency or enact certain jurisdictional realignment of the SEC and CFTC.

Commenting on program trading, Mr. James Coxon, senior vice president of Cigna Investments, said in a written statement that a small group of Wall Street firms have "determined how to 'game' the system and benefit from volatility that is excessive, unnecessary and perhaps induced."

"Certain Wall Street firms seem prepared to foul their own nests," he added. "By forming clubs to share proprietary customer information, they operate in a manner similar to the 'pools' of the 1920s."

Asked to elaborate on the statement, Coxon said, "as a former club member,

I assure you its highly organized and would make the CIA look like Sunday school." "The club basically operates in cohesion, when it sees a see-saw shift it either buys or sells, moving ahead of the market."

What Coxon described is intermarket front running, an illegal act of moving ahead of a known customer's order in one market by taking action in a different market.

Stock index futures allow investors to bet on the movements of baskets of stocks, without ever owning the actual shares. Computerized program trading allows investors to move quickly between the actual baskets of stocks, which they can buy on the stock exchanges, and the futures, which they buy on commodity exchanges.

After Coxon's answer, the subject was not pursued by other House members which caused Rep. Jim Cooper (D-Tenn.) to admonish his colleagues and other witnesses. "I find it hard to believe a claim of a secret club operating to manipulate markets does not get a ripple out of the panel," he said.

"I didn't react to the statement because I don't put much credence in it," said Edward I. O'Brien, president of the Securities Industry Association. "I don't answer every wacko's charges."

Witness Thomas A. Russo, an attorney for Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, and a former staff member of both the SEC and CFTC, also dismissed Coxon's charges. "I have not heard of this before and I have never seen it in my practice," he said.

An angry Rep. Norman Lent (R-N.Y.), saying he did not like the use of his committee to dignify charges, peppered Coxon with a series of questions.

"Have you gone to the FBI with these charges, the SEC or CFTC,?" Lent asked. "You said you were a member of the club and resigned from the club. When? How much did you make?"

Coxon said he did not go the SEC to present these charges but said in November last year he gave a written statement to an SEC official at a speaking engagement.

Coxon then backtracked and claimed these actions were perfectly legal. "I was with Morgan Stanley from 1979-1985 and what was done was absolutely legal to maximize intelligence," he said. "Sharing of data in and of itself is not intermarket front running. Only if action is taken is this intermarket front running."

A Morgan Stanley official said he did not have enough information to respond to Coxon's comments. "We have no comment because we have not seen the transcripts of Mr. Coxon's remarks and do not know precisely what he said," the spokesperson said.

From 1985-1988 Coxon was a partner at Harvard Management and he said "information was shared over telephone lines like a club." "Harvard Management had knowledge of portfolios. We knew selling would take place ahead of the October 1987 crash so it was our duty to sell futures which we did."

Coxon conceded the information was useful but said it was not illegal because there was no collusion with other firms on when to buy or sell. "We were aware how price changes could trigger trading in the futures market," he said. "We sold ahead of the 1987 market crash because we anticipated what other investors would do."

Coxon said Cigna does not engage in index arbitrage and he does not know if the practices he described are still happening presently.

"I don't know if Coxon is a wacko," O'Brien told reporters following the hearing. "His allegations are unfocused -- he gave the SEC a copy of his speech, no formal allegation, nothing going on today. At the least it was confusing. Until anything is demonstrated, I won't assume he is correct."

LONDON (MAY 3) - British pharmaceutical group Wellcome, which markets anti-AIDS drug Retrovir, said Thursday its taxable profit rose 28 percent in the six months to March to 164.1 million pounds (273.5 million dollars).

Retrovir sales were up 49 percent over the same period the previous year at 88 million pounds (146.6 million dollars), while group sales we up nine per- cent at 673 million pounds (1.12 billion dollars).

Interim dividend was set at 1.5 pence, up from 1.3 pence the previous year, and Wellcome said that the profit had been swelled by some 18 million pounds by favourable exchange rate fluctuations.

The profit figure was in line with market expectations, but the size of the exchange rate bonus and the small rise in dividend saw Wellcome shares fall eight pence to 668 pence in morning trading in London.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - A meeting between senior Japanese and Chinese officials at the Asian Development Bank (ADB) here Thursday overshadowed other developments on the second day of the bank's May 2-4 annual meeting.

Japanese Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto was to meet with Chinese central bank governor Li Guixian for what one Chinese official described as "general discussions" on bilateral relations.

China and Japan also appealed publicly for the resumption of ADB loans to Beijing, suspended since Chinese troops crushed a pro-democracy protest in Tiananmen Square last June.

Mr. Hashimoto told reporters he expected to discuss multilateral lending to China with Mr. Li, although he emphasised that there was no change in Tokyo's position backing the Western ban on new international loans to Beijing.

However, he said, "prior to tackling that issue of ADB lending, we have our own problem of the third yen credit" to resolve with China, referring to a loan promised to China before ties were severed last year.

He would not say whether Japan was ready to unfreeze the 5.1 billion dollar credit, but he indicated it was ready to consider China's appeals for the loan to be paid.

In his speech to delegates at the ADB meeting, Mr. Hashimoto said Japan "very much hopes that efforts on both sides will repair China's relations with the other countries and the multilateral institutions as soon as possible."

In other developments Thursday, the on-going dispute over topping up a soft-loans fund for the ADB's poorest member countres continued, with the United States insisting that it is still far too early for talks.

"Including reserves for foreign exchange variations, the ADF Asian Development Fund should have sufficient resources to finance its operations during 1991 and well into 1992," U.S. governor to the ADB George Folsom told delegates.

Mr. Folsom also revealed that Washington would impose strict conditions on fund activities before it agreed to fund any replenishment.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - India said Thursday that the Asian Development Bank (ADB) should remain politically neutral and not attach policy conditions when giving aid or loans to member countries.

"The charter of the bank enjoins upon it the need to maintain political neutrality," Finance Secretary Bimal Jalan told the 23rd annual meeting of the ADB governors here.

"It is important that the bank not only maintains such a character scrupulously but is also perceived to do so," said Mr. Jalan in the last speech of the day to delegates.

He said "political actions, be they in the nature of a policy advice or decisions on access to bank resources, go against the very precepts on which international development institutions have been founded."

Mr. Jalan said India was concerned "about the attachment of onerous conditionalities accompanying this form of assistance," which "seriously erode the benefit of the assistance as they require drastic policy changes."

He said that usually the imposition of such conditionalities "vitiates the principles of equity and frustrates the very objective of growth of social justice."

Mr. Jalan's speech echoed the statement by Indian Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh to the ADB's opening session Wednesday, in which he said each country must develop its own policies and not respond to external pressure.

Mr. V.P. Singh's statement was seen by some delegates as an attack on the ADB's growing tendency to impose policy conditions on development loans.

The United States strongly favours linking loans to policy conditions, arguing that a country must be prepared to open and develop its economy in order to benefit from concessionary loans or aid, U.S. delegation head George Folsom said Thursday.

Mr. Jalan also said the ADB could sustain a much larger volume of lending, and he asked the bank to "adopt an innovative approach in order to reduce the cost of borrowing to the developing member countries further."

The ADB's lending and investment operations grew by a total of 16 percent last year. Loan disbursements reached a record 2.2 billion dollars, an increase of 35 percent over 1988.

BRUSSELS (MAY 3) - Leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) are to hold a summit in London in late June or early July to discuss the future of their alliance, NATO Secretary-general Manfred Woerner said Thursday.

The decision was made by NATO foreign ministers, meeting here to discuss German unification and the situation in the Soviet Union, he said.

"This will be a very decisive moment in the history of our alliance," he said of the London summit.

Mr. Woerner said the meeting would focus on NATO's "future mission;" its needs in conventional weapons; the follow-up to the current NATO-Warsaw Pact negotiations on conventional disarmament; and NATO's role in the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE).

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker added that the summit should develop NATO's "political role" and its future nuclear strategy, including an "accelerated timetable" for negotiations on short-range nuclear weapons.

The last NATO summit was held in December last year, to enable President George Bush to brief the allies on his Malta summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

In other comments, Mr. Woerner said the 16 foreign ministers supported the idea of holding preparations for a CSCE summit in Vienna in July.

The idea was supported by a summit in Dublin last Saturday of the European Economic Community (EEC), 11 of which are NATO members.

In addition, there was backing for a CSCE ministerial meeting in September, on the sidelines of the United Nations General Assembly, Mr. Woerner said.

The CSCE process should be crowned by a summit of its signatories in Paris, the ministers agreed.

The CSCE gathers all of Europe, except Albania, plus the United States and Canada.

NEW DELHI, (MAY 3) - India objects to Washington's approach on the omnibus Super 301 trade sanction clause because it steps into areas not covered by multilateral agreements including GATT, an Indian minister said Thursday.

Commerce Minister Arun Nehru told parliament's upper house in a written statement that investment and services were not included in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which covered trade in goods only.

His comments followed a hard-hitting speech by Indian Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh at the opening of an Asian Development Bank (ADB) meeting here Wednesday, in which the premier lashed out at what he called a dangerous trend towards "bilateralism" in world trade.

In an obvious reference to U.S. threats of retaliation under the Super 301 trade clause if India does not open insurance and other sectors to foreign investors, V.P. Singh said circumventing multilateral forums reduced their ability to function effectively.

Nehru also said criticism from the United States, India's largest trading partner, of Indian trade and investment patterns showed a lack of appreciation of the socio-economic imperatives guiding Indian policy.

Though slowly liberalizing its economy, India has to date followed a blueprint of import substitution to ensure the growth of domestic industries. The government believes it has not acted inconsistently with the export subsidy provision of its bilateral agreement with the United States, he said, adding that the special situation of developing countries was covered by GATT provisions.

Washington, which is attempting to have services covered by GATT, has cited India under Super 301 for excluding foreign companies from the insurance market, restricting foreign shareholding in Indian companies and requiring companies to buy local components if available.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - The Asian Development Bank (ADB) has called for a "total attack" to save the world's fast-disappearing forests and demanded public accountablity for governments that disregard environmental hazards such as overcutting of trees.

The bank, comprising 49 Asian countries, plans to give top priority to reforestation in its agricultural loans to developing member countries in the Asia Pacific region as part of a save-the-environment program.

The ADB's agriculture section, which last year disbursed one-third of the bank's total annual loans of 3.6 billion dollars, also plans to give high priority to projects such as environment and watershed management, section director Zakir Azam said.

"We won't support a policy based on cutting of trees. We would support only greening operations," Mr. Azam told reporters late Wednesday, the first day of the 23rd annual meeting of the board of ADB governors.

He said the ADB had already given its support to reforestation masterplans in Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh, Laos, the Philippines and Papua New Guinea, adding that in several countries tropical forestry projects had either been concluded or were in progress.

"The ADB has made a total attack for sustainability of development and sustainability of agriculture through a process of environmental impact assessment," the ADB's agriculture department chief said in an informal meeting with reporters.

He said 25 percent of the ADB's total agricultural lendings would be channelled into forestry, environment, soil conservation and anti-desertification programmes in the region -- a net food exporter 40 years ago but now a net importer because of agricultural mismanagement.

Asia's forest cover has shrunk from 52 percent in 1944 to the current 19 percent, Mr. Azam said, adding the bank would finance reforestation projects beyond the means of member countries with short resources.

Helsinki (MAY 3) - Finnish Foreign Minister Pertti Paasio told visiting Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati Thursday that violations of human rights in Iran are hampering trade between the two countries.

Paasio told newsmen after meeting Velayati that he also took up the case of British author Salman Rushdie, whose controversial book The Satanic Verses provoked the late Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini to issue a death edict against the novelist.

Paasio said he made clear his point that ''the right to live is the basic human right''. Velayati replied that Iran would not rescind the death edict, the minister said.

Earlier Thursday, Velayati paid a courtesy call on Finnish President Mauno Koivisto and discussed international questions with him. He also met Prime Minister Harri Holkeri.

Velayati concludes his two-day official visit to Finland on Friday.

PARIS (MAY 3) - Saboteurs might have been responsible for the failure of launches of the French-led Ariane space rocket, the French Express magazine reported on Thursday.

Sabotage was thought to be the possible cause of three of five failures, and particularly of an unsuccessful launch on February 22.

The report said that "several people are under surveillance" at the Aerospatiale Mureaux factory near Paris and at the Societe Europeenne de Propulsion at Vernon west of Paris.

Various parts for the water cooling system for the rocket launched in February came from these plants.

In mid April a commission of enquiry found that the launch failed because a piece of rag blocked the main water pipe to one of the engines.

The magazine said that in 1982 a top space inspector Jean Gruau wrote a report for four top bodies, including the office of the president of the republic, which said that the second unsuccessful launch of Ariane on May 23 1980 could have been caused by an attack.

This report said that the method could have been "a minuscule capsule of explosive...introduced into the combustion chamber" of one of the motors.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) - U.S. President George Bush called Thursday for a summit meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato) for late June or early July to discuss a new comprehensive defence strategy for the alliance.

Bush also confirmed that Washington was abandoning plans for a successor in Europe to the short-range Lance nuclear missile system and for the modernisation of its nuclear artillery arsenals.

The process of democratisation in eastern Europe and the withdrawal of Soviet troops obviated the need for nuclear short-range missile systems in Europe, Bush said.

Secretary of State James Baker had earlier announced at a Nato foreign ministers' meeting in Brussels that Washington will offer a full withdrawal of land-based short-range nuclear missiles from Europe.

JOHANNESBURG (MAY 3) - South Africa's total gold production in March surged to 47,567 kilograms, four percent up on February's figure of 45,724 kg, the Chamber of Mines, representing the major mining houses, said Thursday.

Output was two percent down on the 48,733 kg produced in March 1989.

Total production for the first quarter was 148,226 kg, one percent lower than the 150,133 kg produced during the same period last year.

MOSCOW (MAY 3) - Latvia's newly-elected parliament began meeting Thursday with the non-Communist Popular Front, the majority party, offering a draft bill on independence from the Soviet Union.

Front leader Ivar Godmanis told the Soviet news agency Tass that the bill was more moderate than neighbouring Lithuania's unilateral secession decree of March 11.

The draft includes a transition period and negotiations with Moscow, said Tass, and would revive the 1922 constitution of independent Latvia.

The Popular Front has 131 of 201 seats in the Riga parliament, just under the two-thirds total required to alter the republic's constitution.

A parliament spokesman said the new Latvian government would most likely be elected next week.

Tass quoted the republic's Communist economic minister, Janis Aboltins, as warning that damaging economic sanctions could follow if Latvia failed to negotiate with the Soviet central government on independence.

Moscow began an economic sanctions campaign against Lithuania in mid-April, including cutting off oil supplies and sharply rducing gas deliveries.

JERUSALEM (MAY 3) - The Israeli government will request three billion dollars in aid from the United States in 1991, the Finance Ministry revealed Thursday.

The aid request comes amid increasing calls from U.S. politicians to cut the funds transferred to Israel, both because of disagreements over Middle East policy and the need to fund the emerging East European democratic governments.

Other U.S. officials have proposed an across-the-board cut of five per cent on all current aid recipients in order to help the new democracies.

Israel is the largest recipient of foreign aid from the U.S. Finance Ministry director general Ya'acov Lifshitz is due in Washington next week to negotiate the new agreement.

Israeli officials pointed out Thursday that the level of U.S. funding to Israel has remained steady at 1.8 billion dollars in military aid and 1.2 billion dollars in non-military aid over the past five years, despite an estimated annual depreciation in the value of the dollar by five per cent.

GRENOBLE, FRANCE (MAY 3) - Avalanches have killed 23 people and injured four others in the French Alps since December, the national snow and avalanche research association ANENA reported here Thursday.

ANENA said that 22 people died between December and February, when there was the least snow, but only one had been killed since.

Apart from two people killed in a chalet and a car, the victims were skiers. Last winter, avalanches killed 17 people and injured 14.

Of a total 49 people swept away in avalanches this year, as against 105 last year, 11 of the 22 who survived without injury were carrying radio transmitters that enabled them to be found swiftly, ANENA's provisional toll said.

BONN (MAY 3) - West German auto maker BMW said Thursday that it had linked up with Rolls-Royce of Britain to take over the aircraft engine operations of Klocker-Humboldt-Deutz (KHD).

BMW did not give the value of the deal, but spokesman Richard Gaul said the KHD activities had an annual turnover of some 165 million Deutsche marks (97 million dollars).

BMW would hold a 50.5 percent stake in the new joint venture, and Rolls-Royce the remaining 49.5 percent, a BMW statement said. It would be based at Oberursel in central West Germany and would "develop and produce aircraft engines."

The West German auto maker had last month denied press reports that it was interested in taking a stake in Rolls-Royce cars, which is part of the Vickers group.

Rolls-Royce Plc, which has no connection other than historical with the car maker of the same name, is one of the world's leading aircraft engine makers.

Privatised in 1987, the group had a taxable profit of 233 million pounds (388 million dollars) last year on a turnover of 2.96 billion pounds (4.9 billion dollars), two-thirds of it in the aircraft engine sector.

The deal announced Thursday is BMW's first major diversification venture, as the West German group has hitherto contented itself with taking stakes in small high-tech ventures.

But aircraft engines are hardly unknown territory for BMW, as this was its original field of activity when it was founded in 1916 and the emblem carried on its cars still represents an aircraft propellor.

BMW was the world's first company to mass produce jet engines in 1944, but was broken up at the end of World War II as most of its plants were in what is now East Germany and stopped making aircraft engines in the 1960's.

The new joint subsidiary with Rolls-Royce will collaborate with the British firm on the Tay programme to produce a turbofan engine for the Fokker 100 or Gulfstream IV and the Trent project to produce a jet engine for the MD-11 and A-330.

It will also be involved in developing an engine for a new generation of planes with a seating capacity of 75 or more, and would receive full technological support from Rolls-Royce, group deputy chairman Sir Ralph Robins said.

BMW had a net consolidated profit of 558 million Deutsche marks (328 million dollars) last year on turnover of 26.5 billion (15.5 billion dollars).

PARIS (MAY 3) - The British government is right to point to the "woolly" nature of French and West German proposals for European political union, French rightwing former premier Jacques Chirac has said.

In an interview to be published by a regional daily Friday, Mr. Chirac, leader of the neo-Gaullist RPR party, said a political initiative from French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl was "essentially based on ambiguities".

"The English are right to stress the woolly nature" of the "concept of political union," Mr. Chirac said, after Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said at a Dublin European Economic Community (EEC) summit last weekend that the EEC "ought to define it first".

Mrs. Thatcher said that the EEC has priorities other than the Franco-German initiative, which along with Belgian proposals, envisage a transfer of some national powers to the European Parliament, executive Commission and Council of Ministers.

Mr. Chirac told the Dernieres Nouvelles d'Alsace that Mr. Mitterrand wanted to "wipe out the impression left by his inaction and his errors of judgement over the past six months", while Mr. Kohl was out "to get rid of the impression given for some time that he was dealing with German problems without worrying about the views of his partners".

"To look at (EEC) institutions and even to improve them is perhaps necessary," added Mr. Chirac, who was premier in an uneasy 'cohabitation' with the socialist president from 1986 to 1988.

"I'm not in principle hostile to strengthening the powers of the European Parliament and the Council of Ministers" - the latter holds ultimate political authority - "but I've got reservations about increasing the authority of the European Commission in Brussels on account of its technocratic nature."

LONDON (MAY 3) - Britain is to provide aid of 50 million pounds (80 million dollars) for energy projects in India, officials said here

Thursday.

Part of the money will be used on repairs and maintenance at Indian hydroelectric plants and in projects to improve production, distribution and use of energy.

British aid to India totalled 88 million pounds (140 million dollars) in 1988-89.

Some 10.6 million pounds (17 million pounds) has already been issued as part of a five-year programme to improve electricity distribution in Kaunpur in Uttar Pradesh.

Aid of 40 million pounds (64 million dollars), principally for forestry projects, was announced in April.

LONDON (MAY 3) - Dan-Air, the third biggest airline operating out of London-Gatwick airport, crash landed into the red here Thursday, with the announcement of a 3.3 million pound (5.4 million dollar) 1989 pre-tax loss for its parent company Davies and Newman.

The loss prompted chairman and managing director Fred Newman to say he was considering "co-operation with other airlines".

Shares in Davies and Newman, more than 95 percent of whose turnover is generated by Dan-Air and associated airline businesses, fell 50 pence to 355 on the stock market after the news.

The pre-tax loss followed 9.9 million pounds (16.3 million dollars) profit in 1988, with turnover up from 338.9 million (556.5 million) in 1988 to 375.8 million (617.1 million) last year.

Final dividend was down from 17 pence per share to to eight pence, and a 31.3 pence loss per share was registered against 94.2 pence earnings in 1988.

Newman blamed the effects of high interest rates and the exceptionally hot British summer in 1989, which he said curbed British holiday travel abroad.

Stiff competition from British airlines also hurt Dan-Air's performance, he added.

Meanwhile overcapacity in the airline market made it impossible for Dan-Air to raise prices. The total charter flight market decreased by seven percent, but Dan-Air continued to maintain its share at between 15 and 20.

The sale of some aircraft and other assets helped to reduce the company's debt from 60 million pounds to 40 million.

Newman said the prospects for 1990 and 1991 are "hard to determine in the light of the changing competitive environment."

Asked who could be interested in lining up with the troubled airline, transport analyst Ian Wild of Barclays de Zoete Wedd answered "make a list of all the world's airlines".

"Dan-Air has a number of assets which would be of great interest to any airline," he said. "For a foreign company, buying into Dan-Air represents the only available route into international scheduled services out of Britain."

Dan-Air's main competitors on international routes out of Britain are British Airways, British Midland, in which Scandinavian airline SAS holds a significant interest and Air Europe.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - The Nepalese government on Thursday appealed for economic assistance to rebuild its trade-starved economy and support its new democratic government.

Finance Minister Devendra Raj Panday told the 23rd annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) here that the Nepalese economy was in bad shape and the country badly needed external assistance.

"We hope to receive full support of our friends assembled here as we try to consolidate newly-gained democracy and streamline development programs in the interest of the people of Nepal," he said in a speech.

Panday said the recent democratic upsurge in his country had been possible because of worldwide support. "It is our hope that we will continue to receive the understanding and assistance that we need in the days and years to come."

Hundreds were killed in Nepal earlier this year in a pro-democracy campaign which culminated last month in the lifting of a ban on political parties. A new government took power in Kathmandu on Apr. 19.

Panday said the current government had inherited an economy "not in good shape" and was preparing a sound economic framework for the landlocked Himalayan kingdom.

He said although Nepal would continue to implement structural adjustment programs with external support, it opposes the attachment of conditions to aid disbursements by the ADB.

"The adjustment program has, for all practical purposes, turned into a donor-driven and externally-imposed scheme," he said. "There is, therefore a serious need to reexamine the framework of conditionalities."

The minister added that the ADB's technical assistance had not helped his country to develop its skills and capacity, but rather "generated undesirable dependency with some serious distortions in development management."

Nepal received 122.10 million dollars in loans from the ADB last year.

LISBON (MAY 3) - The Mozambican army plans to launch a "major offensive" this month in the centre and north of the country with the help of troops from Zimbabwe and Tanzania, anti-government rebels said here Thursday.

The Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO) denounced what it called the "bad faith" of the Maputo government and held the regime "entirely responsible" for the continuing of the civil war, in a statement made available to Agence France-Presse.

The authorities were issuing "pompous" declarations on the urgent need for face-to-face peace talks, while "only seeking to win time and stay in power", the RENAMO statement added.

President Joaquim Chissano said Tuesday in Maputo that RENAMO had turned down a government offer to hold direct talks in Malawi, adding that the rebels had instead named Portugal, the former colonial power, as the place they wanted to meet the authorities.

In Maputo, Presbyterian church sources Thursday said RENAMO guerrillas had on Wednesday killed a Swiss doctor, Rene Gagnaux, who had worked in Mozambique for the past 25 years.

Dr. Gagnaux, shot in his car on a main road some 75 kilometres (45 miles) north of the capital, was a popular man. His Toyota land-cruiser was well-known in the area leading observers to believe the attack was deliberate.

Health units and personnel have been among RENAMO's main targets.

According to health ministry figures, between 1980 and the end of 1988, the rebels destroyed 291 peripheral health posts and a further 687 had been either looted or forced to close.

The 978 units knocked out represented 46 per cent of the total primary health care network.

RENAMO "declared war" on neighbouring Zimbabwe in 1987 in retaliation for President Robert Mugabe's assistance to the Chissano government. Some 10,000 Zimbabwean troops are stationed in Mozambique.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - Industrialized nations at the Asian Development Bank (ADB) meeting here tried Thursday to reassure Asian states that political changes in Eastern Europe would not mean a cutback in aid to Asia.

"I can assure you that, despite our strong interest and involvement in the events in Europe, the United States looks forward to further strengthening its trade, investment, and financial ties with Asia," said George Folsom, the head of the U.S. delegation.

The 23rd annual ADB meeting opened here Wednesday and is to end Friday.

Pakistan's central bank governor said it would be "sad news" if "political changes in Eastern Europe lead Western nations to shift a larger part of their resources toward that area and thus affect the pace of economic development by lesser developed nations both in this region and elsewhere."

Ihsan ul-Haq Piracha also pointed out that half the world's population lives in Asia and the Pacific.

Bangladesh's representative Mohammed Abdul Munim, stressing that his nation was the most important of the least-developed countries, said he "shared this concern."

He was seconded by Panas Simasathien of Thailand, who said such a shifting of aid resources posed a "serious threat to the investment and growth prospects of developing member countries." But Inga Bjoerk-Klevby, the Swedish central bank governor, rejected these fears saying that "the dividends accruing from peace and detente should allow for meeting the needs of Eastern Europe as well as the south."

"It is my government's commitment to work for realization of this," she said.

Relations between developed nations and less developed countries are often referred to as North-South relations.

Lynda Chalker, Britain's minister for overseas development, said that for London the aid programs aimed at Eastern Europe and Asia were "entirely separate."

"More importantly," she said, "the solvent and thriving economies of Asia and the Pacific are bound to stand out as attractive areas of activity."

An Austrian official, also addressing the fear of cutbacks to Asia to the benefit of East Europeans, said that "to the contrary, we can expect an important boost to growth thanks to the changes" in the Soviet bloc.

Cash copper climbed to 1,725 pounds per ton ring trading after ending at 1,700 on Wednesday.

Three months metal closed at 1,549 pounds per ton the kerb against 1,557 on the ring and 1,540 on Wednesday.

The LME board, which oversees the market, met Wednesday to discuss possible action, after a severe squeeze in options on its May copper contract took cash prices to a 200 pound premium over three months metal.

After scrutinizing the positions of brokers, the LME will be able to judge whether there is any truth in suggestions that one or more trade houses is attempting to artificially squeeze the market.

Other base metals were quiet and generally easier, overshadowed by the drama in copper.

Aluminium was the main mover outside of copper, quoting at 1,508 dollars per tonon the kerb against 1,510 on the ring and 1,517 on Wednesday.

PRAGUE (MAY 3) - The Czechoslovakian parliament on Thursday adopted a law allowing farmers to set up private farms by reacquiring land forcibly put into collectives in the 1950's.

Czechoslovakian farmland is virtually entirely in the hands of the state and collectives, with only 2.8 percent of it being worked by individual farmers.

But with the adoption of Thursday's law, and a law passed last month giving collectives, the state and private farmers equal rights to their land, private farms are expected to boom.

Critics have warned however that privatisation could push over the edge a sector which has at least been stable hitherto.

Czechoslovakian agriculture has been relatively successful in recent years, with a record grain harvest of 12 million tons last year, but is still heavily subsidised by the state and production costs are very high.

BRUSSELS (MAY 3) - The United States and Denmark have agreed to renew talks on the future of a U.S. air base in Greenland that is targeted for closure under a Pentagon economy drive, Danish Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen said Thursday.

U.S. and Danish negotiators broke off talks on Tuesday after disagreeing over plans to close the Sondre Stromfjord base, on Greenland's western coast, in 1991.

"The base has become part of the infrastructure" of Greenland, Mr. Ellemann-Jensen said after a brief bilateral meeting with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

"Therefore you cannot pack it up and leave it with a very short notice."

The two ministers agreed that U.S. and Danish officials should meet again shortly in an effort to discuss "ways of sharing expenditure" and the possible transformation of the air base into a civilian facility, Mr. Ellemann-Jensen said.

"A country like Greenland calls for some special attention" because of its fragile economy, he said.

The United States says it wants to retain only its giant radar base at Thule, northwestern Greenland.

Mr. Baker and Mr. Ellemann-Jensen met on the sidelines of a North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) meeting of foreign ministers.

Nairobi (MAY 3) - Two prominent politicians called Thursday for an end to Kenya's one-party rule and urged the holding of multi-party elections.

''Like elsewhere in Africa and the world generally, the single party system must go now and not tomorrow,'' said former Transport Minister Kenneth Matiba and Charles Rubia, onetime Nairobi mayor.

''We believe our single party system is the major single contributory factor and almost solely the root cause of the political, economic and social woes we now face,'' they told newsmen.

President Daniel arap Moi and members of his government have repeatedly defended in recent months the power monopoly of the ruling Kenya African National Union (Kanu).

''Only those with vested interests can turn a blind eye to the obvious need for change,'' said the two politicians.

Matiba and Rubia called for the abolition of a constitutional amendment of 1982 which made Kanu the sole legal party in Kenya.

The politicians, who said they had no plans to form their own political party, called for the dissolution of parliament and the holding of multi-party elections. dpa ms 031904 mai 90

STOCKHOLM (MAY 3) - The Swedish government, bowing to pressure from parliament, announced Thursday it would make available to the Indian government a secret report on alleged bribes paid out to Indian government arms-buyers by the Bofors arms company.

The announcement came from Foreign Trade Minister Anita Gradin, who said the minority Social Democrat government had decided to act in accordance with the wishes of a parliamentary majority.

The Indian government is interested above all in any names mentioned in the report of people who accepted bribes for facilitating deliveries of Bofors howitzers to the Indian army.

NAIROBI (MAY 3) - Two Kenyan former government ministers, including the prominent Kenneth Matiba who was recently detained by police, called Thursday for constitutional change to open the way to multi-party politics.

Mr. Matiba and former housing minister Charles Rubia told a press conference that a constitutional amendment imposed by President Daniel arap Moi in 1982 to make KANU the sole legal party should be revoked.

This move should be followed by the immediate dissolution of parliament and the organization of free elections, the ex-ministers told journalists here.

Mr. Matiba resigned from his post as transport and communications minister in December 1988 after alleging "rigging" in local elections to the Kenya African National Union (KANU).

He was hauled in for questioning by police in March after being accused of wanting to form a political party.

Mr. Rubia left the government in 1983.

Several senior officials have recently publicly backed Mr. Moi's objections to a multiparty system in Kenya. Foreign Minister Wilson Ndolo Ayah on April 10 said that "tribal inclinations and consciousness are still paramount in the minds of many Kenyans."

Late last month, Anglican Bishop Henry Okullu of Maseno South became a target of official criticism when he said that KANU's 1982 enshrinement as the sole constitutionally legal party was a mistake.

All Kenyan MPs have to be KANU members and abide by the official line. On April 2, information minister Waruru Kanja lost his job after he implicated the government in the unexplained murder in February of then foreign minister Robert Ouko.

Several African countries have been swept by demands for multiparty systems in the wake of the collapse of the communist governments in Eastern Europe.

BELGRADE (MAY 3) - Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama arrived in Belgrade Thursday for a three-day visit on the latest leg of a European tour.

Nakayama, who flew in from Prague, will hold talks with the Yugoslav government expected to centre on ways of expanding trade and Japanese investments.

During his visit to Czechoslovakia, Nakayama and Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel called for the development of relations between their two countries.

Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Jiri Dienstbier signed a guarantee agreement with Nakayama for Japanese investments.

BRUSSELS (MAY 3) - Liberian rebels are holding a Belgian, an American and a West German involved in relief work near the border of Guinea, Medecins sans Frontieres (Doctors without Borders) announced here Thursday.

"The rebels have said that they will free the three people after questioning them," MSF-Belgium reported in a statement, adding that no date for the release had been given.

Ludovic Pichrist, a Belgian MSF worker, David Kelly, a United States Peace Corps volunteer, and a West German identified only as Werner Witt were carrying out aid work near the border when they were captured on Tuesday, the statement said.

With them was a Guinean, Niankoye Kolie, but he was freed on Thursday, MSF added.

Since December 24, Liberian rebels led by Charles Taylor, a former senior civil servant, have been fighting government troops in a bid to oust President Samuel Doe.

A spokeswoman for MSF-Belgium, Claire Bourgeois, told Agence France-Presse that she did not know what group had captured the three aid workers, but said she hoped they would "quickly" be freed.

Dr. Bourgeois refused to consider their capture as hostage-taking.

The respected Africa Watch human rights group on Wednesday issued a report citing eyewitness accounts of massacres in the West African country and stating that more than 160,000 people had fled to Guinea and Ivory Coast.

The United Nations and some Western embassies have ordered all non-essential staff out of the country or advised their nationals to leave.

On April 20, a Monrovia newspaper reported that the rebels had captured two Italians, but the Italian Embassy said it had received no news about them.

Earlier in the month, the rebels captured a journalist working for London's Financial Times, but subsequently released him.

CAPE TOWN (MAY 3) - President Frederik de Klerk and ANC leader Nelson Mandela met Thursday to discuss the deteriorating situation at strike-hit hospitals in Transvaal Province, the president's office said Thursday.

Both men had agreed that situation at the giant Baragwanath Hospital was detrimental to the public and that it was vital that services be restored as soon as possible, the office said in a statement.

The 3,000-bed Baragwanath Hospital, serving Johannesburg's satellite black township of Soweto, was Thursday battling to keep its doors open as a strike by non-medical staff entered its fourth day, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Apart from "arranging" that Mr. Mandela would "interest himself to improve the situation at the hospital", the two leaders agreed that high-level talks be held on problems in health services and health policy, the statement said.

Mr. De Klerk and Mr. Mandela had met before Thursday's session of formal talks here between the government and the anti-apartheid African National Congress (ANC), officials in Mr. De Klerk's office said.

Later Thursday it was announced that Mr. Mandela will take time off from Friday's final session of the three-day talks in order to lead a union delegation at a meeting with Health Minister Rina Venter.

CAIRO (MAY 3) - The Soviet Union will maintain its arms shipments to Syria despite some differences between the two countries on the issue, Syrian President Hafez al-Assad said Thursday.

"It's natural that differences appear on the quantity and quality of the armaments to be delivered, but Soviet assistance will not be halted," he told reporters at the end of a visit to Damascus by Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak.

Mr. Assad, quoted by the Egyptian news agency MENA, was answering questions about his own recent visit to Moscow.

Syria and the Soviet Union have a friendship and cooperation treaty and Moscow is the main supplier of weapons to Damascus, but the arms issue has strained relations in recent months.

Soviet officials have expressed reluctance to continue large shipments of sophisticated arms to Damascus, saying Syria should give priority to defence rather than seek military parity with Israel.

They have also questioned Syria's ability to pay for the shipments. Damascus currently owes the equivalent of more than 10 billion dollars to Moscow.

CAPE TOWN (MAY 3) - African National Congress (ANC) deputy president Nelson Mandela and President Frederik de Klerk Thursday expressed satisfaction with progress achieved so far in this week's "talks about talks" between the government and the ANC.

A joint statement from the two teams said Thursday's meeting, the second of three sessions, was devoted to a "wide ranging discussion and penetrating analysis" of seven obstacles blocking the path to "real" negotiations.

The delegations said they would "attempt to identify the differences between the government and the ANC more clearly in the hope that proposals could emerge on how to bridge these differences."

Included in the seven stumbling blocks are the ANC's demands that stringent security legislation be rooted out, the national state of emergency be lifted and that all political prisoners be freed.

The ANC is also demanding that South African troops pull out of troubled black townships, and has called for the safe return of some 20,000 ANC exiles.

The ANC has consistently stated that only once these obstacles have been eliminated can genuine and meaningful negotiations about a future constitution for South Africa begin.

Obstacles holding the government back from real negotiations are the ANC's firm commitment to the "armed struggle and the need to end political violence.

During his pre-talks address to journalists Wednesday, De Klerk said it was "absolutely essential that peaceful negotiations for a democratic solution be conducted in peaceful circumstances."

Hundreds of people have died in black-on-black fighting since the ANC was unbanned on Feb. 2 this year.

The two contingents spent 3-12 hours locked in talks Thursday. They spent Wednesday pinpointing the seven obstacles.

The talks so far have been described by delegation members from both sides as "frank," "open" and "positive".

Staunch anti-apartheid cleric and ANC delegation member, Beyers Naude, told Agence France-Presse Thursday both sides had a "clear understanding" of the seven issues and were determined to overcome them through negotiations.

The discussions, which end Friday, are the first official talks between the government and the ANC since the guerrilla movement was launched 78 years ago.

LONDON (MAY 3) - The Soviet Union was on the brink of civil war in February when the Red Army staged a show of strength against President Mikhail Gorbachev during a pro-democracy demonstration in Moscow, British TV reports said Thursday.

Quoting North Atlantic Treaty Organisation sources, ITN said that Red Army leaders staged their challenge to Mr. Gorbachev because they accused him of moving ahead too fast with his program of reforms.

"The Soviet Union was on the brink of civil war on February 25, the day of a vast pro-democracy demonstration in Moscow," ITN said in a report which was later matched by the BBC quoting NATO sources at the foreign ministers summit in Brussels.

"The Soviet military chose that moment to assert their part ... they were apparently angry that they were losing out in the process of perestroika and feared the country was becoming ungovernable.

ITN said that the Red Army leaders deployed 6,000 troops in Moscow to counter the demonstration.

"Arsenals were said to have been opened in a major show of strength which ended peacefully after negotiations," it added.

The British TV reports said that Soviet authorities had denied the reports of the face-off and that U.S. President George Bush had said he had no information on the incident.

NICOSIA, May 3 (AFP) - President George Vassiliou announced a government reshuffle Thursday on this eastern Mediterranean island, replacing four of his 11 cabinet members.

Christoforos Christofides was named to replace Andreas Philippou at the education ministry, while Pavlos Savvides took on the post of communications minister from Nakos Protopapas.

Iacovos Aristidou will head the ministry of labour and social security, replacing Takis Christofides, and Nicos Papaioannou takes over the justice portfolio from Christodoulos Chrysanthou.

Mr. Vassiliou gave no reasons for the reshuffle, the first since the cabinet was formed in February 1988 after his election as president.

PARIS (MAY 3) - Ivory Coast President Felix Houphouet-Boigny has ordered that all political parties which have handed in their statutes for registration be made official, French radio reports said Thursday.

Houphouet-Boigny, who has ruled the West African state for 30 years, promised a multi-party system after recent disturbances, and said he was prepared to resign.

While the country's constitution stipulates that there should be a multi-party system, this has so far never been put into practice.

BEIRUT (MAY 3) - One person was killed Thursday when a boat was hit by shells and sank off the coast north of the Lebanese capital, a Christian militia reported.

The radio of the Lebanese Forces (LF) militia accused troops loyal to Christian military leader General Michel Aoun of having fired on the boat as it sailed near Dbayeh, 15 kilometres (10 miles) from Beirut.

An army spokesman confirmed that a boat was sighted ablaze, but said he had no information on the cause of the fire or if there were casualties.

The LF said the boat had set sail from militia-controlled Kaslik marina in the north and was headed for the Saint Georges marina in mainly Moslem west Beirut. It gave no further details.

Four other ships have come under fire since the LF and Gen. Aoun's troops started a "war of the ports" last week.

The militia controls the main ports, Beirut and Jounieh to the north, while the Aoun army only has access to docks along the Metn coastline, also north of the capital.

LF leader Samir Geagea told reporters Thursday that he wanted to prevent arms reaching the general's troops by sea rather than to impose a blockade on Christian areas of Lebanon.

The battle for supremacy that erupted between the Christian rivals on January 31 has killed at least 972 people and wounded 2,607, as well as causing millions of dollars worth of damage.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) - Third World countries are showing an ''alarming rise'' in arrears on debt interest payments, the Institute for International Finance (Iif) warned here Thursday.

The Iif, which represents 180 business banks worldwide, said ''international financial discipline is rapidly eroding'' and a proper strategy was urgently needed to counter this.

The warning was issued with an eye to a meeting in Washington at the weekend of officials from the leading industrial (G-7) nations, the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

At the end of March, the Iif said, 15 Third World nations had accumulated interest payment arrears of 18.1 billion dollars. Main countries were Argentina (6.15 billion dollars), Brazil (5.3 billion), Peru (2.765 billion) and Ecuador (1.345 billion).

Iif director Horst Schulmann warned: ''A difficult new phase of debt strategy is starting where the focus will be on coping with countries whose track record is clearly one of non-performance.''

GUANTANAMO, CUBA (MAY 3) - Cuban troops dug into hillside foxholes Thursday and six Soviet-made tanks trained their guns south, where U.S. Marines at the Guantanamo Naval Base were conducting maneuvers that Havana considers an aggression.

The U.S. Navy and Marines were conducting the so-called DEFEX exercises in Caribbean waters with units from the U.S. Guantanamo Base in eastern Cuba.

The United States called the exercise routine.

Cuba called it an aggression, and responded by putting its own troops on alert in an operation it termed "Cuban Shield."

DEFEX is one of three U.S. maneuvers in the area, including Global Shield north of Cuba and Ocean Venture with a mock landing in Puerto Rico.

Cuba meanwhile lodged a protest with the United Nations Security Council, saying the U.S. maneuvers were "totally unjustified" and created a "dangerous situation."

The Cuban Armed Forces Ministry said in a statement to the United Nations that the maneuvers were uncalled for at a time of U.S.-Soviet detente and of new pro-U.S. governments in Panama and Nicaragua.

"It's a delicate situation ... Cuba has taken defensive measures," said Cuban Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon de Quesada.

Journalists covering the Cuban maneuvers saw troops digging in and calibrating artillery in apparent preparation for a hypothetical air attack.

"We must be prepared for whatever happens ... but we are remaining calm," said one official of the Border Brigade, Lieutenant Colonel Rene Ramirez.

He said the three U.S. maneuvers could be the "test" for a U.S. attack on Cuba.

Cuban press reports hinted at a military threat, but other than the foxhole-and-tank scenario on the hillside, Western reporters saw what appeared to be only routine activity.

Cuban workers were repairing a runway at Guantanamo Airport, which abuts the barbed wire enclosed U.S. base.

Border guard chief Jose Solar Hernandez said the U.S. maneuvers would take place later in the day.

The U.S. military presence at the base -- which Cuba considers illegal -- has been a source of tension in this region of the island for 30 years.

The Cuban Government claims the United States has increased its forces at the base in the last four months. It says there are now 12 instead of six U.S. warships anchored there, and that additional 155 mm artillery pieces have been brought in.

The base also holds has TA-4 training planes and UH-1N helicopters, Cuban military officials have said. They said some 3,000 troops are stationed at the base, excluding those aboard ship.

JOHANNESBURG (MAY 3) - Veteran African National Congress (ANC) activist Albie Sachs returned Thursday to South Africa from exile in London.

A brilliant lawyer, Mr. Sachs fled South Africa for Mozambique in 1966. On April 7, 1988 he survived a car-bomb attempt on his life in the Mozambican capital of Maputo, but lost his right arm in the explosion.

Speaking to journalists at Johannesburg's Jan Smuts Airport late Thursday,

Mr. Sachs said that as the plane landed he had broken into tears of joy at being "back home".

But it had taken three-and-a-half hours of untangling red tape at the airport before the Foreign Affairs Department finally gave him the go-ahead to enter the country he last saw 24 years ago.

Mr. Sachs said he would spend a month in South Africa and planned Friday to attend a legal conference near Johannesburg where constitutional models for a non-racial, democratic South Africa are to be discussed.

Later Friday or early Saturday he will fly to Cape Town where he said he planned to "climb mountains" and "drink tea with my mother".

It is expected Mr. Sachs, who is a prominent member of the ANC's law and constitutional affairs department, will also meet up with other ANC exiles currently in Cape Town for formal talks with the South African government.

ISTANBUL, Turkey (MAY 3) - One of six segments of steel tubing seized by Turkey on suspicion of being part of a planned Iraqi "supergun" was on its way back to Britain by air on Thursday at the request of its British maker customs officials said here.

Turkey had earlier authorized the return to Britain of the 30-tonne tube so that the maker, the Walter Somers company, could examine it closely in the light of allegations that it and similar tubes are part of a huge Iraqi project to build a gun capable of firing projectiles into space.

Sales for such a project would violate an arms embargo which Britain, like several other Western countries, imposed on both Iraq and Iran during the eight-year-long Gulf War.

The six tube segments were seized on April 20 from a lorry which had arrived in Istanbul from Romania.

That was shortly after British customs had seized another shipment of tubes at a British port, claiming that they were part of a "supergun," a claim which was later confirmed by the British government.

Iraq, which has denied the charges, is seeking to gain delivery of the tubes. It says they are intended for the petrochemical industry.

Two people have so far been charged in Britain in connection with the affair; one of them is an executive of Walter Somers.

MANILA (MAY 4) - The Philippine inflation rate edged up to 13.6 per- cent in April, from 13.4 percent in March, the government's National Statistics Office (NSO) said Friday.

The figure was 5.5 percentage points higher than the April 1989 rate of 8.1 percent, NSO spokesmen noted.

The annual inflation rate registered at 10.6 last year.

The Asian Development Bank forecast last week that inflation would remain at an average of 12 percent this year due to higher oil prices and the depreciation of the peso.

The bank said inflation would ease a little to about nine percent next year with expanded economic capacity and a lower budget deficit.

WELLINGTON (MAY 3) - NBC International Ltd., a subsidiary of the major U.S. television network NBC, ditched its shareholding in New Zealand's troubled private television channel TV3 on Thursday.

NBC's announcement by its New Zealand law firm came a day after TV3 was placed into receivership when its bankers, Westpac Banking Corp., withdrew support.

The Dominion newspaper reported Thursday that the five-month-old TV3 owes Westpac 39 million New Zealand dollars (22 million U.S.)

NBC owned 15 percent of TV3 and in a statement through Chapman Tripp Sheffield Young said that under take-out deeds and an underwriting agreement it had the right to sell its shares to broker Ord O'Connor Grieve Ltd., Metro Media Ltd., and South Pacific Travel Ltd.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - Mongolia's second bid to join the Asian Development Bank (ADB) is on hold because the country's statistics do not add up, according to Mongolian finance and foreign ministry officials here.

The ADB has promised to send a mission to Ulan Bator to help remedy its statistical problems and complete the paperwork required to join the bank, but this could take time, the officials said.

When the ADB was established in 1966, Mongolia was involved in preparatory talks and was expected to become a founding member but pulled out at the last minute, apparently due to Soviet pressure.

Now, Mongolia is eager to be admitted to the bank and borrow funds to develop its infrastructure and education system, the officials said.

At a meeting Wednesday with ADB Secretary Arun Adarkar, the Mongolian delegation was told a specialist mission could be in the Mongolian capital by late May or early June to work on standardising the country's statistics.

The delegation is due to meet ADB President Kimimasa Tarumizu Thursday for further discusssions on the country's membership bid.

"The methods we use to calculate our statistics are different from ADB calculations," Mongolian Foreign Ministry official L. Galbadrakh said. "Before we become members of the ADB, we must change our statistical calculations."

He said Mongolia hoped to join the bank by the end of this year and then he International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

In his opening speech to the ADB's annual meeting here Wednesday, Mr. Tarumizu specifically welcomed the Mongolian and Turkish observer delegations to the meeting and said "I hope they will soon join us as members."

Turkey's membership could be confirmed Thursday, a senior ADB official said.

WELLINGTON (MAY 3) - State Insurance, a New Zealand government-owned company, is to be sold to British insurance company Norwich Union for 735 million New Zealand dollars (419 million U.S), associate State-Owned Enterprises Minister Peter Neilson said Thursday.

He said 25 formal expressions of interest had been lodged from around the world.

The proceeds will be used to reduce government debt, Mr. Neilson said.

At a press conference at which the agreements of sale were signed, he said the sale was "a marriage made in heaven".

Norwich Union had a corporate culture, a practice and beliefs shared by State Insurance, Mr. Neilson added.

Although the agreements were signed today, the sale cannot formally proceed until the State Insurance Bill, currently before a select committee, is passed by Parliament.

The bill provides for the State Insurance Office to be turned into a limited liability company.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) - China appealed Thursday for a resumption of lending by Western countries ahead of a meeting with Japanese Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto.

Chinese central bank governor Li Guixian told delegates at the annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) here that the bank should not discriminate against China on political issues.

"It is clearly stated in the Bank's Charter that the Bank should not intervene in the political affairs of its members," Mr. Li said.

"However we regret to note that this (policy) has been subjected to undue interference from certain quarters for some time now," he added.

Mr. Hashimoto told reporters he expected to discuss the resumption of loans with Mr. Li at a meeting between the two men later Thursday.

"However as far as lending extended by the ADB is concerned, we would not modify our position," he said.

"Prior to tackling the issue (of ADB lending), we have our own problem of the third yen credit," to resolve with China, he added.

The 5.1 billion dollar credit was frozen last year by Tokyo.

Thursday's meeting between Mr. Hashimoto and Mr. Li was confirmed early Thursday after an invitation by the Chinese delegation was sent to Mr. Hashimoto in Tokyo.

Before he left for New Delhi, Mr. Hashimoto told reporters in Tokyo that he hoped to meet with Mr. Li privately during the ADB meeting, although no timetable had then been set for the talks.

Mr. Hashimoto told reporters here that Japan had a long-standing relationship with China, adding that he hoped ties could be normalized. He however repeated Japan's position that multilateral lending would have to wait for a consensus among industrialized countries.

HONG KONG (MAY 3) - Share prices on the local stock market closed marginally lower in quiet trading with the Hang Seng Index dropping 3.15 points to 2,954.61 Thursday.

Turnover came to 858 million Hong Kong dollars (110 million U.S.), against Wednesday's 811 million Hong Kong dollars (104 million U.S.).

The market opened weak at the start of the morning trading on profit-taking after a rebound made on Wednesday following two sessions of continuous losses.

But with no further fresh incentives in sight, the main indicator shedded 5.47 points to 2,952.29 before the noon close.

The index regained its earlier losses in the afternoon session on small scale buying.

Dealers said punters preferred to stay on the sidelines as overall sentiment remained cautious.

CANBERRA (MAY 3) - Australia's current account deficit for March soared 67 percent over the previous month, forcing Treasurer Paul Keating to rule out Thursday further easings in monetary policy.

The Bureau of Statistics reported that the unadjusted current account deficit for March blew out to nearly 1.8 billion Australian dollars (1.35 billion U.S.), compared to 1.07 billion dollars (800 million U.S.) in February.

The unadjusted merchandise trade balance recorded a 407 million dollar (305 million U.S.) deficit after a 67 million dollar (50 million U.S.) surplus in February, the bureau said.

Mr. Keating said tight monetary policy was still needed to restrict import growth.

"We can't risk a re-emergence of demand," he said.

Mr. Keating said there was still scope for business and personal interest rates to fall further following the government's recent easing of monetary policy for the third time this year.

Janet Torney, senior economist at Macquarie Bank Ltd., said: "There is no good news in these figures for the government."

"The concern with these figures was that export numbers continue to be weak."

Over the month, exports fell one percent to nearly 3.85 billion dollars (2.89 billion U.S.) while imports rose 12 percent to more than 4.25 billion dollars (3.19 billion U.S.).

The figures were the second straight day of bad economic news for Canberra, following Wednesday's announcement that Australia's inflation rate had surged to 8.6 percent in the year to March 31 - almost a three-year high.

The Australian dollar rose on news of the worse than expected current account deficit, ending at 75.60 U.S. cents compared with Tuesday's close of 75.30 U.S. cents.

"Expectations that interest rates will stay high are underpinning the Aussie," one dealer said.

The seasonally adjusted current account deficit for March was 1.92 billion dollars (1.44 billion U.S.), up from 1.25 billion dollars (940 million U.S.) in February.

The current account measures the difference in value between the incoming and outgoing transactions in goods, services, incomes and transfers.

Singapore (MAY 3) - Spearheading the growing list of Japanese banks using Singapore as a base for their syndicated loan deals, the Industrial Bank of Japan (Ibj) said Thursday it expects to handle 1.2 billion U.S. dollars worth of such business here this year.

Kiyoshige Akamatsu, Ibj's Deputy General Manager, made this projection after the signing of a 50 million dollars syndicated loan to the Industrial Credit and Investment Corporation of India (Icici), a leading Indian semi-governmental financial institution.

Ibj, along with the Instituto Bancario San Paolo di Torino and Kdb international Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Korea Development Bank, jointly lead-managed the eight-year loan to Icici.

Akamatsu told reporters the ''strength'' of the market here for obtaining money for overseas borrowings, plus the tax exemptions offered by the government, make Singapore a ''very attractive place for such activities''.

Echoing similar sentiments were four other Japanese banks which said Singapore's efficient communications facilities and good financial infrastructure were major factors contributing to their loan activities here.

The banks are Dai-Ichi-Kangyo Bank, Sumitomo Bank, Nippon Credit Bank and Fuji Bank.

Last year, Ibj handled a total of 800 million U.S. dollars of syndicated loans here, and expects this to increase by 50 percent annually in the next two to three years.

AMSTERDAM (MAY 3) - The Philips electronics group said Thursday its operating profit fell 26 percent in the first quarter of 1990 to 450 million guilder (225 million dollars) compared with 611 million guilder in the first quarter of 1989.

Net profit rose by 50.6 percent in the first quarter to 336 million guilder (168 million dollars) compared with 223 million guilder in the first quarter of last year as a result of the sale of defence subsidiaries.

The reduction in operating profit was due to "marked deterioration" of the market for professional systems. An improvement in the market for consumer products did not compensate for this, the company said.

The company said that variations in the exchange rates of the dollar, yen and sterling had a negative effect.

Consolidated world sales increased by 1.4 percent to 12.82 billion guilder (6.41 billion dollars) from 12.64 billion guilder.

In January Philips sold half of its defence activities to the French group Thomson-CSF.

Eschborn (MAY 3) - West Germany's crude oil imports in the first quarter of 1990 reached 4.5 billion marks (2.66 billion dollars), up 839 million marks or 22.9 per cent from the same period last year, it was reported here Thursday.

The Federal Office of Industry noted that total crude oil imports reached 17.6 million tons in the first three months of this year, up 13.9 percent on the volume for the first quarter of 1989.

The office noted that average oil import prices began to tail off during March. A ton of crude oil cost 244 marks, or 2.8 percent below the average per-tonne price in March 1989.

As a result, the March 1990 import bill of 1.5 billion marks was up by 13.8 percent, even though the volume of imports was 16.8 percent higher, at 6.3 million tons, the office said.

Britain remained West Germany's largest oil supplier in the first quarter of 1990, with deliveries of 3.8 million tons. Libya came next with three million tonnes, followed by Saudi Arabia's 1.8 million, Norway's 1.5 million and Nigeria's 1.4 million tons.

PERTH, Australia (MAY 3) - Australia's corporate enforcer on Thursday lost a legal action to prevent the sale of a 14.9 percent stake in The Bell Group Ltd. by managing director David Aspinall to British publisher Robert Maxwell.

The Federal Court in Melbourne had granted Wednesday the National Companies and Securities Commission (NCSC) a 24-hour injunction which froze the sale but refused to renew it Thursday.

Media reports said the NCSC was expected to take further court action Friday to halt the deal.

The NCSC had said it wanted to examine the sale of the Bell shares to Mr. Maxwell, alleging Mr. Aspinall had contravened the companies code when he bought a 16.6 percent Bell stake on April 27.

The Western Australian State Government Insurance Commission (SGIC) had dumped its 19.6 percent Bell stake on the market, forcing down the price to as low as 0.5 Australian cents.

TROUTBECK, Zimbabwe (MAY 3) - Twenty-four-year-old Lilian Nygondore was asleep in her mud-and-thatch hut high in the mountains along Zimbabwe's eastern border when the rebels from Mozambique burst in and butchered her baby and her four-year-old daughter with axes.

"They didn't say anything," Mrs. Nygondore told AFP, showing healing axe-wounds on her own shaven scalp. "They just started chopping."

Asked why she thought this tragedy should have befallen her family she shook her head and said she did not know.

Her husband Peter hesitantly suggested: "They say it is because our soldiers are in Mozambique."

Then they lapsed back into a shocked silence, sitting in the workers' compound of the luxurious holiday hotel where they have sought refuge.

Just over the hill, guests follow golf balls around an immaculate 18-hole course, fly-fish for trout and play tennis in the crisp autumn air.

Beyond the hotel, down through the Gairezi River valley and into the untamed Nyanga mountains less than 40 kilometres (25 miles) away, men wait with strong bows and iron-age arrows for the rebels to return.

Others visit their homes only during the day. When darkness comes they hide in the bush or gather at schools to sleep where they are under the protection of soldiers.

Three others died in the attack on the Nygondore's village last month -- two women and a seven-year-old boy -- taking to more than 400 the official total of Zimbabwean civilians murdered in the last three years by rebels of the Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO).

The question of why the rebels sweep across the border to kill, rape and rob has at least three answers.

Peter Nygondore, who reads the local newspapers which reported the attack on his family, says the raids are in retaliation for Zimbabwe's support for the Mozambican government of President Joaquim Chissano.

Zimbabwe's President Robert Mugabe has vowed never to allow the rebels to take power in Mozambique, and has stationed around 10,000 troops in the country.

In response RENAMO -- whose 15-year bush campaign against the socialist Frelimo government has been described by the U.S. State Department as "one of the most brutal holocausts against ordinary human beings since World War II" -- "declared war" on Zimbabwe in 1987.

Since then they have launched raids across much of Zimbabwe's 1,000 kilometre (625 miles) border with Mozambique, bringing development projects to a halt in the north-east and forcing the closure of the Gonarezhou game reserve in the south-east.

Although a few attacks have been against economic targets, many have been attributed to pure banditry, with border villages being pillaged for food and the residents' meagre possessions.

The third answer to why the rebels cross the border came from 22-year-old Oiver Perai, who lives in a small cluster of family huts on the crest of a mountain some 10 kilometres (six miles) from where the Nygondore children were killed.

He says that one night shortly before that attack, a group of around 20 raiders arrived and began trying to chop their way into the huts with axes.

"I picked up my bow and fired through the window of the grain storeroom where I had been sleeping and wounded three of them before they fled," said Mr. Perai, displaying his 1.5 metre bow with lethal looking barbed iron arrows.

Bonn (MAY 3) - West German industrial production slipped by a seasonally-adjusted 0.5 percent from February to March, according to preliminary estimates, the Economics Ministry said Thursday.

The ministry said however it expected there would be a strong upward revision, by as much as 1.5 percent, of the final figure as later growth factors are taken into account.

In the two-month comparison of February-March to the preceding December-January period, the ministry said athe overall high level of industrial production was maintained. The warm winter helped to spur construction industry growth by 15.5 percent, although it meant a 10.0 percent dip in the energy utility sector.

In the February-March 1990 period, overall industrial production was a full 4.6 percent higher compared to the same two months last year, Bonn said.

During a breakfast meeting, they discussed more aspects of Japanese investments in Pakistan, the radio said without giving details.

It was not known whether they discussed the possibility of Japanese participation in the consortium to finance the nuclear power plant that France has agreed to sell Pakistan.

Ms. Bhutto has said she would like Japan to participate in its financing.

But Japan has made it clear that, unless the countries sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, they could not expect any technical or other assistance from Tokyo for such projects.

Mr. Kaifu had announced a 20.8 billion yen (132 million dollars) soft loan for a telecommunication expansion programme in Pakistan in addition to previously committed structural loans of 19 billion yen (120 million dollars) and 21 billion yen (133 million dollars) for the second phase of the Indus Highway project.

Informed sources said the two leaders also discussed Ms. Bhutto's readiness to talk with her Indian counterpart to resolve the Kashmir issue through dialogue.

At a joint news conference Wednesday, Mr. Kaifu had said Japan was ready to accept any active role to defuse tension between the two neighbours who have fought two of their three wars over Kashmir since 1947.

Ms. Bhutto had proposed that India pull back its troops to peace-time positions and agree to a neutral mechanism for verifying allegations and counter allegations of interference.

Mr. Kaifu also planted a sapling at Shakaparian hills here as a momento of his visit before leaving Pakistan for Sri Lanka.

BAGHDAD (MAY 3) - Iraq is to invite Arab leaders to attend an emergency summit meeting in Baghdad this month to discuss ''threats facing the Arab world's national security'', it was announced here Thursday.

Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz said envoys will be sent to Arab countries to convey the summit invitation which will also extend to Syrian President Hafez Assad.

If Assad accepts, it would be his first visit to Baghdad in more than 10 years of rivalry between the Damascus and Baghdad wings of the Arab Baath Socialist Party.

The announcement followed consultations with Arab League Secretary-General Chadli Klibi who arrived in Baghdad Wednesday.

It also came a day after Iraq and Syria announced it was halting their media campaigns against each other, and coincides with the current visit to Damascus by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, the first by an Egyptian head of state for 13 years.

Mubarak said in Damascus Thursday help was needed to narrow the gaps between Iraq and Syria. ''We would like to persuade the Syrians to find a way so that the summit could convene in Baghdad,'' he said.

PRETORIA (MAY 3) - Police opened fire wounding 16 people while three men were killed during overnight violence in black South African townships, the authorities said here Thursday.

All but one of casualties were in strife-torn Natal province, according to the daily police "unrest" report.

Three men were shot dead by unknown assailants near Pietermaritzburg, the report said.

Eleven of the wounded were shot, including "a youth ... a girl and two women" after they had stoned police property near Kokstad. A policeman had been hurt by a stone.

A man and a youth had been wounded by police shotgun fire in the same area after they had rolled drums of burning tar at soldiers.

Police had shot and wounded a man nearby after "a private vehicle had been damaged by a group of blacks."

A youth had been hurt by police fire and arrested after stoning a policeman's home in the Cape's Galeshewe township.

Natal province has recorded more than 3,000 township deaths since late 1986, with the intensification of a Zulu civil war between the African National Congress-allied United Democratic Front and the conservative Inkatha movement.

Calls for peace from ANC deputy president Nelson Mandela and Inkatha president Mangosuthu Buthelezi have failed to stem the violence.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (MAY 3) - The Bundesbank decided at its regular fortnightly meeting Thursday not to amend its monetary policy, a bank spokesman said.

The discount rate remains at six percent and the Lombard rate at eight per cent, their levels since October 6.

The meeting was held in West Berlin rather than in Frankfurt where the bank is based, but the venue had been fixed some time ago and was not linked to moves towards German monetary union, the Bundesbank spokesman said.

The bank regularly holds its meetings in other West German towns apart from Frankfurt.

LONDON (MAY 3) - A severe housing market slump in Britain has taken year-on-year house price inflation into negative figures for the first time since indexation began seven years ago, according to figures from the Halifax Building Society, Britain's biggest home-loan organisation.

April house prices were down 0.2 percent on the same month in 1989, Halifax said, in stark contrast to the 28.5 percent annual price inflation in the year to April 1989 when the boom was at its height.

The news was a boost for Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major's high interest rate anti-inflation policy, since economists agree that much of Britain's current economic problems are due to the property boom of 1988 and 1989.

They blame the boom for fuelling inflation -- now nearing 10 percent annually -- by making people feel richer and encouraging them to borrow more spending money against the rising value of their homes.

But there was also some good news in the figures for owners stuck with homes bought at the peak of the boom, who are struggling with repayments which soared as interest rates almost doubled in the past two years while their investments lost value.

On a monthly basis, the Halifax index rose for the third consecutive month -- up 1.1 on March -- suggesting that the slump in prices may be levelling out, although this rise was partly due to seasonal factors.

A national 10 percent fall in prices has been predicted, but Halifax said that although further limited falls are expected in 1990, prices have been "much more buoyant than expected in the early months of 1990", largely due to the fact that prices are still rising in the cheaper ares of the North of England and Scotland.

In first quarter 1990, Halifax estimated the average price of a home in Greater London at 90,811 pounds (151,300 dollars), down from 97,049 pounds in the first three months of 1989, while in its North of England region the average dwelling was up in value from 38,283 pounds to 45,520 pounds.

GOEPPINGEN (MAY 3) - The first faint signs of a possible accord between West German metalworkers and employers emerged here Thursday when regional representatives for the two sides said key union demands would be taken up at the negotiating table.

The regional negotiators in the northern part of the state of Baden-Wuerttemberg for the metalworkers union Ig metall and the employers' Gesamtmetall both expressed optimism that differences on a work week cut and for pay hikes could be resolved by negotiations.

They said that the key union demands, for reducing the work week from 37 hours to 35 hours, and for an 8.5 to 9.0 percent pay rise, would be laid aside at their level for the moment while other issues are debated.

But those issues would be taken up at a higher level in Stuttgart in talks to include the deputy chairman of the 4-million strong Ig Metall, Klaus Zwickel, and Gesamtmetall's president Werner Stumpfe.

Until now, employers have offered only a five percent pay hike, while wanting to freeze the current 37-hour work week through March 1993.

In recent days, Ig metall has called thousands of workers off their jobs at selected companies around the country for warning strikes of up to several hours to press the union's demands.

A wage agreement breakthrough in northern Baden-Wuerttemberg, where Ig metall has 700,000 members, would set the basis for wage settlements throughout West Germany.

LAGOS (MAY 3) - Bangkok has imposed visa regulations on all Nigerians travelling to Thailand, no matter the duration of their stay, official national television (NTA) has reported here.

Previously Nigerians could enter and stay for 15 days in the Southeast Asian country without visas.

The Thai decision followed the recent spate of arrests in Thailand of persons carrying Nigerian passports on drug offences, the television quoted the external affairs ministry as saying Wednesday night.

Since November last year, more than 100 Nigerian passport holders have been arrested by Thai anti-narcotic officials at Bangkok Don Muang international airport. Nigerian authorities have maintained that some of those arrested were not Nigerians but were travelling on fake passports.

Meanwhile, the Thai embassy in Lagos has launched a campaign warning Nigerians travelling to Thailand of the risk they face if they are caught trafficking in hard drugs.

A notice displayed in the embassy reception hall says: ''It will be wise not to get involved with any kind of of narcotic drugs while staying in Thailand''.

Under Thai law, the maximum penalty for drug trafficking is death by firing squad, but the sentence is almost always commuted to life imprisonment.

The offence carries a maximum of life imprisonment in Nigeria.

LONDON (MAY 3) - Brent North Sea crude oil prices firmed in London in late morning trading Thursday after slipping earlier in the day in the wake of New York's poor showing Wednesday, analysts said.

Brent was quoted at 17.40 dollars a barrel at the end of the morning against 17.20 at the opening and 17.50 at Wednesday's close.

Jeremy Hudson, an analyst with Shearson Lehmen Hutton, said the firming was due to hope that the 13 Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries members would reach agreement on reducing production by about a million barrels a day in May and June.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said in Geneva Thursday that OPEC ministers had reached an agreement on production cuts to bolster oil prices, but declined to give details of the deal, saying these would come from OPEC acting president Sadek Boussena.

Mr. Hudson said that fears of a strike in the British North Sea oil industry had also helped firm prices.

"There are stories about work to rule actions...if there is industrial unrest, it could interfere badly with summer maintenance work."

Nick Antill of County NatWest said the maintenance work and resulting production cuts would have a greater effect on the market than the outcome of the Geneva OPEC meeting.

"The outcome of this meeting is in fact fairly irrelevant... production cuts will only influence the market in June," he said.

PARIS (MAY 3) - French glass group Saint-Gobain said Thursday it had acquired British glassmaking concern Sologlas Ltd. from Anglo-South African group PGSI for 96.5 million pounds (160.8 million dollars).

Solaglas, acquired through Saint-Gobain's Belgian subsidiary Glaceries de Saint-Roch, becomes the French group's largest subsidiary in Britain.

Saint-Gobain is already present in Britain with drainpipe maker Stanton and industrial ceramics concern TSL.

The French company said it had sold its windscreen replacement centres in France and West Germany to Autoglass, which belongs to PGSI, for 16 million pounds (26.6 million dollars).

Solaglas had a turnover of 173 million pounds (288 million dollars) in the year to the end of March and employs more than 3,000 people.

BEIJING (MAY 3) - Violent storms in two central-eastern Chinese provinces have killed at least 11 people, injured 748, and caused millions of dollars in damage, press reports said Thursday.

The semi-official China News Service, quoted by Hong Kong newspapers, said storms in Hubei province near the city of Wuhan left at least nine people dead and 24 injured. It said the storms ravaged the area from April 28 to 30, dumping 132.8 millimeters (more than five inches) of rain.

Initial reports said more than 332,000 hectares (830,000 acres) of farmlands were flooded and more than 70 houses were destroyed. The report said that the rains had not stopped as of Wednesday.

The Liberation Daily newspaper meanwhile said here that tornados bringing torrential rains and hail the size of goose-eggs left two people dead and two missing in neighboring Anhui province. It said 724 people were injured.

The tornados caused 40 million yuan (8.5 million dollars) in damage, the Shanghai-based paper said.

Some 6,700 homes were damaged and seven villages were hit by the hailstorm.

BUCHAREST (MAY 3) - Romania's provisional government on Thursday denied rumors that it was ready to negotiate with its opponents, some of whom are on hunger strike to demand that former communist officials be barred from standing in this month's general election.

"There is no change in the position of President Ion Iliescu or of Premier Petre Roman," the government spokesman said. "There are no plans for dialogue."

In the geography faculty on University Square, speakers waiting to address the crowd from a balcony overlooking Bucharest's "communist-free zone" were equally unyielding.

George Vasu, a 34-year-old architect who has not worked since the December revolution, said "we must keep up the rhythm of the demonstration and build up a crescendo" against the National Salvation Front which took power after the fall of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

The opposition, alleging that some senior NSF members had served the Ceausescu regime until late in the day, wants former communist party officials barred from political office. It also insists that the television be freed from government control and the May 20 general election postponed.

Government spokesman Christian Unteanu said Thursday that "to start a dialogue on the basis of demands like that would be tantamount to refusing to respect the electoral law which the country has adopted."

In reply, the demonstrators camped on University Square have since Monday taken up the words of a song writer made famous by the revolution:

"Don't let them steal what you have won. They have no rights, for they did not fight."

Early Thursday, there were 27 tents in the square and the "canvas city" was still growing, swollen by arrivals from the provinces, including the western city of Timisoara, where the revolution began.

The protestors include 31 hunger strikers, one of whom, 35-year-old civil servant Carmen Aurelia Radulescu, said she had also stopped taking liquids.

The haggard appearance and piercing gaze emphasise the determination of men like Mr. Vasu, who vets speakers before they step out onto the balcony of the geography faculty.

"We turn no-one away," he said. "The only conditions are not to be drunk and to have something to say."

Mr. Vasu said that some speeches were too long "and we have to ask for them to be cut".

But he asserted that those who got through the series of checks set up by the Bucharest students' association on the way to the room which leads out onto the balcony had no need of a scriptwriter. All, such as the worker silently rehearsing words on a crumped piece of paper, "know what they want to say."

Five political parties including the three largest opposition groups threatened Thursday to pull out of the election campaign unless there was a halt to what they described as increasing acts of intimidation.

In an attempt to head off confrontation, one of the groups, the National Peasants' Party, called for an emergency meeting of the Provisional Council of National Unity.

The Council, which includes representatives of the National Salvation Front and opposition parties, has met only once in full session in the past five weeks.

SANTIAGO (MAY 3) EFE - A woman who claimed she was involved in the 1976 murder of Chile's former ambassador to Washington, Orlando Letelier, has been freed but the journalist whose interview revealed her part in the case was detained, officials reported.

They said military prosecutor Raul Rozas late Wednesday ordered the release of Monica Luisa Lagos after she had been held for five days for questioning regarding the Letelier case.

The prosecutor then ordered the detention of journalist Manuel Salazar, editor of the Santiago daily La Epoca which tracked down Lagos and whose interview forced the Supreme Court to reopen the murder case.

Rozas said Salazar was to be detained and held incommunicado because some matters "needed to be clarified," but he did not elaborate.

On April 17, La Epoca published an interview with Lagos in which she claimed she was Lilian Walker, the mystery agent named frequently during U.S. hearings on the case in 1978 but whose wherabouts have never been known.

Lagos said she had accompanied former Chilean DINA secret police Lt. Armando Fernandez Larios on a trip to Washington in August 1976 to prepare for the murder.

A former nightclub dancer turned spy, Lagos claimed, however, that she had spent most of the trip shopping and was ignorant of the mission's objective until the murder hit the headlines.

Fernandez Larios handed himself over to U.S. authorities in 1987 and received a reduced sentence after he confessed involvement in the case.

Letelier, who had resigned as ambassador in protest at the 1973 coup by Chilean dicatator Augusto Pinochet, was killed along with his assistant Ronnie Moffit when a bomb planted in their car exploded in Washington in 1976.

A previous foreign minister under the leftist government of President Salvador Allende which was toppled by Pinochet, he had sought U.S. asylum following his resignation.

In 1978, a Washington court named former DINA chief Gen. Manuel Contreras, assistant Cmdr. Pedro Espinoza, agent Michael Townley, Fernandez and four Cubans as being involved in the case.

Townley was extradited and jailed the same year but repeated requests for the Pinochet government to hand over Contreras and Espinoza were rejected.

Rozas Wednesday rejected a call by Fabiola Letelier, the former ambassador's sister, that Contreras be ordered to testify.

Interest in the case flared again recently when Cuban Jose Dionisio Suarez was arrested by U.S. Federal Bureau Investigation agents on April 11.

Observers said Lagos agreed to the La Epoca interview in a bid to go public and seek protection in the event of reprisals from former members of the now-defunct DINA.

Letelier was believed to have been one of the first of a number of exiled Chileans killed for their outspoken opposition to Pinochet's regime.

Pinochet's nearly 17-year-long dictatorship ended March 11 when democratically elected President Patricio Aylwin took office.

SAN SALVADOR (MAY 3) EFE - A former Salvadoran Army colonel has reiterated that last November's killing of six Jesuit priests, for which eight officers and soldiers are facing charges, involved higher ranking officers.

Former colonel and deputy for the ruling right-wing ARENA party Sigifredo Ochoa Perez told the Salvadoran radio station YSKL Wednesday that the November 16 murder of the Jesuits, +was planned with the knowledge of officers+.

Referring to the colonel who allegedly gave the order to shoot the priests at their Central American University residence along with their housekeeper and her daughter, Ochoa Perez said, "I can't accept that such an important decision was taken by just one person."

Ochoa Perez did not specify which other officers he believed were responsible for planning the murders.

The Army high command have angrily denied Ochoa Perez's allegations, which were first made during a recent interview given to a U.S. television channel.

An Army spokesman has "categorically" dismissed the former colonel's claims as, "obeying only to the dark and wicked interests of the enemies of democracy."

But both the Roman Catholic Church and opposition parties in El Salvador have given credence to the allegations, which they say come from someone "who knows how the military works."

El Salvador auxilliary bishop Gregorio Rosa Chavez told worshippers during a sermon Sunday that Ochoa Perez had given "careful thought" to his claims before making them.

Salvadoran judiciary officials handling the case have asked Ochoa Perez to clarify his knowledge of the murders and the Army high command to explain on what basis the eight charged were identified by the military as responsible for the crime.

Army Colonel Guillermo Benavides, who allegedly gave the order to kill the priests, and three other officers and four soldiers were charged in the murder of the Jesuits, which occurred during a major offensive by Salvadoran left-wing rebels.

The case has subsequently been bogged down in the Salvadoran courts with the only evidence available coming from statements made by the accused, who fingered Benavides as the mastermind of killings.

The judge presiding the case, Ricardo Zamora, is also to question another Army colonel and a U.S. Army official who allegedly knew who the killers were before they were named by the goverment of President Alfredo Cristiani.

The government commission set up to investigate the crime is also to report its findings to the court.

Meanwhile, a group of young Army officers have called for a clean-out in military ranks following the murder of the Jesuits, widely condemned by the international community.

In a statement broadcast late Wednesday by the Salvadoran radio station YSU, the officers said, "We know that the only ones to blame are a small group of corrupt chiefs implicated in horrible murders such as that of the Jesuit priests."

The officers expressed concern over further cut-backs in U.S. military aid unless corrupt elements in the upper ranks of the Army were removed.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker Tuesday stepped up pressure on the Cristiani government to get to the bottom of the killings by threatening further cuts in aid to El Salvador, currently running at nearly dlrs one million daily.

The U.S. House of Representatives foreign affairs committee voted last week to slash half of the dlrs 85 million in military aid that had been earmarked for El Salvador for next year.

Human rights groups blame military-backed right-wing death squads for the deaths of up to 40,000 civilians in El Salvador's decade-old civil war in which some 75,000 people have been killed.

MADRID (MAY 3) EFE - Spain's new Labor Minister, Luis Martinez Noval, was sworn in Thursday at a ceremony in Madrid presided over by King Juan Carlos.

Noval was named to the post last week after his predecessor, Manuel Chaves stepped down to become the ruling Socialist party's candidate for president of the southern Andalusian regional government.

One of Noval's chief tasks will be to try to appease Spain's two main trade organizations, the General Workers' Union and the Workers' Commission, in wage talks later this month and the fulfillment of January accords to raise pensions.

Both unions have accused the government in recent years of betraying its Socialist principles to benefit business.

BUENOS AIRES (MAY 3) EFE - The improvement of relations between Argentina and Britain will not depend on the governments in power, Buenos Aires' new ambassador to London said in an interview published Thursday by the daily La Nacion.

Asked how Argentina would view an electoral defeat for Britain's ruling Conservative Party in future polls, Ambassador Mario Campora said "a desired improvement in relations between Argentina and Britain is a matter which transcends governments."

The ambassador, who is to travel to London with other Argentine officials next week to discuss improving relations, said that President Carlos Menem had stressed this point to him.

Menem said this week that regaining sovereignty over the disputed Falkland Islands, which led the two countries to war in 1982, would continue to be one of his government's main priorities, although he ruled out the use of force to win back the archipelago.

Three months ago, Britain and Argentina renewed full diplomatic relations which were broken off during the ten-week war when British troops seized back the South Atlantic Falkland Islands from invading Argentine forces.

The Argentine government agreed to put the issue of sovereignty over the islands on hold during the talks which led to the renewal of relations with London.

In a controversial move last week, Argentina's Congress included the Falkland, South Sandwich and Georgia Islands, all claimed by Britain, in a new southern province along with Tierra del Fuego.

In Thursday's interview Camporro told La Nacion that +while Argentina exerts its presence in the South Atlantic it will be putting into effect its sovereignty" over the Falkland Islands as there are two types of sovereignty: "one declared and the other effective."

The ambassador said that during next week's talks with officials in London his team would be seeking to boost trade with Britain and encourage British-based multinationals to invest in Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES (MAY 3) EFE - A bomb blast ripped through the home of a leading member of Argentina's ruling Peronist party Thursday, causing serious damage but no injuries, police said.

It was the third bomb attack in the capital of Buenos Aires this week.

The bomb exploded at the home of Jorge Luis Argento, former mayoral candidate for Buenos Aires, flattening sections of his residence, damaging his car and shattering windows in neighboring houses.

Police gave no indication of who might have planted the bomb or possible motives for the attack.

Argento, a medical doctor, was a close ally of the former governor of the province of Buenos Aires, Herminio Iglesias, whom some Peronist activists hold responsible for the party's defeat in the 1983 presidential elections.

Two bombs exploded Monday at a bank and at the headquarters of a publishing company in Buenos Aires. Both buildings were seriously damaged but there were no casualties.

SANTO DOMINGO (MAY 3) EFE - Unidentified gunmen opened fire on the home of presidential candidate Jose Francisco Gomez, in the latest incident of violence in the runup to the Dominican Republic's May 16 elections, police said Thursday.

A police spokesman said the gunmen, riding on a motorbike, shot at Gomez's house in Santo Domingo as the candidate's wife was arriving home late Wednesday. She was not injured.

The spokesman said that Gomez, candidate for the Dominican Revolutionary Party, was out of town campaigning at the time.

At least four people have died over the past several weeks in pre-election violence between rival political parties.

The main contenders in the polling are President and ruling Social Christian Reformist Party hopeful Joaquin Balaguer, 83, and his 80-year-old left-wing rival, former president Juan Bosch.

SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO (MAY 3) EFE - Relations between Mexico and the United States must not suffer because of the kidnapping of a Mexican doctor accused of taking part in the torture and murder of a U.S. anti-drugs agent, Mexican Attorney General Enrique Alvarez del Castillo has said.

His remarks came Wednesday after a meeting with U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh at which they discussed the case of Mexican gynaecologist Humberto Alvarez Machain, who was snatched last month for his alleged involvement with the killing of agent Enrique Camarena Salazar in Mexico in 1985.

Alvarez Machain was taken to the United States and is awaiting trial in Los Angeles on charges relating to the case.

"The difficulties we have with the United States must not interfere with our good relations, in the interests of both countries," said Alvarez de Castillo, who last week accused the United States of being behind the abduction.

After the meeting in Santa Fe, Thornburgh repeated that the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) had nothing to do with the kidnapping of the doctor, who was delivered to U.S. authorities in El Paso by his presumed kidnappers on April 3.

U.S. authorities claim that the doctor used stimulants to keep Camarena alive while he was tortured by Mexican drug traffickers, before being killed.

Athough Alvarez Machain was known to be among the DEA's most-wanted men, the American authorities have refused to identify Mexican police officers who supposedly took part in the kidnapping, or to comment on an alleged dlrs 100,000 bounty offered by the DEA.

However a DEA informant has told the Los Angeles Times that the kidnapping plans were approved by Hector Berellez, the DEA agent who presented evidence about the killing of his former colleague.

The informant, Antonio Garate Bustamente, claimed the kidnapping was carried out by 10 Mexicans and U.S. federal agents, who had offered them the dlrs 100,000.

Mexican authorities had said before the meeting that they would press Thornburgh for "new standards" of cooperation allowing members of the Mexican police to operate in the United States in the same way that DEA agents do in Mexico.

"If the DEA has agents in Mexico, Mexico needs to have the same number in the United States," Mexican government spokesman Fernando Arias said.

MEXICO CITY (MAY 3) EFE - Some 30,000 Mexican police and armed forces personnel Thursday were readying tight security measures for the seven-day visit of Pope John Paul II to Latin America's second largest Roman Catholic community.

According to officials in charge of protecting the Pope, who arrives Sunday, the government also ordered three bullet and bomb-proof "Popemobiles" to be made for the visit.

They said police will set up barricades to keep the expected 20 million Roman Catholic faithful from blocking the Pope's route in the nine cities he is to visit.

Police will also provide a "security patch" of agents to surround the Pope at all times.

The officials said 3,000 police and security agents are to be mobilized for the Pope's arrival at the Mexico City airport, where he is to immediately board one of the custom-made Popemobiles.

Each Popemobile costs dlrs 70,000 and is mounted with a trapezoid-shaped transparent bubble made of a mixture of glass and acrylic.

On his only other visit to Mexico, in 1979, the pontiff toured in an open-aired truck.

On this tour, some 50 motorcycles, 500 patrol cars and six helicopters will escort the pontiff as he travels in his heavily-armored vehicle.

But Vatican officials said that in Mexico, where 85 million Roman Catholics make up 90 percent of the population, the Pope's safety will be guaranteed by the millions of faithful Catholics expected to greet him.

John Paul is to leave Mexico May 13, exactly nine years after he survived an assassination attempt at St. Peter's Square in Rome.

MADRID (MAY 3) - Soviet Finance Minister Valentin Pavlov said Thursday that foreign investment played a key role in the economic development of his country and that since the beginning of the year over 200 foreign firms had started joint ventures with Soviet companies.

Speaking at a conference in Madrid on investment possibilities in the Soviet Union, Pavlov said that since January the number of foreign companies setting up enterprises with Soviet companies had grown from 1,274 to 1,500.

He said that Moscow was implementing a free market economic plan taking into account the interests of foreign investors and there were plans to offer an economic data service to provide information on government loans to would-be investors.

Also speaking at the conference, Moscow Mayor Gabriel Popov said that liberalizing the Soviet economy would be a difficult process as the country's inhabitants did not remember what owning property was like and did not want to.

Popov said the state should offer Soviets credits in order to buy property offer tax incentives to businessmen and nationalize property owned by the Communist Party, which he claimed has debts of 300 billion rubles (dlrs 360 billion at the official exchange rate).

Kremlin economic adviser Stanislav Chataline told the conference that Soviets were not ready for a free market economy. "We know where to go, but we need specialists," he added.

Chataline, who said he hoped that Soviets could have a centrist or social democratic state, stressed that his country needed Western help in order to develop.

"We are a superpower with rockets and bombs, but I don't need any of that " added the economist.

SAN JUAN, Argentina (MAY 3) EFE - The bodies of four Argentines whose Air Force helicopter went missing nine days ago were found Thursday in the aircraft's wreckage in a western mountain range, a government spokesman said.

Rescue workers found the mangled remains of the helicopter in the Cerro Blanco mountain range, 1,280 km west of the capital.

The crash occurred 50 km from the city of San Juan, the capital of San Juan province.

The four victims were a provincial aeronautics official, the head of the local airport, a provincial government official and the owner of two television stations.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) EFE - The Peruvian government is to buy back part of its foreign debt with frozen fish, alpaca wool, coffee, beer and canned vegetables.

The First Chicago Bank, through one of its subsidiaries, is to take the products in return for canceling dlrs 20 million of Peruvian foreign debt, The Journal of Commerce newspaper said Thursday.

The deal, the first of its kind by First Chicago, gave the bank a better price on the debt than it would get on the secondary market, where Peru's debt is trading at about 15 percent of its nominal value.

The deal also benefitted Peru, whose foreign debt totals some dlrs 20 billion, according to Eduardo Quant, managing director of First Chicago Trading, which is to carry out the deal.

"Latin American countries have not been able to export enough of their goods and the debt problems have reduced the amount of trade lines available to them," the newspaper quoted Quant as saying.

SANTO DOMINGO (MAY 4) EFE - Six people were rescued but 66 other would-be illegal refugees were presumed drowned Thursday after their small ship went down during a clandestine trip from the Dominican Republic to Puerto Rico, officials said.

Dominican Civil Defense chief Eugenio Cabral said six bodies had been pulled from the sea and six people had been rescued alive, but workers held out little hope of finding any more survivors.

The ship set sail late Wednesday from the eastern Dominican coast and headed towards Puerto Rico, from where the illegal immigrants presumably hoped to travel to the United States.

BOGOTA (MAY 3) EFE - The Colombian military is investigating a captain and a second lieutenant for failing to prevent the kidnap and murder of 43 peasants by an extreme-right paramilitary death squad, officials said Thursday.

A military judicial spokesman said the officers were accused of failing to carry out their proper duties when a death squad in January captured the 43 peasants from the town of Pueblo Bello in the northwestern department of Cordoba.

The officials, in charge of 12 soldiers at a military roadblock, reportedly failed to stop two trucks used by the death squad to drive the peasants out of the town.

The kidnap victims were later shot dead and buried in a common grave, discovered by police last month on land belonging to Fidel Castano, an alleged death squad chief.

Leftist politicians and human rights groups have consistently accused elements of the Colombian Armed Forces of turning a blind eye to, or participating in, death squad activities.

A Defense Ministry spokesman Thursday said the investigation should not be automatically interpreted as an indication that the officers were guilty, adding that leftists aimed to foment disorder by accusing the military of involvement in human rights abuses.

SAN SALVADOR (MAY 4) EFE - Salvadoran Supreme Court President Mauricio Gutierrez Thursday repeated a promise that the investigation into the killings last November of six Jesuit priests would be "serious and responsible."

"I repeat the decision of the judiciary to investigate this crime seriously and responsibly, as completely as possible," he told reporters.

Nine Armed Forces members, including a colonel, are being investigated in connection with the murder of the six priests, their housekeeper and her daughter at the University of Central America.

Replying to charges by a group of U.S. congressmen that the investigation has advanced very little in the six months since the murder, Gutierrez said, "This is a case that cannot be rushed, because that would be irresponsible."

"We are not tyrants that we can promise right now to send certain people to jail if there's not the necessary proof against them at the trial," he added.

Church and human rights groups and a former Army colonel say the killings were ordered by top members of the Armed forces, while a group of junior officers has called for a purge of senior officers they say are behind right-wing death squads.

Rights groups say that about half the 75,000 dead in El Salvador's decade-old civil war were civilians killed by death squads linked to the Army and the rightist ruling party.

SANTIAGO (MAY 3) EFE - Chilean President Patricio Aylwin met with former dictator and current Army chief Gen. Augusto Pinochet Thursday, the first time the two have met since Aylwin took office in March.

Pinochet was booed by a crowd of some 100 people when he arrived at the presidential palace. After the 40-minute meeting, the general left by an underground tunnel.

Pinochet had asked Aylwin for a meeting on April 24, just before Aylwin announced the formation of a "Truth and Reconciliation" commission to investigate human rights abuses allegedly committed under the general's rule.

But the president turned down that request, saying he was too busy.

Pinochet, who seized power in a bloody 1973 coup and ruled until this year attended Aylwin's March 11 inauguration.

Human rights groups charge that the security forces tortured and killed thousands of people under Pinochet's rule.

In the months before he handed over power to Aylwin, Pinochet repeatedly expressed vehement opposition to possible prosecutions of officers for the alleged abuses.

Aylwin is scheduled to have lunch with Pinochet and the heads of the other three military branches on Friday.

A Christian Democrat, Aylwin was elected in December after Pinochet lost a bid to extend his rule in a 1988 plebiscite.

NAIROBI (MAY 3) XINHUA - KENYA HAS PUT ITS INFLATION UNDER CONTROL AS A RESULT OF A NUMBER OF MEASURES TAKEN BY THE GOVERNMENT IN THE PAST FEW YEARS.

SPEAKING AT PARLIAMENT ON WEDNESDAY, ASSISTANT MINISTER FOR FINANCE MR. MATHIAS KEAH SAID THAT THE AVERAGE INFLATION RATE FOR ALL INCOME GROUPS IN NAIROBI OVER THE PAST 12 MONTHS FLUCTUATED SLIGHTLY FROM 11.2 PERCENT IN MARCH, 1989, TO 10.6 PERCENT IN MARCH THIS YEAR.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS TAKEN A NUMBER OF MEASURES TO BRING THE INFLATION UNDER CONTROL, THE MINISTER NOTED.

THE FIRST STEP THE GOVERNMENT HAS TAKEN, HE ELABORATED, WAS TO CONTROL THE FISCAL DEFICIT. IT WAS 6.57 PERCENT OF THE COUNTRY'S GROSS DOMESTIC PRODUCT IN THE 1986-1987 FISCAL YEAR AND WAS REDUCED TO 3.87 PERCENT IN THE LAST FISCAL YEAR WHILE THE NEW TARGET IN THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR IS 4.2 PERCENT OF GDP.

HE SAID THE FINANCING OF THE DEFICIT HAS BEEN ON THE INCREASE FROM NON-INFLATIONARY SOURCES THROUGH CONCESSIONARY NON-PROJECT LOANS AND GRANTS.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALSO INCREASED INTEREST RATES TO ENCOURAGE SAVINGS, AND DAMPEN THE DEMAND FOR CREDIT WHICH WOULD EXPAND CON- SUMPTION, HE ADDED.

IT HAS LIBERALIZED IMPORTS TO MAKE MORE GOODS AVAILABLE ON THE LOCAL MARKET, SAID THE MINISTER.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) KYODO - THE UNITED STATES URGED TAIWAN AND SOUTH KOREA ON THURSDAY TO FURTHER LIBERALIZE THEIR FINANCIAL MARKETS, INCLUDING FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES, TO HASTEN ADJUSTMENT IN THEIR ECONOMIES.

GEORGE FOLSOM, CHIEF U.S. DELEGATE TO THE 23RD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK (ADB), SAID TAIWAN ''FACES DIFFICULT DECISIONS'' AS TO POLICIES ON FURTHER INDUSTRIALIZATION OF ITS ECONOMY AND DEVELOPMENT OF ITS RURAL SECTOR.

FOLSOM SAID RECENT REDUCTION IN TAIWAN'S TRADE SURPLUS IS PARTLY DUE TO THE LIBERALIZATION OF ITS EXCHANGE RATE SYSTEM, WHICH HAS BOOSTED ITS CURRENCY, SLOWED EXPORTS AND ENCOURAGED IMPORTS.

''THE ADJUSTMENT PROCESS MUST CONTINUE, HOWEVER, WITH EXCHANGE RATE POLICY ADJUSTMENTS AND FURTHER LIBERALIZATION OF FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATE AND CAPITAL CONTROLS PLAYING AN IMPORTANT ROLE,'' HE TOLD THE THREE-DAY MEETING THAT OPENED HERE WEDNESDAY.

FOLSOM SAID THE DOWNTREND IN SOUTH KOREA'S TRADE SURPLUS WAS ALSO CAUSED BY THE APPRECIATION OF ITS CURRENCY AS WELL AS CONTINUED TRADE LIBERALIZATION, WAGE INCREASES, AND OTHER FACTORS.

HE CALLED SOUTH KOREA'S ADOPTION OF A NEW EXCHANGE RATE SYSTEM LAST MARCH 2 ''A POTENTIALLY IMPORTANT STEP FORWARD.'' THE NEW SYSTEM IS DESIGNED TO BETTER REFLECT MARKET REALITIES.

THE REAL SIGNIFICANCE OF THE NEW SYSTEM, HOWEVER, DEPENDS ON FURTHER LIBERALIZATION OF THE COUNTRY'S COMPREHENSIVE FOREIGN EXCHANGE AND CAPITAL CONTROLS, FOLSOM SAID.

TO STRENGTHEN SOUTH KOREA'S ADJUSTMENT PROCESS, FURTHER TRADE AND FINANCIAL LIBERALIZATION IS NEEDED, HE ADDED.

BANGKOK (MAY 3) KYODO - HUN SEN, PREMIER OF THE VIETNAM-BACKED PHNOM PENH GOVERNMENT, SAID THURSDAY COMMON GROUND HAD BEEN REACHED BETWEEN HIMSELF AND RESISTANCE LEADER PRINCE NORODOM SIHANOUK ON THE ISSUE OF A CEASE-FIRE IN CAMBODIA AND WAS HOPEFUL A CEASE-FIRE AGREEMENT COULD FOLLOW SOON.

HUN SEN WAS SPEAKING EARLY THURSDAY MORNING IN PATTAYA AFTER A TWO-DAY TALK WITH THAI DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER GEN. CHAVALIT YONGCHAIYUTH CONCERNING A FRESH ROUND OF NEGOTIATIONS WITH SIHANOUK SCHEDULED FOR EARLY JUNE IN TOKYO.

HE SAID SIHANOUK, IN THE LATEST NINE-POINT PEACE PROPOSAL, MADE A SIGNIFICANT COMPROMISE BY CALLING FOR A MILITARY FREEZE AT THE CEASEFIRE, INSTEAD OF AN UNREALISTIC DECREASE OF FORCES TO 10,000 TROOPS FOR EACH FACTION.

''SO, NOW THE PRINCE AND I HAVE COMMON GROUND ON THE CEASEFIRE ISSUE, THAT IS IT IS OF THE UTMOST URGENCY AND SHOULD BE REALIZED FIRST, AND BE FOLLOWED BY AN ARMS MORATORIUM AND POLITICAL NEGOTIATIONS,'' HUN SEN WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

HE SAID HE HOPED THE ADVANCE TEAM FROM HIS GOVERNMENT AND FROM PRINCE SIHANOUK'S SIDE, WHICH WILL MEET IN BANGKOK SOON AND DISCUSS THE AGENDA OF THE SIHANOUK-HUN SEN SUMMIT IN TOKYO, WOULD BE SATISFACTORY AND MAKE THE TOKYO MEETING A SUCCESS.

HOWEVER, THE PHNOM PENH LEADER WAS NEGATIVE TOWARD ANOTHER SIHANOUK DEMAND NAMELY THE PRESENCE OF A UNITED NATIONS PEACE KEEPING FORCE INSIDE CAMBODIA DURING THE RECONCILIATION PERIOD.

''I AGREE TO AN INTERIM INTERNATIONAL CONTROL MECHANISM, COMPRISING BOTH MILITARY AND CIVILIAN PERSONNEL WHICH COULD BE PROVIDED BY THE U.N., TO SUPERVISE AND VERIFY ALL OF THE AGREEMENTS REACHED AND TO PREPARE FOR GENERAL ELECTIONS,'' HUN SEN SAID. BUT HE ADDED, ''WHY THEN SHOULD WE NEED THE PRESENCE OF AN INTERNATIONAL PEACE-KEEPING FORCE?''

BUT THE PHNOM PENH LEADER ALSO SAID THAT ''EVERYTHING COULD BE NEGOTIATED.''

MANILA (MAY) 3 KYODO - A JAPANESE TOURIST WAS ROBBED OF A BAG CONTAINING OVER 2 MILLION YEN PLACED ON AN X-RAY MACHINE FOR LUGGAGE INSPECTION AT MANILA INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT ON THURSDAY, AIRPORT SECURITY OFFICIALS SAID.

THE OFFICIALS SAID YOSHITO ISHIKURA LOST 2 MILLION YEN, 1,900 DOLLARS, AND 300 HONG KONG DOLLARS WHEN LEAVING MANILA FOR BANGKOK WITH FIVE FILIPINO COMPANIONS.

ISHIKURA WAS BODY CHECKED BY AIRPORT SECURITY AND WAS WAITING FOR HIS BLACK LEATHER BAG WHICH HE HAD PLACED ON THE X-RAY MACHINE'S CONVEYER BELT BUT THE BAG FAILED TO APPEAR. AN HOUR LATER A JANITOR FOUND THE BAG IN ONE OF THE AIRPORT'S TOILET BOWLS.

ISHIKAWA'S CREDIT CARD AND AIRLINE TICKET WERE STILL INSIDE THE BAG BUT THE CASH WAS GONE.

THE JANITOR SAID HE SAW A MAN IN BARONG TAGALOG, THE COUNTRY'S FORMAL ATTIRE, ENTERING THE TOILET MOMENTS BEFORE FINDING THE MISSING BAG.

AIRPORT SECURITY OFFICIALS ASSURED KYODO NEWS SERVICE THAT THERE IS NO HOLE IN THE X-RAY CONVEYER BELT OR INSIDE THE MACHINE ITSELF INTO WHICH THE BAG COULD HAVE FALLEN.

BANGKOK (MAY 3) KYODO - THAI PRIME MINISTER CHATICHAI CHOONHAVAN, IN A MEETING WITH JAPAN'S DEFENSE AGENCY CHIEF YOZO ISHIKAWA, SAID THURSDAY HE WOULD LIKE TO SEE A JOINT THAI-JAPANESE NAVAL EXERCISE IN THE FUTURE.

''JAPAN'S MARITIME SELF-DEFENSE FORCE (MSDF) HAS ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY AND I WONDER IF IT IS POSSIBLE FOR THAILAND'S NAVY AND THE MSDF TO CONDUCT A JOINT EXERCISE,'' HE WAS QUOTED AS TELLING ISHIKAWA IN THE MEETING.

CHATICHAI MADE THE SUGGESTION IN LINE WITH BILATERAL RELATIONS IN THE FIELD OF NATIONAL DEFENSE, WHICH HE SAID ARE PROCEEDING VERY SMOOTHLY, ACCORDING TO JAPANESE OFFICIALS.

THE PRIME MINISTER SPECIFICALLY REFERRED TO PERSONNEL EXCHANGES BETWEEN OFFICIALS OF JAPAN'S DEFENSE AGENCY AND ARMED FORCES OF HIS COUNTRY.

IN RESPONSE TO THE SUGGESTION, ISHIKAWA, STATE MINISTER FOR DEFENSE, SAID HE WILL HAVE AGENCY EXPERTS STUDY THE MATTER.

A THAI SPOKESMAN, MEANWHILE, QUOTED ISHIKAWA AS TELLING CHATICHAI, ''THERE ARE LIMITATIONS ON THE JAPANESE SIDE (TO ACCEPTING THE THAI SUGGESTION).''

ISHIKAWA ADDED, HOWEVER, JAPAN AND THAILAND CAN CONDUCT ''JOINT (MILITARY) TRAINING,'' ACCORDING TO THE THAI SPOKESMAN.

JAPAN'S POSTWAR CONSTITUTION DOES NOT ALLOW SELF-DEFENSE FORCES TO HAVE SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE DEFENSE OF OTHER COUNTRIES.

ISHIKAWA ARRIVED IN BANGKOK WEDNESDAY AFTER A TRIP TO AUSTRALIA AND WILL LEAVE FOR MALAYSIA FRIDAY TO CONCLUDE HIS FIVE-DAY TOUR OF THE THREE COUNTRIES, THE FIRST BY JAPAN'S TOP DEFENSE POLICY MAKER.

NEW DELHI (MAY 3) KYODO - JAPANESE FINANCE MINISTER RYUTARO HASHIMOTO TOLD THE HEAD OF CHINA'S CENTRAL BANK ON THURSDAY THAT HE IS POSITIVE TOWARD UNFREEZING PART OF AN 810 BILLION YEN AID PACKAGE TO CHINA, SUSPENDED SINCE BEIJING'S CRACKDOWN ON THE PRO-DEMOCRACY MOVEMENT LAST JUNE, JAPANESE OFFICIALS SAID.

HASHIMOTO MADE THE REMARKS AT A MEETING WITH LI GUIXIAN, GOVERNOR OF THE PEOPLE'S BANK OF CHINA, THEY SAID. BOTH WERE IN THE INDIAN CAPITAL TO ATTEND THE 23RD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK (ADB).

THE OFFICIALS SAID HASHIMOTO TOLD LI THAT HE FAVORS REOPENING THE UNTIED PORTIONS OF JAPAN'S LOAN PACKAGE TO CHINA, EARMARKED FOR 1990-95, TO HELP IMPROVE THE LIVELIHOOD OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE.

BUT HE HINTED THAT HIS VIEW ON THE ISSUE IS MORE LIBERAL THAN THAT HELD BY OTHER JAPANESE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, SAYING THAT THETOKYO GOVERNMENT IS NOT READY TO GO FURTHER.

THE OFFICIALS SAID LI, WHILE APPRECIATING HASHIMOTO'S APPEAL TO ADB GOVERNORS TO NORMALIZE ECONOMIC TIES WITH CHINA, REPEATED CHINA'S POSITION THAT JAPAN SHOULD RELEASE THE FUNDS, FIRST PROMISED BY THEN PRIME MINISTER NOBORU TAKESHITA IN 1988.

LI ALSO ASKED FOR JAPANESE SUPPORT TO CONVINCE INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS SUCH AS THE WORLD BANK AND THE ADB TO UNFREEZE DEVELOPMENT FUNDS COMMITTED TO CHINA, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

HASHIMOTO TOLD LI ANY MOVE TOWARD A RESUMPTION OF OFFICIAL CREDITS TO CHINA FROM THE WEST WOULD REQUIRE COORDINATION AMONG THE GROUP OF SEVEN (G-7) INDUSTRIAL NATIONS.

HASHIMOTO SAID CHINA SHOULD IMPROVE RELATIONS WITH MAJOR WESTERN POWERS, ESPECIALLY THOSE IN EUROPE, IF IT WANTS WESTERN DEVELOPMENT FUNDS RELEASED.

COLOMBO (MAY 3) KYODO - JAPANESE PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU ON THURSDAY PLEDGED JAPAN'S SUPPORT FOR SRI LANKA'S EFFORT TO BUILD UP ITS INDUSTRIAL INFRASTRUCTURE.

KAIFU, IN A TWO-HOUR MEETING WITH SRI LANKAN PRESIDENT RANASINGHE PREMADASA, ALSO MADE A 230,000 DOLLAR COMMITMENT TO HELP SRI LANKA RESTORE ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITES AT KANDY ON THE CENTRAL HIGHLANDS OF THE COUNTRY, THE ANCIENT CAPITAL OF THE SINHALESE DYNASTY, A JAPANESE SPOKESMAN SAID.

KAIFU AND PREMADASA MET SHORTLY AFTER KAIFU ARRIVED IN COLOMBO FROM ISLAMABAD FOR AN 18-HOUR VISIT, THE FOURTH LEG OF A NINE-DAY TOUR THROUGH FOUR SOUTH ASIAN NATIONS AND INDONESIA.

KAIFU PROMISED TO SEND A FACT-FINDING MISSION TO SRI LANKA, POSSIBLY WITHIN THIS YEAR, TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT THE SRI LANKAN INDUSTRIALIZATION PROJECT.

PREMADASA ALSO URGED JAPAN TO PROVIDE FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO COMBAT POVERTY IN SRI LANKA AND KAIFU PROMISED TO LOOK INTO THE MATTER, JAPANESE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE OFFICIALS SAID THE TWO LEADERS ALSO WELCOMED THE DEMOCRATIZATION PROCESS IN NEPAL AND EXPRESSED THEIR SUPPORT FOR A PEACEFUL SOLUTION TO THE KASHMIR DISPUTE BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN.

TOUCHING ON SRI LANKA'S ETHNIC CONFLICT, KAIFU SAID THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN WORRIED ABOUT THE STRIFE BETWEEN TAMILS AND SINHALESE IN THE COUNTRY. BUT HE ALSO REMINDED PREMADASA ABOUT INTERNATIONAL CRITICISM OF ALLEGED HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS IN THE GOVERNMENT CRACKDOWN AGAINST SINHALESE EXTREMISTS.

PREMADESA PRESENTED AN ICEBOX CONTAINING FOUR RETINAS AS A GIFT TO JAPAN AT THE END OF THE MEETING. SRI LANKA IS ONE OF THE WORLD'S LARGEST DONORS OF HUMAN RETINAS. JAPAN HAS SO FAR RECEIVED 2,800 RETINAS FROM SRI LANKA.

KAIFU, ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE SACHIYO, IS THE FIRST JAPANESE PREMIER TO VISIT THE COUNTRY IN MORE THAN THREE DECADES.

KAIFU WAS MET BY SRI LANKAN PRIME MINISTER DINGIRI BANDA WITJETUNGE AT THE COLOMBO AIRPORT IN A RED-CARPET WELCOMING CEREMONY FEATURING A HONOR GUARD REVIEW AND A 19-GUN SALUTE.

ABOUT 150 WOMEN IN NATIONAL COSTUME WELCOMED THE JAPANESE PREMIER WITH A TRADITIONAL KANDY DANCE.

HE WILL TRAVEL ON TO INDONESIA FRIDAY MORNING, THE LAST STOP IN A TRIP THAT HAS ALSO TAKEN HIM TO INDIA, BANGLADESH AND PAKISTAN.

BEFORE LEAVING ISLAMABAD, KAIFU BID FAREWELL TO PAKISTANI PRIME MINISTER BENAZIR BHUTTO AT THE AIRPORT IN A WARM SEND-OFF CEREMONY ALSO ATTENDED BY BHUTTO'S SPOUSE, ASIF ALI ZARDARI, NATIONAL ASSEMBLY SPEAKER MERAJ KHALI, AND OTHER DIGNITARIES.

KAIFU AND HIS WIFE HAD A PRIVATE BREAKFAST WITH BHUTTO AND HER HUSBAND BEFORE SETTING OUT FOR ISLAMABAD INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.

ON HIS WAY TO THE AIRPORT KAIFU TOOK TIME OUT TO MARK HIS VISIT, THE FIRST BY A JAPANESE PREMIER IN SIX YEARS, BY PLANTING AN OLIVE SAPLING ON THE SHAKRAPARIAN HILL OVERLOOKING THE PAKISTANI CAPITAL. MRS. KAIFU LENT A HELPING HAND IN PLANTING THE SAPLING, AND BHUTTO REMARKED THAT SHE HOPES THE TREE WILL GROW LIKE THE GROWING FRIENDSHIP BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

EAST AURORA, NY (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Moog Inc. (AMEX: MOG.A, MOG.B) today announced net earnings for the second fiscal quarter of $1.8 million or $.23 per share, up from $1.1 million or $.14 per share in the same quarter a year ago. Net earnings for the first six months were $3.4 million or $.43 per share which compares with $705,000 or $.09 per share for the same period last year.

"Our earnings continue to improve," Robert T. Brady, president, said. "We returned to profitability last year at this time and we've been profitable in every quarter since."

Net sales for the quarter were $78.7 million, up 8 percent from $73.0 million in the same quarter a year ago. For the year to date, net sales of $152 million compared to $137 million a year ago.

Backlog of orders at March 31, 1990, was $237 million compared with $239 million at the end of the previous quarter and $243 million of a year ago. Brady said, "Our backlog is dominated by aerospace orders which come in large increments and at irregular intervals. Despite the slight backlog decline, we expect sales to be higher in the coming 12 months."

Operating profit for the Domestic Controls segment increased to $5.8 million, almost double last year's second quarter operating profit. Sales for the segment were $53.7 million, up from $52.6 million last year.

The substantial improvement in operating profit for the Domestic Controls segment was achieved despite a $1.8 million pre-tax charge for inventory obsolescence. "Current defense budget proposals which recommend the premature curtailment of a number of programs caused us to take a hard look at our inventories," Brady said. "Also, cost estimates increased on two development programs, but at a slower rate than in previous quarters."

Brady said that he remains optimistic for further profit improvement throughout the year.

Moog Inc. designs, manufactures and markets high-performance control components and systems for a wide range of defense, aerospace and industrial applications.

HOUSTON (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Cabot Oil & Gas Corporation (NYSE: COG) announced earnings for the first time since its initial public offering on Feb. 8, 1990. The company reported second quarter (March 31, 1990) net income of $7.8 million. Net income available to all common stockholders was $7.2 million or 35 cents per share. Last year's net income excluding non-recurring items consisting of profits associated with properties sold in 1989, a favorable 1984 pricing arrangement which expired in 1989, and unusual gas contract settlements in 1989, was $7.8 million. Including these non-recurring items resulted in reported net income of $10.4 million.

Earnings for the company's first six months were $13.6 million. Net income available to all common stockholders was $13.0 million, or 63 cents per share. Excluding the impact of the non-recurring items, earnings for the same period last year were $11.7 million. Reported earnings including non-recurring items were $20.7 million.

After adjusting for 1989 sales associated with sold, exchanged and acquired properties, wellhead volumes of natural gas sold were the same as last year in the second quarter and up 5 percent for the first six months. Total natural gas volumes sold, including purchased gas sold, were down 2 percent in the second quarter and up 10 percent for the first six months.

Average natural gas market prices realized in the second quarter were 3 cents per Mcf, or 1 percent, below last year and up 2 cents per Mcf, or 1 percent, for the first six months.

Net income included interest earned on balances due from Cabot Corporation (NYSE: CBT) offset by interest expense of $1.1 million on external debt placed by the company on Jan. 15, 1990.

Cash and cash equivalents increased $10.9 million for the six months ended March 31, 1990. Operations provided $20.7 million. The company used $16.5 million for investment activities and increased cash by $6.7 million through financing activities.

Cabot Oil & Gas Corporation is a producer of natural gas in the Appalachian and Anadarko Basins. The company is headquartered in Houston, Texas; with regional offices in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Charleston, W.V.; and Oklahoma City, Okla.

TORRANCE, CA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Ashton-Tate Corp. (NASDAQ: TATE) today announced the availability of the beta version of dBASE IV for VAX VMS systems. This product is the result of joint development and marketing efforts announced by Ashton-Tate and Digital Equipment Corp. in October, 1988. The beta software will be demonstrated in Digital's booth number 13 at DECUS, May 7-11, 1990 at the New Orleans Convention Center.

dBASE IV for VAX VMS systems is a character-based version of Ashton-Tate's dBASE IV, an integrated application development language and 4GL (4th generation language) programming and productivity tool, designed for use on Digital's VAX VMS operating system.

The VAX VMS version of dBASE IV maintains the same look and feel as the DOS version to leverage current dBASE users' product knowledge.

dBASE IV for VAX VMS systems includes the capabilities of the DOS-based dBASE IV and dBASE IV Developer's Edition and can operate either as a self-contained data management system or as a front-end client for any VAX Rdb/VMS server through Digital's SQL Services component of Network Applications Support (NAS). The Rdb server can be located either on the same host as dBASE IV or remotely through DECnet connection. The product will be a key element in Digital's portfolio of Business Intelligence applications that enable users to access, analyze and share business information and insight throughout the organization.

dBASE IV for VAX VMS systems includes a collection of sophisticated 4GL developer tools such as a code generator, template language, integrated debugger and program editor, and interactive tools for designing forms, reports, labels, menus, quick applications and Query by Example (QBE).

The product is upwardly compatible with all dBASE products running on the MS DOS operating system and offers a high level of portability for applications. This means that data, index and program files created with a DOS version of dBASE IV can be used on VAX systems.

dBASE IV for VAX VMS systems also brings the full range of sophisticated VAX VMS features to dBASE applications including extensive networking capabilities, extended data storage, data sharing, more memory, higher performance and throughput and greater security.

Based in Torrance, Ashton-Tate Corp. develops and markets microcomputer business applications and advanced connectivity software. The company's major product categories include database management systems, word processing, integrated decision support, spreadsheets, graphics and software utilities.

ARMONK, NY (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - MBIA Inc. (NYSE: MBI), holding company for Municipal Bond Investors Assurance Corporation (MBIA Corporation), a leading municipal bond insurer, today reported that first quarter net income increased 23 percent to $31.3 million or $.84 per share, compared with net income of $25.5 million or $.68 per share in the first quarter of 1989. Book value increased $.74 to $21.82 per share during the quarter.

MBIA again led the municipal new issue market for the first quarter, insuring $2.4 billion of par value, the same as last year. Based on data from The Bond Buyer, MBIA's share of the insured market represented 38 percent of the industry total. According to The Bond Buyer, first quarter 1990 total new issue municipal volume decreased 7 percent to $23.6 billion of par value. The insured portion rose slightly to 27 percent from last year's 26 percent.

MBIA's gross premiums written were $43.0 million for the first quarter, up from $35.7 million a year ago. This year's gross premiums written include $1.5 million of installment premiums on BIG policies issued prior to the acquisition.

Premiums earned were $26.6 million, up 23 percent from $21.6 million in the comparable 1989 period. This substantial growth includes the impact on earned premium from BIG's unearned premium reserve. Premiums earned include $3.5 million from refundings in the 1990 quarter compared with $4.7 million in the prior year's quarter. Premiums earned from refundings in both years include amounts related to refunded issues of prior years.

Net investment income for the quarter was $27.1 million, up 41 percent from a year ago, resulting from the investment portfolio acquired in the BIG transaction and the increase in investments from operating cash flow. At March 31, 1990, MBIA's aggregate investment portfolio was over $1.5 billion and consisted mainly of intermediate-term bonds.

Revenues for the first quarter of 1990 were $54.7 million, 33 percent higher than a year ago. Total revenues are the sum of premiums earned and investment and other income.

MBIA Inc., through its wholly owned subsidiary, MBIA Corporation, is a leading insurer of municipal bonds, including new issues and bonds traded in the secondary market. MBIA is rated Triple-A by Moody's Investors Service, Inc., and Standard & Poor's Corporation and municipal bonds insured by MBIA receive these ratings.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, CA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - A U.S. Air Force F-15E fighter powered by two high-performance Pratt & Whitney F100-PW-229 engines flew at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., for the first time yesterday. The new 29,000-pound thrust engines are the most powerful Pratt & Whitney engines to power a McDonnell Douglas F-15.

"This is a significant event for the PW-229 engine," said Ed Ford, P&W's vice president for F100 programs. Last month, an Air Force F-16 successfully flew with the first production-configured PW-229 and today two PW-229s powered an F-15 for the first time. During both flights the engines performed flawlessly and the pilots reported the thrust was very impressive.

"We have taken the F100-PW-220, the safest, most reliable and most durable fighter engine ever operated by the Air Force, and upgraded it into the PW-229 configuration which offers performance to keep the F-15 and F-16 highly competitive well into the next century. We are pleased to now have the PW-229 flying in both the F-15 and F-16," Ford said.

The PW-229 offers added thrust with the lightest weight in its thrust class to greatly improve F-15 performance. During initial flight tests last year, with one PW-229 engine and one PW-220 engine installed, the test aircraft came within seconds of beating the F-15's official time-to-climb record.

The aircraft and engines will continue flight testing at the Edwards Air Force Base flight test center until mid-1990. Other PW-229 engines will then undergo a 12- to 18-month field service evaluation in both the F-15 and F-16 at Nellis AFB, Nevada, before entering operational service with Tactical Air Command.

DEARBORN, MI (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) earned $506 million, or $1.10 per share, in the first quarter of 1990, Chairman Harold A. Poling and President Philip E. Benton Jr. said today. Earnings were up from the previous two quarters but down from last year's record first-quarter earnings of $1.64 billion, or $3.44 per share. Lower vehicle production was the primary reason for the earnings decline from a year ago.

The company's worldwide sales and revenues were $23.6 billion, down $2.3 billion from the first quarter of 1989. Factory unit sales were 1,443,000, down 297,000 units, or 17 percent.

Ford's worldwide automotive operations earned $315 million in the first quarter, down $1.2 billion compared with a year ago, on sales of $19.9 billion. In the U.S., first-quarter automotive earnings were $160 million, down $640 million from a year ago, caused largely by a 26-percent reduction in vehicle production and higher marketing costs.

Ford's U.S. car-market share in the first quarter was 21.8 percent, down 5/10 of a point from the 1989 full-year market share. Ford's U.S. truck share, at 28.8 percent, was equal to 1989. Ford Division retained truck sales leadership, and the F-Series pickup continued to be the best-selling vehicle in the U.S.

Outside the U.S., automotive profits were $155 million, down $541 million from a year ago. Lower profits resulted primarily from labor disruptions in Britain and government economic reform actions in Brazil which had a negative effect on Autolatina (Ford's joint venture with Volkswagen in Brazil and Argentina). Labor disruptions in Europe and continuation of the present economic situation in Brazil could continue to have a negative effect on Ford's future earnings.

The company's first-quarter earnings by the Financial Services Group were $191 million, up $50 million from a year ago, primarily reflecting higher net interest margins. Financial Services activities contributed 42 cents per share to the company's first-quarter earnings.

Stockholders' equity was $22.9 billion, or $48.43 per share, at the end of the first quarter. Cash and marketable securities of the company's automotive operations were $3.9 billion at March 31, compared with $5.7 billion at year-end 1989. Capital spending for the first quarter was $1.6 billion.

MALVERN, PA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Dr. Felix Zandman, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of Vishay Intertechnology Inc. (NYSE: VSH), announced today that Vishay is considering the possible acquisition of Crystalate Holdings plc.

This may or may not result in an offer being made by Vishay for Cystalate. Vishay intends to file notification with the U.S. Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Department of Justice pursuant to the U.S. Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvement Act for permission to commence the possible offer.

In order to limit the period of uncertainty over Vishay's intentions, Vishay will decide whether or not it will make the offer on or before May 28, 1990, being one week following the date by which Crystalate must, under the timetable of the City Code on Take-overs and Mergers (U.K.), release all material information in its defense of the current unsolicited offer from TTL Group plc.

Crystalate, based in the U.K., is a manufacturer of a wide range of fixed and variable resistive products, and custom automotive sensors, and provides conventional and surface mount electronic component contract assembly service. Crystalate is the parent company of Welwyn Electric (U.K.) and IRC and RCL/Shallcross (U.S.). Sales for the year ended Sept. 30, 1989, were approximately $180 million. Vishay maintains a commercial relationship with Crystalate by supplying Crystalate with resistor chips and strain gages for distribution and resale.

Vishay is a U.S. public company based in Pennsylvania with sales of over $400 million in 1989. The company's shares of common stock are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. The value of Vishay's capital stock is currently approximately $200 million.

BEDFORD HEIGHTS, OH (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Waxman Industries, Inc., (NYSE: WAX), a leading supplier to the growing home repair and remodeling market throughout the United States and Canada, today reported results for the third quarter and nine months ended March 31, 1990.

The results, which include the operations of Ideal Plumbing Group, Inc. of Canada, acquired May 1, 1989, marked the 31st consecutive period of year-to-year increases in quarterly sales and operating income.

Sales for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 reached $108,313,000, a 122 percent increase over last year's third quarter sales of $48,891,000. Operating income rose 67 percent to $8,743,000, compared with $5,239,000 a year ago. However, largely as a consequence of Ideal's seasonally lower sales and earnings combined with higher interest expense associated with the acquisition, net income for the 1990 quarter was $1,465,000, or $.15 per share, versus $1,847,000, or $.20 per share, in the year-ago period. Current per share computations are based on approximately 9.9 million

For the nine month period, sales climbed 130 percent to a record $337,785,000 from $146,870,000 in the prior fiscal year. Operating income increased to a new high of $27,629,000, 97 percent above last year's $14,059,000. Net income before an extraordinary charge rose 5 percent to a new record of $5,410,000, or $.57 per share, from $5,141,000, or $.56 per share, in 1989. The extraordinary charge, resulting from the early repayment of debt during the second quarter, totaled $320,000, equal to $.03 per share. Net income after the extraordinary charge was $5,090,000, or $.54 per share, versus $5,141,000, or $0.56 per share, recorded last year.

Waxman Industries, Inc. is a leading supplier to the growing home repair and remodeling market in the United States and Canada. In the U.S., the Company's plumbing, electrical and hardware products are sold primarily to home improvement centers, warehouse home centers, mass merchandisers, hardware stores, lumber yards, wholesalers and, through mail-order catalogs, to over 25,000 independent retailers, contractors and locksmiths. The Company assembles, packages and markets many of these products under its proprietary trade names. In Canada, the Company is one of the largest suppliers of plumbing and heating products, serving over 5,000 customers across Canada, including repair and remodeling contractors residential and commercial construction contractors and specialty retailers.

DEARBORN, MI (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Credit Company's net income for the first quarter of 1990 was $115.9 million, up $14.3 million or 14 percent from the first quarter of 1989, Chairman William E. Odom announced today. Net income from financing activities was $87 million, up 27 percent.

The increase in financing income reflected lower credit losses and improved interest margins, offset partly by reduced earnings from lower receivable levels. The cost of borrowings in the United States was 8.9 percent in the first quarter of 1990, down from 9.2 percent in the first quarter last year.

"We are encouraged by these results," Odom said. "With our commitment to total quality excellence, and our efforts to provide innovative products and services, we believe we are positioned to meet the challenges of a marketplace that continues to be intensely competitive."

During the first quarter, Ford Credit provided U.S. retail customers with financing for 337,000 new and used vehicles and financed 29 percent of all new cars and trucks sold by Ford Motor Company dealers in the U.S. Ford Credit provided wholesale financing for 67 percent of Ford Motor Company factory sales to U.S. car and truck dealers.

At March 31, 1990, Ford Credit's assets totaled $54.7 billion, $5.3 billion lower than a year ago, reflecting the sale of retail receivables during the fourth quarter of 1989.

Ford Credit provides vehicle financing for about 5 million retail automotive customers and 8,500 Ford, Lincoln-Mercury, Ford Truck, Ford New Holland, and affiliated dealers in the United States, Canada and Australia. It also coordinates the activities of additional financing affiliates of Ford Motor Company in 19 countries. Ford Credit and its subsidiaries also provide direct consumer loans, finance manufactured homes, and manage the insurance businesses of The American Road Insurance Company.

Ford Credit, a wholly owned subsidiary of Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F), is part of the Ford Financial Services Group.

NEW BRITAIN, CT (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Moore Medical Corp. (AMEX: MMD), a national wholesale distributor of brand name and generic pharmaceuticals and medical and surgical supplies, today reported results for the first quarter of 1990. Record sales of $76,478,000 were 18 percent greater than the first quarter a year ago. Net income was $168,000 (6 cents per share) for the quarter compared with a loss in the 1989 quarter, which resulted from an unusual charge to earnings for a litigation settlement.

Mark E. Karp, president and chief operating officer, noted "This was our fifth consecutive quarter of record sales, which have been strong in all product categories and all geographic regions. Gross profit margins have improved from the low levels in the fourth quarter of last year, but were below the 1989 first quarter which benefited from more advantageous forward buying opportunities.

PITTSBURGH (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Copperweld Corp. (NYSE: COS) today announced first quarter 1990 sales and income figures.

Net sales of $76.8 million compare to first quarter 1989 net sales of $77.5 million.

Net income for 1990's first quarter was $4.5 million or $.51 per share on a primary basis vs. 1989's first quarter net income of $7.7 million or $.80 per share.

The corporation attributed the lower year-to-year first quarter results to higher depreciation charges and interest expense, pre-startup costs for its new Birmingham Tube Division and its Ohio Steel Tube Division plant expansion, premium expenses related to prepayment of the corporation's private placement debt which was retired at the end of the quarter, and certain one-time benefits included in 1989's first quarter.

DETROIT (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - General Motors Corporation (NYSE: GM) earned net income of $710 million on 1990 first-quarter sales and revenues totaling $30.1 billion, Chairman Roger B. Smith and President Robert C. Stempel said today. In the first quarter of 1989, General Motors reported record sales and revenues of $33.2 billion and net income of $1,553 million, which was GM's highest quarterly profit during the 1985-89 period.

Earnings attributable to the $1-2/3 par value common stock during the first quarter of 1990 amounted to $619 million, or $1.02 per share. Reported earnings in the 1989 first quarter were equivalent to $1,443 million or $2.37 per share.

EDS reported record first-quarter earnings of $110 million reflecting continued revenue and earnings growth in non-GM business. First-quarter earnings attributable to Class E common stock rose to a record $0.46 per share, up from $0.41 per share in the first quarter of 1989. Since EDS was acquired in October 1984, the GM subsidiary has improved its first-quarter earnings performance for five consecutive years.

GMHE reported first-quarter profits of $183 million. Earnings attributable to Class H common stock were $0.46 per share, compared to $0.51 per share in the year-ago first quarter. The change in Class H earnings is primarily the result of lower vehicle production in GM's North American Automotive Operations and reduced defense spending, which were partially offset by ongoing cost reduction efforts and the continuing growth of electronic components in motor vehicles.

GMAC and its subsidiaries reported first-quarter earnings of $336 million, compared to $356 million earned in 1989. Earnings were down slightly due to lower wholesale financing volume, while the effect of non-recurring items in both quarters virtually offset.

For the 1990 first quarter, worldwide factory sales of vehicles to GM dealers totaled 1,818,000 units -- down 13.7 percent from the same period in 1989. In the quarter, GM earnings were adversely affected by reduced unit volume and higher selling expense.

GM dealers in the U.S. sold 1,242,366 cars and trucks in the 1990 first quarter -- up 1.4 percent from the year-ago level of 1,224,900. During the period, total industry sales were down compared to the first quarter of 1989. GM overseas sales were a record in the 1990 first quarter with retail sales of 618,000 cars and trucks -- 3.4 percent above the 597,500 vehicles sold in the first quarter of 1989. The continuing strong overseas sales performance was led by record quarterly sales in Europe for total vehicles and for cars.

DANBURY, CT (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - First Brands Corporation (NYSE: FBR) announced today results for the third quarter and for the nine months ended March 31, 1990.

For the third quarter, revenues were $221,334,000 versus $267,465,000 recorded in the third quarter last year. Last year's third quarter sales included $20,700,000 from the company's European Home Products business which was sold at the end of March 1989. Excluding these European sales for comparative purposes, fiscal 1990 third quarter sales were down $25,431,000 or 10 percent from the same quarter least year due to unexpected softness in antifreeze sales volume and prices. Sales from the company's remaining businesses, plastic wrap and bags and other automotive products were performing well and in line with expectations.

Income before extraordinary items was $3,515,000 or 16 cents per share as compared with $693,000 or 3 cents per share earned a year ago excluding the gain on the sale of the European business. Income, including the above mentioned gain, was $16,226,000 or 81 cents per share for the third quarter in 1989.

Net income for the third quarter was $2,723,000 or 12 cents per share versus $16,089,000 or 80 cents per share last year; this year's net income included an extraordinary charge of $792,000 or 4 cents per share resulting from the premium paid and the write-off of unamortized issuance costs related to repurchased debt; last year's net income included an extraordinary charge of $137,000 resulting from an adjustment to the benefit recorded for the utilization of a tax loss carryforward.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Alexander & Alexander Services Inc. (A&A) (NYSE: AAL) announced early today that, after the release of its first-quarter earnings yesterday, a Circuit Court jury for Baltimore City returned verdicts against A&A Inc., its wholly owned subsidiary.

The case arose out of a breach of contract dispute with a Baltimore insurance broker over approximately $250,000 of commissions.

The jury held that the plaintiff was entitled to the recovery of the $250,000 commissions. The jury also awarded the plaintiff punitive damages of $40 million.

A&A Inc.'s Baltimore trial counsel, William W. Cahill Jr. of the Baltimore law firm Weinberg and Green, said he was outraged at the punitive damage award.

He expressed confidence that the trial court and, if necessary, the appellate courts would render appropriate relief.

Cahill indicated that post-trial motions would be filed within 10 days, with a request for the earliest possible hearing date.

A&A management further reported that, in light of the current status of the case, it is unable to determine what, if any, financial impact this verdict might have on A&A. However, the company does not believe that the final outcome of this litigation will have a material adverse impact on its financial condition.

A&A Services Inc. is a global insurance brokerage, risk management and human resource management consulting company serving clients in more than 70 countries. The company had 1989 revenues of $1.25 billion.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Woolworth Corporation (NYSE: Z) reported that domestic sales for the four weeks ended April 28 rose 21.1 percent to $421 million from $348 million in the comparable year-earlier period. Total sales for the four-week period increased 19.4 percent to $727 million from $609 million, and foreign sales, expressed in U.S. dollars, rose 17.1 percent. If foreign exchange rates had remained constant, foreign sales would have increased 11.8 percent and total sales would have increased 17.4 percent. Domestic comparable store sales for the four-week period rose 18.2 percent.

For the cumulative thirteen weeks ended April 28, domestic sales rose 9.7 percent to $1,228 million from $1,119 million in the corresponding year-earlier period. Total sales increased 11.0 percent to $2,083 million from $1,876 million, and foreign sales, expressed in U.S. dollars, rose 13.0 percent. If foreign exchange rates had remained constant, foreign sales would have increased 8.6 percent and total sales would have increased 9.4 percent. Domestic comparable store sales for the thirteen-week period rose 7.0 percent.

Harold E. Sells, chairman and chief executive officer, stated, "Because the Easter selling season occurred in April this year, in contrast to 1989 when it was in March, the two months should be viewed as a single reporting period in making meaningful year-to-year sales comparisons. For the two-month period ended April 28, total domestic sales increased 8.3 percent; domestic comparable store sales rose 5.4 percent; foreign sales, expressed in U.S. dollars, rose 12.3 percent; and total sales for the two-month period registered a 9.9 percent gain from the comparable year-earlier period."

BUFFALO, NY (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Pratt & Lambert, Inc. (AMEX: PM), today announced first quarter net sales of $59,434,000, virtually the same as $59,419,000 reported in 1989. Net income for the period declined to $695,000 from $1,349,000 a year ago, and earnings per share were 12 cents, vs. 22 cents in the first quarter of 1989.

Addressing the paint, coatings and adhesives company's 105th annual meeting of shareholders, R.D. Stevens Jr., chairman, said that the earnings comparison between the two periods reflected last year's record operating results and the current quarter's below-average performance. "A well-received paint promotion in the final months of 1989 detracted from shipments in the first quarter this year, also accounting for a portion of the earnings decline," Stevens said.

Commenting further on the quarter's outcome, Pratt & Lambert's president, J.J. Castiglia, said that the recent relocation of its Miracle Adhesives division from Bellmore, Long Island, to Buffalo represented a significant one-time cost incurred early this year. "The transfer will yield meaningful long-term savings and provide a more sharply focused approach to the market for construction related adhesives," Castiglia noted.

The company's results were also influenced by a product-mix change at its Pierce & Stevens division, where the conversion to environmentally compliant paper coatings entailed initially lower margins than those of the products replaced. The division's performance was also affected by weak demand in the recreational vehicle industry and the continuing decline in domestic footwear production.

Castiglia said that the company's Industrial Coatings division had an excellent quarter and that its Southern and United divisions' results were generally acceptable.

"Typically, first quarter operations in our seasonal industry are not a reliable benchmark for the future and despite performance in the January-March period, we have not altered our view that 1990 will be a satisfactory year," Castiglia added.

DALLAS (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Sales of JCPenney stores and catalog for the four weeks ended April 28, 1990 amounted to $1,040 million as against $1,057 million for the comparable 1989 period, which had one additional shopping day. The decline amounted to $17 million or 1.7 percent. On a comparative store basis, that is stores open at least a year, sales were off 2.8 percent.

William R. Howell, chairman of the board, said that March and April should be evaluated together in order to take into account the shift in Easter from March in '89 to April in '90 and, in reverse, the shift in the Company's credit promotion. Combined, sales for the two months in 1990 were up a total of 4.4 percent, and on a comparative store basis, 3.3 percent.

For the thirteen weeks ended April 28, 1990, sales of JCPenney stores and catalog rose 5.4 percent to $3,271 million from $3,104 million for the same period a year earlier. On a comparative store basis, sales were up 4.3 percent.

HOUSTON (MAY 3) PR NESWIRE - Seagull Energy Corporation (NYSE: SGO) today announced its third 1990 natural gas discovery in federal waters off the Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

Seagull said its Brazos 399G-2 well, in 60 feet of water approximately 15 miles south of Freeport, encountered numerous productive gas zones at intervals ranging from 7,155 feet to 8,000 feet deep. The zones tested flowed 22 million cubic feet of gas per day through chokes ranging from 18/64-to 22/64-inch, at flowing tubing pressures ranging from 1,700 to 2,575 pounds per square inch.

Seagull operates the well and has a 37.5 percent working interest. Other partners are Ashland Exploration, Inc. and Southwestern Energy Company, with interests of 37.5 percent and 25.0, respectively. Seagull and its partners are currently formulating development plans.

"This discovery brings our success ratio for 1990 to three successes out of seven exploratory ventures," noted Seagull Chairman Barry J. Galt. "We plan to make 1990 the most aggressive exploration year in our history, so it is very encouraging to be off to such a good start."

In addition to its exploration and production activity, Houston- based Seagull is engaged in the transportation, distribution and marketing of natural gas, liquids products and petrochemicals, and natural gas processing.

MOUNT VERNON, NY (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Lillian Vernon Corporation (AMEX: LVC) today reported record results for the fiscal year ended Feb. 24, 1990.

Revenues for the year were $154,687,000, a 10 percent increase over fiscal year 1989. Net income increased 32.6 percent to $10,806,000, or $1.75 per share, in fiscal year 1990 compared to $8,148,000, or $1.32 per share, the prior year.

Fourth quarter revenues were $42,322,000 and net income was $3,117,000, or $0.50 per share, compared to revenues of $38,504,000 and net income of $2,521,000, or $0.41 per share, for the comparable period last year.

At fiscal year end, shareholders' equity was $56,243,000 and the ratio of long term debt to shareholders' equity declined from 52 percent to 37 percent.

In the fall of 1989, Lillian Vernon introduced its new specialty "At Home" catalog, which contributed to the increase in sales volume. The company continued to experience greater operating efficiencies at its National Distribution Center in Virginia Beach, Va.

Lillian Vernon, founder and chief executive officer, stated, "We are pleased to report record results for fiscal 1990, which we achieved in a very difficult retailing environment. Earnings advanced at a substantially greater rate than sales, reflecting increased operational efficiencies and better inventory management. Higher circulation of our core catalogs and the introduction of the 'At Home' catalog contributed to sales growth for the year."

Lillian Vernon Corporation is a direct mail specialty catalog company that markets gift, household, personal care and children's items. During fiscal 1990, Lillian Vernon mailed more than 121 million catalogs in 15 editions and filled over 4 million customer orders.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - North Canadian Oils Limited (AMEX: NCD) has announced its results for the first quarter of 1990 reporting increases in revenue, cash flow, net earnings, natural gas and crude oil production.

Gross operating revenue net of royalties, for the first quarter of 1990, increased 31 percent to $33.8 million due to significant production increases and improvement in both oil and natural gas prices. The average crude oil and natural gas liquids (NGLs) wellhead price received was $21.41 per barrel up 26 percent from the first quarter of 1989, and the average natural gas wellhead price was $1.53 per million cubic feet (mcf), up six percent from the first quarter of 1989. Investment income increased 42 percent to $8.1 million in the first quarter of 1990 on the strength of additional funds invested from the sale of common shares in 1989, together with the impact of higher interest rates on the investment portfolio.

Cash flow from operations increased 40 percent to $25.7 million from $18.3 million while net earnings at $8.0 million were up 29 percent from $6.2 million in the first quarter of 1989. Net earnings attributable to common shares increased during the first quarter of 1990 by 96 percent to $5.7 million from $2.9 million after deducting preferred share dividends of $2.4 million and $3.3 million for 1990 and 1989 respectively. Net earnings per share were $0.16 at March 31, 1990 up 45 percent over 1989 earnings per share of $0.11.

Natural gas production averaged 218 million cubic feet per day (mmcfd) in the first quarter of 1990, a 22 percent increase over the corresponding 1989 production figure of 179 mmcfd and represents a new record for NCO. The increase in natural gas production is directly attributed to the start-up of seven new gas plants built during 1989.

Crude oil and NGLs production also increased significantly in the first quarter of 1990 averaging 5,012 barrels per day (bpd) versus 4,087 bpd in 1989, an increase of 23 percent. New crude oil production at Long Coulee, Killam and Shekilie and substantial new NGLs production at Bear River West

Whitecourt and Knopcik, all located in Alberta, are credited for this improvement.

During the first quarter of 1990, NCO added 38 billion cubic feet of natural gas and 97,000 barrels of crude oil and NGLs to its proven reserves, replacing quarterly production by more than one and a half times on the basis of 10 mcf equals one barrel.

The company is also pleased to announce that the board of directors has declared the fifth semi-annual dividend of $0.10 per common share payable June 30, 1990 to shareholders of record on June 15, 1990.

North Canadian Oils Limited is a conservatively managed, financially and technically strong, Canadian oil and gas exploration, production and marketing company. OAKLAND, CA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Edy's Grand Ice Cream today announced that it has discontinued airing a commercial featuring controversial actress Zsa Zsa Gabor.

The commercial, which presents Gabor as an "Unbelievable Spokesperson For An Unbelievable Product," was one of a series of new ads for the company's Edy's Grand Light product.

"The ad campaign features spokespersons known for their 'unbelievable' experiences or reputations promoting our 'unbelievably' good product," states Steven Schickler, vice-president of marketing for Edy's.

"Several of our spokespersons have been somewhat controversial. Although we intended Ms. Gabor's ad to be humorous, some of our customers have expressed strong dissatisfaction with the commercial so we've decided to stop airing it," he continues.

"We've earned a reputation for listening to consumers and responding to their requests for particular flavors and new products. We want to make sure we're equally responsive to the way our advertising is received. In fact, suggestions for new spokespersons are welcome, too," Schickler adds.

Edy's has received over 300 complaints regarding Gabor's ad since announcing she would film a commercial for the company. The ad began airing in Edy's major markets three weeks ago.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - The Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union (ACTWU) and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (Carpenters) announced today that they had launched an independent proxy solicitation to create an environmental affairs committee of the board of directors at Eastman Kodak. The resolution will be presented at Kodak's Annual Meeting scheduled for next Wednesday, May 9, 10:30 a.m., in Lake Buena Vista, Fla., at the Contemporary Resort Hotel.

The resolution sponsored by the two unions calls on Kodak's board to create a standing committee whose sole function would be to oversee policy in the areas of environmental protection and worker safety and health. Kodak pleaded guilty last April to two criminal charges relating to the environment. As part of its guilty pleas Kodak agreed to pay criminal and civil penalties of $2 million, the highest environmental fines ever paid in New York state.

Bill Patterson, director of ACTWU's office of corporate and financial affairs stated: "Kodak's failure to safely manage the environmental impact of its operations point to a serious need for board of director level supervision. The recent guilty pleas of criminal charges clearly demonstrate that Kodak must dramatically change the way corporate decision-making is supervised in the area of environmental affairs. Today, union pension and benefit funds are substantial owners of companies like Kodak. They are starting to use their clout to reform the workplace in ways which increase shareholder value."

The Carpenters and ACTWU prepared proxy materials as part of a broader union effort to present environmental and worker safety and health issues before shareholders this year. Created under the aegis of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department, this "Proxies for Health Campaign" has already scored two successes this proxy season. Georgia- Pacific, after receiving the shareholder proposal, agreed to establish the requested committee. International Paper also moved to establish an environmental committee following the receipt of the proposal.

"Our 'Proxies for Health Campaign' could not be any more timely. Following Exxon's huge oil spill in Alaska and tragic fire in Texas, shareholders have become sensitized to the fact that a company's reputation can be at stake if is not safe for its employees or the general environment. It is good business to have directors review such an important and expensive area of corporate operations," said Edward Durkin, director of the Carpenters office of special programs.

CHICAGO (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - At the Tribune Company (NYSE: TRB) annual meeting today, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Stanton R. Cook announced that he would step down as the company's CEO and as publisher of the Chicago Tribune on August 1, 1990. Cook, who will be 65 years-old in July, will remain Tribune Company chairman.

Cook also announced that the board of directors had designated Charles T. Brumback, currently Tribune Company president and chief operating officer, to become president and CEO as of Aug. 1.

In addition, Cook said that John W. Madigan, president and chief executive officer of the Chicago Tribune Company, a wholly owned subsidiary, will become publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

Cook joined Tribune Company in 1951. He worked at the Chicago Tribune, rising to president in 1972. He became president and CEO of Tribune Company in 1974 and, in 1989, was elected chairman. Cook has served as publisher of the Chicago Tribune since 1973.

Brumback joined The Orlando Sentinel, a wholly owned subsidiary of Tribune Company, in 1957, and was named president in 1976. Five years later, he became president and CEO of the Chicago Tribune Company and, in 1989, president and chief operating officer of Tribune Company.

Madigan joined Tribune Company as vice president-finance in 1975 and in 1981 was named executive vice president. He became president and CEO of the Chicago Tribune in 1989.

During the meeting, stockholders also re-elected four directors to serve three-year terms on the company's board. Those elected are:

-- Charles T. Brumback, president and chief operating officer, Tribune Company;

-- James P. Cowles, chairman of the board, Inland Empire Paper Company;
-- Walter E. Massey, vice president for research and for Argonne National Laboratory and professor of physics, the University of Chicago;

HOUSTON (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Texas Eastern Products Pipeline Company (TEPPCO) announced today that propane deliveries at the Selkirk, N.Y., terminal of TE Products Pipeline Company, Limited Partnership, will be resumed on May 6. The company's 165-mile, 8-inch propane line from Watkins Glen, N.Y., to Selkirk has been out of service for repair and extensive testing following an explosion and fire, which resulted from a leak in the line near North Blenheim, N.Y., on March 13.

"We commenced filling the line at 7:30 a.m, today," said T.U. Hannigan, vice president of operations. "It takes about three days to completely fill the 165-mile line and have propane available for delivery at Selkirk.

"The pipeline has been hydrostatically tested at pressures far in excess of normal operating pressures. Pipe containing defects that were found by the test has been replaced and retested. All tests and results have been thoroughly reviewed by the federal and state authorities, independent consultants specializing in pipeline safety, and TEPPCO. The department of transportation's office of pipeline safety has authorized returning the line to service."

The cause of the pipeline break near North Blenheim is still under investigation; however, Battelle Laboratories at Columbus, Ohio, has stated that "this failure is believed to have occurred because of an unfortunate and unusual combination of circumstances" and concluded that, "This set of circumstances is unique and would be unlikely to occur again."

"We are working closely with the citizens of North Blenheim to provide individual and community relief following the incident," said Michael D. Burke, president of TEPPCO. "The company has arranged for payment of medical and emergency costs incurred by the residents and is examining a number of possible community projects in cooperation with residents and the New York secretary of state, Gail Shaffer, who is from the community."

Burke also said that the focus of the company's recent efforts has been to ensure a safe startup of the pipeline. "We successfully completed the hydrotest using procedures for newly installed pipe, and after reviewing the results of the failure analysis, we have reached a consensus among industry experts and state and federal officials that the line is safe to operate."

DETROIT (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - MCN Corporation (NYSE: MCN) today reported 1990 first-quarter earnings of $42.9 million or $1.85 per share, compared to first-quarter earnings of $42.0 million or $2 per share in 1989. The decrease in earnings per share reflects the effect of an approximate 10-percent increase in average shares outstanding over the first quarter of 1989.

According to MCN Corporation Chairman Alfred R. Glancy III, "MCN had higher first-quarter earnings in spite of record-breaking, warmer-than-normal weather in our subsidiary Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's (MichCon's) service area." He explained that the effect of the warm weather in the first quarter was mitigated by two factors. First, the weather in the first quarter of 1989 was also warmer than normal, so that the weather effect between the two quarters was a decrease in 1990 earnings of $7 million. Second, Glancy noted that the $7 million weather effect was more than offset by increased earnings from gas brokerage operations and a lower provision for uncollectible gas accounts.

"These favorable first-quarter variations, however, will be eliminated during the balance of 1990 as we experience anticipated higher operating costs," Glancy noted. "Thus, we expect that earnings for the year 1990 will reflect the full impact of the warmer-than-normal first-quarter weather which decreased earnings by $11.3 million or roughly $.50 per share as compared to normal weather."

Glancy also noted that on April 12, the Michigan Public Service Commission approved the settlement agreement of MichCon's September 1989 rate case filing. The agreement had been filed with the commission on March 22, 1990. Glancy said, "We are pleased with the commission's prompt approval of the settlement agreement. The settlement incorporates most of the incentive provisions we sought and enables MichCon to remain competitive while providing the opportunity for a reasonable return." The agreement will be in effect through 1993, thereby providing MichCon with stability and certainty of rates for the next four years.

DETROIT (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - NBD Bank increased its 1989 mortgage, home improvement, small business and commercial lending in the City of Detroit over 1988 levels, according to the "Report of the NBD Community Investment Plan."

Thomas H. Jeffs II, NBD vice chairman, said, "When we announced our Community Investment Plan last year, we committed to implement a variety of action plans designed to help us increase our 1989 lending in Detroit over 1988's performance. We are very pleased to report that those initiatives have worked."

Applications for home mortgage loans in the City of Detroit increased 45 percent, from 143 to 207, and loans closed increased 47 percent, from 100 to 147. The dollar volume of loans increased 25 percent, from $3.70 million to $4.62 million.

The NBD report notes that while dollar totals were up, the average loan size was down, dropping 15 percent to about $31,400 -- approximately the average price of a home in the City. Jeffs said the figure is important because it indicates that NBD is attracting the business of the average Detroit home buyer.

In 1989 home improvement loans at NBD increased 68 percent over 1988 results, from $2.99 million to $5.02 million. Jeffs said the success reflects increased activity by NBD loan representatives, who made more than 150 calls to home improvement dealers in the City in 1989. NBD also made a $4 million commitment to the Detroit Neighborhood Investment Corporation, which made more than 100 home improvement loans totalling $800,000.

NBD defines "small businesses" as those with sales under $5 million. With the assistance of its Small Business Development Office, the bank made loans totalling more than $7 million, an increase of 146 percent over 1988 levels. In addition, NBD approved another $150 million in commitments to small businesses in Detroit through its branches and regional loan centers a 34-percent increase from 1988.

In 1989 the total number of NBD's commercial loans in Detroit, including small business loans, increased 17 percent, from 1,049 to 1,223. Commercial commitments were up 8 percent, from $1.10 billion to $1.19 billion. Outstandings, which depend on customers' needs at any given time, declined 8 percent.

In commercial real estate development, the dollar amount of outstanding loans rose 308 percent, from $3.84 million to $15.66 million, although construction commitments declined 32 percent, from $72.74 million to $49.54 million. The decline in commitments was due to the fact that two major downtown projects did not proceed as anticipated.

EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Compared with the corresponding period last year, interim pre-tax profits at The Royal Bank of Scotland Group increased by $4.2 million to $285.2 million. Sharply higher levels of provisions for bad debts in the half-year to March 31, 1990 offset an 11 percent increase in total income. Sales of rescheduling country debt gave rise to a $17.7 million release of exceptional provisions made in recent years.

Despite the very difficult economic environment which prevailed throughout the period, the group's six operating divisions continued to trade profitably and have increased their business volumes.

The group's total assets have increased by 16 percent since March 31, 1989 and they now stand at $48.6 billion.

The interim dividend has been raised by 16.7 percent from 3.94 cents to 4.60 cents per share.

Commenting on the interim results, Sir Michael Herries, the Group's chairman, said: "As foreshadowed in my statement to shareholders in the 1989 Report and Accounts, trading conditions in the United Kingdom have become more difficult.

"The slowdown in the economy is expected to continue during the remainder of 1990 and although Scotland is expected to fare rather better than much of the rest of the United Kingdom, trading conditions overall are likely to remain difficult. Nevertheless, provided there is no further deterioration and the trends we have seen recently continue, we remain undaunted by the prospects for the second half of the financial year."

THE HAGUE (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - At the Annual General Meeting held on 3 May 1990, the shareholders of Nationale-Nederlanden approved the annual accounts for 1989 and the proposed dividend of DF1s 3.00 per share.

The final dividend amounts to DF1s 1.60 in cash or, at the option of the shareholders, DF1s 0.0625 (2.5 percent) nominal value in shares out of share premium. The final dividend is payable on 14 May 1990.

Having reached the statutory age limit of 72, Professor E.H. van der Beugel retired as a member and a vice-chairman of the Board of Directors.

Shareholders approved the appointment of Mr. H.O.C.R. Ruding and the reappointment of Messrs. D. de Bruyne, J. Lanser and S. Orlandini as members of the board.

Due to the considerable amount of time which his many other duties demand of him, Mr. Orlandini to his regret has felt compelled to relinquish the chairmanship of the Board of Directors. The directors appointed Mr. H.J. Witteveen chairman and Mr. C. van Veen a vice-chairman. As announced earlier, Mr. de Bruyne was also appointed a vice-chairman of the board.

FORT LEE, NJ (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Sun Chemical Corporation announced today that its subsidiary, Hartmann Druckfarben GmbH of Frankfurt, West Germany, has signed a letter of intent with the Druck und Lederfarbenfabriken Halle of the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) to enter into a joint venture to produce printing ink for East Germany and other eastern European markets. Sun Chemical is the first U.S.-based printing ink manufacturer to enter into such an agreement with an eastern European ink manufacturer.

The announcement was made in Dusseldorf, West Germany, at DRUPA90, a major international graphic arts exhibition, by Edward E. Barr, Sun Chemical president and CEO. "We are pleased to sign this letter of intent under which we will make available Sun Chemical's technology and financial strength to support what we believe will be the rapid development of this market," Barr said.

Lederfarbenfabriken, both of which originated with the former Hartmann Brothers of Halle, East Germany. From 1951 until April 30, 1990, Druck und Lederfarbenfabriken was part of the government owned "kombinat." In April, it became an independent company is preparation for joint venture activities.

Sun Chemical Corporation, an affiliate of Dainippon Ink and Chemicals of Tokyo, is the world's largest manufacturer of printing inks and a major international producer of organic pigments.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Sun Co.'s (NYSE: SUN) chief executive officer told shareholders today that the energy company is making its strongest-ever commitment to international exploration and production, while continuing to improve its strong presence in refining and marketing, and in the coal business.

"We ended the 1980s clearly an energy company," Sun Chairman Robert McClements Jr. said at the company's annual meeting here. "We are into refining and marketing because it is a business where we know how to grow. We are into coal because it is dependable, plentiful and the price is right. And we are into international exploration and production because that's where the reserves are."

McClements explained that in his estimation the international scene "is definitely the most promising" for business growth. He added that Sun is approaching the 1990s with "a global mind-set, not a local or regional one. We anticipate growth in the size of our reserves and in the number of countries in which we operate.

"We will build on our current base of oil and gas production and we will step up our exploration pace. This is not an easy task. The competition is just as hungry as we are," he added. "But it is a race we must run."

The chief executive noted that Sun ended the decade of the 1980s no longer a domestic producer of oil and gas. "Everything we could see told us that it was time to make that move. Reserves were dwindling. The cost of finding and producing oil was going up. The price of crude oil was dropping."

In 1988, Sun distributed the common stock of its domestic exploration and production subsidiary to the parent company's shareholders.

McClements said that the 1988 acquisition of Atlantic Refining greatly improved Sun's refining capacity and that the company has become a dominant force in the Northeast region of the country. He said Sun is now the No. 2 seller of gasoline on the East Coast.

He added that during the 1980s Sun became one of the nation's top coal producers, with sales (all low sulfur) peaking at 23 million tons last year.

McClements noted that the Clean Air Act now under consideration is "almost certain to give utilities two options: either install scrubbers or use low sulfur coal. It's our guess they'll go for low sulfur, and we're ready to answer that call.

"We all want clean air, clean water, green grass and abundant forests. Reaching that goal while still moving forward on practical matters like products, jobs and national security -- that's the balancing act we must master in the 1990s."

today reported net income of $39 million ($3.16 per share) for the first quarter of 1990, compared to net income of $41.5 million ($3.22 per share) in the first quarter of 1989.

Net income and earnings per share declined 6 percent and 2 percent, respectively, compared to the first quarter of 1989.

Operating income declined 12 percent to $58.6 million from $66.9 million in the comparable 1989 period.

Revenue for the first quarter of 1990 was $341 million, essentially even with $341.9 million in the first quarter of 1989.

A weak advertising environment contributed to flat or reduced revenues at three of the company's divisions. Newspaper division revenue was even with the first quarter of 1989 despite a decline of 6 percent in advertising inches at The Washington Post to 1,068,900 inches from 1,140,900 inches last year. Revenues at Newsweek and the broadcast division were down 5 percent and 8 percent, respectively, from the comparable period of 1989.

Cable division revenue rose 11 percent from the first quarter of 1989, while revenue from other businesses, including Kaplan Educational Center and Legi-Slate, was up 17 percent over the first quarter of 1989.

The company's equity in earnings of affiliates in the first quarter of 1990 was $4.3 million, compared with $1.4 million in the first quarter last year. Sharply higher earnings at Cowles Media Company, in which The Washington Post Company has a 28.7 percent interest, contributed to the increase, which was partially offset by lower earnings at The Washington Post Company's newsprint affiliates. Cowles's earnings included gains on the sales of two small newspapers.

The company said it repurchased during the quarter an additional 253,120 shares of its Class B common stock. Since the inception of the buy-back program in 1987, the company has purchased 642,547 shares of its stock. The repurchases have had no significant effect on the earnings per share calculation.

FORT WORTH, TX (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Texas-New Mexico Power Co., the Fort Worth-based, wholly owned subsidiary of TNP Enterprises Inc. (NYSE: TNP), today announced that the Austin Court of Appeals overruled the company's motion to rehear its appeal of the District Court order. The order found that the Texas Public Utility Commission's 1987 order granting a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity (CCN) for the company's Robertson County, Texas, generating facility was not final.

In March 1990, the Court of Appeals ruled that the Commission order granting a CCN for the facility was not final because of certain conditions to the order. The conditions relate to building the units of the facility so that they can burn western coal and obtaining all necessary permits for the construction and operation of the units.

It is the company's position that it satisfied these conditions on May 6, 1988.

In an open order meeting on May 2, the Commission directed the Administrative Law Judge to conduct the remand proceeding as previously announced, and instructed the Administrative Law Judge to expedite the proceedings in any possible manner. A hearing is currently scheduled to begin on June 18. Also in the open order meeting, the Commission failed to confirm the finality of the CCN, as requested by the company.

The company will continue to seek confirmation from the courts and the Commission that the CCN granted to the company in 1987 is final.

CHARLOTTE, NC (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Piedmont Mining Company, Inc. (NASDAQ: PIED) today announced preliminary agreement with Corona Corporation (AMEX: ICR) for a joint venture to explore for and develop titanium - heavy minerals sands deposits in the Carolinas. Piedmont has been investigating occurrences of such sands, containing primarily titanium bearing minerals and zircons, along ancient shorelines in eastern North Carolina since last August and has been conducting limited exploration in this area.

The proposed joint venture would be shared by Piedmont and Corona on a 50/50 basis, except that Piedmont may elect to have Corona provide Piedmont's share of future expenditures in consideration for a preferred return on those expenditures.

"This joint venture adds a new and exciting dimension for Piedmont," said Robert M. Shields, Jr., Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Piedmont. "We are particularly encouraged by projections of increasing worldwide demand for titanium dioxide."

The final joint venture agreement is subject to approval by Piedmont's Board of Directors.

Piedmont is engaged in exploration, mining and production of gold in the southeastern United States. Piedmont pioneered the resumption of gold mining in the Southeast in early 1985 at its Haile Gold Mine near Kershaw, South Carolina, employing for the first time the heap leaching process in the humid southeastern climate. Through its wholly-owned subsidiary, mineral Mining Company, Inc., Piedmont is also engaged in mining and processing Mineralite mica at its facility near the Haile Mine. Corona Corporation is one of the largest gold mining companies in North America with interests in eleven producing gold mines.

HOUSTON (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Texas Air Corp. (AMEX: TEX) today reported a 1990 first quarter consolidated net loss of $107.1 million, or $2.80 per share, on revenues of $1.9 billion. The 1990 first quarter results compare with a 1989 first quarter consolidated net loss of $255.5 million on revenues of $1.9 billion.

Texas Air is a Houston-based holding company whose principal subsidiaries are Continental Airlines, Eastern Air Lines and System One Holdings.

Continental Airlines recorded net income of $21.3 million on revenues of $1.3 billion during the first quarter of 1990, a $37.8 million improvement from the same quarter last year when it reported a net loss of $16.5 million. Included in Continental's 1990 results were special items totaling $69.7 million, which consisted primarily of litigation settlement proceeds. In the first quarter of 1989, special items totaled $30.6 million. The carrier noted that these results reflected continued progress in service improvement, and were especially significant in light of the substantially worsened results being reported by most airlines.

Eastern Air Lines recorded a net loss, before a $7.8 million charge for dividends payable to its preferred stockholders, of $136.5 million on revenues of $557.2 million in the first quarter of 1990. In the first quarter of 1989, Eastern recorded a net loss of $255.2 million on revenues of $620.6 million before a $10.4 million charge for dividends payable to its preferred stockholders.

On April 19, 1990, the Bankruptcy Judge in Eastern's Chapter 11 case appointed a trustee to manage Eastern's reorganization efforts, and as a result, under generally accepted accounting principles, Eastern's operating results will be excluded from Texas Air's future reported operating results beginning April 19.

DETROIT (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. automakers will assemble an estimated 136,600 cars this week, down slightly from last week's actual count of 137,562, Ward's said.

Car output for same-week 1989 was 153,062 units. Ward's reported that total estimated U.S. car output for calendar 1990 through the end of this week is 2,045,999 units, trailing year-ago's build of 2,695,002 by 24.1 percent.

Domestic car output for April totaled 510,162 units, 21.2 percent below the 648,195 built during the same period 1989.

All General Motors Corp.'s car plants were up and running except the Arlington, Texas, plant which closed to retool for 1991 Caprice output. The plant is slated to reopen in late June.

Ford Motor Co.'s Wixom, Mich., and Wayne, Mich., plants reported daily overtime this week. The Lorain, Ohio, Thunderbird/Cougar assembly is down this week for inventory adjustment.

Chrysler's St. Louis car plant continues to operate at only one shift. Ward's said U.S. truck production will be an estimated 91,628 units, compared to last week's count of 90,313. This compares with year-ago's count of 88,976.

U.S. truck production for calendar year 1990 through the end of this week is estimated at 1,328,138 vs. year-ago's 1,591,093, said Ward's.

April truck output totaled 331,351, compared to year-ago's total of 363,984.

Ford's Twin Cities, Minn., Kansas City, Mo., and St. Louis plants slated daily and Saturday overtime. The Louisville, Ky., and Lorain, Ohio, plants scheduled daily overtime only.

General Motors' Moraine, Ohio, truck plant slated Saturday overtime. Chrysler's Dodge City plant in Warren, Mich., continues to operate on two nine-hour daily shifts this week.

Of this week's estimated U.S. car output, GM accounts for 47.6 percent; Ford, 22.8 percent; Chrysler, 11.6 percent; Honda of America Mfg. Inc., 6.5 percent; Mazda Motor Mfg. (USA) Corp., 1.6 percent; Nissan of America Mfg. Corp., 1.2 percent; New United Motor Mfg. Inc., 3.1 percent; Toyota Motor Mfg. NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - The election of James F. Wittmer, M.D., M.P.H. as a vice president of ITT Corporation (NYSE: ITT) was announced today by Rand V. Araskog, chairman and chief executive.

Dr. Wittmer, 57, joined ITT in 1983 as director-health, environment and safety responsible for medical, industrial hygiene, environmental protection and safety programs for the corporation and continues in that position.

Dr. Wittmer was a member of the United States Air Force from 1958 to 1979, attaining the rank of colonel. He received numerous military awards and decorations, among them the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster. He was selected jointly by NASA and the USAF Surgeon General to be aeromedical flight controller for Project Gemini.

The author of numerous research papers, technical articles and monographs during his tenure in the Air Force, Dr. Wittmer also held positions as surgeon (chief of medical activities) at the USAF Military Personnel Center at Randolph Air Base in Texas; director of medical plans and resources at Air Force headquarters in Washington, D.C., and chief of medical support for the space shuttle and advanced programs at NASA headquarters in the nation's capital.

Upon leaving the Air Force, Dr. Wittmer was appointed dean of the School of Allied Health Sciences at the University of Texas Health Center in San Antonio, Texas. He subsequently joined Conoco Inc. as assistant medical director in 1980 and was assistant medical director for Mobil Oil Corporation in New York from 1981 to 1983.

A native of Carlinville, Ill., Dr. Wittmer attended Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis and received his M.D., cum laude, in 1957. He attended the Harvard School of public health, receiving a master of public health degree in 1961 and received specialty certification in aerospace medicine from the American Board of Preventive Medicine in 1965.

Dr. Wittmer is a clinical professor of medicine, Cornell University Medical College; adjunct professor of occupational medicine, University of Texas School of Public Health; and lecturer in environmental medicine, New York University. He is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha National Honor Medical Society, a fellow of the American College of Physicians, the American College of Preventive Medicine, the American College of Occupational Medicine, the New York Academy of Medicine, and the Aerospace Medical Association. He was recently elected to the board of directors of the American College of Occupational Medicine; is chairman of the Health and Insurance Committee, President's Committee on Employment of People With Disabilities; and treasurer, New York Occupational Medical Association. He is also a member of the American Medical Association.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - P&O Bulk Shipping Ltd. and Marine Transport Lines, Inc. announced today they had agreed to P&O Bulk Shipping acquiring 50 percent of Rowbotham Tankships for 11.2 million pounds sterling.

Rowbotham is a market leader in the coastal tanker sector in the U.K. and one of Europe's largest owners of short sea product carriers. Previously a subsidiary of U.S.-based Marine Transport Lines, it will be run as a joint venture between P&O Bulk Shipping and Marine Transport Lines (MTL).

Both companies are pleased to announce the appointment of Karl Timmermann, managing director of P&O Bulk Shipping as chairman of Rowbotham Tankships. Albert Shaw will remain as managing director.

This joint venture advances both P&O and MTL's strategies of expanding their participation in intra-European shipping trades in anticipation of the liberalization of trade in 1992.

Rowbotham Tankships operates a fleet of 21 clean petroleum product tankers of which 19 are owned and 2 are leased. The ships trade in Northern European waters, are registered in the Isle of Man and are manned by British officers and crew.

PORT WASHINGTON, NY (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Luxottica Group S.p.A (NYSE: LUX) announced today that the Bank of New York, depositary for the company's American Depositary Shares, has received notice of Luxottica's annual shareholders meeting, which will be held on May 18 in Sedico (Bulluno) Italy.

At the annual meeting, the following matters will be acted upon: -- The ratification of the company's civil balance sheet, pursuant to Italian law.

-- The approval of the company's proposed payment of a cash dividend of 412 lire per ordinary share (824 lire per American Depositary Share). If approved, the dividend would be payable on a date to be determined by the board of directors of the company but in no event later than July 31, 1990 to all holders of ordinary shares of record as of the close of business on May 18.

If approved, the above-described dividend will be payable to holders of American Depositary Shares in U.S. dollars. Based on the foreign exchange rate of US$1 equals 1,230 lire as quoted at 10 a.m., New York City time, on April 26, on the New York Interbank Market, the cash dividend would be approximately $.335 per ordinary share, ($.67 per American Depositary Share).

Leonardo Del Vecchio, chairman and chief executive of Luxottica, has the power to vote 33,066,500 or approximately 73 percent of the outstanding ordinary shares. Such voting power enables Del Vecchio, without any additional votes, to control the ratification of the company's civil balance sheet and the approval of the payment of the company's proposed payment of a cash dividend. Del Vecchio has advised the company that he intends to cast all of the votes controlled by him for ratification of the company's civil balance sheet and for approval of the company's cash payment of the above described cash dividend.

Under the terms of the depositary agreement, registered holders of the American Depositary Shares are entitled to instruct the Bank of New York, as depositary, as to the exercise of their voting rights pertaining to the number of deposited ordinary shares represented by their American Depositary Shares. Such instructions must be written and received by the Bank of New York, as depositary, prior to May 11.

Luxottica Group is a world leader in the design, manufacture and distribution of eyeglass frames and sunglasses. The company's lines fall under the names Avant-Garde, BerDel, and Mirari and its portfolio of designer lines includes Giorgio Armani, Genny, Byblos, and the recently introduced Valentino.

PROVIDENCE, RI (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Citizens Financial Group, Inc. ("Citizens") became a wholly owned subsidiary of The Royal Bank of Scotland Group plc in December 1988. Citizens changed its fiscal year-end to that of its parent (Sept. 30) and the figures contained in this release relate to the six-month period ended March 31, 1990. Financial highlights for that period include the following.

-- Net income for the six months period	$11.3 million
-- Total assets at March 31, 1990	$3,130 million
-- Stockholder's equity at March 31, 1990	$ 318 million
-- Equity to assets	10.16 percent

-- Return on average assets 0.73 percent
-- Nonperforming assets to total assets 1.51 percent

George Graboys, president and chief executive officer of Citizens commented, "Our half-year net income of $11.3 million is a satisfactory performance in view of the significant economic adjustments taking place in New England. Our nonperforming assets stood at only 1.51 percent of assets, an acceptable level in the current climate. The balance sheet strength of Citizens is demonstrated further by our equity to assets ratio which was a sound 10.16 percent at March 31, 1990."

Graboys added, "A strategic move for us was announced on Feb. 16 with the signing of a definitive agreement to acquire BankWorcester Corporation of Worcester, Mass., subject to a number of significant conditions. In another major step, we expect to occupy our new headquarters, One Citizens Plaza in the center of Providence, later this month."

Over the past six months, the New England economy has been undergoing a period of adjustment following the high growth period of the eighties. As a result, loan demand is sluggish, local unemployment levels have risen and the real estate markets are weak. These factors have affected Citizens' results in the six-month period.

Consolidated net income for the half-year ended March 31, 1990 was $11.3 million. This represented annualized returns on average assets and average equity of 0.73 percent and 6.93 percent, respectively.

Net interest income for the half-year was $53.6 million, up 7.4 percent over the comparable period. This mainly reflects a change in earning assets mix to produce more favorable interest income. Compared to the six month period ended March 31, 1989, the interest rate spread increased to 2.52 percent from 2.41 percent and the interest rate margin increased to 3.72 percent from 3.52 percent.

SAN JOSE, CA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Telecom Solutions, a division of Silicon General Inc. (NASDAQ: SILN), a leading producer of semiconductors and telecommunications systems, today reported that network synchronization equipment will be supplied to GTE Communication Systems.

According to Dan Rasdal, chairman and CEO of Silicon General Inc., the agreement calls for the sale of digital clock distributors (DCD), synchronous clock insertion units (SCIU), and other timing equipment necessary for the continued growth and operation of GTE's network. Rasdal said Telecom Solutions equipment currently synchronizes over 2.5 million T1 lines and 1,500 switches across the United States and Canada.

Financial details were not released, but the contract is expected to further expand the already sizable commitment to Telecom Solutions synchronization products deployed in the public telephone network.

Telecom Solutions, a division of Silicon General, designs, manufactures and markets specialized transmission equipment for applications in both public and private telecommunications networks.

OAKBROOK TERRACE, IL (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Telesphere Communications Inc. (AMEX: TSP), a national long-distance telephone company, reported income after taxes of $1.3 million on revenues of $66 million for the first quarter 1990. In the first quarter of 1989, the company reported a loss of $2.7 million on revenues of $34.7 million.

On a year-to-year basis, total revenues increased 90 percent. The major revenue growth was generated by new Information Services/900 programs and higher average caller revenue per minute realized as information programming replaced GAB, an increase of 283 percent.

Network revenues for the period increased 6 percent, despite several price reductions, reflecting new strategies and the introduction of enhanced TeleWATS products.

Operator services were 37 percent below the previous year, despite good reception of the new Telesphere Hospitality Plan, reflecting 1989 operator center difficulties, and cleansing of unbillable call traffic.

H.R. Thompson, chairman, said, "We're pleased to report another profitable quarter, while we continued our investment in marketing and systems for internal growth, and pursued our acquisition strategy."

Commenting on recent substantial trading in Telesphere stock, Thompson stated that other than the acquisition of National Telephone Services, which would add approximately $200 million in revenues, management was unaware of any other information that would contribute to such activity.

"We're delighted to be joining with NTS. It's a great fit in all aspects and we're looking forward to a very productive second half 1990."

Telesphere Communications Inc. operates a nationwide state-of-the- art, digital fiber optic network and provides long-distance network services, operator services, interactive 900 services and other enhanced communications services. The company's common stock is traded on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol "TSP."

BOCA RATON, FL (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Gemini Equities, Inc. ("GEI"), and Finalco Group, Inc. ("Finalco") announced the approval by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York of its offer to acquire all of the outstanding capital stock of the four European subsidiaries of CMI Corporation (AMEX: CMX) ("CMI"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Continental Information Systems, Inc. (NYSE: CNY) ("CIS"). The subsidiaries covered by the Court's approval are CIS Computer Leasing (UK) Ltd; CIS Leasing GmbH; CIS France, S.A.; and CMI, S.A. CMI filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on Jan. 13 1989. The four European subsidiaries of CIS were not included in the bankruptcy.

The four European leasing companies being acquired by GEI provide third party leasing to a broad range of corporations which include Galileo Company, Ltd., Daimler Benz, Phillips Petroleum Co., Amoco Chemicals Limited, and Sony Broadcast Limited. In December 1988, CIS Leasing (U.K.) Ltd. arranged the largest third party leasing transaction in Europe. The acquisition is a critical component of GEI's and Finalco's strategic direction for the 1990s to establish an international distribution network for its leasing and equity programs. Finalco's overall strategy is to acquire and manage distressed leasing portfolios through innovative remarketing, global distribution, warehousing, refurbishing, parts breakdown, and sale. This approach to equipment management extends equipment life and maximizes equipment values.

The four European subsidiaries have an existing lessee base with an aggregate equiment portfolio of US $96 million which when combined with the portfolio of GEI and Finalco represent over $1.2 billion of equipment leases currently under management and nearly $3 billion of equipment acquisitions over a 22-year history. This portfolio and the experienced personnel who service it will serve as a base for expansion of GEI and Finalco throughout Europe.

GEI is an affiliate of Finalco Group, Inc. GEI sponsors public leasing programs in the United States which offer opportunities to invest in a diversified portfolio of capital equipment, leased to Fortune 500 and other credit worthy corporations. The Gemini programs purchase equipment such as telecommunications equipment, computer-aided design equipment, manufacturing and engineering equipment, machine tools, laser printers, data processing equipment, modular buildings, and other capital equipment.

JOHNSTOWN, PA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Continuing to control costs, capitalize on technology and create a customer-sensitive, market-driven mentality are the three key strategies that General Public Utilities (NYSE: GPU) will employ to remain competitive in the 1990s and beyond, GPU's top executive told shareholders at the corporation's annual meeting here today.

The meeting's focus was on strategies and the challenges facing the nation's 15th largest investor-owned utility -- Parsippany, N.J.-based General Public Utilities.

"A fourth key strategy is balancing supply with demand, while avoiding major capital expenditures," Standley H. Hoch, GPU chairman, president and chief executive officer, told an audience of 120. "Someone has characterized our capacity management program as 'Save Some, Buy Some, Build Some.' That's not far off."

Citing the venture as evidence of GPU's strategy of balancing supply and demand, Hoch also outlined GPU's recent agreement with Pittsburgh- based DQE to build 200 miles of new transmission line and to purchase from DQE 50 percent of a now moth-balled generating plant.

The GPU-DQE agreement announced last month includes the sale of 500 megawatts of power to GPU. More than 2,000 new jobs will result from the refurbishing and 1994 start-up of two now-closed facilities -- the Phillips Power Station and the Brunot Island combined cycle facility.

Record 1989 Results:

Hoch expressed pleasure at GPU's results for 1989. "Clearly General Public Utilities has come a long way since it made headlines with Three Mile Island a decade ago," he said. "In 1989 we had record earnings per share, driven by strong sales and a 5 percent reduction in expenses."

GPU's 1989 earnings per share reached $5.01, even though the corporation took a 23-cent charge against earnings, to provide for planned outages of its nuclear generating stations.

The corporation's return on average equity of 13.8 percent is up from just 7.4 percent five years earlier. Based on this measure of profitability, GPU ranks in the upper third of its industry group.

Hoch pointed out that the GPU System's credit ratings have returned to, and in some cases, exceeded pre-accident levels. "And we have accomplished these results without relying excessively on rate increases. Our rates throughout our operating territories are quite competitive," he said.

GPU, based in Parsippany, provides approximately 39 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity for approximately 1.9 million customers,

NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Pan Am Corporation (NYSE: PN) today reported a first quarter 1990 net loss of $190.7 million, compared with a net loss in the first quarter of 1989 of $151.1 million. (A net loss of $1.29 a share in the first quarter of 1990, compared with a net loss of $1.05 a share in the first quarter of 1989.)

The corporation's operating revenues in the first quarter were up 15.3 percent, from $733.5 million to $845.8 million. Operating expenses were up 15.5 percent, from $862.2 million to $995.8 million.

The operating loss for the corporation was $150.1 million, compared with an operating loss of $128.7 million in the first quarter last year.

The corporation said that while revenues increased sharply in the first quarter this year compared with the first quarter of 1989, the increase was offset by higher expenses, primarily higher fuel and security costs, as well as foreign exchange losses.

Pan American World Airways, the corporation's principal subsidiary, reported a net loss of $185.1 million, compared with $159.3 million in the same quarter last year. The 15.2 percent increase in operating expenses, from $805 million to $927.6 million, was offset in part by a 16.1 percent increase in revenues, from $673.6 million to $782 million.

Pan Am's passenger revenues were up 20.8 percent, with traffic up 21.4 percent and yield down slightly, from 10.38 cents last year to 10.33 cents this year.

Pan Am's salaries and benefits expense increased 7.5 percent, from $283.5 million to $304.9 million as a result of an increase in personnel, primarily in the passenger services area and consistent with the company's efforts to improve the airline's service product, as well as additional flying. In addition, the company said Pan Am's aircraft and ground rentals increased 20.3 percent, from $77.8 million to $93.5 million, primarily due to an increase in the size of the aircraft fleet, from 141 to 165.

Pan Am reported a foreign exchange loss in the first quarter of 1990 of $5.8 million, compared with a gain last year of $3.3 million. The loss this year is primarily the result of a weakening of the Brazilian cruzado.

Last year, the corporation reported income of $3.7 million from Pan Am World Services, a subsidiary that has since been sold.

TORONTO (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Curragh Resources Inc. announced today that the first quarter of 1990 resulted in CDN $14.2 million of net earnings compared with CDN $20.4 million for the corresponding quarter of 1989.

Sales of concentrates were CDN $97.2 million during the first quarter of 1990, compared with CDN $104.0 million during the first quarter of 1989. Although concentrate production increased from 116,560 tons to 119,774 tons, sales were reduced as a result of lower zinc prices and a stronger Canadian dollar during the first quarter of 1990. During the first quarter of 1990, the average realized price per pound of zinc payable was U.S.$0.68 while the average realized price per pound of lead payable was U.S.$0.38, compared with U.S.$0.89 and U.S.$0.28, respectively, during the comparable period of 1989.

The increase in concentrate production reflects production of 50,086 tons during March 1990, following less than expected production in February.

Net sales after smelter charges were CDN $61.9 million which compares with CDN $64.5 million for the corresponding quarter of 1989, as smelting charges were lower in 1990 compared with the first quarter of 1989.

Net earnings in 1990 were reduced by higher interest costs stemming from the debt incurred to make Curragh's 20 percent equity investment in Asturiana de Zinc, S.A. in May 1989.

A copy of the first quarter results is available from the company on request.

HOWELL, NJ (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Union Valley Corporation (AMEX: UVC) has retained the Harlan Company, Inc., a New York-based real estate consulting firm, to assist in the financial restructuring of the company, it was announced today by Herbert E. Wishnick, president of Union Valley.

As previously disclosed, Union Valley is holding substantive discussions with First Fidelity Bank, N.A., New Jersey, to restructure its revolving credit line, on which about $80 million is outstanding. The company also has $19.9 million of subordinated debentures outstanding.

Wishnick said Union Valley chose the Harlan Company as consultant because of its "special expertise in the homebuilding industry. Their understanding of real estate and the credit markets will be of great assistance to us in assembling an effective new financial structure for the company."

Wishnick added that if negotiations with First Fidelity are successful, a new credit agreement should be in place before Aug. 1, the date by which the bank requires repayment of amounts owed.

The Harlan Company, founded by Chairman Leonard M. Harlan in 1969, has served as consultant in numerous restructurings and other transactions involving homebuilders. For example, it recently advised FPA, a Pennsylvania homebuilder, in an exchange of various properties and other assets for approximately $39.7 million of senior notes aand subordinated debentures.

In another circumstance, the Harlan Company advised and represented M.J. Brock, a California homebuilder, in its management-led buyout of the company and subsequent sale to Maryland-based Ryland homes, one of the nation's largest homebuilders.

Mr. Harlan has been a member of the board of directors of the Ryland Group parent firm of Ryland Homes, since 1984.

Union Valley Corporation, founded in 1964, designs, builds and markets retirement and pre-retirement communities, non-age-restricted housing and commercial real estate, in New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania.

PONTIAC, MI (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Paced by strong Trans Sport and Grand Am sales and the best-ever month for the current-generation Grand Prix, Pontiac reported its April 21-30 sales increased 8.8 percent over the final 10 days of April 1989.

Pontiac dealers delivered 27,591 vehicles in the April 21-30 period, compared with 25,368 vehicles in the same period last year.

Sales of the futuristic Trans Sport minivan in the April 21-30 period totaled 1,429 units, bringing sales since its introduction last Oct. 1, to 12,907 vehicles. April deliveries of 3,366 units were the highest for any month since the all-new Trans Sport was introduced.

Grand Am, Pontiac's leading seller and one of the top-selling carlines in the industry, posted its best April performance ever, with 22,240 deliveries.

"In addition to record Grand Am and Trans Sport sales, increasing customer acceptance of the Grand Prix sedan helped these sporty Pontiacs post the best month since introduction in January 1988. For the month, dealers delivered 12,781 Grand Prix coupes and sedans," noted Pontiac General Manager John G. Middlebrook.

For the most recent 10-day period, Pontiac also reported sales of its subcompact LeMans were up 25.9 percent from the same period in 1989, Grand Am sales jumped 34.8 percent, while Grand Prix deliveries were up 51.3 percent for the April 21-30 period and 24.3 percent for the entire month of April.

HARAHAN, LA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Wiener Enterprises Inc. (AMEX: WPB)

announced today that the holder of the company's long- term debt, which has a principal balance of $5.5 million and is secured by the pledge of all the outstanding stock of Builderama Inc., a subsidiary of the company, has declined to waive a technical default by the company of the long-term loan agreement.

Until such default is cured, the long-term debt holder may at its option declare the entire indebtedness due and payable. The event which precipitated the default under the long-term loan agreement was the company's failure to pay, pursuant to its written guaranty, $1.5 million of indebtedness due on March 31 by Builderama Inc., to another banking institution. The company has been informed by such banking institution that it intends to enforce the company's guaranty.

In related action, the company was notified on March 28 by its line of credit bank that such bank had suspended the company's letter of credit and working capital lines of credit. However, the line of credit bank has continued to fund such lines on a day-by-day basis. The company is engaged in discussions with its lenders concerning possible courses of action to resolve the outstanding technical default under its long-term loan agreement; to arrange for the satisfaction of the Builderama Inc. debt currently due; and to reinstate its working capital lines.

In view of these developments, the company has determined that it is appropriate to adjust the carrying value of Builderama Inc. on its books at the end of the company's fiscal year ended Jan. 27. The company expects that such adjustment will result in a material charge to income for the 1990 fiscal year, and a material decrease in the company's earnings for such year previously announced. The company is evaluating the effect of these developments on its financial statements for the fiscal year ended Jan. 27.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - In recognition of Avon's landmark decision to eliminate its use of animals for product testing, Sue Rich, director of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals' (PETA) international Caring Consumer Campaign, which once placed 3 million "Stop Avon Killing" hangers on doorknobs nationwide, officially buried the hatchet by presenting an award to Avon Chief Executive Officer James Preston at the annual shareholders' meeting today.

Last March, Avon was the first international cosmetics company to switch to non-animal testing methods. Revlon, Amway and Shaklee soon followed Avon's lead, adopting non-animal testing methods.

"Avon set a smart, progressive example for other companies," says Rich. "Sophisticated, non-animal tests spare the animals and are less expensive and more reliable. In the 1990s, consumers deserve the best protection technology can offer."

Last year, PETA captured 10 percent of Avon's shareholders' votes, representing 4.3 million shares, in favor of a resolution asking Avon to disclose closely guarded information about its use of animals. L'Oreal, the largest cosmetics company in the world, has replaced Avon as the target of PETA's international Caring Consumer Campaign to end animal testing.

Actions against L'Oreal have included the unfurling of a banner from the Eiffel Tower which read, "L'Oreal - Torture Animale," a demonstration at L'Oreal headquarters in New York at which Saturday Night Live's Kevin Nealon "barfed" into a 4-foot-tall papier mache toilet claiming that what L'Oreal does to animals makes him sick, a funeral procession to the home of L'Oreal Vice President James Nixon in Connecticut at which 10 people were arrested, and a blockade of the L'Oreal plant in New Jersey where activists cemented themselves into 300-pound cement blocks in the driveway on World Laboratory Animal Liberation Day in April.

ST. LOUIS (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Air Force and McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) began developmental flight tests May 2 of Pratt & Whitney's new F100-PW-229 turbofan engines, which will power F-15E dual-role fighters beginning in August 1991.

The F100-PW-229 engines, developed under the Air Force's Increased Performance Engine (IPE) program, are more powerful, more efficient and cost less to maintain than the F-15E's current F100-PW-220 engines.

The new engines produce 29,000 pounds of thrust each, approximately 20 percent more power than the F100-PW-220 powerplants, which produce 23,800 pounds of thrust each.

Capt. Rick Husband, pilot, and Maj. Gary Presuhn, weapon systems officer, both of the Air Force's 6515th Test Squadron, flew an F-15E equipped with two F100-PW-229s in the skies over Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., home of the Air Force Flight Test Center.

They conducted a series of engine operability checks at an altitude of 20,000 feet and attained a maximum speed of approximately 483 miles per hour.

All missions in the three-part developmental flight test program will take place at Edwards Air Force Base.

The current 20-mission phase of flight testing is scheduled to conclude in early July. A second 20-mission series of flight tests will run from early September to early November.

The third and final phase, consisting of 25 missions, will begin in mid-November and continue into January 1991.

McDonnell Douglas is scheduled to begin installing F100-PW- 229 engines in F-15Es on its St. Louis production line in August 1991.

The new engines can be retrofitted with only minor modifications into F-15Es already in service and into earlier air- superiority versions of the F-15.

The engines were designed and built at Pratt & Whitney's Government Engine Business unit in West Palm Beach, Fla. Pratt & Whitney is a division of United Technologies.

The Air Force manages the F-15 program through the Aeronautical Systems Division of Air Force Systems Command at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

McDonnell Douglas is the F-15 prime contractor. More than 1,200 F-15s are TULSA, OK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - S. Lee Crawley, president and CEO of ZG Energy Corp., today announced the completion of its Exchange Agreement with Sceptre Resources Ltd. (AMEX: SRL). On April 30, 1990, ZG's stockholders approved three proposals which included an exchange for substantially all of the U.S. oil and gas assets of Sceptre Resources Ltd. for $4.6 million in cash and $6.9 million of new stock (valued at $5.25 per share after giving effect to a one for 15 reverse split of ZG Energy stock). Stockholders also approved the merger of ZG Energy into Vantage Point Energy Inc., a new company formed for the purpose of reincorporating in Oklahoma.

Vantage Point now has approximately 1,640,000 shares outstanding after giving effect to the various aspects of the transaction. Approximately 80 percent of the new common stock is owned by Sceptre Resources. As part of this transaction, the company has entered into a new credit facility with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. (NYSE: MHC).

In addition, the stockholders elected Richard A. Gusella, Harold R. Logan Jr., Michael R. McClurg, John H. Moore, Lynnwood R. Moore Jr., Robert T. Reid and Crawley to serve as directors.

Crawley said, "This transaction has produced a substantially larger company with proven reserves of 1.6 million barrels of oil and 19.2 billion cubic feet of gas with an SEC present value of approximately $25 million as of Dec. 31, 1989, while providing the equity infusion needed to strengthen the company financially for future growth." He added, "The company's primary business plan will be to continue growth through the acquisition of properties and/or companies by using cash and/or securities while we continue to operate and develop our existing oil and gas properties."

An application for the inclusion of Vantage Point Energy's common stock on NASDAQ has been approved, and the stock will begin trading under the symbol VPEI (temporarily VPEIV) on May 3, 1990.

The company has also relocated its offices to 5801 E. 41st St., Suite 1001 in Tulsa.

Sceptre Resources Ltd., a Canadian oil and gas company with assets of approximately $800 million (Canadian dollars), is headquartered in Calgary Alberta. Its common shares are listed on the Toronto, Montreal and American Stock Exchanges.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Speaking to investment professionals at luncheons in New York and Boston, William E. Bindley, chairman and president of Bindley Western Industries Inc., (NASDAQ: BIND) the nation's fifth largest wholesale pharmaceutical distributor, announced an agreement with Peyton Distributors, a unit of the Kroger Co., whereby Bindley will be the primary supplier of pharmaceuticals to Peyton. He indicated the agreement became effective May 1, 1990 and is expected to exceed $150 million annually. He also announced that the proposed acquisition of 221 Revco drug stores by Reliable Holding Corp. should be beneficial to Bindley Western. He said that Bindley Western is the primary pharmaceutical supplier to Reliable Drug's warehouse in Indianapolis and to the 112 stores that Reliable currently operates.

In commenting on the current outlook for Bindley Western, he said, ''As a result of our strategies to improve performance and the continued growth of pharmaceutical sales, we are comfortable with street expectations for the current year.'' Analysts are currently forecasting earnings per share of approximately 85 cents for the year ending Dec. 31, 1990 compared with 41 cents reported in 1989.

Bindley continued his comments, noting, ''Over the past eight years, wholesale drug sales have grown at three times the rate of the GNP.'' Industry analysts expect growth in excess of 15 percent annually over the next three- to four-year period. One key element in the strong outlook for wholesale drug distributors is the fact that pharmaceutical distribution benefits from the expansion of the drug industry without incurring the risk and expense associated with product research and development.

Many external factors are driving the rapid expansion of pharmaceutical sales. Demographic trends favor the industry. The two segments of the population which consume more than twice the pharmaceuticals as the rest of the population -- people over 65 years old and under 10 years old -- are growing twice as fast as the general population.

Looking at Bindley Western's performance, Bindley said, ''Since 1984, Bindley Western sales have compounded at a 22 percent rate, reaching $1.6 billion in 1989. The resolution of several non-operating restraints, a $12 million capital expansion program and our focus on pharmaceutical sales, will allow us to increase return on equity and exceed the 15 percent revenue growth rate projected for the industry. The result could be an accelerated earnings trend over the next few years.

Bindley Western, with 1989 sales of $1.6 billion, is one of the largest drug wholesalers in the United States and specializes in the distribution of ethical pharmaceuticals and related products. ORANGEBURG, NY (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - The following is a statement released by Opticon regarding the patent infringement decision in Symbol vs. Opticon:

but it has been determined that an appeal is warranted and we are confident that our position will be accepted on appeal.

From a business perspective, the decision will have little or no effect on the business of Opticon, which develops, produces and markets scanning devices utilizing all of the optical technologies currently available, not just those which are involved in the litigation.

The specific laser products involved presently represent approximately 2 percent of our unit sales. Opticon technologists currently are finalizing a new generation of laser scanners which do not contain the product elements under contention in the litigation.

Opticon is the acknowledged leader in technology utilizing the less expensive CCD readers, and sales of these devices account for 31 percent of unit sales, a six-fold increase from the prior six months. The CCD (charged coupled device) technology, relatively new to the United States, already had claimed market leadership in Asia and parts of Europe. With CCD, laser, wands and other scanners, Opticon is the only American source for the full-range of optical scanning device.

EL PASO, TX (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - El Paso Refinery L.P. (the partnership) (NYSE: ELP) today announced the declaration of a 75 cent per unit distribution on its cumulative participating convertible preferred units (preferred units) payable May 30, 1990, to record holders as of May 15, 1990.

Net income for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, totaled $2,053,000 on sales of $69,891,000 as compared with net income of its predecessor entity of $4,023,000 on sales of $60,266,000 for the first quarter of 1989. Net income per limited partner unit for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, totaled 16 cents on total outstanding units of 12,720,000, including 5,520,000 preferred units and 7,200,000 common units. Barrels of refined products sold during the quarter were comparable with the prior year quarter, and accordingly, the 16 percent increase in sales dollars was attributable to higher selling prices driven by higher crude oil costs.

Results for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, were reflective of relatively high crude oil costs during the first half of the quarter resulting primarily from a rise in heating oil prices in the Northeastern United States substantially greater than that experienced in the refinery's market area. Crude oils cost have since decreased by approximately $4.00 per barrel while gasoline prices have increased above average first quarter levels.

On Nov. 1, 1989, the partnership assumed the refining operations and assets of El Paso Refining Inc. in connection with the sale to the public of a 43 percent limited partnership interest in the partnership. The partnership raised net proceeds from the offering of approximately $127 million which are being utilized primarily for the expansion of the partnership's El Paso refinery from 26,000 barrels per day to 55,000 barrels per day. Expansion of the refinery is progressing on schedule with field construction activities currently under way.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - A wave of hot weather and continued regional growth pushed Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) customers' electrical demand to record-setting levels in April.

Three new April records were set, for an hour, a day and the month. While temperatures soared to 95 degrees on Friday, April 27, PE customers required the largest electrical output for any April weekday on PE records with demand reaching new levels for one hour and for a 24-hour period.

Demand reached 5,072 megawatts (mw) between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m., topping the record set April 3, 1989 by 592 mw, or 13 percent.

Electrical usage for the 24-hour period Friday reached 100.4 million kilowatt hours (kwh), breaking the old record, set the previous day, by almost 5 million kwh. The prior daily record, set April 7, 1988, was 90.1 million kwh.

Last month set an all-time April record of 2.666 billion kwh, exceeding the old record of 2.580 billion kwh, set in 1989, by 3.3 percent.

Thus far in 1990, the peak one hour electrical demand occurred Feb. 26, when output reached 5,333 mw. Traditionally, PE is a summer peaking utility with the all-time one-hour record for demand set Aug. 15, 1988, with 6,826 mw of electrical output.

DALLAS (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Associates Corp. of North America, part of the Financial Services Group of Ford Motor Co., attained record earnings from its domestic operations for the three months ended March 31, 1990, Reece A. Overcash Jr., chairman and chief executive officer today announced.

Earnings before income taxes from domestic operations increased 14.5 percent to $116.6 million for the first three months of 1990 from $101.9 million for the like period a year ago. Net earnings for the period were $74.4 million compared with $77.0 million a year earlier. In 1989, net earnings included foreign subsidiaries, which were acquired by other Ford companies at the time of the sale of The Associates in October 1989. Total domestic assets at March 31, 1990, were $14.9 billion.

The Associates manages its finance and insurance affiliates in the United Kingdom, Japan, Canada and Puerto Rico on behalf of Ford subsidiaries. Results of these operations, previously owned by The Associates, are not included in those of The Associates for 1990. At March 31, 1990, the foreign operations had total assets of $1.6 billion.

The company's domestic operations were led by increases in receivables in the major consumer finance lines of residential real estate-secured lending and credit card receivables, while the commercial finance operation continued to benefit from growth in the financing and leasing of heavy-duty trucks and truck trailers. Revenue from the sale of credit-related insurance also grew significantly during the three-month period.

Revenue from domestic operations for the quarter increased 21.2 percent to $633 million compared with $522 million in the prior year period. Domestic gross finance receivables at March 31 were $14.2 billion compared with $12.1 billion last year, an 18.0 percent increase.

Domestic consumer finance gross receivables were $8.1 billion at March 31, up 32.0 percent from the $6.2 billion reported last year. Volume for this operation for the three months was $1.4 billion. The consumer operation includes installment and revolving credit loan products, credit card receivables and automobile club services.

Associates Corp. of North America provides consumer finance, specialized commercial finance and leasing and insurance in the United States through approximately 740 offices and manages finance and insurance affiliates in the United Kingdom, Japan, Canada and Puerto Rico.

PROVIDENCE, RI (MAY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - As expected, Bank of New England - Old Colony N.A., an affiliate of Bank of New England Corporation (NYSE: NEB), announced that it has signed a consent cease and desist order (consent order) with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). BNEC, the holding company, announed in March that it had signed a similar consent order with the Federal Reserve, and the corporation's two largest affiliates, Bank of New England N.A. and Connecticut Bank and Trust Company N.A. have signed orders with the OCC. Maine National Bank Corporation and Bank of New England-West N.A., the remaining BNEC affiliate banks, are expected to sign similar orders with the OCC shortly.

The consent order deals comprehensively with the development and implementation of plans, policies and procedures at the bank, and details improvements to be made in the operations of the bank. Bank of New England-Old Colony President Paul A. Perrault said, "We are signing this order because we agree with the OCC that these policies and procedures are sound measures that any bank should follow. As we undertake this partnership with the OCC, I am pleased to report that many of the requirements and standards called for in the order are well under way or have already been met."

On April 27, Bank of New England-Old Colony reported 1990 first quarter earnings of $12.0 million on total assets of $1.2 billion. The bank is headquartered in Providence, R.I. and operates 22 branch offices throughout the state of Rhode Island.

(MAY 3) UPI - Bert Blyleven received plenty of support in gaining his first win of the season Wednesday, and not all of it came from his parents.

''We flew my mother and father in for the game. I tried wearing two athletic supporters,'' Blyleven said after pitching the California Angels to a 3-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles. ''Both ideas worked, in that order.''

Blyleven, 1-2, must be on to something. He scattered five hits over six innings and struck out eight to secure fourth place on the all-time career strike out list. At 3,578, Blyleven trails only Nolan Ryan (5,076), Steve Carlton (4,136) and Tom Seaver (3,640). Don Sutton had held the fourth spot with 3,574.

The Angels' shutout of the Orioles was the third of the night in the American League. Jeff Ballard, winless in four starts, allowed five singles over five innings before Devon White led off the sixth inning with his second homer of the year to give California a 1-0 lead. Baltimore has lost four in a row and five of its last six.

''Ballard deserved better,'' said Baltimore Manager Frank Robinson. ''Our pitchers are not shutout pitchers. When they throw like he did, we have to win. No way should he be winless.

''We had chances, but that's been the story of the year,'' Robinson said. ''Missed opportunities. We've done a lot of hitting in practice since we've been home but that doesn't mean you are automatically going to hit in a game.''

In other American League action, Oakland blanked New York 2-0, Seattle pummeled Boston 9-2, Cleveland stomped Toronto 3-0, Minnesota pounded Detroit 8-2, Texas defeated Chicago 6-3, and Milwaukee at Kansas City was postponed due to rain.

In the National League it was: Chicago 9, San Francisco 6; San Diego 4, St. Louis 3; New York 5, Cincinnati 0; Philadelphia 14, Houston 4; Atlanta 8, Montreal 1; and Los Angeles 6, Pittsburgh 2.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Athletics 2, Yankees 0

At New York, Dave Henderson led off the fifth inning with a solo home run to pace Oakland to its third shutout in its last four games. Scott Sanderson 3-1, struck out five and walked one in seven innings before giving way to Todd Burns. Tim Leary, 1-2, took the loss as Oakland completed a three-game series sweep.

Mariners 9, Red Sox 2

At Boston, Greg Briley went 3 for 5 and drove in three runs to highlight Seattle's 16-hit attack. Pete O'Brien and Edgar Martinez smashed back-to-back homers in the second inning to make it 2-0. Erik Hanson, 3-0, scattered six hits, walked three and fanned four over seven innings. Greg Harris, 2-1, took the loss.

Indians 3, Blue Jays 0

At Cleveland, Bud Black allowed seven hits over 8 1-3 innings and Candy Maldonado belted a solo home run in the seventh inning to lead Cleveland. Black, 3-0, struck out seven and walked one in winning his third straight start. Maldonado's blast, his fifth of the year, came off Toronto starter John Cerutti, 1-4.

Twins 8, Tigers 2

At Detroit, Gary Gaetti hit two three-run home runs and David West pitched a three-hitter, leading Minnesota. West, 2-3, walked four and struck out five in pitching his first career complete game. Detroit starter Jack Morris, 2-3, allowed both homers.

Rangers 6, White Sox 3

At Chicago, pinch-hitter Geno Petralli delivered a two-out, two-run triple to lift Texas and end a three-game losing streak. Charlie Hough, 2-1, allowed 10 hits, struck out two and walked one. White Sox starter Greg Hibbard, 2-2, walked Mike Stanley and gave up a single to Scott Coolbaugh, setting up Petralli's blast in the sixth.

(MAY 3) UPI - At least 20 people were hurt Wednesday night when an Amtrak passenger train derailed in Crawfordsville, Indiana. Police say there were NO fatalities in the derailment, the second passenger train accident in 10 days. The train was en route from Chicago to Indianapolis when its three passenger cars jumped thetrack on the east side of Crawfordsville. 10 days ago, Amtrak's California Zephyr derailed in Batavia, Iowa, injuring 97

The United States says a Soviet vessel was caught fishing inside U-S waters west of Alaska last month, and it's requesting forfeiture of the trawler. U-S officials filed a complaint Wednesday in federal court in Anchorage. They say the Ilya Ilyin was fishing illegally in the Bering Sea inside America's 200-mile zone. The ship was seized last week by the Coast Guard and is being held at Kodiak pending a court hearing.

Hip surgery was performed Wednesday on a dog at the University of California at Davis, but the surgeon was NO ordinary doctor. The operation was performed by a robot that's been dubbed ''Robodoc.'' The robot, with skills more precise than a human surgeon's, used a small rotary cutting tool to replace the dog's arthritic hip with an artificial joint. Researchers say the groundbreaking operation is expected to pave the way for robot-assisted hip surgery on humans.

Up to five inches of rain drenched parts of Texas Wednesday, triggering flash floods that killed three people in Fort Worth. Authorities say two of the victims died when their pickup truck stalled in high water and they were swept away trying to reach higher ground. A woman was also killed in the floods. Dozens of families were evacuated from low-lying areas in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Heavy rain also flooded parts of southern Oklahoma.

(MAY 3) UPI - The Senate Banking Committee took steps Wednesday to help the poor and the homeless. The panel approved a bill that would increase spending by more than three-BILLION dollars a year to help provide housing for the less fortunate. The measure, sponsored by Senators Alan Cranston of California and New York's Alfonse D'Amato, was passed on a 16-4 vote. It would encourage development of rental apartments for the poor, and would help tenants in public housing refurbish and eventually buy their homes.

Conventional wisdom says extensive dating will help you pick a good mate, but a new study says that's NOT necessarily so. University of Michigan researchers interviewed 459 women in the Detroit area who were married between 1925 and 1984. Their conclusion- women who play the field are NO more successful in developing a happy marriage than those who marry for romance. The study found that the most important factor in marriage success was the degree of romantic love at the time of marriage- NOT any feeling during dating or courtship.

BOSTON (MAY 3) UPI - Exposing people to bright light can reset their biological clocks in such a way that shift workers can adapt more easily to working at night and sleeping during the day, scientists said.

Dr. Charles Czeisler said Wednesday that he found putting people in front of bright indoor lights for four days and keeping them in darkness while they slept could shift their clocks so they were alert and able to function well in the early-morning hours.

Numerous studies have found that many people who have to work when most others sleep cannot adjust to the schedule, even after years on the job, Czeisler said.

''People have tried many different things to stay alert at night, including drinking coffee and taking stimulants. But research indicates that more than half of night shift workers fall asleep or feel sleepy on the job,'' said Czeisler, of Harvard University Medical School and Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

In a study involving eight healthy young men, Czeisler and colleagues had half of them sit in front of bright indoor lights for four days from midnight to nearly 8 a.m., while the other half sat in normal lighting.

During what Czeisler called their ''nights of work,'' the men in each group were asked to compute mathematical equations and carry out other tasks designed to gauge how alert they were.

Those in the treatment group sat in front of lights that were as bright as sunlight just after dawn and went home to sleep in rooms that had windows covered with material that blocked out light, Czeisler said.

The men in the comparison group spent their nights in a normally lighted office and slept in rooms that had window shades or curtains, but no special material to block out light during the day.

Measurements of the men's alertness, body temperatures, and hormones after four nights showed those exposed to the bright lights had adjusted to their altered schedules while the others did not, Czeisler and colleagues reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

In the men who received the light treatment ''we were able to achieve complete physiological adjustment, and that is the first time that I know of that this has been achieved,'' Czeisler said.

The light apparently is able to reset body clocks by working on a cluster of about 10,000 cells known as neurons in an area of the brain called the hypothalamus, he said.

Researchers have discovered that brain pathways directly connect the neurons to the retina of the eye, the human body's principal light-responding organ, he said.

Through the interaction of the eye and the brain, cycles of light and darkness tell the body when to be awake and alert and when to be asleep, he said.

''What we have found is that human circadian rhythms are much more sensitive to light than previously thought. It had been thought that humans were relatively insensitive to light, but that is not the case,'' said Czeisler.

The study indicates that special office lighting systems and other light adjustments may make it easier for night workers to adapt to shifts that do not comply with ordinary human clocks, he said.

The light therapy also may be useful in resetting the clocks of people - especially the elderly - who have abnormal wake and sleep cycles, he said.

''Some elderly people seem to have clocks that change with advancing age, so that they fall asleep at 7 p.m., when everybody else is awake, and wake up at 4 a.m., when everyone is asleep. They find that very frustating. With this treatment, we may be able to change that,'' he said.

ST. REGIS INDIAN RESERVATION, N.Y. (MAY 3) UPI - Heavily armed Canadian and New York police quieted warring factions of Mohawks one day after a simmering dispute over casino gambling escalated into a gun battle that killed two Indians.

The 28,000-acre reservation straddling the U.S.-Canadian border in upstate New York was sealed off Wednesday, and some 500 state police troopers set up checkpoints and roadblocks to gain control of the territory the Mohawks call Akwesasne.

The militant Warrior Society, self-appointed protectors of Mohawk sovereignty who are funded largely by reservation casino owners, clashed with gambling opponents in a night-long gun battle that killed one fighter from each side early Tuesday.

Killed in the firefight was Matthew Pyke, 22, an anti-gambling Mohawk trying to flee a house under siege and Warrior Society soldier J.R. Edwards, 30, whose body was discovered on the battleground.

Both factions are armed with AK-47 assault rifles and automatic weapons and have used firebombs and grenades in their raids.

Canadian and New York police deployed on the reservation late Tuesday and early Wednesday reported all was calm.

''Most people are pleased we are on the reservation and, at this point, there is relief,'' state police Sgt. Michael Downs said. ''Law enforcement is maintaining stability.''

Canadian Indian Affairs Minister Tom Siddon said in Ottawa senior officials from his department, the Ontario and Quebec police forces, New York State and the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs will meet in Montreal Thursday to discuss solutions to the gambling issue.

Siddon said the two Mohawk factions would not be at the meeting, but would be consulted before any final decision was made.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, criticized by Mohawk leaders and the Canadian government for failing to act before the violence escalated, dispatched aide Henrik Dullea to the reservation to assist state police and conduct negotiations.

After speaking with two Warrior Society leaders by telephone, the governor said the faction ''appears to be particularly eager to demonstrate that they are not involved in the violence because they are being accused of it.''

The governor also defended his decision not to send in the National Guard ''because of the risk of bloodshed, because of what it might provoke.''

The New York Army National Guard, however, provided support to the state police - such as transportation and a field kitchen - and top aides held planning sessions in case military force was needed.

Across the St. Lawrence River, Canadian Armed Forces soldiers were posted at an armory near Cornwall at the edge of the reservation, a Canadian Defense Force official said.

In addition, about 100 Ontario Provincial Police were on standby at the International Bridge in Cornwall, prepared to assist Quebec Police Force investigators and Royal Canadian Mounted Police already on the reserve to investigate the killings.

U.S. Justice Department mediator Fletcher Graves said he would visit the reservation and meet tribal leaders, but did not know what his role would be.

Canadian Solicitor General Pierre Cadieux said police were ''administering their respective laws'' and would seize any illegal arms found on the reserve.

Cadieux refused to confirm reports police were raiding houses to search for illegal weapons, including machine guns and hand grenades.

But Harold Oaks, a Warrior Society soldier, complained police were conducting house-to-house searches and abridging the rights of Mohawks.

''The right of assembly has been the restricted and so has the right of free passage,'' he said in an interview at Onkwe Bingo Jack, the Warrior Society's meeting hall.

Cuomo has not said how long state police, including teams of sharpshooters would remain on the reservation, which attracts gamblers from as far away as Syracuse and Toronto to play slot machines and blackjack.

While the heavy police presence calmed the tribal fighting, Trooper R.W. McDowell said, ''The real test will be when we all leave.''

Doug George, an anti-gambling Mohawk who edits the reservation newspaper, Akwesasne Notes, agreed. He criticized Cuomo for letting the violence escalate.

''Why weren't they here before, going back for months and years? Years of pleas to get assistance from law enforcement went unheeded,'' said George, whose brother's house was attacked by the Warrior Society early Tuesday.

''If they leave,'' George said of the police, ''we're going to revert to terrorism.''

Trooper Douglas Weiller manned a roadblock and, massaging his .308 single-shot high-powered rifle, said he did not fear the Mohawks' assault rifles.

I have no trepidations at all,'' he said. ''If I can see them, I'll get 'em.''

Traditional Mohawks believe gambling corrupts their culture, and that casinos lure young Indians to drop out of school to work as dealers.

The casino owners argue gambling, allowed on reservations by federal law under certain conditions, creates jobs and economic opportunity for the Mohawks.

One Mohawk said everybody is a loser. ''There is no more right and wrong here,'' Alison Benedict said while holding a child.

''There is only wrong. The children say things like 'Let's play roadblock. You be the anti (gambler) and I'll be the warrior'. I wish I could wake up one morning and see the school bus outside and say 'Hey, things are normal.'''

Officials say at least 31 people were hurt last night in a train derailment near Crawfordsville, Indiana. Amtrak's Chicago-to-Indianapolis ''Hoosier State'' derailed and hit a line of freight cars. Police say most of those hurt have cuts and bruises. The three derailed cars did NOT overturn when they left the tracks. Officials say preliminary reports from the scene suggest a defective track switch may have caused the derailment.

HONG KONG (MAY 3) UPI - A pirate radio ship intent on sending pro-democracy broadcasts to China sailed Thursday for Hong Kong, but it was unlikely the Goddess of Democracy would be allowed to dock in the British colony, a government official said.

The official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said no application to enter Hong Kong had been received from the ship, which sailed from Singapore Thursday after a brief stop for fuel and provisions.

But he said it was unlikely that permission would be granted for the red-and-white converted freighter to dock in Hong Kong, ''and there is no question of their broadcasting out of Hong Kong waters.''

''We want to ensure that Hong Kong interests are not damaged by the activities of an outside organization,'' the official said. ''We don't want Hong Kong to be used as a battleground in a war of words.''

Hong Kong, which reverts to Chinese sovereignty in 1997 and is increasingly sensitive to the wishes of Beijing, is an unlikely port of call for a ship planning anti-government broadcasts to the communist mainland.

China has repeatedly warned other nations against assisting the ship, named for a statue erected last year in Beijing's Tiananmen Square, where Chinese troops brutally crushed the student-led democracy movement in June.

The Hong Kong government official pointed out that it would be impossible for the Goddess of Democracy to enter the British colony without crossing surrounding Chinese waters. China has not ruled out using force to halt the broadcasts from the ship, which began its voyage from France March 17.

French backers of the Gooddess of Democracy originally said they would sail from Singapore to Taiwan, where they planned to replenish supplies, fuel and take aboard two transmitters in preparation for beginning medium-wave radio programming to the mainland from international waters.

Taiwan officials earlier said the ship would be allowed to dock and resupply from the northern port of Keelung.

But shortly before leaving Singapore Thursday, they said their next stop would be Hong Kong because they could not find a shipping agency in Taiwan that would deliver the transmitters to the vessel.

''We initially thought it would be easy to go to Taiwan, but the country has been under a lot of pressure,'' said Christophe Nick, an organizer of the Goddess of Democracy project.

The pirate radio ship is sponsored by a coalition of groups headed by the French news magazine Actuel, with the cooperation of the Federation for a Democratic China, a Chinese dissident organization based in Paris.

Shipping sources in Hong Kong said if Goddess of Democracy, capable of maintaining a speed of about 12 knots, could reach the British colony in about eight days if it sailed in a straight line from Singapore.

But they said it was unlikely the ship, which reported harassment by Chinese merchant vessels en route from France, would head straight for Hong Kong. They said it was expected to use a route designed to avoid Chinese waters or disputed areas of the South China Sea, such as the Spratly Islands.

Singapore port authorities allowed the vessel to dock at Clifford Pier despite harsh criticism from Beijing directed at countries aiding the venture.

The crew refueled, loaded more supplies and picked up 10 French journalists, bringing the number aboard to 20. The vessel was equipped in Paris with a television studio and two radio studios.

BEIJING (MAY 3) UPI - The government will restrict travel to Beijing by Chinese from elsewhere in the country during the September Asian Games, targeting large numbers of transient laborers and job-seekers, a state-run newspaper reported Thursday.

The China Sports newspaper, which gave few details, supported recent unofficial reports that the government would actually begin this summer to curtail movement of peasants and other transients to Beijing before the capital hosts the Asian Games.

''During the Asian Games, Beijing will place some limitations on those from other places coming to Beijing,'' the newspaper reported in a column, purportedly responding to an inquiry from a reader.

The newspaper said the measures had been approved by the State Council, China's Cabinet.

The Games, a pan-Asian athletic competition, are held every four years between Olympics, with this year's scheduled from Sept. 22 to Oct. 7. Chinese officials see a successful hosting as key to their ambition to bid for the Olympics in the year 2000.

With $500 million and precious national prestige invested in China's first major international sports event, officials apparently hope to reduce Beijing's so-called ''floating population'' of peddlers, transient workers and the unemployed.

China Sports said the city would ''take some limited measures'' involving transients and reduce the number of government and business meetings to be held during the period.

The newspaper said the number of transients had reached 1.2 million in the city, whose official population is about 10 million. Ironically, the number includes many of the 30,000 construction workers building stadiums and other Games sites.

''This is not a small burden to Beijing, and also brings about pressures in public order,'' the newspaper said, reflecting official fears about the potential for unrest among large numbers of urban jobless.

The government last month said it had begun efforts in several major cities, including Beijing, to return transients to their home villages in the countryside. The campaign is expected to intensify as the Games approach.

Millions of peasants have flooded into cities seeking jobs in recent years many working as street peddlers, laborers or maids, and others turning to begging and crime. The nationwide ''floating population'' is estimated at some 50 million.

China Sports said Beijing would be unable to cope with many would-be Games visitors because of the large number of Chinese expected to travel to the capital in official groups invited from provincial and local levels.

RIGA, Latvia, U.S.S.R. (MAY 3) UPI - Latvia's new Parliament opened Thursday with Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis attending as an honored guest at the momentous session expected to declare Latvian independence.

''I'm very glad that I could see this day,'' Landsbergis said as he entered the Parliament hall.

Members of the new nationalist-controlled Parliament stood and applauded when Landsbergis was introduced as a guest at the beginning of the session.

Lithuania has been mired in a lengthy showdown with Moscow over its own March 11 declaration of independence. Soviet officials have refused to negotiate with Lithuania and imposed an economic blockade in an effort to force the republic to retreat on secession.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has threatened similar measures against Latvia and the third Baltic republic, Estonia, if they follow Lithuania in unilaterally declaring themselves independent.

The nationalist Popular Front, which gained control of the Parliament in March 18 elections, said it had enough votes to pass a declaration of independence but has promised to avoid confrontational tactics and provide for a transition period to independence in an effort to appease Moscow.

''We emphasize that in the transitional period of the road to independence we must constantly strive for the normalization of the situation, especially as regards the Soviet Union,'' Popular Front Vice President Ivars Godmanis told reporters.

Popular Front sources said the nationalist group's parliamentary caucus would likely wait until Friday for a vote on independence and would spend the first day of the session choosing Latvia's new government.

Hundreds of Latvians gathered outside the Parliament building Thursday chanting ''Freedom to Latvia, Freedom to Latvia'' and the colorful national flags of all three Baltic republics were held aloft side by side to demonstrate solidarity as Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania attempt their break from the Soviet Union.

One of the signs read: ''Shoulder to shoulder with our sister Lithuania.''

A smaller group of Russians opposing independence also demonstrated outside Parliament. One of their signs, in Russian, read: ''Is the will of the people the will of the Latvian Popular Front?''

An independence proclamation in Riga would make Latvia the last of the three Baltic republics to take the formal step toward ending a half-century of Soviet rule in the northern region.

Godmanis, elected to the Parliament in March and likely to be the choice of the Popular Front caucus for prime minister, said the republic's independence declaration would not take immediate effect like the unilateral act adopted March 11 by the Lithuanian Parliament.

A draft of the Latvian proclamation, a copy of which was obtained by United Press International, indicated the Parliament also would not match the radical step of neighboring Estonia, which in its March 30 sovereignty statement declared Soviet laws invalid on Estonian soil.

The Latvian draft proclamation recognizes the validity of the former free state's Feb. 15, 1922, constitution, which began an 18-year period of independence and was ended by Moscow's annexation in 1940.

But the draft concedes that Soviet law would remain in effect during ''a transitional period'' in which negotiations with Moscow would be held.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has warned Estonia and Latvia he would take the same harsh steps imposed on Lithuania where on April 18 he cut off crude oil deliveries and stopped supplies of most other raw materials.

In another sign of its intent to pursue good relations with Moscow, the Latvian Popular Front caucus said it would support Anatoljis' Gorbunovs as Parliament chairman, or effective president of the republic.

Widely respected in Latvia and Moscow, Gorbunovs is a moderate who has held the republic's highest government post for the past two years and also is a member of the Soviet Parliament.

Gorbunovs spoke at the Popular Front's founding congress in October 1988 and has maintained good relations with the nationalist group, but he is not a member.

''Some of our people feel that if the documents are radical, it will be better if there will be non-radicals who will implement them,'' Godmanis said.

Sergejs Dimanis, leader of the Latvian Communist Party's 50 deputies in the 201-member Parliament, said the independence declaration was too radical for his bloc.

''We are also committed to the economic rebirth of Latvia,'' Dimanis said. ''But we are not ready to take such a radical step.''

Godmanis and other Popular Front leaders have enough votes in the Parliament to ensure the two-thirds majority needed to pass the independence proclamation.

Indulis Berzins, a Popular Front lawmaker and the parliamentary caucus's designated spokesman, said the group controlled 131 votes in the legislature, or three seats shy of the 134-vote threshold.

But he said several independence deputies not aligned to the two main blocs would fill the gap and vote for the independence declaration.

''I cannot give any names,'' Berzins said. ''There is a group of deputies that comes to the Popular Front caucus meetings, supports the caucus, participates in it, but they haven't signed (a statement of allegiance).''

Godmanis, however, acknowledged, ''It is an unstable two-thirds.''

BRUSSELS, Belgium (MAY 3) UPI - The 16 NATO foreign ministers gathered Thursday at a special meeting expected to reaffirm their unanimous support for a unified Germany within the Atlantic alliance.

The hastily arranged meeting at NATO's sprawling headquarters precedes by just two days the initial session for foreign ministers in the ''two-plus-four'' talks on German unification.

Those talks, on Saturday in Bonn, involve the two Germanys and World War II allies Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Secretary of State James Baker said en route to Brussels, ''There are some issues that are not appropriate for decision in two-plus-four.

''The question, for instance, of whether the unified Germany should be a member of NATO is a question that is properly decided in NATO with the participation of the united Germany,'' he said.

''The extent and degree of future involvement of German forces is a matter that is not appropriately decided within the context of two-plus-four, but rather within the context of the CFE (conventional forces in Europe) discussions in Vienna,'' Baker said.

The CFE talks have stalled recently over aircraft levels.

NATO officials want the two-plus-four talks tailored strictly to issues of German unification to avoid a free-for-all negotiation on Europe's future.

With the Soviet Union occupying one of only six chairs in Bonn, compared to one of 23 chairs at the CFE talks, ''the Soviets will clearly seek to raise other issues'' due to their added leverage, a top NATO diplomat said.

Baker has insisted on a united Germany within NATO, while the Soviets have called instead for a neutral Germany. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze has recently taken a softer line, however, suggesting a Germany in both NATO and the Warsaw Pact during a transition period.

The NATO foreign ministers also planned to discuss preparations for this fall's expected summit of the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), U.S.-Soviet relations and the situation in Lithuania.

''I don't think you can get much more political than that,'' said Baker, underlining efforts to transform NATO from a military alliance to a political organization following the Cold War's collapse.

Short-range nuclear missiles and nuclear artillery in Europe were also expected to be on the agenda.

The Washington Post reported Baker planned to tell his counterparts that the United States will soon withdraw nuclear artillery from Europe and seeks early talks with the Soviets to eliminate ground-based nuclear weapons from the European continent.

The United States wants to replace ground-based missiles with the air-based Tactical Air-to-Surface Missile (TASM), which has a range of about 200 miles from the airplane used to launch it.

The nuclear artillery shells and Lance missiles based in Europe are considered obsolete because their range is limited to the recently democratized and now-friendly countries of Eastern Europe.

NATO diplomats conceded last month that plans to modernize the Lance had been abandoned; a formal decision was expected at a series of high-level NATO meetings, beginning with a Nuclear Planning Group session of NATO defense ministers in western Canada next week.

The meeting Thursday of NATO foreign ministers was also designed to reassure the 12 NATO members excluded from the two-plus-four talks that they will be fully informed at every step in the process.

Several countries, especially Italy and Holland, were vocally upset when the two-plus-four roster was agreed to in January at the Open Skies conference by the major powers in Ottawa.

Baker planned to meet Thursday evening in Brussels with foreign ministers of the 12-nation European Community, all of them NATO members except for neutral Ireland.

On Friday, he flies to Bonn for bilateral talks with Shevardnadze and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

(MAY 3) UPI - An Amtrak derailment injures 31 people... police quell gunfighting between warring Indian factions... freed hostage Frank Reed is angry... Latvian legislators may vote on declaration of independence... the latest news from U-P-I.

For the second time in nine days, an Amtrak passenger train has derailed, leaving dozens injured but NO fatalities.

Officials say 31 people were injured last night when an Amtrak train from Chicago bound for Indianapolis derailed after striking a line of freight cars in Crawfordsville, Indiana.

Hospital and police officials say at least 31 of the 34 people aboard the train were taken to Culver Union Hospital to be treated for injuries.

A hospital spokesman says six people, including the train's conductor, were admitted to the hospital in stable condition.

None of the injuries is considered life-threatening... mostly along the lines of cuts and bruises, although one person suffered a dislocated shoulder.

The accident occurred minutes after the scheduled stop in Crawfordsville, a town of about 18-thousand people 45 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

On April 23rd, 97 passengers aboard Amtrak's California Zephyr were injured when it derailed in Batavia, Iowa. There were NO fatalities in that wreck.

Police report all is quiet on a Mohawk reservation where two Indians died in a gunfight fueled by an almost year-old dispute over casino gambling.

Both New York and Canadian police are patrolling the St. Regis Indian Reservation that straddles the border. Police moved in yesterday, one day after an Indian from each side of the gambling controversy died in a gun battle.

About 500 New York state police troopers sealed off the reservation to outsiders yesterday. They also set up checkpoints inside the 28-thousand-acre territory.

One officer says most of the Indians on the reservation are pleased and relieved to have the police present.

Canadian Indian Affairs Ministers Tom Siddon says Canadian and U-S officials will meet in Montreal today to discuss long-term solutions to the gambling issue.

Siddon says the two Mohawk factions will NOT be included in the meeting, but will be consulted before any final decision is made.

(MAY 3) UPI - Former hostage Frank Reed says he's ''angry'' and ''embarrassed'' that four Western hostages remain captive in Lebanon while he has been freed. Said Reed- ''I tell you I am very, very angry that Anderson and Tom are NOT free.''

He was referring to Americans Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, both kidnapped in 1985. Reed says he spent two years in captivity with Anderson a journalist, and Sutherland, a professor at American University in Beirut.

Reed was kidnapped in Beirut in September 1986... and released by Moslem extremists in Lebanon on Monday. He's currently in Wiesbaden , West Germany, where he's undergoing medical exams and debriefing.

Iran says it's working to free Western hostages in Lebanon. Sources in Iran says Tehran wants a gesture from the Bush administration to reciprocate for the release of Reed and Robert Polhill, who was freed April 22nd.

Iran is bargaining for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel... 16 Shiites convicted of terrorist bombings in Kuwait... and Moslem cleric who was abducted in Lebanon last year by Israel.

Iran also wants the United States to release the eight-BILLION to nine-BILLION dollars in Iranian assets frozen when Iranians seized the U-S Embassy in Tehran in 1979 and took Americans hostage.

So far, all Iran has received from the Bush administration is a thank you.

(MAY 3) UPI - Latvia's new legislature is holding its first session today and may be poised to become the third Baltic republic to declare independence from Moscow.

Leaders of the nationalist Popular Front say they have enough votes to pass the declaration of independence. Popular Front sources say their parliamentary caucus probably will spend today choosing Latvia's new government and will wait until tomorrow for the vote on independence.

Last night, rock 'n' roll bands from throughout the Baltic region staged a ''rock for freedom'' concert in the Latvian capital... Riga .

Popular Front leaders say they want to take independence slowly... avoiding the confrontational tactics that have mired Lithuania in a nearly eight-week-old showdown with Moscow.

U-P-I obtained a draft of the Latvian proclamation. The draft concedes that Soviet law will remain in effect during ''a transitional period'' in which negotiations with Moscow would be held.

In Washington today, President Bush will have his first meeting with a Lithuanian leader since the Baltic republic declared independence from the Soviet Union in March.

Lithuanian Prime Miniter Kazimiera Prunskiene will meet with Bush in the latest stop on her international aid-seeking mission.

White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater says Bush will NOT ''dictate a course of action'' in the crisis.

(MAY 3) UPI - Military sources in El Salvador say leftist rebels fired shots at President Cristiani's home and launched smaller attacks outside the capital of San Salvador on the eve of peace talks opening in Switzerland.

It's NOT clear if Cristiani was in the official residence Tuesday night when the shots were fired. NO casualties were reported.

In San Salvador's exclusive Escalon neighborhood, F-M-L-N commandos killed a Treasury Police captain and wounded two lower-ranking soldiers.

The rebels said in a statement that the attacks were prompted by what they called ''the triumphal and authoritarian attitude of the government and the military based on a supposed weakness of the F-M-L-N.'' The statement said such an attitude would ''derail the negotiation process.''

Peace talks were to have started yesterday in Geneva... but they were delayed to give both sides time to prepare their negotiating proposals. The government and the rebel F-M-L-N insist they'll stay in Geneva until the talks reach a successful conclusion.

All of the NATO foreign ministers are getting together today for their first formal talks since December. But diplomats doubt the NATO ministers will break any new ground.

Diplomats at NATO headquarters say the hastily arranged meeting in Brussels will provide an informal opportunity to underline the 16 nations' support for a united Germany within the North Atlantic alliance.

Unlike twice-yearly formal meetings of NATO foreign ministers, the special meeting will NOT produce an official statement. But Secretary-General Manfred Woerner is expected to announce the outcome.

Today's meeting comes just two days before the initial session for foreign ministers takes place in the ''two-plus-four'' talks on German unity. A unified Germany's NATO status is expected to be the most crucial aspect of the two-plus-four talks Saturday in Bonn.

Today's session is also designed to reassure the 12 NATO members excluded from the ''two-plus-four'' structure that they will be kept fully informed.

(MAY 3) UPI - At 4-0, Dennis Cook - who probably went unnoticed in most office baseball pools this season - has matched the best start by a Philadelphia Phillies pitcher since Steve Carlton's in 1981.

Cook allowed four runs and six hits in seven innings Wednesday, and Tom Herr hit three doubles to spark a 14-run, 20-hit attack in the Phillies' 14-4 rout of the Houston Astros.

Cook, a left-hander obtained from the San Francisco Giants last June 18, has allowed only five runs in four starts, including a three-hit shutout against the St. Louis Cardinals.

''I'm just pitching with more confidence,'' Cook said. ''At times last year I doubted myself. But this year, I'm pitching with a lot more confidence because I'm able to mix in some breaking balls and keep the ball down.''

Cook went a combined 7-8 for the Giants and Phillies last year (1-0 for Giants; 6-8 for Phillies). Wednesday, he benefitted from the Phillies' most hits in a game since June 23, 1986.

''When he gets in trouble, he doesn't react like he did last year,'' Phillies Manager Nick Leyva said. ''He tries to stay within himself.''

Tom Herr matched his career high with five RBI and hit two run-scoring doubles during an eight-run sixth inning. Cook also had two hits during the inning.

''It's a great feeling,'' Cook said. ''We had a lot of runs on the board and it's easy to pitch when you're up by 10 runs.''

Herr went 4 for 4 and improved his batting average in his last eight starts to .400 (16 for 40).

Houston starter Jim Clancy, 1-1, gave up six runs in four innings. Reliever Xavier Hernandez was shelled for eight runs and seven hits in 1 2-3 innings.

''It was just one of those nights,'' Houston Manager Art Howe said. ''We have to bounce back (Thursday). You have a few innings like that every year.''

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago outlasted San Francisco 9-6, San Diego edged St. Louis 4-3, New York blanked Cincinnati 5-0, Atlanta routed Montreal 8-1 and Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 6-2.

In the AL: Seattle 9, Boston 2; Oakland 2, New York 0; California 3, Baltimore 0; Cleveland 3, Toronto 0; Minnesota 8, Detroit 2; Texas 6, Chicago 3, and Milwaukee at Kansas City was postponed by rain.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Cubs 9, Giants 6

At San Francisco, Andre Dawson drove in three runs and scored three times to lead CHicago's 16-hit attack. Mike Harkey improved to 3-1 despite giving up three homers over 5 1-3 innings. Paul Assenmacher gained his first save since Sept. 1988. Chicago used six straight hits with two outs in the third to score four times off Scott Garrelts, 0-3.

Padres 4, Cardinals 3

At San Diego, Jack Clark and Bip Roberts each belted a sixth-inning home run, helping San Diego snap a five-game losing streak. Bruce Hurst, 1-3, gained his first victory since Sept. 17, 1989. Craig Lefferts worked two innings for his second save. Jose DeLeon, 2-1, allowed eight hits and four runs in six innings.

Mets 5, Reds 0

At New York, Frank Viola struck out 11 in a six-hitter and Mike Marshall and Howard Johnson each homered against Cincinnati. Viola, 5-0, off to the best start of his careeer, walked only one in snapping New York's four-game slide. Tom Browning, 2-2, hurled six innings and gave up four runs.

Braves 8, Expos 1

At Montreal, Andres Thomas hit his first career grand slam en route to a five-RBI performance that helped Atlanta extend its winning streak to four games. Marty Clary, 1-1, scattered five hits in seven innings for the victory. Zane Smith, hero of Tuesday night's 13-inning triumph, fell to 2-2 for Montreal. Smith had pinch-hit the winning double in that game.

Dodgers 6, Pirates 2

At Los Angeles, Willie Randolph, who missed the previous five games with the flu, collected four hits - including a club record-tying three doubles sending Fernando Valenzuela and the Dodgers past Pittsburgh. Valenzuela, 2-2, allowed eight hits in posting his second straight complete game and the Dodgers' major leagues-leading seventh. John Smiley, 2-3, lasted 6 2-3 innings and surrendered four runs - just two earned.

(MAY 3) UPI - A tornado roared through a northeast Texas city early Thursday, injuring at least six people and damaging 18 homes, while powerful thunderstorms hammered much of the state and caused serious flooding that required evacuations.

Elsewhere in the nation, the National Weather Service said the South and the San Francisco area began cooling off Thursday morning after record-breaking heat, and light rain fell across the Northeastern states.

A tornado touched down in Paris, Texas, some 85 miles northeast of Dallas, shortly before 1 a.m. Thursday, causing minor injuries to six people, said Dick Boots, emergency preparedness coordinator for the city of Paris.

The twister uprooted trees and tossed them into buildings, damaging 18 homes, he said. The tornado destroyed another building and overturned an 18-wheel truck, Boots said.

Authorities were not sure what happened to the truck driver, he said.

Torrential rain and flooding was blamed for at least four deaths Wednesday in Texas and Oklahoma.

Ben Waxler, 65, of Weatherford, and Bibb C. Lawrence, 64, of Fort Worth, were swept away by floodwaters from Sycamore Creek while trying to get to high ground after their truck stalled in the water, said police spokesman Doug Clarke. Their bodies were recovered.

The body of Cheryl Gatewood, 24, of Fort Worth, was found by street department workers. She too had tried to escape from her car to high ground.

A 12-year-old Oklahoma City girl drowned in a rain-swollen drainage ditch, officials said.

Lake Texoma on the Texas-Oklahoma border rose above its spillway - a channel that carries excess water around a dam - early Thursday for the first time since 1957.

''We officially went over the spillway at 12:05 a.m.,'' said Jerry Leatherwood, operator of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers power plant at Denison, Texas. The overflow is expected to cause widespread flooding in southeastern Oklahoma, northeastern Texas and parts of Arkansas.

A leaking dam on Comanche Lake near Duncan in southwestern Oklahoma prompted the evacuation late Wednesday of about 200 people. ''There's a big possibility it will bust down. It could go anytime,'' said Stephens County Sheriff's Department dispatcher Alvin Tatum.

Up to 4 inches of rain had fallen on north Texas by early Thursday, the weather service reported. Dozens of families in the Dallas-Fort Worth area were evacuated from low areas and roads and bridges in north and central Texas were closed by high water.

Twin Oaks Medical Center in Halthom City, near Fort Worth, was flooded and its patients evacuated.

Flood waters forced frightened llamas and other exotic animals in International Wildlife Park in Grand Prairie, west of Dallas, to huddle on high ground at the drive-through zoo.

Arkansas and Louisiana were also pelted by severe rain. Numerous roads and streets were closed in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas.

In the West, fog and the onset of evening cooled the San Francisco area after a day in which high temperatures tied or broke records. Moffet Naval Air Station rose to 91 degrees, breaking a record of 83 set in 1970.

Santa Rosa's 91 degrees broke a record of 89 degrees set in 1970. San Francisco tied a 1970 record of 81 degrees, the NWS said. Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland were cloudy, with Seattle also getting drizzle.

It rained in the Midwest and a flash flood watch was issued for southwest Missouri. Joplin, Mo., on the border with Kansas and Oklahoma, got .73 inches of rain in six hours.

The New England states were clear and cold overnight. Concord, N.H. registered 34 degrees; Houlton, Maine, was 28. Boston was warmer at 51 degrees.

In the mid-Atlantic region, Maryland and West Virginia were rainy. Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware were cloudy. Parts of northeastern Pennsylvania experienced scattered frost.

The South cooled a bit in the early morning as thunderstorms pummeled some areas. Hinesville, Ga., posted 100 Wednesday. Atlanta was 90, tying a record for the day, and dropped to 74 at night.

Severe weather rolled across North Carolina early Thursday, pummeling several Piedmont counties with hail and knocking over trees and power lines. The weather service issued a tornado warning for Davidson, Iredell and Rowan counties and at least one twister was sighted but no injuries were reported.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Former President Richard Nixon said Thursday the fact that he resigned will always be a part of his presidency, but down the road the people, rather than the historians, will remember that he made a difference in the quest for world peace.

In an interview on the NBC ''Today'' program, Nixon, who resigned in 1974 rather than face impeachment on charges related to the Watergate scandal, was asked what historians will write about his presidency.

''Well, what historians will write and what history in the broader sense may conclude could be very different,'' Nixon responded. ''Historians generally, you know, are on the left. It's traditionally been the case. It's even more so today and consequently whatever I have done history would probably not have treated me well if we said the historians would provide the verdict.

''But down the road, years ahead, as people look back on the administration, I think they then will determine that what happened under my leadership as president ... did it make a difference in the world, did it increase the possibilities of a more peaceful world, did it increase the possibilities for people to have more freedom, if they reach that conclusion way down the road, then the fact that I resigned the office will not pale into insignificance, it will always be a major problem as far as my record is concerned. But people tend to balance out.''

Nixon said that historically he will be remembered for making a difference ''as far as our relations with China are concerned and in initiating a new relationship with the Soviet Union, in saving Israel with an airlift in 1973, in ending the Vietnam War, ending the draft. I think those events will be remembered.

But, he added, ''Of course, I'm doing a little wishful thinking here, I know, and I would not suggest that historians, the current crop, would ever reach that conclusion.''

As for his own resurgence in the public light, Nixon was asked to reflect on his own words when he said public sympathy comes to even the most controversial with the onset of old age.

''Well, it depends on what the public is,'' said the 77-year-old Nixon. ''Some of the public say, 'My God, is the man ever going to die?' And all they're interested in is reading my obituary. And then there are others who are amazed I'm still alive.

''As far as I'm concerned, what I hope is that my life, in addition to being examples that you can make a difference if you set your mind to it in public leadership, what I hope is that people will remember that I lived by the rule: Never give up. Never look back. Always look forward. And if that is the lesson that young people can get from my life, it will have all been worthwhile. Never give up.''

(MAY 3) UPI - Prices on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange closed slightly lower Thursday amid worries over higher interest rates and increased political tension with China.

The blue-chip Hang Seng Index, which gained 12.58 points Wednesday, slipped 3.15 points to 2,954.61.

Utilities gained 24.79 points, financials lost 11.54, industrials lost 10.63 and properties shed 8.75 points.

Volume continued to be light as 867 million shares changed hands, compared with 811 million shares Wednesday.

Elsewhere in Asia, markets, banks and most major corporations and government offices were closed in Tokyo Thursday and will also be closed Friday for national holidays. Trading will resume Monday, May 7.

In Singapore, prices firmed in thin trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange amid some bargain hunting and selective buying.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which eased 0.22 points Wednesday, rose 7.71 points to 1,465.89. The narrower All Singapore Index rose 1.36 points to 402.97.

Turnover amounted to 42.85 million shares, compared with 37.62 million shares Wednesday.

In Australia, prices closed higher for the third consecutive day on the Sydney Sharemarket as institutional investors scrambled to tie down high-yielding blue-chip stocks.

The All Ordinaries Index, which gained 22.0 points Wednesday, added another 5.0 points to 1467.8.

Turnover amounted to 81.3 million shares, up from the 74.4 million shares traded Wednesday.

PARIS (MAY 3) UPI - France's lower house approved legislation Thursday that would impose heavy penalties on people convicted of inciting racial hatred, including revocation of their right to run for public office or hold a government job.

The deputies in the National Assembly voted, 307-255, for the Communist Party-sponsored legislation ''to repress every racist, anti-semitic and xenophobic act'' after a debate that lasted until 5 a.m.

Political experts said the legislation was a setback for right-wing extremist Jean-Marie Le Pen, who described the measure as undemocratic.

The legislators adopted 10 amendments by Prime Minister Michel Rocard's Socialists, including one deleting a clause that would have deprived offenders of their right to vote.

Another amendement eliminated a proposal that would have allowed the government to strip journalists and editors of their civic rights if their publications contained racist statements.

The opposition Rally for the Republic Party and Union of French Democracy federation voted against the bill but the Socialists supported it.

Communist deputy Jean-Claude Gaysott proposed the legislation following a series of racially motivated killings of Arab and North African immigrants in France and a resurgence in anti-semitism.

Further amendments may be introduced when the legislation reaches the Senate, which is slightly more conservative than the National Assembly, political observers said.

But as it stands, the legislation would deprive offenders of the right to run for political office, strip their eligibility for jury service and bar them from government employment.

The deputies rejected numerous amendments proposed by the only deputy of Le Pen's National Front party in the National Assembly, Marie-France Stirbois.

Stirbois read a list of crimes he said were carried out by Arabs in France and screamed at the leftist benches ''you are the foreigners' parties'' as the one-eyed Le Pen looked on from the public gallery.

Jacques Toubon, speaking for the neo-Gaullist Rally for the Republic, disassociated himself from Stribois but accused the Socialists of ''opening a Pandora's box.''

''This proposal obviously will not have the aim of damaging the rights of journalists and the press,'' he said. ''The government will watch over that.''

Rocard also lashed out at ''lying and odious'' remarks by Le Pen during a May Day rally in Paris.

Le Pen, pledging his vehement opposition to the bill, had called for ''national discipline by all our militants who, if needs be, will receive certain orders that their leaders will give them.'' Political commentators took this as a threat to stage a neo-fascist coup d'etat.

ATLANTA (MAY 3) UPI - Federal attorneys filed their closing briefs in a discrimination case against the Internal Revenue Service in which a light-skinned black contends she was fired because her darker-complexioned supervisor did not like her.

The briefs contend the clerk-typist was fired for incompetence.

Tracy Morrow was fired from the IRS in 1987. She sued the agency, claiming she was fired because her darker-skinned black supervisor, Ruby Lewis, did not like her.

The allegation led to a landmark federal trial earlier this year. Federal attorneys filed briefs this week in lieu of closing arguments in the non-jury trial.

The briefs claim Morrow was not fired because of her skin color but because she was incompetent, could not type or write well and was ''disrespectful, insubordinate, always angry.''

U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye Jr. set a May 10 deadline for briefs to be filed and now must decide whether any color bias or retaliation occurred.

Morrow has argued she was well-qualified and showed initiative in her job.

The defense brief says Lewis could not have discriminated against Morrow because Lewis testified she considers both her skin and Morrow's to be ''medium brown.'' The brief also denies Lewis ever told Morrow, ''You need some sun,'' as Morrow has claimed.

Experts who study color bias testified blacks place high value on lighter skin, which they said suggested Lewis may have resented Morrow.

Morrow was a probationary employee when she was fired in 1987 and cannot appeal her firing, the government's brief claims. The decision to fire Morrow was not made by Lewis but by a white male supervisor who knew Morrow was tardy, had difficulty following directions and did sloppy work, the brief says.

The brief also denies Morrow was fired in retaliation for seeking help from an equal employment office manager.

Morrow is asking for at least $22,409.21 in lost wages, reinstatement to her job, court costs and attorneys' fees.

Moye said at the end of the six-day trial that the credibility of both women was an issue and that simple animosity would not mean discrimination occurred.

The judge could take weeks to release a decision.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (MAY 3) UPI - Afghan government forces launched a massive offensive to recapture positions held by U.S.-backed guerrillas near the strategic eastern city of Jalalabad, resistance sources said Thursday.

They said ground troops backed by fighter-bombers captured some strategic posts and rebel commander Mulla Anar was among those killed in the assault which began early this week north and east of the city.

The sources said the government is trying to recapture positions seized by the rebels early last year before the Feb. 15, 1989, withdrawal of Soviet troops backing the government.

There was no word on the offensive from the communist regime of President Najibullah.

The guerrillas, who are backed by the United States and Saudi Arabia, hold about 90 percent of Afghanistan's territory but have failed to capture any major urban centers despite the Soviet pullout and are desperate for a military victory to prove they are capable of ousting the communist regime.

Najibullah has defied Western predictions of his swift overthrow by the rebels following the Soviet withdrawal.

Jalalabad, 70 miles east of Kabul on the road to rebel bases in neighboring Pakistan, was scene of a massive offensive by the guerrillas in March last year. The operation ended several weeks later in a bloody and humiliating defeat for the resistance.

The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in December 1979 to support a series of Marxist rulers. It withdrew its more than 100,000 troops under an agreement signed in 1988 by Afghanistan and Pakistan.

WIESBADEN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 3) UPI - Frank Reed will return to the United States on Friday, five days after he was released in Beirut, an official said Thursday at the military hospital where the ex-hostage is undergoing medical tests and debriefing.

In London, the Foreign Office said it hoped one of its officials will be able to talk with Reed, who said he spent some of his 44 months in captivity with two British hostages.

The military spokesman in Wiesbaden said Reed was still undergoing medical tests and intelligence debriefing and will fly to the United States Friday.

Reed earlier made an emotional plea for the release of his fellow hostages among them American Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, both kidnapped in 1985, and two British hostages.

''For God's sake, it's nearly the sixth year for these men,'' the 57-year-old American educator said Wednesday in an apparent reference to Anderson and Sutherland.

Iran said it would keep working to free Western hostages in Lebanon held mostly by pro-Iranian Moslem groups, despite a recent State Department report listing Iran among terrorist states. Sources in Iran have said it was awaiting a gesture from the Bush administration to reciprocate for the release of Reed and Robert Polhill, who was freed April 22 after 3 1/2 years as a hostage.

Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei Wednesday criticized the United States and belittled Iranians calling for direct Iranian-U.S. talks.

But in a speech broadcast on Tehran radio and monitored in Athens, Greece, Khameini said, ''We have already said we are willing, as far as we can, to have the hostages freed ... not for the sake of the United States, but for humanitarian reasons.''

Reed, an educator from Massachusetts who was kidnapped in Beirut Sept. 9, 1986, was released by Moslem extremists in Lebanon Monday and arrived in Wiesbaden Tuesday. He said he had spent two years with Anderson, The Associated Press bureau chief in Beirut, and Sutherland, a professor at American University in Beirut.

The 57-year-old lecturer also said he spent almost three years either in the same room or building with London journalist John McCarthy and Brian Keenan, a schoolteacher with dual British-Irish citizenship.

''I can assure you John and Brian are alive and well,'' said Reed, adding he had shared the same room with the two British hostages since October.

''I tell you I am very, very angry that Anderson and Tom are not free,'' Reed told journalists during an impromptu news conference from the balcony of the U.S. military hospital in Wiesbaden. ''I am very, very angry that John and Brian are not free. These are the only people I knew.

''I am embarrassed that I'm out before they are,'' said Reed, his beard shaved off and wearing a pale blue robe. He was flanked by his Syrian-born wife, Fahimeh, and his 9-year-old son, Tarek, on the balcony.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that Reed ''is free to say anything he likes'' and freed hostages ''certainly have a right to be angry and frustrated.''

There had been reports that State Department officials had asked Reed - the second American released in just over a week - not speak out because of concern for six other U.S. citizens still held in Beirut.

Previous reports had indicated several hostages have been held in separate rooms of the same building in southern Beirut and regularly moved together. Intelligence officials believe the hostages are held by various clans of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah group.

''I have not seen Tom and Terry for awhile,'' Reed said, adding he last saw Sutherland ''a year ago last February.''

Anderson, 42, is the longest held Western hostage; he was kidnapped March 16, 1985, in Beirut. Sutherland, 58, a Scottish-born American and dean of American University of Beirut's agriculture school, was seized June 9, 1985, in Beirut.

Keenan was an English teacher at the American University of Beirut when he disappeared April 11, 1986, in Beirut. McCarthy, a reporter for British Worldwide Television News agency, was kidnapped April 17, 1986, in Beirut.

The four are among the six Americans and 10 other Westerners believed to remain captive in Lebanon.

Reed contacted relatives of McCarthy and Keenan Wednesday, and officials said he was also trying to contact the families of U.S. hostages.

The United States has thanked Iran and Syria for their help in winning Reed's release Monday. He followed the same route as Polhill did slightly more than a week earlier, being driven by Syrian officials from Beirut to Damascus and then flown to Rhein-Main Air Base near Frankfurt.

A spokesman at the U.S. military hospital said initial checks on Reed showed ''no major medical problems.''

A U.S. official said Reed was in good spirits, but was still ''decompressing from his ordeal.''

Reed and Polhill, 55, were the first American hostages freed since three others were released in the fall of 1986 as part of the secret Iran-Contra arms-for-hostages swap between the United States and Iran.

Iran and its allies in Lebanon have been trying to trade the remaining Western hostages for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel, 16 Shiites convicted of terrorist bombings in Kuwait and Moslem fundamentalist cleric Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, who was abducted by Israeli commandos in July.

Iran also wants the United States to release the $8 billion to $9 billion in Iranian assets it froze after Iranians seized hostages from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

MOSCOW (MAY 3) UPI - Patriarch Pimen, the leader of millions of Russian Orthodox Christians who oversaw a renaissance of religion under perestroika, died Thursday, Soviet media reported. He was 79.

Patriarch Pimen, who was born Sergei Izvekov, was elected patriarch of Moscow and of all the Russias in 1971 during the Leonid Brezhnev period of stagnation when the official creed of atheism was still encouraged.

But under Mikhail Gorbachev, Pimen led a rebirth of the Russian Orthodox Church, became a supporter of the Soviet leader and was elected a people's deputy in the first largely freely elected Parliament in seven decades.

Neither the official Tass news agency nor Radio Moscow's Interfax service gave the cause of death, but both reported that Pimen died Thursday.

GENEVA (MAY 3) UPI - OPEC oil ministers unanimously agreed Thursday after 26 hours of emergency talks to eliminate nearly 1.5 million barrels per day of excess production until the end of July to reverse a sharp slump in prices.

The agreement was anounced by Algerian Oil Minister Sadek Boussena who is also the president of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

He told a news conference that combined OPEC production in April was about 23.5 million barrels per day against the official ceiling set last November for the first half of 1990 of only 22.086 million barrels per day.

The excess production has caused a 25 percent plunge in prices this year.

Boussena said ministers therefore agreed to reduce daily production by 1.445 million barrels. The new level would put production at 22.05 million barrels per day, just below the official ceiling.

''This agreement, which shall remain valid until the end of July 1990, is supported by all member countries, including the United Arab Emirates, which did not participate in the November (ceiling) agreement,'' Boussena said.

The main quota violators until Thursday were the UAE and Kuwait because they argue their larger reserves entitle them to bigger percentage allocations within the overall OPEC production ceiling.

Saudi Arabia was also pumping as much as 400,000 barrels per day above its quota to maintain its 24.5 percent allotted share of combined OPEC official or actual output.

''The UAE accepted to contribute to the cutback by reducing by 200,000 barrels a day from their actual production,'' Boussena said.

Other delegates said Kuwait would cut by the same amount and Saudi Arabia would respect its official 5.38 million barrel per day quota.

Boussena said the cut would comprise reductions both by overproducers as well as some OPEC members whose production equals or is even below their official share.

The agreement consisted of bigger cutbacks by overproducers and smaller reductions by the others, he said.

''Countries like Iran, Iraq, Algeria, Indonesia and Qatar also decided to reduce even if they are not producing their quota,'' Boussena said.

He said his own country, Algeria, would reduce production by 22,000 barrels per day to show that it and all the other member countries were determined to bolster prices.

OPEC set a target price of $18 per barrel - based on a ''basket'' of seven qualities of crude oil - for the first half of the year.

The average price of oil recently plunged to $14.70 per barrel and curently is around $15.50.

Libyan oil minister Fawzi Al Shakshuki said he believed the agreement to eliminate above-quota production would succeed in strengthening prices.

''The agreement is aimed at boosting prices to their official target of 18 dollars and wipe out the glut in the market,'' he told reporters.

UAE officials said OPEC believes demand for its oil will rise in the third quarter to about 23.5 million barrels per day and then to 24.5 million in the fourth quarter.

Because the cutback to the official first-half combined ceiling of slightly more than 22 million barrels a day was valid until the end of July, ministers put back their regular mid-year conference from June 25 to July 25.

A statement said that conference - to determine production and target prices and possible individual quota reallocations until year's end - would also be in Geneva instead of Vienna where the cartel's secretariat is headquartered.

Holding meetings in Geneva instead of Vienna costs OPEC members at least an otherwise unnecessary $1 million and often more if talks drag on.

Secretariat personnel have to stay at the luxury $220 a night conference hotel and meeting rooms, which are available free at the OPEC building in the Austrian capital, also have to be rented.

A special communications link also must be set up with the OPEC central computer located at the Vienna headquarters.

LONDON (MAY 3) UPI - A mugger wielding a knife seized financial certificates worth some $480 million from a messenger - at face value a record robbery in Britain which Thursday provoked criticism of the Dickensian hand delivery of such documents.

The bonds and certificates were stolen Wednesday when a messenger of Sheppards Moneybrokers Ltd. was robbed of his briefcase in the heart of the City of London while walking from one bank to another.

Although the thief, who disappeared into a crowded subway station, would have trouble spending his haul, the face value of the bonds made it a record robbery in Britain.

"That the City still deals with these bonds and transfers them by hand shows how Dickensian parts of the City still are," said Richard Donkin of the Financial Times in reference to English early 19th century author Charles Dickens. "It always seems to take a long time for the City to get around to modern methods."

Most other financial centers transfer bonds by computer. "The rest of the world would put the lack of modern methods down to English eccentricity. How quaint that the British are still moving around in certificates," Donkin said.

The familiar sight of messengers, usually retired soldiers, walking around the City carrying black pouches will disappear by the end of the year. By then, the Bank of England expects to have its Central Moneymarket Office in full operation. The CMO will replace the physical movement of all money market securities with an electronic book entry system.

The Bank of England has estimated that $50 billion of securities in the form of 50,000 certificates is carried around the City every day, mostly by messengers walking between brokers and banks.

"We are all looking forward to the day when these securities will be whizzed around on computer terminals," said James Barclay, chairman of Cater Allen, the company that owns Sheppards. "That does not mean it is safe because you can get the hacker who can nick them as they go down the wires, but that's too clever for me."

The Bank of England said the prospect of anyone being able to use the stolen bonds was remote. But City moneybrokers said it was technically possible. The bank introduced $410 million of additional liquidity into the market Wednesday as a precautionary measure. It also agreed to protect the owners of the bonds against any losses.

Details of the certificates were circulated to banks around the world as soon as the robbery was discovered. The Bank of England will not know until the expiry date of the bills, July 30, whether it is safe to issue replacements, an analyst said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The Food and Drug Administration approved the AIDS drug AZT for children Thursday, allowing more young people to receive the only medication shown to prolong the lives of those infected with the deadly virus.

''FDA's approval of AZT for pediatric use means that the drug is now officially considered to be a standard therapy for children with AIDS,'' said Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan. ''This status should encourage more insurance providers to reimburse for zidovudine's use in pediatrics.''

The new status provides dosage recommendations for patients 3 months to 12 years of age who have acquired immune deficiency syndrome or symptoms of advanced infection with the AIDS virus. Previously AZT had only been approved for adults.

''After about 10 years of struggling with the AIDS problem in children, I'm very pleased to see it's finally approved,'' said Dr. James Oleske of the New Jersey Medical School in Newark. ''It's not a cure. But it will help.''

Of the 128,319 cases of AIDS that have been reported in the United States, 2,192 are children, said the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. Of the 78,341 deaths caused by the disease, 1,182 have been children, the CDC said.

The decision, which followed the recommendation of an FDA advisory panel in March, was based on government studies sponsored by the Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C., which makes the drug. The studies involved more than 200 children since 1986.

AZT, also known as zidovudine, interferes with the ability of the AIDS virus to reproduce. The drug does not cure the immune system-destroying disease but has been shown to prolong the lives of those infected with the virus and delay the onset of symptoms.

The drug was approved in 1987 for the treatment of patients age 13 and older with AIDS and symptoms of infection with the AIDS virus. It was recently approved for the treatment of patients with less advanced disease who have evidence of immune system suppression.

''While there is no prohibition against physicians prescribing approved drugs for other patient populations, many physicians have been reluctant to use zidovudine in children because of concerns that the drug's side effects might be more severe in them than in other patients,'' the FDA said.

The drug's most significant side effects include inhibiting the production of red blood cells and reducing white blood cell counts.

''Clinical data now indicate that children receiving zidovudine experience side effects similar to those that occur in adults at a similar stage of the disease,'' the agency said.

The recommended dose of AZT for adults was lowered in January after studies showed lower doses were as effective while producing fewer side effects. The recommended dosage for children may also be lowered, the FDA said.

AZT has been distributed to physicians requesting it for children with AIDS or advanced AIDS virus infection since October under a new strategy that allows patients with serious or life-threatening conditions for which there are no alternative treatments to obtain promising experimental drugs.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush, expressing hope that Iran sees recent U.S. efforts as gestures of good will, said Thursday ''there may be other things we can do'' to help expedite the release of captive Americans in Lebanon.

But discussing the release of Americans Robert Polhill and Frank Reed and the prospects for the freedom of others, Bush held out little hope.

''I can't say that I've gotten any feeling that this process is destined to go forward in a short period of time,'' Bush told a news conference.

''I wish it were different. I so wish it were different,'' he said.

But Bush reiterated the U.S. policy of refusing to negotiate with hostage takers and acknowledged concern that any move on his part could be seen as an incentive for kidnappers to continue seizing Americans.

Bush did say, however, that besides discussing Iranian assets frozen in the United States, the administration also is working on behalf of Iran to find information on four Iranian diplomats kidnapped in Lebanon 1982. Bush said the United States believes the diplomats have been killed.

''I would have in mind any gesture that wouldn't be perceived as negotiating for the release of hostages,'' Bush said of what he was prepared to do. ''If there is some way that we can go back and get any information that would relieve the anxiety of the loved ones of those four people, we ought to do that.''

''Here's an area where they've said they'd like some information, and if we can get it, I think we ought to get it. And we're trying,'' Bush said.

''So if that is good will, so be it. I hope it is.

''That's the way I would intend it, and there may be other things we can do.''

Bush's remarks followed the release of Reed, freed earlier this week after 44 months of capitivity, and Polhill, who was freed after 3 1/2 years as a hostage.

Iran has said it would keep working to free Western hostages in Lebanon held mostly by pro-Iranian Moslem groups, though sources in Iran have said the country is awaiting a gesture from the Bush administration to reciprocate for the release of the Americans.

Bush also said he intended to honor a request for confidentiality of a message that Polhill brought to him.

''He did have a message for me, and I've said I'm going to go the extra mile. I'm not going to leave any stone unturned,'' Bush said. ''I don't think that part of it is bad. ... What I do worry about is that if anybody perceives that we're putting a higher price on some human being by all of this.''

Iran and its allies in Lebanon have been trying to trade the remaining Western hostages for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel, 16 Shiites convicted of terrorist bombings in Kuwait and Moslem fundamentalist cleric Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, who was abducted by Israeli commandos in July.

Iran also wants the United States to release the $8 billion to $9 billion in Iranian assets frozen after Iranians seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (MAY 3) UPI - Once-beaten Summer Squall Thursday was installed the slight favorite over undefeated Mister Frisky for the 116th running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday but the 8-5 second choice got the better of the draw for post positions.

Mister Frisky, the Puerto Rican champion trained by two-time Derby winner Laz Barrera, drew the No. 5 post in the field of 16 3-year-olds entered for the $766,000 race - a gate custom-made for his strong front-running style.

Summer Squall, conversely, drew the No. 14 post outside most of the speed horses in the highly competitive field. That gate gives the colt a longer run to get inside to the shortest route around the 1 1-4-mile course. It also could force jockey Pat Day to push Summer Squall a little early to insure he is not left too far off the pace to accomodate his natural front-running style.

The D. Wayne Lukas-trained entry of Land Rush, Real Cash and Power Lunch, who were coupled for betting, were posted the 8-1 third choice on the morning line by Churchill Downs linemaker Mike Battaglia. New York-based Thirty Six Red, winner of the Wood Memorial, was made the fourth choice at 10-1, and Florida Derby winner Unbridled and Arkansas Derby winner Silver Ending were posted as co-fifth picks at 12-1.

A total of 17 colts were expected to be entered before the draw but Fountain of Youth Shot Gun Scott was withdrawn at the last minute, apparently on the advice of veterinarians. No further information was available but the colt had been training poorly for his Calder-based handler Ron Sarazin.

The entire field, from the rail, with jockeys and morning-line odds:

1, Dr. Bobby A., Nick Santagata, 50-1; 2, Killer Diller, James Bruin, 50-1; 3, Pendleton Ridge, Laffit Pincay, 20-1; 4, Video Ranger, Ron Hansen 30-1; 5, Mister Frisky, Gary Stevens, 8-5; 6, Real Cash, Alex Solis, 8-1; 7, Fighting Fantasy, Shane Sellers, 50-1; 8, Country Day, Jose Santos, 50-1.

9, Unbridled, Craig Perret, 12-1; 10, Pleasant Tap, Kent Desormeaux, 30-1; 11, Silver Ending, Chris McCarron, 12-1; 12, Thirty Six Red, Mike Smith, 10-1; 13, Burnt Hills, Pat Valenzuela, 20-1; 14, Summer Squall, Pat Day, 7-5; 15, Land Rush, Angel Cordero, 8-1, and 16, Power Lunch, Randy Romer, 8-1.

Pendleton Ridge and Burnt Hills, both trained by Bobby Frankel, also were coupled for betting. The horses combined for wagering as the mutuel field entry were Dr. Bobby A. and Country Day.

The race, to be televised by ABC, is set to go to post at 5:32 p.m.

The winner's share of the purse is $591,000. Second place is worth $100,000; third place, $50,000 and fourth, $25,000.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for June delivery was down 40 cents from Wednesday's close to $18.38 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt delivery WTI was quoted at $18.35 a barrel, down 30 cents. On the European spot market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent slipped 16 cents to $16.19 a barrel.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was trading at $14.56 a barrel, a 17 cent loss.

"The market was not impressed with the size of the cut. The market is estimating near-term demand for OPEC crude at less than the output reduced to," said Michael McDermott of Paine Webber Inc. in New York.

"In the short term it does nothing to alleviate the (world crude oil) surplus," the trader said. "The market only rallied earlier this week on the expectation that OPEC would make significant cuts," McDermott said.

Oil ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced in Geneva that their emergency meeting had agreed on a reduction of 1.5 million barrels from the current 23.5 million barrels a day. OPEC pumps more than a third of the world's crude oil and attempts to control prices by limiting the cartel's output.

The cartel agreed in November to an output ceiling of 22 million barrels daily for the first six months of 1990, but had been pumping way over this amount because of members violating their quotas.

Peter Beutel of Elders Futures Inc. in New York said the market was "moderately disappointed" that the OPEC cut was not deeper.

Bill Hinton of Stotler & Co. in New York cited reports that the United Arab Emirates was not guaranteeing its cut of 200,000 barrels a day, only that it would try to reduce by this amount. "We're still trying to sort (the agreement) out," Hinton said.

Kuwait and the UAE, with excess capacity, have been the main violators of OPEC quotas, creating a world glut in crude. As a result, Saudi Arabia has raised its daily output by about 600,000 barrels over its 5.4-million-barrel quota in order to maintain a 24.5 percent share of the cartel's output.

On the Merc, unleaded gasoline for June delivery was down 0.35 cent to 60.60 cents a gallon.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush said Thursday that a rowdy May Day protest against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was not a signal of instability and welcomed the Soviet leader to ''the fruits of democracy.''

Asked about Gorbachev getting jeered at the traditional communist May Day celebration in Red Square earlier this week, Bush quipped, ''He ought to come join some of the parades I go to around here. It goes for your horse too.''

But the president, drawing on his own experiences, also noted that such expressions of dissent come with the territory.

''Look, that's the fruits of democracy,'' Bush told a news conference. ''He's just learning. So I wouldn't read too much into that. Yes, there's some discontent and a lot of it relates to the economy. And some of it relates ... to the handling of Lithuania.

''But there's a good side to all of this. I sometimes ask myself if that's true. But it is. Because that's the way fledgling democracies are beginning to work and that's the way our system has worked.''

Bush also noted that rambunctious demonstrations are commonplace in the United States and said if everybody believed that meant instability, ''there's got to be something crazy because that isn't the way it works.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - A resolution urging Mayor Marion Barry not to seek re-election was scheduled to be presented to the D.C. Democratic State Committee at its meeting Thursday night.

The resolution cites Barry's Feb. 15 indictment on drug charges, his upcoming trial and his health problems after admitting he is an alcoholic in asking him to announce now that he will not seek a fourth term.

The resolution contends it is the committee's duty to hold elected officials ''to the highest standards of conduct,'' and claims the city's ''progressive programs and long-term goals are at risk.''

The resolution, obtained Thursday by United Press International, claims the city has benefited from ''the visionary and competent leadership of Mayor Barry for three administrations, (but) the mayor's leadership is now in question because of his need to attend to his health problems and legal defense.''

It also contends Barry's ''former strong moral leadership of the struggle against drugs and drug-related crimes ... has been weakened by his health problems and legal difficulties.''

The one-page resolution was expected to be voted on at a meeting of the city's 72-member Democratic State Committee. A majority of the members would be needed to approve the resolution.

Barry's spokeswoman, Lurma Rackley, said Barry had no comment on the resolution and would not attend the meeting.

Barry, 54, faces trial June 4 on three felony perjury and five cocaine possession charges. He would be precluded from holding office only if jailed after conviction on a felony.

Barry, who has appeared at one forum for mayoral candidates, has said he will not officially announce whether he is a candidate until after the trial.

Barry underwent seven weeks of in-patient treatment for what he contends is alcoholism and addiction to prescription drugs after his Jan. 18 arrest on a cocaine possession charge.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - Hooded thieves smashed a huge plate glass window in one of SoHo's largest galleries Thursday and snatched about $1 million in art and antiquities in a lighting-fast heist, police and the owner said.

Kenneth Nahan, owner of the Nahan Gallery, said detectivs told him the thieves had police scanners and fled in two cars moments before police arrived, leading them on a 90 mph chase that included a police helicopter.

But the chase, involving investigators who had been on an apparently unrelated stakeout nearby, ended on the Brooklyn side of the Manhattan Bridge, where the thieves lost the pursuing officers, police said.

''The police told me their car couldn't go as fast as these souped-up cars were going,'' Nahan said.

Police said the thieves threw a bag of bricks though the gallery's enormous plate glass window and snatched the artworks.

Nahan said three etchings by French artist Max Papart and Roman and Egyptian antiquities from the second and third centuries B.C. were taken and the preliminary estimate put the value of the works at more than $1 million. He said an inventory was being taken.

''In four minutes they had everything they were after,'' Nahan said. ''They must have been very fast becase to come in that window to break open the showcases and cherry-pick everything - they must have known what they wanted.''

Police Officer Ralph St. Just said the thieves fled in a black Chevrolet and a white Chrysler.

CHICAGO (MAY 3) UPI - The Alliance Against Intoxicated Motorists is providing the ultimate incentive to get people to turn in drunk drivers - cold cash.

The ''Drunkbusters'' program, which begins Friday, offers a $100 reward to every mobile phone user who calls a special number to report a drunk driver who is subsequently arrested and charged with driving under the influence.

''We've set aside $10,000 for the program and we'll run it as long as the money holds out,'' AAIM's president David Osborn said Thursday. ''If the program goes real well, we'll find more money for it.''

Callers who believe a driver is intoxicated are asked to take the suspect's license plate number, location, direction and automobile identification and call a special number (star symbol, 999.)

Such calls can be accepted only from car phones to the 999 number, which is the Cellular Express line of the state Department of Transportation Department, which is cooperating in the project.

The caller is given an identification number that can be used later when calling AAIM to see if the suspect was arrested.

AAIM advises motorists to watch for abrupt lane changes or drifting from lane to lane, tailgating in light traffic, driving with headlights off at night and turning too widely or too narrowly.

''It's not a cat-and-mouse game between police and drunks anymore,'' said Osborn. ''It's between drunks and the public, and we want them to participate more in spotting drunk drivers.''

TORONTO (MAY 3) UPI - Canadian Tire Corp. Thursday reported first-quarter earnings of $28.6 million, or 31 cents a share, up 2.7 percent from $27.9 million, or 31 cents a share, in the year-ago period.

Revenues at the retailer edged up to $556.7 million from $547.3 million in the first quarter of 1989.

Canadian Tire said its earnings reflected ''a challenging retail environment'' which resulted in its merchandising division reporting lower operating revenues.

Weather patterns in the first quarter had a significant impact on corporate shipments to dealers and a reduction of inventories at associate dealer stores across Canada, the company said.

Canadian Tire said revenues at its real estate, petroleum divisions and consumer credit divisions increased during the quarter.

''We are optimistic that we can maintain our sales and earnings momentum as we move through the balance of the year,'' the company said.

Canadian Tire is one of Canada's largest retailing company's with a network of 414 stores and 25,000 employees across the country.

MINNEAPOLIS (MAY 3) UPI - Cowles Media Co., owner of the Star Tribune, reported Wednesday net earnings of $31.1 million, or $12.61 a share, in the fiscal year ended March 31, up from $12.2 million, or $4.85 a share, in the previous year.

Cowles said its revenues for the year rose to $329.8 million from $315.8 million a year earlier.

In the fourth quarter, the company posted sharply higher earnings of $21.2 million, or $8.73 a share, compared with $2.0 million, or 81 cents a share in the year-ago period. Fourth-quarter revenues were $78.9 million, down from $79.2 million in the year-ago period.

After eliminating the effects of one-time gains and charges in both years, ernings rose 6 percent from $11 million to $11.8 million, the company said.

The net earnings include the sale of the Rapid City Journal and the Great Falls Tribune.

Cowles owns newspapers, magazines and book publishers in Minnesota, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

PARIS (MAY 3) UPI - A Syrian drug trafficker smuggling heroin to the United States from West Germany with CIA protection allowed Palestinian terrorists to place a bomb on the Pan American Boeing 747 that exploded over Scotland in 1988, killing 270 people, a French newspaper said Thursday.

The newspaper Le Figaro quoted Pan Am officials as saying in a report handed to American investigators that the CIA had ''played with fire'' by protecting the smuggling ring led by multimillionaire Syrian narcotics dealer Monzer Al Kassar.

The CIA hoped to use contacts with the gang to obtain the freedom of U.S. hostages held by Moslem fundamentalists in Lebanon, said the report in the conservative daily.

Al Kassar, who also enjoyed protection from the West German counterespionage service BKA, allegedly agreed in late 1988 after a series of meetings in a Lebanese restaurant in Paris to put his smuggling ring at the disposal of the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command.

The group, led by Ahmed Jibril, wanted to avenge the downing of an Iranian jetliner by the American cruiser USS Vincennes in the Persian Gulf with the loss of 290 lives, Le Figaro said.

Al Kassar drove from Paris to Frankfurt Nov. 25 taking with him the atmospheric-pressure triggered Semtex bomb provided by the PFLP-GC that was to be used in the attack on the U.S. jetliner, Le Figaro said, adding that Al Kassar had denied this part of the story and furnished an alibi.

The newspaper said a 20-year-old Lebanese American with Moslem fundamentalist sympathies, Khaled Nazir Jaafar, was used to check a suitcase onto Pan Am Flight 103 from Frankfurt to London Dec. 21, 1988.

After his check-in, Turkish airport employees at Frankfurt working for the drug smuggling ring substituted a Samsonite suitcase containing the bomb for the bag Jaafar had checked, Le Figaro said.

At London Heathrow Airport, the Samsonite bag containing the sophisticated bomb was not detected. It exploded aboard at a height of about 30,000 feet on the ill-fated flight to New York while over the Scottish town of Lockerbie, killing everyone aboard.

The newspaper report also tentatively identified an anonymous caller who rang the U.S. Embassy in Helsinki, Finland, Dec. 5 and warned of an attack on the route from Frankfurt to New York.

''The author could be a Lebanese named Abou Talp, today jailed in Stockholm. He would have taken part in the 'final wrapping' of the booby-trapped suitcase,'' Le Figaro said.

When the Federal Aviation Administration issued a warning to U.S. airlines after the call, ''the CIA and the BKA, used to that kind of threat, did not show any particular tension.''

''The American services, sure of their deal with Al Kassar, were persuaded that terrorists would not strike the 'protected' line of Pan Am Flight 103 of the drug traffic. They were wrong,'' said the report.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Paris said he had no comment on the Le Figaro report.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush expressed disappointment Thursday that martial law remains in China nearly a year after the violent crackdown against pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square.

But Bush offered ''no apologies'' for his policy of trying to keep open the lines of communication with China by opposing stricter sanctions against the communist nation.

Bush noted Beijing has allowed the return of the Peace Corps and a correspondent for the Voice of America, but he acknowledged his disappointment to reporters.

''I'm disappointed. I would hope that there would be a more vigorous response. There are some things going in the right direction, but overall I'm disappointed,'' Bush told a news conference.

''I have no apologies,'' he said, ''no feelings that I took the wrong path.''

Referring to some restrictions on military assistance and educational and cultural exchanges, Bush said, ''We did by executive action everything that Congress would have done by legislative action.''

Bush also issued an executive order permitting Chinese students with expired visas to stay in the United States until 1994.

As for what steps he has in mind for China, Bush smiled, ''We've got some diplomacy in mind.''

Deng Xiaping and other Chinese leaders have remained adamant about their June crackdown against the student demonstrators, who held the world spellbound with their protest. Two trips to Beijing by national security adviser Brent Scowcroft and deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger failed to move the Chinese government to ease up on the repression.

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY (MAY 3) UPI - Democratic Forum leader Jozsef Antall, the man favored to become the next prime minister, accepted the task Thursday of trying to form Hungary's first non-communist government in more than 40 years.

Antall, as head of the largest party in the newly elected Parliament, was expected to forge a center-right coalition with two smaller parties by the end of the month.

''What I am accepting is to try and lead this country and nation out from this situation bordering on a crisis, or at least to guide it toward the correct road,'' Antall told the Parliament.

''I shall strive to safeguard all that the Hungarian people have achieved over the past centuries and decades with suffering, work, faith, strength and will.''

Acting President Arpad Goncz asked Antall to form a new government 24 hours after the Parliament, elected in multi-party elections in March and April, convened for the first time in the neo-gothic National Assembly building on the banks of the Danube.

In one of its first official acts, the Parliament elected Goncz as National Assembly president and then elevated him to acting president of the republic. The 67-year-old lawyer and writer is expected to be named full president by the end of May.

Before adjourning its inaugural session, the Parliament approved a resolution expressing solidarity with Lithuania in its quest for indpendence from Moscow.

In an apparent reference to Moscow's economic sanctions against Lithuania, the resolution declared ''unacceptable'' any steps intended to stop Lithuania from exercising its right to self-rule. But lawmakers rejected a more strongly worded statement that would have likened Lithuania's plight to that of Hungary during the 1956 democratic uprising that was crushed by Soviet tanks.

Antall, 58, has been viewed as the likely candidate for prime minister since his party won a landslide victory in Hungary's first democratic elections in more than 40 years.

Virtually unknown a year ago, he rose in a few months from historian and library director to leader of the country's most powerful non-Communist Party.

The son of a government official credited with saving the lives of Poles, Jews and Allied prisoners of war during World War II, Antall last worked as director-general of the Semmelweis Museum, Library and Archives on the History of Medicine in Budapest.

In his acceptance speech, Antall said Hungary has arrived at a historical hour ''when we can try to take our fate into our own hands.'' But, he cautioned, ''we cannot have any illusions.''

''Not everyone wants us to be successful, inside and outside Hungary's borders. But we must show the world Hungary is stable politically and is on an ascent,'' he said.

No single party won enough votes in the elections to command a majority in Parliament but the Forum, the largest with 165 of the 386 seats, is expected to have little difficulty forging a governing coalition with smaller, like-minded parties.

Forum leaders rejected a coalition with its chief non-communist rival, the liberal Alliance of Free Democrats, and the Hungarian Socialist Party, successors to the old Communist Party.

As the dominant party in the National Assembly, the Democratic Forum was awarded the chairmanships of five of 10 parliamentary committees. Leadership of the remaining committees was divided among five other parties.

To make way for the new government, Prime Minister Miklos Nemeth formally tendered his Cabinet's resignation but said the ministers would continue to serve until the new government is in place.

He said the Hungarian Socialist Party - the revamped Communist Party, which now holds 24 seats in the Parliament - would work to ensure a peaceful transition from one-party rule to multi-party democracy.

Dozens of the new legislators served long prison sentences under the reprisals that followed the crushing of the rebellion by Soviet tanks. After the bill was passed the entire Parliament stood and applauded for several minutes.

No single party won enough votes in the elections to command a majority, but the center-right Democratic Forum, the largest party with 165 of 386 seats, is negotiating with two smaller parties to form a conservative coalition.

The liberal Free Democrats, the second-largest party with 92 seats, is expected to become an opposition party, as is the Socialist Party.

LONDON (MAY 3) UPI - Stock prices closed slightly lower in slow trading Thursday on the London International stock exchange as investors took to the sidelines amid worries over local government elections.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 19.7 points Wednesday, slipped 2.7 points to 2,134.9. The narrower top 30 industrial average eased 1.4 points to 1,676.6.

Volume was around 392 million shares, compared with 433 million shares Wednesday.

Market watchers said many institutional investors were still sidelined because of the elections Thursday and inflation figures expected to be released early next week.

Some brokers were worried that Britain's warm weather could mean an above average turnout, which from past experience is usually more helpful to the opposition Labour Party.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Imperial Chemical Industries gained 16 cents to $17.68 following news of U.S. government approval for the use of its AZT drug to treat children with AIDS.

Wellcome PLC, the pharmaceutical giant, eased 34 cents to $10.48, after reporting its latest six-month earnings rose only 28 percent.

OPEC's agreement to reduce production by 1.5 million barrels a day helped oil shares. British Petroleum added 8 cents to $5 and Shell Oil gained 4 cents to $7.05.

Rolls-Royce slipped 10 cents to $3.09 after announcing a joint venture with German automaker BMW.

Among the day's other highlights, Pilkington lost 10 cents to $3.07, Heywood Williams gained 24 cents to $4.11 and Saatchi gained 14 cents to $1.65.

Elsewhere in Europe, prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange climbed 2.1 percent in active trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 30.16 points Wednesday, climbed another 38.38 points to 1,881.79.

Traders said stocks surged in response to Wednesday's agreement on the terms of the German monetary union.

On the economic front, the Economics Ministry reported West Germany's industrial production dropped 0.7 percent in March from February but was up 3.7 percent from year-ago levels.

Analysts said prices were also boosted by the Bundesbank council's decision to leave key interest rates unchanged.

JERUSALEM (MAY 3) UPI - The military imposed a curfew on the West Bank town of Nablus and surrounding refugee camps Thursday in an effort to prevent violence while a Jewish religious institute dedicated a Torah scroll.

The army feared the religious ceremony Thursday, which was attended by settlers and right-wing politicians, would become a political event and would be viewed as a provocation by Palestinians, who see any increased Jewish activity as a threat.

Settler leaders had hoped for a large turnout at the Joseph's Tomb Yeshiva in Nablus, but the military planned to allow only 100 participants in the Torah scroll dedication ceremony and to limit press coverage. About 107,000 Palestinians were confined to their homes by the curfew.

In response to plans for the dedication, activists from the left-wing Peace Now movement went to Israel's High Court of Justice to force the military to allow protesters to demonstrate outside the religious school. In a compromise, the military and Peace Now agreed that 20 protesters would be allowed to demonstrate, Army Radio reported.

Peace Now had hoped for a large turnout at the demonstration, placing advertisements in Israeli newspapers Wednesday that criticized the transitional government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir for seeking more settlements ''instead of peace.''

The ceremony to dedicate a Torah scroll at the yeshiva would be turned into a celebration of the ''elimination of the peace process'' by right-wing members of Parliament, Peace Now said.

''Come and condemn the abomination of Nablus because peace is better than the Greater Israel,'' the advertisement said.

Left-wing Israelis have accused Shamir of stepping up attempts to settle more Jews in the occupied territories. Reports have indicated the government is looking into the possibility of allowing the students to stay overnight in the Nablus yeshiva instead of only studying at the religious institution.

If the Jewish religious students are allowed to sleep at the yeshiva, it would be seen as another step toward a permanent Jewish settlement in the West Bank's largest Arab town. Presently, there is no Jewish settlement within Nablus.

Arab fears of increased Jewish settlement have been heightened lately because of government plans to expand settlements in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and the Jewish occupation last month of a church-owned building in Jerusalem's Christian Quarter.

In the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip, Palestinians observed a commercial strike in solidarity with the residents of the U.N.-run Jabalia refugee camp, where three Palestinians and more than 100 were wounded last week during clashes with Israeli soldiers. The outlawed Islamic Resistance Movement, known by its Arabic acronym Hamas, called the strike.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday approved a proposal to tighten the ban on exports of raw timber logged on federal lands in the West and to sharply curb the overseas sale of logs from state lands.

The measure was swiftly adopted as an amendment to a bill reauthorizing the Export Administration Act. The bill was then approved on a voice vote and sent to the full House.

The measure originally was advanced by the Washington state delegation, but Rep. John Miller, R-Wash., told the committee Thursday he was offering the amendment ''on behalf of the entire delegations from Washington and Oregon.''

The measure is aimed at capturing for domestic lumber mills at least 600 million board feet of raw timber a year that otherwise would be exported from ports in Oregon and Washington, supporters said.

''It will help us preserve jobs in timber-dependent communities ... without compromising U.S. trade policy,'' Miller told the committee.

Supporters of the amendment say thousands of jobs in domestic lumber mills are lost when U.S. timber companies sell raw logs to foreign mills, mostly in Japan, for processing into finished wood products.

Log exports, once encouraged to provide overseas markets at a time of timber surpluses, are widely seen as contributing to a growing scarcity of timber supplies.

Adding to that problem is the likelihood that the northern spotted owl will soon be listed as a threatened or endangered species, putting vast amounts of forest land off lmits to logging to protect the bird.

The amendment passed Thursday was drafted as an alternative to a similar proposal sponsored by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., and overwhelmingly adopted by the Senate as part of a separate trade and tariffs bill.

A number of key lawmakers from Oregon have expressed support for the new measure in the House, and Packwood said Wednesday, ''It looks to me that it's about 95 percent of my bill ... in which case it's a whale of a victory.''

It appeared more likely Thursday the Packwood amendment would be abandoned in favor of the log export amendment to the export administration bill when that legislation eventually moves to the Senate.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The Senate Ethics Committee will hold trial-like public hearings in its investigation of Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., it was announced Thursday.

The committee said it voted Wednesday to order the public hearings and said they would begin June 12. Two weeks of hearings have been scheduled, the announcement said.

It will be the first public hearing held by the committee since the case of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., who was convicted in 1981 on charges stemming from the Abscam scandal. Williams resigned in 1982.

The committee, which launched a preliminary inquiry in February, said that there was evidence that Durenberger's arrangement with Piranha Press Inc., - which paid him $100,000 in 1985 and 1986 for two books he wrote - violated limits on outside income and other regulations.

The committee also said that limousine service provided Durenberger in 1985 and 1986 during trips to Concord, Mass., may have violated Senate rules on conflict of interest.

In its announcement, the committee said it was continuing its preliminary inquiry into allegations that Durenberger received reimbursement from the Senate for rent on a Minneapolis condominium.

KATMANDU, NEPAL (MAY 3) UPI - At least 500 persons died during the seven-week democracy movement in the Himalayan kingdom that led to the fall of a 29-year-old partyless form of government, Prime Minister Krishna Prasad Bhattarai said Thursday.

''Our estimate is that at least 500 persons died during the movement,'' Bhattarai, who was an opposition leader before becoming prime minister, told a meeting organized by lawyers to discuss Nepal's new constitution.

Previous reports have indicated at least 52 people were killed when police clashed with protesters demanding democracy in the landlocked monarchy and Bhattarai did not explain how he obtained the new figures.

However, human rights leader Rishikesh Shaha said, ''Bhattarai is near to the truth. My estimate is 500 to 600 persons.''

Shaha referred to a confrontation when troops fired on demonstrators marching to the Royal Palace shortly before King Birendra consented to a multi-party democracy last month.

''I have reports from witnesses who have said authoritatively that bodies that night were carted off in at least four trucks,'' he said. ''You can imagine how many bodies can be loaded in one truck.''

A former human rights activist with links to the government said he thought ''at least 400 persons were killed during the movement'' and added the prime minister ''must be speaking on the basis of some facts.''

Bhattarai was inaugurating a three-day conference by the Nepal Law Society to discuss the new constitution.

The king suspended parts of the current constitution regarding institutions of the ousted partyless panchayat system. Nepal's first multi-party government in 29 years was appointed by the king with emergency powers in the present constitution.

Bhattarai said King Birendra, who has extensive powers, wants to become a constitutional monarch.

''We have had extensive discussions,'' Bhattarai said. ''The king has to be constitutional. He has agreed. He is fed up. I am not pushing him.

''The king is also agreed that other members of the royal family should have less powers,'' Bhattarai told a cheering audience.

The queen, Birendra's brother and other members of the royal family have extensive businesses and head such institutions as the Nepal Red Cross.

Bhattarai, who heads an interim government pending elections, reiterated a committee will be formed soon to draft a constitution within 90 days.

He said the constitution will incorporate the right of ''freedom of worship,'' as requested by Christians.

Nepal is the world's only Hindu kingdom and proselytizing is a punishable offense, but freedom of religion is tolerated. There are 50,000 Christians among the population of 19 million, who are mostly Hindus and Buddhists.

''Nobody will have the right to shred the new constitution to pieces and trample upon it,'' Bhattarai said.

Guest speaker Albert Blaustein, a professor of law and constitutions at Rutgers University School of Law in New Brunswick, N.J., said the new constitution must be ''made by Nepalese and it must be framed to meet the needs of the Nepalese people.''

''There is a vacuum of power,'' said Blaustein, who has helped draft constitutions for other countries. ''An interim constitution should be framed immediately that should help come out with a polished constitution.''

Blaustein, noting the military's ''enormous strength,'' said, ''The new constitution must restore civilian supremacy over the military.''

In another development, state-owned Radio Nepal said two watchmen at a district panchayat office in the west Nepal town of Pokhara were arrested in an investigation of an arson at the office Sunday. News reports and local residents have said people believed loyal to the previous panchayat government set the fire to destroy possibly incriminating records.

Monday, residents angry about the fire mobbed the home of a local official demanding arrests and two members of the crowd were shot to death.

DALLAS (MAY 3) UPI - Vice President Dan Quayle said Thursday he does not think a rape comment by the Republican candidate for Texas governor or accusations against a GOP advanceman will harm his party's chances for an election victory.

Since his arrival for two days of campaigning in Texas, Quayle has been dogged by reporter's questions about accusations that an advanceman assigned to his campaign raped a Baylor University coed. No charges have been filed.

During a news conference Thursday, Quayle was asked if the rape issue would hurt the GOP in Texas in light of the Waco investigation and a controversial remark that gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams made in March during a West Texas cattle roundup.

''Absolutely not and I addressed that yesterday in Waco,'' he told reporters.

Quayle was questioned in Waco Wednesday night at his first campaign stop about the police investigation of the alleged rape.

''We deplore the incident, have strong sympathy for the woman involved, her family, her friends. The individual involved has been relieved of his duties and we anticipate and expect a fair and impartial investigation,'' Quayle said.

The advance man was relieved of his duties Tuesday after the investigation was revealed.

Qyayle expressed indignation that Democrats would attempt to use the issue as evidence of Republican attitudes toward women.

''This incident has absolutely nothing to do with Clayton Williams and it's outrageous to ever suggest that it does,'' he said. ''The people of Texas are fair and they're smart. They'll see through any attempt to make any connection, which is just totally absurd.''

Williams has been criticized for a comment he made in March during a rainy cattle roundup when he compared the weather to a woman being raped. ''If it's inevitable, just relax and enjoy it,'' he said.

Quayle praised Williams as an outstanding businessman and an excellent candidate for governor. ''He will bring his talents, his energies and his intellect to helping the people of Texas,'' he said.

LONDON (MAY 3) UPI - Sunny skies brought heavy voter turnout Thursday for local elections considered to be the biggest test of popularity for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's beleaguered government before general elections.

The results will critically influence the political future of Thatcher, who was rated in one opinion poll as the most unpopular British leader since surveys began in 1935.

Opposition Labor leader Neil Kinnock predicted his party would make major gains, of 200 to 400 seats, mostly because of Thatcher's poll tax scheme, which has caused protests across the nation.

About 29 million people were eligible to cast ballots in 183 local councils throughout Britain for 5,062 seats. The 12,000 other council seats will not be up for election until 1991.

Predictions of a 50 to 60 percent voter turnout were pushed up when much of the nation awakened to cloudless skies, and temperatures soared into the 80s in the southeast.

The broad range of seats up for election across England, Scotland and Wales was viewed as a test of support for Thatcher's Conservative Party, which various opinion polls show was lagging behind the opposition Labor Party by 19 to 28 percentage points.

Public ire against Thatcher has been fueled by her poll tax, a flat fee set by local councils to pay community costs. The scheme has aroused anger because it forces those who are less well off to pay more than under the previous property rate scheme, while considerable savings are afforded the rich.

Thatcher's sagging popularity has also been spurred by high interest rates rising inflation and a growing perception that after nearly 11 years in power she has become autocratic and out of sync with those urging closer economic union with Western Europe.

Voting was watched closely in London's Wandsworth and Westminster and the central English city of Bradford, three constituencies where the Conservatives have marginal holds but low poll taxes.

Analysts believe defeat in these councils will prove Thatcher is heading for an uphill battle in general elections that must be held before mid-1992.

Westminster Council leader Lady Shirley Porter expected a Conservative win in her district, despite the sunny weather.

''People used to say Conservatives fared better in bad weather because it used to be only the Conservatives who had cars, but if you look around housing estates today, everybody has cars because the Conservatives have made everyone better off,'' she said.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 3) UPI - Accused Nazi criminal Josef Franz Leo Schwammberger arrived Thursday from Argentina and was taken to a maximum security prison to await trial on charges he murdered and tortured Jews at death camps with his own hands.

The 78-year-old, described as one of the 10 most wanted Nazi criminals, was flown by helicopter from the Frankfurt airport Thursday morning to the Stammheim maximum security prison near Stuttgart.

''The arm of the law is long,'' said West German Justice Minister Hans Engelhard of the Schwammberger, who he said was removed from Argentina after ''one of the most difficult and longest procedings ... for the extradition of an alleged National-Socialist criminal.''

Engelhard said in a statement no one suspected of serious crimes under Adolf Hitler's Nazi regime ''is safe from the reach of justice - wherever in the world he may be.''

Schwammberger, the suspected former commandant of the Przemysl and Mielec concentration camps in Poland, arrived at Frankfurt airport Thursday morning aboard a West German airliner, escorted by a lawyer, a doctor and security officials.

Argentine authorities handed him over to West German security officials Wednesday in Buenos Aires.

Officials said Schwammberger, who reportedly suffers from heart and nerve ailments, would undergo medical tests at Stammheim and that legal proceedings will probably start in August.

Observers say it will be one of the last major trials of a suspected Nazi criminal.

In a telephone interview with United Press International, Rabbi Marvin Hier, dean of the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles, said the trial of Schwammberger in Stuttgart ''will be unique.''

''This will be the first major trial of a Nazi war criminal since the fall of the Berlin Wall,'' he said. ''This will be the first opportunity for many young Germans, particularly East Germans, to confront the evil that was Nazi Germany.''

Schwammberger was arrested in a rural area of Argentina Nov. 13, 1987.

Argentina does not have an extradition agreement with West Germany but prosecutors argued that Schwammberger illegally obtained Argentine citizenship by hiding his arrest record, therefore was not an Argentine and could be deported.

Schwammberger, who maintains he is innocent, is believed to have fled to Argentina in 1948 after escaping from a French detention camp, where he reportedly signed a confession admitting that he murdered 35 prisoners at the Przemysl concentration camp in Poland and kept their belongings.

Hier said Argentina's decision on Schwammberger leaves Alois Brunner as the Wiesenthal Foundation's most sought after accused war criminal.

He said Brunner, Eichmann's former deputy, now lives in Damascus, Syria, under the alias ''Dr. George Fisher'' under the protection of the Syrian government.

(MAY 3) UPI - White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater set the tone for today's meeting between President Bush and Lithuanian Prime Minister Prunskiene at the White House. Lithuania is appealing for diplomatic recognition by the United States and is urging Bush to demand that the Soviets lift its economic blockade.

A memorial to the four students killed during a campus anti-war demonstration will be dedicated tomorrow at Kent State University... 20 years to the day after Ohio National Guardsmen opened fire. WARSAW, POLAND (MAY 3) UPI - West German President Richard von Weizsaecker looked to the past and the future Thursday during an historic trip to Poland, visiting the former Treblinka concentration camp before discussing stengthening ties with Polish leaders.

Weizsaecker, who as a teenager was one of thousands of Nazi soldiers who invaded Poland over 50 years ago, laid flowers at a monument at the death camp in southeastern Poland where 750,000 Jews died during World War II.

Earlier in the day he laid a wreath at the site of a Jewish uprising in the old Warsaw Ghetto. Jews, forced into the ghetto by Nazi troops and slowly liquidated, rebelled there April 19, 1943, but were crushed by the Germans.

''The presence of a German president at this monument is an important element in the construction of reconciliation between Germans and Jews,'' Pawel Wildstein, a representative of Warsaw's small remaining Jewish community told Weizsaecker.

''It is our obligation to be a humanitarian neighbor and cooperate economically, 45 years after the atrocities which took place here,'' Weizsaecker replied.

Polish leaders have said they trust the German president. He has supported Poland's demand that its border with Germany remain inviolable. As a German soldier during the war he once protested against the conflict by shooting a portrait of Adolf Hitler during a meeting of Nazi officers.

Weizsaecker arrived Wednesday on a four-day official visit, the first German president to visit Poland since the formation of the Federal Republic of Germany in 1949.

Weizsaecker also held talks Thursday on the future of Polish-German relations with Bronislaw Geremek, the chairman of the Solidarity Parliamentary Caucus.

Geremek later described Weizsaecker as ''one of the greatest moral and political authorities in Europe.''

''Following the talk, I got the feeling that an independent and democratic Poland has found in President Weizsaecker not only a friend but also a major European partner,'' he said.

Geremek said East and West Germay, which are planing to reunite into a single Germany, should both sign a treaty that would guarantee the Polish western border with Germany along the Oder and Neisse rivers.

The border issue is a touchy one for Poland, which fears a united Germany may try to regain former German territory given by the Allies to Poland at the end of World War II.

(MAY 3) UPI - OPEC oil ministers meeting in Geneva are pointing fingers at three member-nations whose over-production is pushing oil prices sharply below the cartel's target. Most pressure for above-quota production cuts is falling on principal violators Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia. The 13 ministers are holding a second day of talks to re-establish production quotas.

A second day of talks begins this afternoon in Cape Town, South Africa, between the white minority government and the African National Congress. A joint communique said yesterday's opening session was ''characterized by openness and straightforwardness.'' The respective delegations are led by A-N-C leader Nelson Mandela and South African President De Klerk.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The nation's spending on health care jumped 10.4 percent between 1987 and 1988, a spurt that exceeded growth of the national economy and could stymie the public's ability to pay for quality care, a government report said Thursday.

National health spending in 1988 reached $539.9 billion, or $2,124 per person, the Health Care Financing Administration report said, representing a a 10.4 percent jump from 1987 spending.

''What a dollar bought in 1987 took $1.11 in 1988,'' explained Bob Hardy, a spokesman for the financing administration.

The 1988 figures show a resumption of double-digit growth after a period of more moderate increases - a 15 percent increase in 1980 dropped to an average 11 percent increase during 1980-1985, then dipped to 7.2 percent in 1986 and rose to 8.5 percent in 1987.

''The trends shown in this report are not cause for celebration,'' said Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan. ''Health expenditures have been growing faster than the national economy for many years. This growth will strain the ability of the American people to pay for quality health care.''

Sullivan urged government and business leaders, public and private institutions, health care professionals and consumers to ''work together on the problem of making quality health care affordable and available to every American.''

For 1988, for each dollar spent on health care, 32 cents came from private health insurance, 21 cents from direct patient payments, 17 cents from Medicare, 10 cents from Medicaid, 15 cents from other government programs and 5 cents from other private sources, such as industrial in-plant health care.

For each dollar spent, 39 cents went to hospital care, 19 cents went to physicians' services, 8 cents went to nursing home care, 22 cents went to other personal health care (such as dental, home health, drugs and durable medical equipment) and 12 cents went to other spending, such as program administration, government public health and research.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IN (MAY 3) UPI - An Amtrak train struck a line of freight cars and derailed before its last scheduled stop, injuring 30 people in the carrier's second passenger train accident in two weeks, authorities said Thursday.

Investigators said they were checking an electronic track switch to determine whether it was faulty and led to the latest wreck, which involved a Chicago-to-Indianapolis ''Hoosier State'' train around 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Thirty people aboard were hurt in the derailment of the train, which had been moving very slowly at the time of the accident, officials said. An Apr. 23 derailment of an Amtrak train in Iowa injured 97 people.

Montgomery County police dispatcher Jane Brown said most of Wednesday's injuries included cuts and bruises, although one person suffered a dislocated shoulder and a few people had internal injuries.

Six people, including the train's conductor, were admitted to Culver Union Hospital in Crawfordsville for observation. said hospital spokesman David Callecod. They were in stable condition and none of the injuries was considered life-threatening, he said.

Amtrak spokeswoman Debbie Hare of Chicago said there were as many as 38 passengers and crew members on the train.

''This was a non-reservation train and we won't know exactly how many passengers were aboard until we get a count of the conducter's ticket pouch,'' Hare said.

The train had been diverted onto a siding, or side track, and struck a line of 13 stationary Conrail freight cars, said Pat Kelly, an Amtrak spokeswoman in Washington. She said the impact caused three Amtrak passenger cars to jump the tracks.

The derailed passenger cars remained upright and the locomotive did not leave the track, Kelly said.

The accident occurred minutes after the scheduled stop in Crawfordsville by the ''Hoosier State'' train, Kelly said. Crawfordsville, a town of about 18,000 people, is 45 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

The train was switching from a CSX-owned track to a Conrail-owned track at the time of the accident and was moving very slowly because of its recent stop, Amtrak spokeswoman Sue Martin said.

Investigators were trying to determine why the train was diverted. Authorities said preliminary reports from the scene suggested a possibly defective track switch may have been responsible. The electronic switch can work on automatic.

The train holds 200 people, but police officials on the scene said only 29 passengers and five crew members were aboard when it derailed.

Those passengers not hospitalized were transported by bus to Indianapolis.

At Union Station in Indianapolis, worried relatives and friends waited late Wednesday for word on their loved ones as they heard reports of the derailment.

''They say she was on the train, and she's at the hospital right now,'' said a despondent Raymond Rutland of Indianapolis, who was waiting for his mother to arrive, soon after he heard news of the derailment. ''She hurt her shoulder and her knee. That's all I know right now.''

Most of the crowd left by 10:45 p.m., after Amtrak officials told the group that no one was killed and that most of the injuries were minor.

Freight trains run on the same line as Amtrak during the overnight hours, but no word was available as to whether they had to cancel their runs.

Amtrak officials said passengers who had been scheduled to travel on the line from Indianapolis to Chicago at 9:30 a.m. Thursday would go by chartered bus instead.

On April 23, Amtrak's California Zephyr derailed in Batavia, Iowa, injuring 97 passengers. No one was killed but 23 people were hospitalized when eight cars jumped the tracks and three tipped on their sides.

Investigation of that wreck has centered on the track condition although no cause has been officially determined. Drug and alcohol tests on the crew turned up negative.

Martin said drug and alcohol tests will be performed on the crew of the ''Hoosier State'' train.

''That is the procedure,'' she said. ''But we have no reason to suspect that drugs and alcohol were involved.''

DAMASCUS, SYRIA (MAY 3) UPI - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said Thursday he hoped for an end to the decade-old rift between Iraq and Syria but conceded that serious differences remain between the two ideological foes.

Mubarak, shortly before leaving Damascus at the end of a two-day visit, said he raised the issue of Syrian-Iraqi relations in three private sessions with President Hafez Assad, who has ruled out Syrian participation in a pending Arab summit in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

''I talked in depth with President Assad yesterday on this issue but there are still several points that need an effort, not only on the part of Egypt but also on the part of all friends in the area, in order to narrow the gap between Iraq and Syria,'' Mubarak said.

He said ''there is no specific plan'' for the foreign ministers of Syria and Iraq to meet in Cairo before the May 15 summit to settle differences between the two countries. But he said, ''We want to solve the problem between the two sisterly countries.''

Mubarak's diplomatic efforts came during the first visit to Syria by an Egyptian leader in 12 years. Cairo and Damascus, long at odds over President Anwar Sadat's decision to sign a peace treaty with Israel, recently restored diplomatic ties.

In Cairo, Western diplomats said Egypt took on the role of peacemaker between the two sides. They said there are indications a rapprochement between Damascus and Baghdad is likely despite the difficulties.

A gradual normalization of ties between Iraq and Syria, ruled by rival factions of the Ba'ath Socialist Party, would alter the balance of power in the region and have immediate strategic consequences for both Israel and Iran, the diplomats said.

After his rift with Baghdad in the 1970s, Assad became the only Arab leader to ally with Iraq's Persian Gulf foe Iran, and the enmity and mutual suspicion between the two states runs deep.

Syria's alliance with Iran after Ayatollah Khomeini's 1979 revolution also helped Assad further his ambitions in Lebanon, where he remains a key power-broker with 35,000 troops in the strife-torn nation.

Although Western diplomats predict an improvement in ties, earlier this week Iraqi Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassim discounted the possibility of restoring relations with Syria and called Assad a ''liar.'' But Iraq said Thursday that Assad would be welcome to attend the Arab summit in Baghdad.

In his comments before returning to Cairo, Mubarak also said Syria was interested in joining the Mideast peace process, which has been stalled since the collapse of the Israeli government in March.

''(Assad) agreed with me that a peaceful solution to the Middle East issue is the most ideal solution, provided it is comprehensive and just,'' Mubarak said.

The Egyptian leader said the restoration of ties between Syria and Egypt would boost Palestinian aspirations for statehood.

''I believe the restoration of relations (between Egypt and Syria) is extremely important for the Palestinian issue,'' he said.

Assad, who was became president in 1971, expelled Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, from Damascus in 1982.

Since then he has given refuge to such anti-Arafat Palestinian groups as George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, led by Ahmed Jibril.

Egypt has represented the PLO in preliminary talks with the United States and Israel to establish an Israeli-Palestinian dialogue in Cairo.

Mubarak also said Assad is interested in continuing the effort to secure the release of Western hostages held in Lebanon.

''(Assad) is very keen to help in solving this problem but in a peaceful and extremely secure way,'' Mubarak told reporters.

''(He) has told me that he will do his best for that. Although we discussed this issue, I'm not going to go into more details because this might complicate the whole issue,'' Mubarak said.

On Monday, pro-Iranian Lebanese kidnappers freed Frank H. Reed, who spent 3 1/2 years in captivity. Another American hostage, Robert Polhill, was released April 22, leaving six Americans still in the hands of their abductors.

Both hostages were handed over to Syrian intelligence officers in Lebanon and then driven to Damascus where they were handed over to U.S. diplomats and later flown to West Germany.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The House voted overwhelmingly Thursday to reject a batch of unrelated Senate amendments to an emergency money bill that includes the aid package sought by President Bush for Nicaragua and Panama.

Among the 180 amendments added by the Senate was one that would allow the District of Columbia to use its tax money for abortions. The provision caused Bush to veto the district's regular appropriation bill last year and brought warnings of a new veto if the language remains in the aid bill.

The Senate passed its version of the bill Tuesday, clearing the way for House and Senate negotiators to begin working out a compromise version of the emergency supplemental spending bill.

But the House voted 388-8 Thursday to instruct its representatives to accept Senate amendments only if they concern emergency funding requirements, which would apply to only a handful of the amendments.

The bill proposes spending about $2.7 billion for both foreign and domestic programs during the current fiscal year, including $300 million for the new U.S.-backed government of Nicaragua and $420 million for Panama.

The House passed the bill last month but got bogged down in the Senate until it finally was cleared by a voice vote Tuesday.

Bush had wanted Congress to approve the aid in time for Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro's inauguration April 25, and he harshly criticized the lawmakers for failing to meet the deadline.

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara was in Washington earlier in the week and said it is vital that Panama receive help as soon as possible.

Unlike the House, the Senate included an amendment allowing the District of Columbia to use its tax money for abortions. The Senate also added an amendment allowing the death penalty in the district for drug-related murders.

White House officials say the aid in the spending bills is acceptable but that Bush will veto the legislation if the House and Senate agree to include the abortion language during compromise talks. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater called Bush's veto threat ''irrevocable.''

In addition to foreign aid, the bill includes money for a variety of domestic purposes ranging from $705 million for food stamps to $137 million for relief from disasters such as Hurricane Hugo and $7 million for fighting an expected grasshopper outbreak this summer in the northern Plains.

DURANT, MS (MAY 3) UPI - An Amtrak train carrying about 200 passengers Thursday from Chicago to New Orleans slammed into a log truck at an unmarked crossing, injuring up to 20 people, authorities said.

It was the third accident by an Amtrak train in 10 days.

A spokeswoman at District 2 Community Hospital in Durant said between 17 and 20 people were treated for mostly minor injuries and released. She said the truck driver, Andrew W. Borden, 69, was transferred by helicopter to a Jackson city hospital about 58 miles south of Durant. He was in serious condition.

Clifford Black, a spokesman for Amtrak in Washington, D.C., said three of the injured were crew members - an engineer, an assistant engineer and an on-board services chief. The extent of their injuries were unknown, he said.

Tony Breazile, a police department dispatcher, said the crash occurred as the truck driver was either entering or leaving the Memphis Hardwood Flooring Co. via a private marked railroad crossing near U.S. 51, the main street through Durant.

''The truck driver was trapped inside the vehicle for about an hour before he was removed from the crushed cab with the 'Jaws of Life,''' Breazile said.

Black said ''the train combined in Carbondale, Ill., and became one train, and that's why we have more passengers than we originally thought.''

The train, called ''The City of New Orleans'' and ''The River Cities,'' carried an estimated 200 passengers and about 13 crew members southbound to New Orleans when it slammed into the truck about 9:40 a.m. CDT.

The train's three engines and the first three cars - carrying baggage, spare road wheels and other utilities but no passengers - derailed but were ''upright,'' Black said. The remaining 10 cars did not derail, Black said.

''There is no correlation between these three accidents,'' Black said, referring to an Amtrak train derailment Wednesday in Crawfordsville, Ind., and another April 23 in Batavia, Iowa.

''They're pure coincidence. To draw similarities would be misleading.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush simply bowed to political reality in Europe Thursday by announcing a willingness to remove unwanted short-range nuclear weapons. He failed to mention their intended replacement: an air-launched missile.

''We're trading in two handguns and replacing them with an assault rifle '' said Daniel Plesch of the British American Security Information Council. ''I think that has to send a negative signal (to the Soviets).''

Bush announced he was canceling modernization of short-range nuclear forces in Europe and he opened the door for U.S.-Soviet negotiations on removing all such weapons following the signing of a conventional arms reduction agreement.

He appeared to have little choice.

The United States has an estimated 3,710 ground-based nuclear warheads in Europe - about 700 on the aging Lance short-range missile, 1,500 on artillery shells and another 1,500 on gravity and depth bombs.

Lance - mostly in West Germany - has a range of about 80 miles and artillery has a range of about 18 miles. In other words, the only targets these weapons can hit are the Eastern European countries that are now friendly to the West.

In addition, the West German, Belgian and Dutch governments - in the wake of the dramatic developments in Eastern Europe - made it clear their citizens were not going to stomach more ground-based nuclear weapons on their soil.

According to a recent U.S. government analysis in West Germany, 85 percent of the populace supports removal of all nuclear weapons.

The U.S. plans to replace the Lance in Europe with an updated version, for all intents and purposes, was already dead before Bush made his announcement.

In agreeing to forego modernization of Lance and nuclear-tipped artillery shells, Bush was simply avoiding a devisive issue for the NATO alliance.

It is also hoped by administration officials that the removal of short-range weapons from West Germany might lead the Soviets to acquiesce to membership of a unified and perhaps nuclear-free Germany in NATO.

At the same time, however, the United States is developing what it considers to be a more palatable alternative for NATO - an air-launched nuclear missile that would not have to be stationed as close to the Western-Eastern divide and would be less visible to Europe's anti-nuclear activists.

Bush requested $118.6 million in his fiscal 1991 budget for a Short-Range Air Missile-Tactical (SRAM-T), also called the Tactical Air-to-Surface Munition or TASM, with a range of about 280 miles.

These new missiles, strongly supported by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, could be fired from afar from fighter aircraft in Europe during a conflict and strike the western Soviet Union.

Gen. John Galvin, supreme allied commander of Europe, said after the fall of the Berlin Wall, ''I think that it is absolutely necessary that we have a missile that, with the combination of the aircraft, will give us the range to reach the Soviet Union.''

Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., agreed and a senior British government official told The New York Times: ''TASMs are absolutely the key, the key to it all.''

At a NATO meeting in Brussels Thursday, Secretary of State James Baker refused to say if TASM would be part of any short-range arms control treaty, saying he preferred to ''duck'' the question.

This was probably because it is still unclear whether NATO members other than Britain would be willing to accept this new air-launched nuclear missile.

What is clear is that the issue of TASMs will become a key part of future NATO meetings on the West's nuclear strategy in Europe.

''NATO is having to reach for a new rationale for nuclear weapons in Europe,'' said David Shorr of the British American Security Information Council.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday approved a proposal to tighten the ban on exports of raw timber logged on federal lands in the West and to sharply curb the overseas sale of logs from state lands.

The measure was swiftly adopted as an amendment to a bill reauthorizing the Export Administration Act. The bill was then approved on a voice vote and sent to the full House.

The measure originally was advanced by the Washington state delegation, but Rep. John Miller, R-Wash., told the committee Thursday he was offering the amendment ''on behalf of the entire delegations from Washington and Oregon.''

The measure is aimed at capturing for domestic lumber mills at least 600 million board feet of raw timber a year that otherwise would be exported from ports in Oregon and Washington, supporters said.

''It will help us preserve jobs in timber-dependent communities ... without compromising U.S. trade policy,'' Miller told the committee.

Supporters of the amendment say thousands of jobs in domestic lumber mills are lost when U.S. timber companies sell raw logs to foreign mills, mostly in Japan, for processing into finished wood products.

Log exports, once encouraged to provide overseas markets at a time of timber surpluses, are widely seen as contributing to a growing scarcity of timber supplies.

Adding to that problem is the likelihood that the northern spotted owl will soon be listed as a threatened or endangered species, putting vast amounts of forest land off lmits to logging to protect the bird.

The amendment passed Thursday was drafted as an alternative to a similar proposal sponsored by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., and overwhelmingly adopted by the Senate as part of a separate trade and tariffs bill.

A number of key lawmakers from Oregon have expressed support for the new measure in the House, and Packwood said Wednesday, ''It looks to me that it's about 95 percent of my bill ... in which case it's a whale of a victory.''

It appeared more likely Thursday the Packwood amendment would be abandoned in favor of the log export amendment to the export administration bill when that legislation eventually moves to the Senate.

LONDON (MAY 3) UPI - A knife-wielding mugger seized financial certificates worth $479 million from a messenger in London's financial district,, provoking criticism Thursday over the ''Dickensian'' system of hand-delivering monetary documents.

The bonds and certificates were stolen Wednesday when a messenger from Sheppards Moneybrokers Ltd. was robbed of his briefcase in the heart of The City of London - London's financial district - while walking from one bank to another.

Although the thief, who disappeared into a crowded subway station, would have trouble spending his haul, the $479 million face-value of the bonds made it a record robbery in Britain.

Details of the certificates were circulated to banks around the world as soon as the robbery was discovered so bank offcials would be on guard if the thief tried to cash in the documents.

As a precaution, however, the Bank of England introduced $410 million of additional liquidity into the market Wednesday and agreed to protect the owners of the bonds against any losses.

The bank will not know until July 30, the date the bills expire, whether it is safe to issue replacements.

''That The City still deals with these bonds and transfers them by hand shows how Dickensian parts of The City still are,'' said Richard Donkin of the Financial Times. ''It always seems to take a long time for The City to get around to modern methods.''

Most other financial centers in the world transfer bonds by computer.

''The rest of the world would put the lack of modern methods down to English eccentricity. How quaint that the British are still moving around in certificates,'' Donkin said.

The familiar sight of messengers, usually retired soldiers, walking around the city's financial district carrying black pouches will disappear by the end of the year. By then, the Bank of England expects to have its Central Money Market Office in full operation. The office will use a computer system to transfer all money market securities.

The Bank of England estimates $50 billion worth of securities in the form of 50,000 certificates are carried on the streets of London every day, mostly by messengers walking between brokers and banks.

''We are all looking forward to the day these securities will be whizzed around on computer terminals,'' said James Barclay, chairman of Cater Allen, the company that owns Sheppards. ''That does not mean it is safe because you can get the hacker who can nick them as they go down the wires but that's too clever for me.''

JACKSONVILLE, FL (MAY 3) UPI - Sandy Caron can look down and see her toes again, something she hasn't been able to do for years.

Her problem was that she had put on weight after each of her six pregnancies and had ballooned to 270 pounds. Dieting didn't help.

''I just thought I was fat,'' said Caron, 47.

Now she knows different. Caron's weight problem was actually a 65-pound tumor that doctors say occupied 95 percent of her abdominal cavity.

''I've seen ovarian tumors that were 30 to 40 pounds. But in 28 years of doing surgery I've never seen anything like this,'' Dr. William J. Garoni Jr. said Wednesday.

Her tumor came to light last week when Caron went to a hospital, complaining of chest pains. She thought she was having a heart attack but an electrocardiogram revealed no problems and the pain eventually subsided.

The emergency room doctor, however, wouldn't let her leave.

''He kept looking at my stomach, and then my arms, then at my stomach, and then my arms,'' Caron said from her hospital bed Wednesday. ''Then he said 'I don't think your stomach should be that big.'''

A CAT scan - a three-dimensional X-ray picture - disclosed the tumor. Garoni operated 3 1/2 hours to remove it. He also removed her gallbladder, which was filled with gallstones and was probably the source of her chest pain.

A laboratory analysis showed the tumor was a low-grade liposarcoma, a slow-growing benign tumor that can develop cancerous cells, Garoni said. A hernia in Caron's abdominal wall allowed it to grow to its giant size.

The tumor originated in the tissue lining the abdominal wall and spread. It was attached to a portion of her bowel, left kidney and part of her pancreas, which had to be removed to ensure all of the tumor had been extracted.

Garoni estimated Caron had carried the tumor for about eight years.

''Lately my stomach had been getting hard and I was joking with my kids that I was starting to get firm,'' Caron said. ''The whole thing is kind of scary. I'm glad the doctor didn't let me leave the emergency room.''

The Guinness Book of World Records says the largest tumor was a 328-pound malignancy removed from a Texas woman in 1905.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - Avon Products Inc. stockholders elected two representatives of a dissident investor group to the cosmetics giant's board Thursday and urged the company to put its poison-pill provisions to a vote.

Avon agreed last month to nominate two representatives of Chartwell Associates, a partnership that has amassed a 16 percent stake in Avon and includes representatives of Avon rival Mary Kay Corp., to avert a bruising and costly proxy fight.

The two Chartwell representatives elected to Avon's board were M. Anthony Fisher, a member of the Fisher real estate family of New York, and Marc E. Leland, an adviser to oil heir Gordon Getty.

"In order to avoid a disruption to our business, Avon agreed to nominate two Chartwell representatives and form a special committee whose charge is to review all alternatives for enhancing shareholder value," Avon Chairman James E. Preston told shareholders at the company's annual meeting.

Preston, who steered the company clear of two takeover offers last year and has urged Chartwell to stop buying shares in Avon, declined to answer a stockholder's question about whether the board now would consider sale of the company or the leveraging of its balance sheet in order to lift its stock price.

A top Mary Kay executive, John J. Rochon, will be a member of the special committee and is to become a consultant to Avon for one year as part of the agreement that allowed the company to skirt a proxy battle.

Avon shareholders, against the recommendations of the company's management passed two resolutions urging the board to put to a shareholder vote the company's poison-pill plan that is intended to foil unfriendly takeover attempts.

"The poison pill prevents shareholders from acting on premium offers for their shares," William Steiner, an Avon shareholder and a member of the grassroots United Shareholders Association, told the meeting. After a challenge from Chartwell, a federal judge last week struck down an amendment that would have strenghtened Avon's complex poison-pill plan.

Avon, which sells its beauty products in more than 100 countries and had revenues last year of $3.3 billion, last month filed a lawsuit against Chartwell that seeks to void the partnership's purchase of shares in the company.

Despite the vitriolic legal wrangling, Preston took exception to shareholder's suggestion that Avon and Chartwell have a "hostile" relationship. "I would call it very businesslike," Preston said. Preston declined a shareholder's request to allow the two Chartwell nominees, Fisher and Leland, to detail their objectives as board members.

After the meeting, Fisher declined to comment when asked if Chartwell would take any action in light of the passage of the two resolutions urging a stockholder vote on the poison-pill plan.

In other business, Avon shareholders passed a resolution calling for a confidential proxy vote and defeated a motion to institute a shareholders' advisory committee. Avon also declared quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share for common stock and 50 cents a share for preferred stock.

MIAMI (MAY 3) UPI - Firefighters struggled against 20-mph winds Thursday to halt a 22,000-acre sawgrass fire burning out of control west of Miami and to keep a 10,000-acre fire in the Everglades from jumping fire lines.

The larger fire was moving rapidly westward and threatening to jump a levee.

''If we can contain it east of the levee, we can probably keep it under 30,000 acres. If it jumps the levee, then there's no telling how far it could go,'' said state forestry division spokesman Gene Dempsey.

Winds blew from the southeast at 15 to 20 mph, under hot and sunny skies, whipping the flames up as high as 15 feet into the air.

''The wind is just pushing the fire,'' said Dempsey. '' It's moving toward the levee at a high rate, but it does help in that it's keeping smoke out of the urban area.

The larger fire was in a conservation area that is used to hold water in canals. It's also used as a buffer zone for Everglades National Park.

The fire began Wednesday and was believed to have been started by people, although investigators had not determined whether it was arson or an accident, Dempsey said.

The other fire, farther south, covered 10,000 acres in and around Everglades Natonal Park.

''The fire made some short runs, giving us some problems,'' said Everglades National Park spokeswoman Pat Tolle. ''With this wind the fire will move more rapidly if it does break out.''

Ninety-five firefighters, including a special 20-member park service crew from Ashville, N.C., were trying to put it out. Helicopters were continuing to dump 75-gallon buckets of water on the flames.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The Senate Agriculture Committee voted to modify the "swampbuster" program Thursday to make it easier to catch violators but to also give farmers some leeway to drain land with minimal wetland value.

Under swampbuster, farmers face the risk of losing all farm program benefits if they drain a wetland and plant crops on it. Swampbuster was one of four programs created in 1985 to link environmental and farm program goals.

Proponents, including Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., called the changes an even-handed compromise. Environmentalists, who had feared a setback, said the compromise would improve the program.

Committee members met privately for an hour before voting in a 40-minute session to tentatively add the swampbuster modifications to their version of the new farm policy law. Only Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., voted against the package.

Under the committee plan, first-time violators could face a penalty ranging from $750 to $10,000 and farmers could receive permission to drain land with minimal wetland values or, in some cases, if they agreed to restore an equal-sized wetland. Farmers would have to get permission from the Fish and Wildlife Service as well as the Agriculture Department.

In addition, the trigger point for determining a violation would be when a wetland is drained. By comparison, at present there is no violation unless a crop is planted, there is only the "drop dead" penalty of loss of all benefits and offsetting mitigation is rarely allowed. "It is a good, realistic compromise," Leahy said, urging colleagues to balance farm interests with the nationwide interest in preserving wetlands.

Sen. Kit Bond, R-Mo., applauded the language to allow mitigation and drainage of land with minimal wildlife values. He said it would take care of instances where a wetland "may form a small pocket in the middle of a field" and hinder cultivation.

Bond said there have been 175 cases in which farmers were denied farm payments under swampbuster, including a case in Missouri where a farmer lost $37,000 in payments because of planting one acre. "Some of these penalties appear to be particularly draconian," Bond said.

The Agriculture Department said there have been less than 200 penalties underswampbuster. Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said there were 127 instances in which farmers were denied benefits totaling $1.8 million for swampbuster violations on 760 acres - an average of $14,000 an acre.

Critics have faulted the government as being unwilling to enforce swampbuster. From 60 million to 80 million acres are covered by swampbuster. There were proposals earlier this year to exempt land from swampbuster if it had been cropped for six of the last ten years. That would have removed as many as ten million acres.

Ken Cook of the Center for Resource Economics said the new trigger on violations would improve the program, as would the system of graduated penalties for first-time violations. "We heard many times 'If the penalty was not so stiff, we'd impose it,'" Cook said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush passionately defended his wife's selection as commencement speaker at Wellesley College, declaring Thursday that students who protested the choice ''have a lot to learn from her.''

''She wants to go and is not at all concerned about it,'' Bush told a news conference when asked for his personal reaction to the protest.

Some 125 to 150 students in the senior class at the women's college near Boston criticized the decision to give the first lady an honorary degree at their June 1 commencement ceremonies. They complained she is being honored because of the achievements of her husband when the college had always stressed recognition for individual accomplishments. They called her a ''poor role model.''

In an interview with a group of reporters Wednesday, Mrs. Bush shrugged off the complaint, saying of the president: ''I think George cared much more than I did.''

Bush responded to the controversy Thursday with an ardent defense of his wife laced with some humor. Asked if his wife's accomplishments were largely related to her marriage to him, he quipped: ''I can't have any argument with that.''

But when asked if he was concerned about the Wellesley protest, Bush said, ''Yes. And Mrs. Bush herself has put it that her ability to serve as, I think, a terribly effective point of light stems from the fact that she is married to the president of the Unites States.''

The president's program to promote volunteerism is called ''A Thousand Points of Light,'' and he refers to anyone singled out for exceptional service as ''a point of light.''

''But I think,'' Bush said, ''that these young women have a lot to learn from Barbara Bush and from her unselfishness and from her advocacy of literacy and being a good mother and a lot of other things.''

''She's not trying to be something she's not,'' Bush said. ''The American people love her because she's something she is, and stands for something.''

College administrators say they have no intention of withdrawing their invitation.

In her interview, Mrs. Bush called the students' concerns ''reasonable,'' but affirmed motherhood as ''the best job you do in life,'' The Boston Globe and Washington Post reported Thursday.

''I thought they were very reasonable,'' Mrs. Bush said. ''They're 21 years old and they're looking at life from that perspective. I don't disagree with what they're looking at.''

But the first lady said the protesters, who first made their concerns known last month in a campus rally and petition, were overlooking parenting as a legitimate occupation.

''I don't care who you are, I still think the best job you do in life is just raise your children,'' she said. ''I hope they won't opt not to have families, and I hope they won't opt not to be great parents.''

Mrs. Bush, then Barbara Pierce, dropped out of Smith College in 1944 at the end of her freshman year to marry Navy flyer George Bush.

She said that she had an opportunity to attend Connecticut College while her husband went to Yale University after World War II but she ''chose not to.''

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND (MAY 3) UPI - The biggest production cutback promised by OPEC members Thursday in an attempt to boost prices was 430,000 barrels a day by Saudi Arabia - the most powerful member because of its enormous reserves. The Saudis were followed by neighboring Gulf states and fellow quota violators Kuwait and United Arab Emirates.

The agreement was to eliminate excess unauthorized production by 1.445 million barrels a day to bring combined daily output down to just about the official OPEC ceiling of 22 million barrels as day. OPEC officials said the reductions in barrels a day are as follows:

-Saudi Arabia	430,000
-Kuwait	400,000
-United Arab Emirates	200,000
-Nigeria	140,000
-Libya	77,000
-Gabon	73,000
-Indonesia	40,000
-Iraq, Iran, Algeria each	20,000
-Venezuela	15,000
-Ecuador	7,000
-Qatar	3,000
Total	1,445,000 million barrels a day.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush said Thursday the embattled chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. recommended that he be replaced by a career government official working on the bailout of the savings and loan industry.

FDIC chief William Seidman suggested that William Taylor, acting president of oversight board of the Resolution Trust Corp., take over at the agency that insures accounts at the nation's banks and thrifts, Bush said.

''Bill Seidman asked to see me a while back (and) said he was not going to fulfill his rest of his term,'' Bush told a news conference. ''Today, he called me and with the name of a successor that he enthusiastically supports.

''I think Seidman has conducted himself with extraordinary grace and great ability,'' Bush said. ''And I've known him for years, worked with him ... way back when.''

Reports circulated this week that Bush wanted to replace Seidman, 69, a critic of the administration's plans to clean up the savings industry, who has warned of the escalating cost of the thrift rescue, which could hit $500 billion.

Seidman, whose term expires in 1991, said at an appearance Wednesday in Grand Rapids, Mich., ''I read in the paper the president was mad at me ... then I heard on TV he wasn't.''

''Does anyone know how the president feels about me?'' he asked.

Bush seemed to make it very clear Thursday, although he insisted, ''Hey, listen. I haven't told you I'm anxious to see Bill Seidman leave.''

Taylor, 50, has served as acting president of the RTC Oversight Board since February, after serving in various capacities at the Federal Reserve Board since 1976. He has also held positions in the financial industry and began his banking career at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago in 1961 as an examiner.

Bush, in rejecting the notion that he was getting rid of Seidman - who also oversees the RTC - because of his esclating bailout estimates, said, ''If all the people who brought bad news in here were told to do something else it would be pretty lonely.''

On Wednesday, Seidman said his relationship with the Bush administration has been ''pretty smooth.''

But the FDIC chief, appointed by President Reagan in 1985, did suggest that he might step down if the thrift bailout hits its second-quarter goal of taking over 140 ailing institutions.

''What I've said was that I would like to get the RTC up and running, and I think it's pretty well on it's way,'' Seidman said. ''We have an ambitious target for this quarter ... and if we can accomplish that I would say we're well on our way.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush acknowledged Thursday that the U.S. arrest of a Mexican doctor in a 1985 drug-murder case has led to ''some misunderstanding'' between the two countries but said he hoped the controversy had not damaged relations.

Making his first comment on the thorny issue that has prompted a harsh reaction from the Mexican government, Bush also alluded to ''an official system of rewards'' the United States has in place for information leading to drug arrests.

But the president did not say whether U.S. drug agents had made such an offer in the controversial arrest of Humberto Alvarez Machain, a Guadalajara gynecologist indicted in the 1985 abduction and murder of Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena.

Alvarez has asserted he was spirited from his home and handed over to DEA agents in the United States. A longtime DEA informant in Los Angeles said he had arranged for the abduction of Alvarez, using 10 Mexicans, with DEA approval and the promise of payments of up to $100,000.

In the past month, the circumstances of the arrest have become a major irritant in U.S.-Mexican relations, fueled by Mexican charges that the DEA violated the country's sovereignty and illegally abducted one of its citizens. The case rekindled Mexican concerns about U.S. gunboat imperialism prompted by the December invasion of Panama.

''The United States has had a system, an official system of rewards,'' Bush told a news conference, mentioning the case of Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega, who was ousted in the U.S. invasion. ''There were some rewards out - but I hope the relations haven't been damaged.''

The controversy overshadowed a trip last week by Vice President Dan Quayle to the Mexican capital, where he met with President Carlos Salinas de Gortari and pledged that the United States would not violate the sovereignty of Mexico or any other country.

Quayle and other U.S. officials have insisted that no DEA agents in Mexico were involved in the Alvarez arrest.

''We have had superb cooperation from Mexico in fighting drugs - outstanding,'' Bush told reporters. ''And so I salute them. But yes, there was some misunderstanding here. And I've told our key people: eliminate the misunderstanding. We don't want misunderstanding with Mexico. We don't need it. We need continued cooperation.''

As far as U.S. agents going into Mexico on drug-related matters in the future, Bush said, ''That's a matter for Mexico to decide.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Member nations of the International Monetary Fund are likely to agree next week on increasing the institution's $120 billion capital by 50 percent, a senior U.S. Treasury official said Thursday.

The official, who asked not to be identified, also said the Treasury is concerned with the drop of the Japanese yen so far this year but sees no cause for alarm as exchange rates have been "reasonably" stable since the Paris meeting of the Group of Seven industrial nations in early April.

Finance ministers and central bankers of the G-7 nations - the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada, and Italy - will convene Sunday in Washington, prior to spring meetings Monday and Tuesday of the IMF and the World Bank.

The official, at a briefing with reporters, said that the world economy performed favorably since the G-7 meeting and that there has been "progress" in diminishing financial imbalances between the United States, Japan and the European Community. Yet, "continued price pressures are worrisome and we need vigilance" on inflation, he said.

The Treasury expects higher inflation rates for the first half of the year in the industrial countries but lower rates in the second half. "The underlying (price) trend is favorable" despite an increase in the U.S. monthly inflation rate during April, he said.

More generally, the Treasury strongly supports a central role for the IMF in the global economy, in the international monetary system and in Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady's strategy to alleviate developing countries' debt, he said.

The main item on the agenda for Sunday's G-7 meeting will be increasing the IMF's $120 billion capital, the official said, adding, "I believe we will wrap up" the question of by how much the capital should be increased.

IMF Managing Director Michel Camdessus has asked for a 100 percent of capital, used to back lending to developing nations. But the Treasury official said a consensus has emerged on a 50 percent hike in capital.

Similarly, he said there is consensus that Japan should move from being the fifth-largest IMF shareholder, perhaps sharing the No. 2 position with West Germany, currently the No. 3 shareholder.

The United States is the largest shareholder in the IMF. Voting rights on the organization's policies are based on the size of a nation's ranking as a shareholder. "Chances are that Japan and Germany are going to end with the same quota," he said.

However, Britain, now No. 2, and France, currently No. 4, are at loggerheads about which nation should occupy to the No. 4 and 5 shareholder slots if Japan were to move up or about whether the two countries should jointly hold the No. 4 position.

Their disagreement, based on arguments on which country has the strongest economy, could delay making progress on the IMF capital increase, the official warned. In 1983, the IMF's capital was increased by 47 percent, the official said.

The Bush administration could present to Congress a request for an additional U.S. capital contribution to the IMF this year or in 1991, the official said. The official also said that there has been progress in defining a strategy to deal with 11 countries that are about $4 billion in arrears on their payments to the IMF.

The plan would give countries in arrears two to four years to work out their problems under IMF supervision, with support provided via some exceptional IMF financing so that eventually they will be able to pay their overdue debts.

Countries unwilling to enter such a program would be "punished," a measure designed to act as a deterrent to other nations tempted to fall in arrears upon experiencing payments problems, the official said. He didn't elaborate on how they would be punished. A country that does not collaborate with the IMF can be expelled from the multilateral organization.

Agreement about how to deal with the overdue debts was a condition to reaching a consensus about the IMF capital increase, the official noted. The G-7 will consider these issues and present its proposals to the IMF's Interim Committee, a policy advisory body, on Monday. It is expected that the committed would approve the proposals.

The official also said that Brady's debt plan "is working and has been a success" and that he does not expect a revision of the strategy.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - The Joffrey Ballet, one of the nation's premier dance companies, has been taken over by an operating committee of its board two years after the death of founder Robert Joffrey, resulting in the resignation of its artistic director, it was announced Thursday.

Director and company co-founder Gerald Arpino walked out Tuesday, taking the repertory he and Joffrey created for the company with him, according to his attorney, Harold Messing. The company opened its four-week spring season in Los Angeles Wednesday and scheduled an all-Arpino program Thursday.

''They had Mr. Arpino's permission to dance Arpino and Joffrey works on Wednesday and Thursday but as of Friday, that permission has been withdrawn,'' Messing said. ''We have given them enough time to change the programming schedule but if they persist in dancing Arpino and Joffrey works, we will do whatever we have to do legally to stop them.''

Nancy Davis, the West Coast spokesman for the Joffrey, said it would continue to dance Arpino and Joffrey ballets after Thursday.

''The Joffrey has a contract with the Los Angeles Music Center for 28 days and we will do the schedule that was announced,'' she said.

The bicoastal board of the Foundation for the Joffrey Ballet Inc. voted earlier this week to place management authority in the hands of an ''up to 15-member'' operating committee, according to an announcement made by company spokeswoman Celeste Oranchak.

Oranchak said the 55-member board approved setting up the operating committee by majority vote at meetings in Los Angeles and New York. This effectively eliminated Arpino's executive powers. She said Arpino, 62, tendered his resignation at the New York meeting Tuesday.

''The board didn't accept it,'' she said.

At least 10 members of the board also have resigned, according to other company sources. They said the shakeup came as the result of differences of opinion in how to cope with a $2 million company deficit, including $800,000 owed the federal government in payroll withholding taxes.

Arpino was reported to be in Los Angeles, where the company is performing at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, but he was not immediately available for comment. However, Messing released the text of his resignation in which he said ''I refuse to participate in an organization which I believe has lost its moral and ethical foundation.''

LOS ANGELES (MAY 3) UPI - Paroled ''Onion Field'' cop killer Jimmy Lee Smith was charged Thursday with being under the influence of drugs but prosecutors declined to press more serious charges in the attempted stabbing of a friend of a former girlfriend.

Police said they arrested Smith, 59, Tuesday for violating the terms of his parole by trying to slash the man with a kitchen knife on Apr. 18.

But the District Attorney's Office said there was insufficient evidence to charge Smith with assault with a deadly weapon. The case was referred to the City Attorney's Office, which charged Smith with a single misdemeanor of being under the influence of an opiate at the time of his arrest.

Smith was to be arraigned on the charge in Van Nuys Municipal Court later Thursday. The charge carries a maximum one-year jail term and a $1,000 fine upon conviction.

Smith will also face a parole violation hearing that could result in his being sent back to state prison. That hearing will most likely occur after the prosecution of the drug charge, said Sandi Gibbons, a spokeswoman for the District Attorney's Office.

Smith remains in custody without bail.

He and Gregory Powell were convicted and sentenced to death for the 1963 kidnapping and murder of Los Angeles Police Officer Ian Campbell and the wounding of his partner in an onion field near Bakersfield.

Their sentences were reduced to life in prison and Smith was paroled for the first time in 1982. Powell, the triggerman in the killing, remains in prison, unsuccessfully applying for parole.

Their crimes and the years of legal proceedings were the subject of the best-selling book ''The Onion Field,'' by Joseph Wambaugh, a former Los Angeles police officer. The chilling account also was made into a movie.

Since his initial release from prison, Smith has been in and out of jail for numerous parole violations. He was most recently paroled in November 1989, after serving a term for violating parole by possessing narcotics. In his adult life he has never spent a full year out of custody.

Police Sgt. Charles Meter said Smith's most recent arrest followed an argument last month with ex-girlfriend Marcia Peltier, 49, who asked him to move out the apartment they shared. Smith told Peltier that he was going to ''get even,'' Meter said.

After that, Peltier's car was vandalized several times.

On Apr. 18, Peltier, and a friend, Dana Ruvolo, 37, went to check on the car and found Smith standing next to it. Peltier asked Smith what he was doing and Smith drew an 8-inch kitchen knife, telling Ruvolo he ''was going to cut him and moved towards Ruvolo swinging the knife,'' Meter said.

When Ruvolo picked up a cinder block, Smith ran to a waiting car and sped off.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - A prosecution witness and self-described ''crony'' of the late Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos squirmed under defense cross-examination Thursday, finally admitting he had never seen former first lady Imelda Marcos do anything improper.

Former Philippines businessman Andres Genito Jr. was called again to the stand at Mrs. Marcos's racketeering trial in U.S. District Court following his testimony Tuesday that several Japanese companies paid off Marcos with millions of dollars from Tokyo's war damages fund.

Mrs. Marcos, 66, is charged with racketeering, conspiracy, fraud and obstruction of justice for allegedly plotting with her husband to divert more than $200 million from the Philippines treasury for personal use.

Thursday, under questioning from prosecutor Charles LaBella, Genito said in the mid-1980's he brought a report on a war reparations project to Marcos aboard his yacht, and while the chief executive was out of the room Mrs. Marcos told him, ''If you have problems and your sir is not here, you can come and see me.''

What was your understanding of 'sir'?'' asked LaBella.

''Sir is president Marcos,'' Gendito replied.

He testified he had discussed with Marcos a contract for Japanese video recorders to be distributed throughout the Philippines, and pointed out to Marcos that there would be problems awarding Sony the bid, because only Sony made Betamax casettes, a different size than other videotapes made by Toshiba and Hitachi.

He said Marcos told him it didn't make any difference about the bidding, because his wife wanted the Betamax system.

'''Never mind ... because your ma'am is involved in it,''' Genito said Marcos told him.

What do you mean, 'ma'am'?'' asked LaBella.

''He was referring to the first lady, Mrs. Marcos,'' Genito said.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Marcos's flamboyant attorney Gerry Spence strode over to where the former first lady sat at the defense table and put his hand on her shoulder.

''Mrs. Marcos has been referred to by the Philippine people as their 'ma'am' - isn't that right?'' he asked Genito.

''Yes,'' Genito replied.

Then, referring to Marcos's comment on the Sony contract, Spence asked, ''He didn't tell you in what way she was interested?''

''No,'' Genito replied.

''You're not suggesting she did anything wrong?''

Genito squirmed in the witness chair and after a couple of false starts, and grimacing, answered, ''No.''

''Did you ever in your life, ever go to Mrs. Marcos and ask her to do anything improper?'' Spence asked.

''No,'' Genito replied.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Japan's keiretsu system, a cartel-like practice that critics say limits competition, has been transported to the subsidiaries of Japanese companies operating in the United States, a panel of business executives said Thursday.

A Japanese auto parts executive, his face covered by a black hood, told a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee the practice has curbed competition among small Japanese companies.

"You need to understand this system because it is being exported to the United States as Japanese investment and manufacturing increases in your country," the executive said from behind a partition that separated him from television cameras and a packed hearing room.

The executive said he was afraid large Japanese auto companies would retaliate against him for speaking out against the keiretsu system.

Keiretsu has been defined as the interweaving of companies through interlocking boards of directors, joint research-and-development efforts, equity exchanges, and membership in exclusive management clubs.

In the Japanese automobile industry, the system is practiced between car makers and suppliers. "In its simplest terms, a keiretsu is a business cartel composed of a dominant Japanese manufacturer and its major suppliers," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, the subcommittee's chairman. "For all practical purposes, these companies act as one company, with the dominant parent company calling most of the shots."

The masked executive said Japanese auto makers set prices for materials, plant their own executives in top jobs with suppliers and threaten to cut off suppliers that do not conform.

"The business we are forced to conduct generates sales but not profits for the auto parts industry," he said. "Without serious changes in the current system, Japanese auto parts suppliers will always be at the mercy of the car makers," he said. "This system is moving into the United States."

The Federal Trade Commission is investigating the presence of the keiretsu system among Japanese automakers operating in the United States, said Janet Steiger, the agency's chairman.

Julian Morris, president of the Automotive Parts & Accessories Association Inc., said keiretsu was responsible for a tenfold growth in the U.S.-Japan auto parts deficit during the 1980s and for penetration of Japan's $65 billion auto parts market amounting to less than one percent.

T. Boone Pickens, the outspoken U.S. oilman who is the largest shareholder of Koito Manufacturing Co., a Japanese automotive lighting company, also lashed out against the keiretsu system.

Pickens has been wrestling for months with Koito's management to win a seat on the company's board. He said the keiretsu appears to violate U.S. antitrust laws.

"Unless we act now to enforce our antitrust laws, I am afraid that the Japanese keiretsu system will soon become the corporate way of life in the American auto industry," Pickens said.

Nearly 400 Japanese auto parts suppliers have followed major Japanese automakers to the United States, but Pickens said he has been able to identify only one U.S. parts supplier with a plant in Japan.

"If the Japanese want to operate in this country, they should do so only in complete compliance with all of our laws," Pickens said. "If they refuse, then they should face the same civil and criminal penalties as other antitrust violators. It's that simple."

CHICAGO (MAY 3) UPI - Grain and soybean futures fell to session lows late Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Closing prices were mostly lower, although the market made a slight recovery during the final minutes.

Soybeans and soybean meal were lower all day, pressured by heavy deliveries of meal and lower prices on overseas markets. Additional selling was based on ideas the market was overbought.

Wheat rallied early, despite a bearish production estimate from a private forecaster. Sparks Commodities reportedly estimated the 1990 wheat crop at 2.7 billion bushels, compared with just over 2 billion bushels harvested last year. The first official estimate of wheat production from the Agriculture Department will be released next Thursday.

Corn was moderately lower on spillover weakness from soybeans and a drop in basis levels.

Country movement was light.

At the close, corn was off 2 to 3, soybeans down 5 to 8 1/2, wheat off 1 to up 2 and oats down 1 1/2 to 2.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Eighty-eight general acute-care hospitals closed in 1988, 19 more than in 1987, mostly due to fewer patients, more uncompensated care and rising costs due to increasing demands for new technology, the government said Thursday.

Most of the 88 hospitals closing their doors were small and in rural areas but few patients were affected because emergency or inpatient medical care was available nearby, according to the report by the inspector general of the Department of Health and Human Services.

The results follow similar 1987 results, in which Inspector General Richard Kusserow found 69 hospitals closed.

In a related study, the American Hospital Association reported fewer people were admitted to community hospitals in 1989 than in any year since 1973, while there was a record-breaking number of outpatient hospital visits in 1989.

''Cost-containment efforts, new payment policies, technological advances and a growing emphasis on preventive care contributed to this shift,'' said the association's president, Carol McCarthy. ''Hospitals responded to the change by closing more than 70,000 beds between 1983 and 1989, about 7.3 percent of all beds.''

In Kusserow's report, 88 hospitals, or 1.6 percent of the nation's 5,449 general acute-care hospitals, closed in 1988.

They were located in 29 states, with Texas closing 18; Alabama, 7; California, Illinois, Louisiana, Missouri, West Virginia, each closing 5; Wisconsin and Tennessee, each closing 4; New York, 3; Michigan, Arkansas, Massachusetts, Arizona, Georgia, Montana, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, each closing 2; and Washington, Idaho, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Kansas, Maine, North Carolina, New Mexico, South Carolina and North Dakota each closing 1.

Of the 88 closings, 50 facilities were in rural areas and had occupancy rates of about 26.7 percent. Thirty-eight closings were in urban areas and had occupancy rates of about 32.9 percent. None of the closed facilities had more than 300 beds.

Kusserow said the reasons for the 1988 closings were the same as in 1987: declining revenues due to fewer admissions; lower third-party reimbursement; increasing uncompensated care and rising costs due to increasing demands for new medical technology, skilled personnel and facility repair and renovation.

On the other hand, four new general hospitals opened during 1988, adding 475 beds. Also, eight hospitals that had closed before 1988 reopened in 1988, adding another 391 beds, while four hospitals that had closed in 1988 have since reopened, adding 233 beds.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - After years of effort, scientists reported Thursday they have coaxed normal brain cells into growing well in a test tube - a feat that may greatly aid efforts to find treatments for Alzheimer's disease and other brain disorders.

A team from Johns Hopkins University medical school in Baltimore said it has established the first continuously growing culture of non-cancerous brain cells, an accomplishment long sought by brain researchers.

''This cell line removes one of the major stumbling blocks that we faced in studying the human brain,'' said Dr. Solomon Snyder, a neuroscience professor who headed the study published in the journal Science.

The cells cultured by Snyder's team were neurons from the cerebral cortex, the area of the brain that coordinates activities like memory and problem solving and is better developed in humans than in other animals.

Past test-tube colonies either consisted of cells from malignant brain tumors - cells not typical of a normal neuron - or tissue containing several different types of brain cells, which did not live very long. Colonies made of hybrid cells also tended to differ from typical brain cells.

Dr. Gabriele Ronnett, co-author of the study, said the new cell line should help researchers studying strokes and degenerative brain problems like Alzheimer's and Huntington's diseases.

''These disease are devastating becaused damaged neurons in the brain ... cannot repair themselves the way skin cells, for example, can,'' said Ronnett, noting the neuron cultures may also be used to study disorders involving the spinal cord, which transmits signals using similar neurons.

In addition to improving understanding of brain disorders, Johns Hopkins researchers said the availability of long-living brain cell cultures may provide ways to repopulate and regenerate neurons, perhaps through transplants.

''One could conceivably implant these cells in humans with diseases that have created 'holes' or 'cavities' in the brain,'' said Synder, cautioning it is unknown if cultured cells would make proper connections in the normal brain.

Currently, most efforts to transplant brain cells in cases of Parkinson's disease or other brain disorders have involved tissue taken from aborted fetuses.

The cultured cells also might offer an easier method of testing potential drug treatments for brain and spinal cord disorders, researchers said.

The Johns Hopkins scientists said they do not know exactly why they succeeded in establishing a brain cell culture when many other teams have failed. But they noted the cells, obtained from the brain of an 18-month-old girl undergoing surgery for a severe seizure problem, were taken from a side of the child's brain that showed excessive growth.

The cultured cells developed fiber-like branches typical of mature brain neurons after they were treated with various growth factors and nutrients, researchers said. In trials to see if the test-tube cells had the same biochemical characteristics as mature neurons, the cells tested positive for five of 10 brain chemicals, called neurotransmitters, they said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Private industry's failure to support superconductor research raises doubts over whether the United States can win the race to develop practical uses for superconductors, a congressional report warned Thursday.

The United States surpasses Japan and other leading industrial nations in the amount of government funds spent on research into high-temperature superconductivity. But the report found Japanese firms invested about 50 percent more in such research than did U.S. companies in 1988 - $107 million compared with $73 million.

In addition, the Office of Technology Assessment study found 20 Japanese firms spent more than $1 million on superconductor research compared with 14 U.S. firms that spent $1 million or more. On the average, Japanese businesses did not expect to see returns on their investments until the year 2000 - eight years after the average 1992 date set by the Americans.

''This report raises the question ... as to whether U.S. firms have the ability to capitalize on the federal effort. We lack the commitment to take these technologies and translate them into commercially competitive items,'' said Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., who requested the study when he served as chairman of a House Science, Space and Technology Subcommittee.

''While the United States wins the Nobel prizes, the Japanese win market share,'' McCurdy said.

The Okalahoma congressman pointed out that U.S. federal spending on superconductivity research may also appear deceptively high, noting that 45 percent of the $130 million allocated in fiscal 1990 went to researchers in the Department of Defense.

Superconductivity is the ability of a material to conduct electricity without resistance when chilled to low temperatures. In 1986, IBM scientists discovered an entirely new family of high-temperature ceramic superconductors that worked at minus 406 degrees Fahrenheit - much higher than had previously been thought possible.

That finding and subsequent discoveries of materials that could superconduct at even higher temperatures touched off a worldwide race to develop practical uses for superconductors, such as levitating trains, rockets launched by electromagnetic force and computers that could calculate at the speed of light.

But so far, commercial applications like simple microwave devices and magnetic field sensors appear at least five years away, and most will take 10 to 20 years to develop, the report said.

McCurdy said both the U.S. government and industry must abandon their emphasis on short-term results if the nation hopes to translate its current research edge in the supercomputer field into worldwide commercial leadership.

''This is not a sprint; this is a marathon,'' he said.

On Tuesday, superconductivity pioneer Paul Chu of the University of Houston revealed his team has made a major step toward applying the technology to industrial uses. Chu is not releasing details of the advance until results are published in a scientific journal within a few weeks.

Authors of the new report said they did not know what Chu's achievement might be.

In addition to encouraging private companies to invest more in superconductor research, the Office of Technology Assessment recommended universities, which now receive about one-third of federal superconductor research funds, be given a larger piece of the pie. The report also recommended the federal government establish a standing advisory committee to assist policymakers in making decisions about the direction of superconductor research.

The Office of Technology Assessment is a non-partisan agency that advises Congress on technical issues.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (MAY 3) UPI - NATO foreign ministers affirmed support Thursday for keeping a united Germany in the Atlantic Alliance and said the issue should not be open for negotiation in talks on German unification.

''There was unanimity that a unified Germany should continue to be a full member of this alliance,'' said NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner.

Commented U.S. Secretary of State James Baker: ''This is not a matter that we think negotiable. It can only really be decided by the alliance and a united Germany.''

The NATO ministers were meeting in the Belgian capital to informally discuss German unification and arms control.

The ''two-plus-four'' talks on German unification formally reach the foreign ministers level for the first time in Bonn on Saturday. The talks involve the two Germanys and World War II allies Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union.

The foreign ministers said the topic of German NATO membership could be raised at the two-plus-four talks - but not decided. ''We think it's possible to discuss this issue without giving veto power to the Soviet Union,'' said Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis.

The Soviet Union seeks a neutral Germany after unification. A recent proposal by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, for dual German membership in NATO and the Warsaw Pact, would be a ''sort of neutrality that is not acceptable to us,'' Woerner said.

The government said it sold about $10 billion worth of the 52-week bills at the auction, and the average investment rate was 8.7 percent at a price of $9,186.10 per $10,000 face value.

ST. REGIS INDIAN RESERVATION, NY (MAY 3) UPI - Warring Mohawk factions unified Thursday to criticize the Canadian and New York governments for excluding them from talks to end reservation violence sparked by disputes over casino gambling.

The militant Warrior Society and anti-gambling Mohawks put down their AK-47 assault rifles and other automatic weapons and awaited news from negotiations held in Montreal by federal mediator Fletcher Graves, New York and Canadian government officials, various police agencies and the Indian Affairs' offices of both nations.

''It is unbelievable that we are not involved,'' said Ateronhiatakon, a spokesman for the Warrior Society, the self-appointed protectors of Mohawk sovereignty who are funded by the reservation's casino owners.

''How can people, officials of a foreign government, sit and discuss issues paramount to our territory without our imput?'' he asked.

The reservation remained quiet but tense, with most Mohawks remaining at home.

Some 500 heavily armed New York state troopers and police from Quebec and Ontario manned roadblocks and checkpoints, patrolled roads and conducted house-to-house searches for illegal weapons. The Canadian Armed Forces and units from the New York Army National Guard remained on alert.

Three traditional Mohawk chiefs, including New York Tribal Council Grand Chief Harold Tarbell, denounced the government meetings in a telegram sent to Montreal.

''You must realize there can be no successful resolution of Akwesasne (the Mohawk nation) isues without the active participation of the Mohawk governments of Akwesasne,'' the telegram from the gambling opponents read. ''This question must be approached with the understanding and recognition of Akwesasne as a single family and community.''

The Mohawk chiefs from both nations proposed a six-point plan to bring peace to the 28,000-acre reservation straddling the border near Massena in upstate New York.

The proposal called for the creation of a ''weapons free zone,'' the closing of casinos, the presence of an external police force until a Mohawk police force could be formed, and a $30 million economic development package.

The chiefs also called for a referendum on the gaming issue, but offered no details on any of their proposals.

''People here are being held hostage to their economic despair,'' Tarbell said.

Traditional Mohawk Chief Tom Porter added, ''Because the Warrior Society supports different vices, it puts legitimate, moral, honest economic development to a halt.''

But Ateronhiatakon, known also as Francis Boots, complained blockades erected March 23 by the anti-gamblers - an act that sparked the violence that ended with the deaths of two Mohawks in a gun battle Tuesday - are costing the reservation money and jobs.

''It has crippled any economic development,'' he said. ''Those people (the gambling opponents) don't offer any alternative.''

Elected Grand Chief of the Canadian Band Michael Mitchell, one of three writers of the telegram, also warned the departure of police would be an invitation to more violence.

Mitchell criticized New York Gov. Mario Cuomo for ''giving nine hours notice to the Warrior Society'' that police would enforce order on the reservation.

''That gave them plenty of time to hide their weapons,'' he said.

''Our people still don't feel safe,'' Tarbell said. ''The police may be patrolling the reservation but nobody knows for how long. If they leave ... those guns are still in the hands of the same warriors who tried to gun us down.''

The Mohawk chiefs released a ''hit list'' of anti-gamblers allegedly prepared by the Warrior Society, saying the publicity would provide protection as many of them returned from Cornwall Island, where a refugee camp was set up last week. The existence of the ''hit list'' was reported by UPI last week.

The Warrior Society spokesman said, however, his faction is ready for peace talks, but questioned the sincerity of the gambling opponents.

''We are cautious, but I believe the will of the people is to put down arms and struggle toward a peaceful solution,'' Ateronhiatakon said.

''We don't want the violence,'' he added. ''We need the peace that we know so well to return to the reservation. But it can not be done by external forces.''

As he spoke, Mohawks were mourning the death of Matthew Pyke, 22, a gambling opponent shot and killed as tried to leave a house under siege by gunfire.

The body of J.R. Edwards, 30, was found on the battleground, but Edwards' father disputed earlier reports his son was a warrior.

MIAMI (MAY 3) UPI - A federal judge refused Thursday to block the execution of a man scheduled to die in less than 24 hours for killing two policemen at a highway rest stop in 1976.

U.S. District Judge Lenore C. Nesbitt denied a writ of habeas corpus petition to Jesse J. Tafero, 43, who is scheduled for execution in the electric chair at 7:01 a.m. EDT Friday at the Florida State Prison in Starke.

Tafero was convicted of two counts of first-degree murder in the Feb. 20, 1976, shooting deaths of Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Philip Black and Canadian Constable Donald Irwin, at an interstate rest stop.

His execution had been scheduled for Wednesday, but Nesbitt delayed it to consider Tafero's latest appeal. The judge's ruling Thursday cleared the way for the execution, unless attorneys file further appeals.

Tafero's lawyer, Mark E. Olive, was not immediately available for comment on whether he would take the appeal to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

In her ruling, Nesbitt rejected defense attorneys' arguments that factors such as Tafero's drug use and his record as a loving father had not been considered at his sentencing.

Under current death sentence laws, those issues are considered to be special circumstances that can sometimes persuade a judge or jury to grant mercy. A 1987 Supreme Court ruling requires judges to allow juries to consider mitigating circumstances other than those specified by law when recommending a life or death sentence.

Tafero also claimed to have new evidence that would prove he was poorly represented by his original trial attorney.

In previous appeals, Tafero had unsuccessfully argued that his attorneys were incompetent, that eyewitness testimony was insufficient to convict him and that his chief accuser, Walter Rhodes, had recanted his trial testimony.

Tafero, his girlfriend, Sonia Jacobs, her two children and Rhodes were asleep in a car at the rest stop when Black and Irwin approached to investigate.

Black spotted a semi-automatic handgun, confiscated it and prepared to arrest Rhodes on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, but then a fight broke out, and Black and Irwin were killed.

Department of Corrections records indicate both Jacobs and Tafero fired at the officers.

Jacobs was convicted of first-degree murder. The jury recommended that she be given life in prison, but the judge sentenced her to die. The Florida Supreme Court, however, rejected that, saying she may have had reason to fear for her children's safety, and she is now serving a life term.

Rhodes, who testified against Tafero, pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Tafero would be the 22nd inmate put to death in Florida and the 124th inmate executed in the United States since the U.S. Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment in 1976.

(MAY 3) UPI - Los Angeles police say actor David Rappaport was found dead of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound, two months after an earlier apparent suicide attempt. He was 38. Rappaport appeared on a Thanksgiving episode of the television series ''L-A Law.'' The three-foot 11-inch actor was best known for his roles in the movies ''Time Bandits'' and ''The Bride.''

A Michigan jury ordered General Motors to pay 75-thousand dollars to a handicapped draftsman for failing to stop his co-workers from calling him ''stumpy.'' Timothy Graves was born without hands and one foot. Graves said in the 1986 lawsuit that the verbal abuse began shortly after he started working at the General Motors Tech Center in Mount Clemens, Michigan, in 1967.

Federal lawyers today filed closing briefs in a discrimination case against the I-R-S in which a light-skinned black woman says she was fired because her darker-skinned black supervisor did NOT like her. ASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Trying to keep up with events and allied wishes, President Bush accelerated the pace Thursday for a removal of U.S. and Soviet ground-based nuclear weapons from ''the transformed Europe of the 1990s.''

In a move that only began to sketch the outlines of the military and political structures that will guarantee security after the Cold War, Bush canceled modernization of NATO nuclear missiles and artillery.

The announcement, made at a news conference and explained to NATO foreign ministers in Brussels by Secretary of State James Baker, marked his latest attempt to adapt U.S. leadership and NATO strategy to change sweeping Europe.

With the risk of war fading and the two Germanys moving toward unification Bush acknowledged that ''as democracy comes to Eastern Europe and Soviet troops return home, there is less need for nuclear systems of the shortest range.''

Though long expected, that statement faced up to political realities and represented a shift in U.S.-crafted NATO policy that ground-based nuclear weapons in Europe would be needed into the foreseeable future.

Bush, who had agreed to consider cuts in those weapons only after the start of conventional force reductions, said Thursday they could now occur with the mere signing of such an agreement, which could come later this year.

A year ago, Bush resisted Soviet calls for such early negotiations. His reversal was a bow to the growing consensus in Western Europe and Congress that battlefield nuclear arms soon will lack military or political purpose.

His new position, however, does not presage a nuclear-free Europe. NATO would retain nuclear-armed aircraft and France and Britain have independent nuclear forces outside the scope of superpower negotiations.

In fact, the cancellation of an improved, longer-range version of the Lance missile and new nuclear artillery may have laid to rest one dispute over NATO force structure only to replace it with another.

Unaffected was the development of a new air-launched nuclear missile. The Germans, who before were wary of keeping the Lance and its successor on their soil, now are hesitant about deploying those new missiles on NATO aircraft.

Bush proposed that and other issues, including troop levels in Europe and an expanded political role for NATO, be the focus of a summer NATO summit ''to launch a wide-ranging NATO strategic review for the transformed Europe of the 1990s.''

''The future of the United States cannot be separated from the future of Europe,'' he said, ''and so along with our allies we must prepare for the magnificent opportunities that lie ahead.''

The decision on battlefield weapons enabled Bush to seize the arms control initiative, even by embracing proposals kicked around before by the Soviets and Europeans, before his summit late this month with Mikhail Gorbachev.

In the face of what U.S. officials have criticized as Soviet backsliding, he admitted that ''we're going to have to hustle'' to nail down agreements as hoped this year on cuts in strategic arsenals and conventional forces.

Bush also disclosed that he does ''worry about a military resurgence of some kind'' impinging on Gorbachev's power because of suggestions that military hard-liners may be behind the latest Soviet arms proposals.

During his wide-ranging news conference, Bush also:

-Encouraged a French-German proposal that Lithuania slow its drive for independence to draw Moscow into a dialogue. Bush denied he was taking Gorbachev's side in the affair and said there is no role for U.S.

-Promised to ''use every asset we have'' to provide Iran with proof of what happened to four Iranian diplomats abducted in Lebanon in 1982. His hope was that Iran would respond to that gesture by helping free the other American hostages in Lebanon. Arab diplomats later said the United States had confirmed the four were killed by Christian militiamen.

-Said he would meet Sunday with congressional leaders to discuss the budget, but not to negotiate spending cuts or tax increases. ''What we have to do is start talking process and how we go forward,'' he said.

-Denied he wanted William Seidman out as chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and insisted it was Seidman himself who suggested he be replaced by William Taylor, acting president of the board overseeing the bailout of the savings and loan industry.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Exporters sold 177,800 metric tons of corn to Japan, the No. 1 market for U.S. agricultural exports, and registered another large corn sale Thursday, the Agriculture Department reported.

The second sale, involving 103,632 tons of corn, was listed as going to an unidentified buyer. Traders are required to report large sales promptly but it sometimes can take a few days to learn the identity of a buyer. Based on Chicago prices, the deal with Japan was worth $20 million and the other sale, $11.7 million.

So far this marketing year, Japan has purchased 13.8 million tons of U.S. corn. The marketing year opened last Sept. 1. There are 39.4 bushels of corn in a metric ton of 2,204.6 pounds. Japan purchased about $8.2 billion worth of U.S. farm goods in fiscal 1989 and was forecast to buy about as much this fiscal year.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - Simultaneous memorial musical tributes for jazz great Dexter Gordon will take place Sunday in Harlem, Los Angeles, Paris and Copenhagen, Gordon's family announced Thursday.

Gordon, a saxophone player who lived in Europe for many years, died last week in Philadelphia at the age of 67.

In accordance with his wishes, Gordon's body will be cremated and his ashes scattered at sea, his family said.

In 1986, Gordon received an Academy Award nomination in the best actor category for his starring role in the movie ''Round Midnight'' for his portrayal of an American jazz musician living in Paris in the 1950s.

Gordon, born Feb. 27, 1923, in Los Angeles, was one of the foremost tenor players on the 1940s bebop jazz scene. His playing influenced Sonny Rollins and John Coltrane, who built on his probing, rhythmic style.

The New York leg of the tribute will take place at the Oderia Dempsey Community Center in Harlem.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Poland will receive 77,000 metric tons of soybean meal, a high-protein product used as livestock feed, in the latest installment of U.S. food aid, the government said Thursday.

The United States pledged last fall to provide $120 million in food aid to Poland to offset short-term food needs and to help meet livestock feed needs until this year's crops are harvested.

''This donation ... demonstrates our ongoing commitment to the Polish people,'' said F. Paul Dickerson, head of the Foreign Agricultural Service.

The soymeal will be donated through the Food for Progress Program, which supports development of agricultural free enterprise. U.S. aid is aimed at smoothing Poland's transition to a market-oriented economy.

Based on Chicago prices, the soybean meal would be worth more than $15 million.

The government also announced an agreement with International Partnership for Human Development to provide about 45,000 metric tons of U.S. sorghum worth $3.8 million for use in Mexico. The grain will be sold to Mexican buyers and the proceeds used for food assistance to the needy and to support other activities by the aid organization.

The sorghum was donated under Section 416, a program that authorizes donation of surplus commodities to needy people overseas.

(MAY 2) UPI - Several major U.S. retailers reported weak April sales results Thursday, sending signals that consumers are reacting with sticker shock to pricing that in many cases exceeds the five percent rate of general inflation.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the nation's No. 1 and No. 3 retailers, posted respective sales gains of 3.1 percent and seven percent on a store-for-store basis, which measures sales from stores open in both monthly periods and which is seen as a better measure of a merchant's performance than total sales.

Anticipating that Easter shopping would favorably affect the industry's April results, analysts had been looking for better numbers - and retailers had been predicting them.

The results were even more disappointing considering the shopping surge for Easter was a month earlier last year, leaving retailers with easy comparisons against last April.

Chicago-based Sears, still failing to catch consumers' fancies with the everyday low-pricing strategy introduced a year ago, said sales from continuing operations last month were up 1.6 percent to $2.52 billion from $2.48 billion in April 1989.

Even the fast-growing Wal-Mart, based in Bentonville, Ark., showed signs of sluggishness in April. The seven percent gain in store-for-store sales was a marked slowdown from the robust double-digit increases that Wal-Mart has typically posted each month for the last several years. The company's net retail sales for the month were up 20 percent to $2.38 billion from $1.98 billion a year ago.

"Although Wal-Mart is still speeding above the industry average, their comparable results were low compared to what we usually see," said Sarah Stack, a securities analyst with Bateman Eichler, Hill Richardson Inc. in Los Angeles.

Many retailers suffered from unusually cold and damp April weather, which curtailed some holiday shopping, and Wal-Mart was no exception, said

Elizabeth Armstrong, analyst with Prescott, Ball & Turben in New York. "Wal-Mart's sales were hurt because they have a lot of stores in the South where there was flooding throughout the month," she said.

The nation's second-largest retailer, K mart Corp. of Troy, Mich., and many department store retailers are scheduled to report April results May 10.

Among other companies reporting results Thursday, Dallas-based J.C. Penney Co. had a dismal month, during which store-for-store sales were off 2.8 percent. Total sales amounted to $1.04 billion, off 1.8 percent from $1.06 billion a year ago.

Penney blamed its performance on stiff comparisons with a year ago, when the chain was in the midst of a credit promotion, and on there being one less selling day in April 1990.

But combining the retailer's March and April results still paints a rather bleak picture analysts, said. For the two months, Penney had a 3.3 percent store-for-store gain and a 4.4 percent total gain.

Both figures showed Penney's sales not keeping pace with the five percent rate of general inflation, meaning the retailer is selling fewer units than it did a year ago, said Stack.

Janet Mangano, a securities analyst with Josepthal & Co. in New York, said the disappointing April showings by many retailers indicates consumers are balking at paying prices that are as much as 20 percent higher than a year ago.

One bright spot in April, however, was Woolworth Corp., which posted an 18.2 percent domestic store-for-store gain. Total domestic sales were up 21 percent to $421 million from $348 million.

Melville Corp., a Rye, N.Y.-based specialty retailer whose operations include CVS drug stores and Thom McAn shoe stores, said total sales increased 22 percent to $618.7 million from $507.6 million a year earlier. The company did not report store-for-store sales.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush said Thursday he hopes a weekend meeting with congressional leaders will move the budget process forward, but said he is not ready to get down to specifics on how to cut spending or whether to raise taxes.

Bush and congressional Democrats cautioned that Sunday's meeting is preliminary and not the start of formal negotiations. Bush told reporters the meeting was to ''start talking process and how we go forward.''

On the question of whether he would keep his ''no new taxes'' campaign pledge, Bush insisted now is not the time for specific budget negotiations.

''We're not into a negotiation. We're talking process,'' Bush said. ''We're not there. Where we are is we've got to move forward.''

Expected to attend the White House meeting are Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine, House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas and House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois.

Budget director Richard Darman and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady also plan to attend.

The meeting comes only days after both the full House and the Senate Budget Committee, on mostly party line votes, adopted differing $1.2 trillion Democratic-authored budget plans for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Those plans cut defense by more than Bush wants and drastically alter many spending and savings priorities Bush proposed in his $1.2 trillion budget, submitted in January.

The meeting also comes as economic ministers from the world's seven largest financial powers - the Group of Seven, or simply G-7 - are scheduled to meet in Washington this weekend to discuss world economy.

G-7 members, representing the United States, Japan, West Germany, France, Great Britain, Italy and Canada, have consistently pressured the United States to take bolder steps to reduce the federal budget deficit.

They claim the deficit creates world economic distortions because it requires the United States to borrow too heavily overseas, disrupting capital flows.

Sunday's meeting may be a White House attempt to demonstrate to the G-7 there is top-level U.S. concern about the growing deficit and to increase confidence of world financial markets that action will be taken.

The administration recently said the fiscal 1991 deficit could be as much as $20 billion larger than expected, forcing either higher taxes or bigger spending cuts than otherwise would be needed to meet the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law's $64 billion deficit reduction target next year.

Bush conceded that the administration's interest rate projections were too optimistic, but he said its economic growth projections this year were better.

''But, look, here's what we need to do,'' Bush said. ''We sent a budget up and OK, so nobody was too enthusiastic about it. Nobody is very enthusiastic about the Senate budget. Nobody is very enthusiastic about the House budget, in my view, really enthusiastic. So what we have to do is start talking process and how we go forward.''

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the meeting would primarily focus on procedure.

LONDON (MAY 3) UPI - The man who sent Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite to Lebanon, where he was taken hostage more than three years ago, urged the British government Thursday to negotiate directly with Iran for his freedom.

''The time has come for the governments of the United Kingdom and Iran to talk directly to each other to see how progress can be made,'' said Robert Runcie, the archbishop of Canterbury.

Runcie said his statement was prompted by the release in recent weeks of American hostages Robert Polhill and Frank Reed by groups believed to be influenced by the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God.

''Over the past 10 days the Iranian government has demonstrated that, with Syrian support, they can use their influence to bring about the release of hostages,'' Runcie said.

Sixteen Westerners, including three Britons and one man with dual Irish-British citizenship, are still believed held in Lebanon.

Runcie charged Waite, 50, with seeking the release of hostages held by Moslem fundamentalist groups in Lebanon. Waite won the release of several men, then on his final trip to Lebanon was taken captive himself Jan. 20, 1987.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher responded to Runcie by reiterating that she refused to make deals with hostage takers.

''It is quite wrong to make deals with those who take hostages. We shall not do that nor does the United States,'' she told the House of Commons. ''If we ever give in to the blackmail it will result in the taking of more hostages, which is why we or the United States will not make any deals of that kind.

''We are in touch with the Americans and, like them, welcome the role Iran and Syria have played in securing the freedom of two of the American hostages,'' Thatcher said.

Although diplomatic relations between Britain and Iran have been severed, Thatcher said Britain would ''continue to do everything possible to bring about the release of the hostages about whom we are very concerned.''

Runcie said the government's policy on the hostage problem has been sound.

''Nothing should be done that would appear to reward hostage-taking, for that would encourage yet more of it,'' he said.

When Reed was released earlier this week he said he spent his last months in captivity with London journalist John McCarthy and Brian Keenan, a schoolteacher from Northern Ireland, the first reliable word that they were still alive since being captured in April 1986.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (MAY 3) UPI - Hundreds of Afghan troops and tanks backed by jetfighters seized several positions from the U.S.-backed resistance in a massive offensive near the strategic eastern city of Jalalabad, rebel sources said Thursday.

Meanwhile, U.S.-Soviet talks on ending the conflict in Afghanistan concluded there should be elections supervised by the United Nations and the Islamic Conference, the New York Times reported Thursday.

The Times said U.S. officials and Pakistani diplomats disclosed that Moscow would accept elections to choose a new government in Kabul and Washington would let Najibullah run in the elections if he resigned first.

It said the Soviet Union had dropped its demand that Najibullah be guaranteed a role in the future elected government.

In the assault, rebel sources in Pakistan said the forces of the pro-Soviet government killed three commanders and several other guerrillas. The assault, launched Monday night northeast of Jalalabad, 70 miles east of Kabul, occurred along a main road leading to rebel bases in neighboring Pakistan.

Official Kabul Radio said troops killed 110 guerrillas in a ''retaliatory action'' Tuesday against rebels who attempted to attack Jalalabad, which is held by government forces. It gave no further details.

The reports could not be independently confirmed.

The rebel sources said the government was attempting to recapture positions seized by the guerrillas early last year, before the Feb. 15, 1989, withdrawal of Soviet troops that backed the communist regime of President Najibullah.

The guerrillas, backed by the United States and Saudi Arabia, hold about 90 percent of Afghanistan's territory but have failed to capture any major urban centers despite the Soviet pullout.

Najibullah has defied Western predictions of his swift overthrow by the rebels following the Soviet withdrawal.

Jalalabad was the scene of a massive offensive by the guerrillas in March last year. The operation ended several weeks later in a bloody and humiliating defeat for the resistance.

The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in December 1979 to support a series of Marxist rulers. It withdrew more than 100,000 troops under an agreement signed in 1988 by Afghanistan and Pakistan.

Soviet and U.S. negotiators met in a series of of meetings, the last held in Helsinki, Finland in March.

(MAY 3) UPI - President Bush reacted to changes sweeping Europe by cancelling any further modernization of NATO nuclear arms in Europe... setting the stage for talks to remove all the super-power's ground-based nuclear weapons. At a White House news conference, Bush acknowledged that ''there is less need for nuclear systems of the shortest range'' as reform takes hold in Eastern Europe.

Implicit in the president's statement was a stepped-up timetable for negotiations on the future of ground-based weapons. The Bush announcement comes as Secretary of State Baker explains the new U-S position to NATO foreign ministers in Brussels, Belgium. Bush urged NATO leaders meet this summer to map a strategy for the post-Cold War era.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Leading Senate Democrats proposed a sweeping bill Thursday to reform campaign finance laws, including a limit on spending and a plan to ask each taxpayer to donate $3 to pay for most costs of the races.

The proposal also suggested that political action committees, known as PACs, be prohibited from donating to Senate candidates - an idea similar to one outlined by Republicans earlier this week.

However, while the two parties appeared close on the PAC question, the spending limit and the public financing proposal are bitterly opposed by Republicans and likely to be major stumbling blocks to a compromise when the matter reaches the full Senate, perhaps next week.

Despite the intense GOP opposition, it had been expected that Democrats would push for the spending limits. However, many Democratic figures privately conceded for weeks that it appeared nearly impossible to win passage of any public financing proposal.

Under the Democratic plan - backed by Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., the party's expert on the issue - Senate candidates could, if they met certain qualifications, have up to 70 percent of their general election costs paid by the taxpayers.

That money would come from voluntary $3 contributions made by taxpayers on their annual tax forms. Aides to Boren said that unlike the presidential campaign financing system, the Democrats' bill would require that if a person agreed to give the money, it would be added to that person's tax bill. Under the presidential system, a taxpayer can designate a $1 for the fund, but that does not raise or lower a person's taxes.

Boren said he believed enough people would donate the money to make the plan viable. ''Maybe we should not underestimate the people,'' Boren said. ''I don't believe our people would mind investing a few million'' to pay for a better campaign system.

Democratic aides added that the checkoff provision, because it involved taxes, would technically have to be included in another bill coming from the House.

No matter how it is fashioned, however, any proposal to limit spending and provide public financing for congressional races is certain to cause major problems in the Senate. In 1988, Democrats unsuccessfully tried for weeks to break a Republican filibuster blocking a bill which included spending limits.

Mitchell also conceded that he did not believe all Democrats would line up behind the plan. Nonetheless, he and Boren argued that the public, upset with past campaign abuses, was ready for a reform bill.

Boren added that he considered all parts of the bill negotiable, except for the spending limits - the very item Republicans do not want.

''We have to have some spending limits, or the money will pop up another way,'' Boren said.

''The only meaningful way to reform the campaign finance system is to have meaningful limits,'' added Mitchell. ''Anything less is not real reform.''

Under the bill, spending in Senate races would depend on the state's population. Candidates in the smallest states would be limited to spending a total of $1.58 million in primary and general election races, while candidates in California could spend up to $8.25 million.

In the general election, those limits could also be exceeded by up to 25 percent if a candidate received a large number of small contributions from people living in his or her state.

Under the public financing provisions, if a candidate raised 10 percent of the spending limit in small contributions, he or she would be eligible for the taxpayer money - up to 70 percent of the cost of the general election campaign.

The bill also would crack down on so-called soft money - unreported donations made to political parties, which are then used for specific candidates.

It also would require that candidates be entitled to lowest-cost television advertising time.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (MAY 3) UPI - Bulgaria restored diplomatic ties with Israel Thursday after a 23-year break, becoming the fourth East European country to renew relations with the Jewish state since September.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Arens signed protocols for the resumption of ties with his Bulgarian counterpart, Boiko Dimitrov, in the Palace of Culture in Sofia.

''It is remarkable that the movement toward democracy in Eastern Europe is accompanied by a movement toward reestablishing relations with the only democratic country in the Near East, Israel,'' Arens told a news conference.

The Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies broke relations with Israel in 1967 after the Six-Day War with its Arab neighbors. Since September, Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia have restored ties with Jerusalem.

During the signing ceremony, about 150 Palestinian students staged a protest outside the building, waving banners and placards that read, ''We want peace,'' and ''Return our land.''

Dimitrov said the restoration of ties with Israel marked the beginning of a new chapter in relations between the two nations, but stressed the move was ''not at the expense of other countries.''

''Diplomatic relations will help us be better informed about developments in the Near East, and in this way Bulgaria can help find a peaceful solution to the conflicts in this part of the world,'' he said.

The two foreign ministers said the immediate result of the restored ties would be increased cooperation in the fields of tourism and agriculture.

While Israel and the Soviet Union have not renewed full diplomatic ties, relations between the two countries have improved in recent years, with exchanges of consular missions and an increase in the number of Soviet Jews allowed to leave their country.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry announced Thursday that further progress also had been made toward improving relations with Yugoslavia. A ministry spokesman said a special envoy from Belgrade met Wednesday with Deputy Foreign Minister Binyamin Netanyahu as part of ''preliminary talks toward normalization of relations.''

Envoy Milan Zupan also invited Arens and Netanyahu to visit Yugoslavia in the near future, the spokesman said.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (MAY 3) UPI - China's delegation to the annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank staged a walkout Thursday as the U.S. team took its turn to deliver a speech, witnesses to the incident said.

The walkout was an apparent slap at Washington for the U.S. stand on multilateral loans to China.

The incident occurred on the second day of a three-day annual meeting of the board of governors of the bank, attended by more than 2,000 delegates from 49 member countries.

Witnesses said more than 40 members - virtually the entire Chinese delegation - walked out of the convention hall at the Ashoka Hotel when George Folsom, the leader of the U.S. team, was to begin his speech.

Bilateral ties between the United States and China deteriorated following last June's massacre of pro-democracy students at Beijing's Tiananmen Square by government troops.

Appalled by the crackdown, Washington and several developed countries suspended bilateral and multilateral loans to Beijing.

The Asian Development Bank also suspended loans to China, a move that was condemned at Thursday's meeting by Chinese representative Li Guixian, who told delegates that the bank should not intervene in the political affairs of its members.

''Its (Asian Development Bank) decision-making should not be affected by politial factors of its members, but should be based on the economic considerations alone,'' said Li. ''The strict adherence to the rules and regulations of the bank's charter should be the unshirkable duty of the ADB.''

In an obvious criticism of Washington, Li added: ''However, we regret to note that this good cooperation has been subjected to undue interference from certain quarters for some time now.''

(MAY 3) UPI - A second day of negotiations between the African National Congress and representatives of South Africa's white-minority government is under way in Cape Town. The two sides agreed NOT to disclose details of the talks until the end of the final round tomorrow. But a joint communique released yesterday and comments from delegates suggest progress is being made. A senior A-N-C member says both sides felt the meeting should have taken place many years ago.

Former President Nixon says the fact that he resigned will always be part of his presidency... but down the road the people- NOT historians- will remember that he made a difference in the quest for world peace. Nixon told broadcast interviewers that historians generally are ''on the left'' end of the political spectrum. He says that over time, people will conclude that his presidency made a difference in the world.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The Senate rejected Thursday an attempt by Republicans to gut Hatch Act reforms, killing an alternative proposal to provide clearer and simpler rules governing political activity by federal and postal employees.

The proposed reforms of the 51-year-old Hatch Act, which limits political activity by federal and postal workers, survived its first test in the Senate when the GOP substitute was killed 67-30.

Under the bill, the 3 million federal and postal employees still could not run for partisan office or solicit campaign contributions from the public, but some activities, now banned, would be permitted.

Federal employees and postal workers could, under provisions of the bill, hold office in a political party, distribute campaign literature and solicit votes, organize and work on phone banks, organize and take part in political meetings and publicly endorse candidates.

They also would be allowed to solicit contributions from political action committees of a federal employee organization to which both the employee and the donor belong.

The House last year approved a more liberal bill that would let federal and postal employees run for office and solicit campaign contributions.

The administration has notified Congress that senior advisers to President Bush will recommend a veto if either version is sent to the White House.

The Republican alternative would have ordered the Office of Personnel Management to issue new guidelines to ''clarify and simplify'' what political activity is permitted under current law.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., who sponsored the Republican alternative, said, ''This legislation will permit federal employees to to participate in political campaigns to an extent not seen in 50 years,'' and repeated that Bush's senior advisers would recommend a veto.

Roth said the Hatch Act was enacted to ''make sure civil service is based on merit, not on politics,'' adding, ''I fear a return to the spoils system ... we can ignore history and suffer its repetition.''

But Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., said that the amendment did not solve the problem - the desire of federal workers to participate in the political process.

Lieberman said the Hatch Act was an ''unnaceptable intrusion on the political rights of 3 million of our fellow citizens'' and added that Roth's amendment does not deal with the fact that federal employees ''deserve and want political freedom.''

Glenn said the bill to reform the Hatch Act would ''make it clear what they can and cannot do'' and said the present law has a ''chilling effect on employees doing even permitted activities.''

Glenn also said, ''Murky laws invite disobedience. What we need are clear statutory guidelines.''

JERUSALEM (MAY 3) UPI - More than 100,000 West Bank Palestinians were confined to their homes Thursday by a curfew the army imposed to prevent demonstrations during the dedication of a Torah scroll by Jewish religious students.

The army apparently feared the ceremony at the Joseph's Tomb Yeshiva would draw a large turnout of Jewish settlers and provoke Palestinians in Nablus the West Bank's largest town, and surrounding refugee camps.

Arab fears have been fanned lately by government proposals to expand settlement in the Israeli-occupied territories and the occupation by Jews last month of a church-owned building in the Christian Quarter of Jerusalem's Old City.

Settler leaders, as well as activists from the left-wing Peace Now movement who planned a counter-demonstration, had hoped for a large turnout at Thursday's Torah scroll dedication ceremony. But the military allowed only about 150 people to attend the ceremony, limited press coverage and confined an estimated 107,000 Palestinians to their homes by the curfew.

No incidents were reported during the short religious ceremony that was accompanied by singing and dancing.

''These people, whose political perceptions we know well, are interested in instigating provocation,'' said left-wing Parliament member Yossi Sarid who was among demonstrators outside the yeshiva. ''There is nothing holy ... in their hearts, and they are prepared to make political use even of the book or the Torah, or the grave.

''Therefore, I would define these people as scoundrels in the service of the Torah,'' Sarid told Israel Radio.

Peace Now went to Israel's High Court of Justice hours before the ceremony to force the military to allow a demonstration outside the yeshiva. In a compromise, the military and Peace Now agreed that 20 protesters would be allowed but they could not make any speeches.

Before the compromise, Peace Now had urged Israelis to demonstrate in Nablus, criticizing the transitional government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir for seeking more settlements ''instead of peace.'' The religious ceremony would be turned into a celebration of the ''elimination of the peace process'' by right-wing members of Parliament, Peace Now said.

Students do not live at the yeshiva in Nablus, but recent reports indicate the government is considering the possibility of allowing them to remain overnight. If the Jewish students are allowed to sleep at the yeshiva, it would be seen as another step toward a permanent Jewish settlement in the West Bank's largest Arab town.

While several Jewish communities are near Nablus, there is no Jewish settlement within the town.

Former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and Religious Affairs Minister Zevulun Hammer had planned to attend the ceremony but canceled because of the on-going coalition negotiations to form Israel's next government.

Shamir met with two religious parties Thursday to discuss their support for his attempts to create a coalition led by his right-wing Likud Party. Shamir received a presidential mandate after Labor Party leader Shimon Peres said last week he had failed to secure a coalition.

The simmering rivalry between Peres and former Defense Minister Yitzhak

Rabin was made clearer following a Labor Party meeting.

Rabin said if Likud succeeded in forming a right-wing coalition, Labor would go into opposition and press for early elections.

''In the event of this, there will be a struggle in the Labor Party,'' he told Israel Radio.

In the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip, Palestinians observed a commercial strike in solidarity with the residents of the U.N.-run Jabalia refugee camp, where three Palestinians and more than 100 were wounded last week during clashes with Israeli soldiers. The outlawed Islamic Resistance Movement, known by its Arabic acronym Hamas, called the strike.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - In a major blow to the defense, the judge in the Bensonhurst racial killing trial Thursday refused to dismiss the most serious murder count against the alleged ringleader of a mob that killed a black teenager.

Justice Thaddeus Owens said evidence at the trial indicated defendant Keith Mondello ''orchestrated the whole thing'' and that the jury should consider intentional murder charges against him in the killing of Yusuf Hawkins, 16.

The black teenager was slain by a gang of bat-wielding white men on a street in the predominantly white neighborhood. The Aug. 23, 1989, slaying inflamed racial tensions citywide and sparked a series of tense protests.

Mondello and his friends allegedly whipped themselves into a frenzy over rumors that a gang of blacks and Hispanics were coming to the neighborhood to visit Gina Feliciano, a neighborhood girl who had begun dating minorities.

Judge Owens, speaking at a hearing in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn, said he based his decision on Feliciano's testimony that she saw four men, including Mondello, pull guns and run around the corner just before the killing.

''If you had a mob, and the mob had guns, one must infer that the guns be used,'' he said.

Mondello, 19, is charged with two counts of second-degree murder - showing a depraved indifference to human life and intentional murder.

His lawyers sought to dismiss the intentional murder count, arguing prosecutors had not proved Mondello was aware the attack would lead to Hawkins' death.

But Owens said testimony indicated Mondello and a local candy store owner played a key role in setting the stage for the deadly attack.

''He and Sal 'Squid' Mannino got together ... and set this thing in motion '' the judge said.

Mannino was not charged in the attack.

Owens also ruled against a prosecution motion to add manslaughter charges against Mondello's co-defendant, Joseph Fama, the alleged triggerman in the attack. Fama, 19, is also charged with murder in the slaying.

Both murder counts carry a sentence of 25 years to life in prison.

Mondello and Fama both are additionally charged with one count of assault and various counts of riot, discrimination, menacing and weapon possession for their parts in the mob attack on Hawkins and three friends.

Six other young men from Bensonhurst will be tried later.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President and Mrs. Bush visited inner-city Shiloh Baptist Church Thursday to pay respects to the family and friends of the late Rev. Henry Gregory.

The Bushes spent about 10 minutes in the church before a memorial service that was to have been attended by the Rev. Jesse Jackson and other leaders of the black community.

Gregory, who died earlier this week, was remembered Tuesday by Bush as ''an outstanding leader'' who provided ''spiritual and physical help to those coping with the hardships of inner-city life.''

BEIRUT, LEBANON (MAY 3) UPI - The pro-Iranian Hezbollah denied Thursday

it was invloved in the abduction of western hostages and said the Bush administration would be responsible if the 16 captives in Lebanon are not released.

''Hezbollah has repeatedly said it has no relation whatsoever with the issue of Western prisoners,'' said a statement by Hezbollah, or Party of God. It was the first time a Moslem fundamentalist group had refered to the hostages as ''prisoners.''

The denial was an apparent reply to a statement made by a ranking U.S. official Wednesday in Wiesbaden, West Germany, that all 16 Westerners are held by Hezbollah.

Hezbollah called on the Bush administration to free the hostages ''peacefully'' by ''releasing all Lebanese, Palestinians and Iranians jailed in Israel and in the prisons of America's allies in the region''.

''The American administration will bear full responsibility of any complication in this issue, especially after the efforts exerted by the Islamic Republic (of Iran) and Syria to secure the release of two Americans as a step toward ending this issue,'' the statement said.

Americans Robert Polhill and Frank Reed, both educators, were released during the past two weeks after being held in captivity in for years by groups believed to be influenced by Hezbollah.

The groups have demanded that hundreds of Lebanese and Palestinains jailed in Israel be freed and some have also demanded the release of 15 Shiites imprisoned in Kuwait for bombing Western installations.

There are six U.S. nationals among the 16 Westerners still held in Lebanon.

(MAY 3) UPI - President Bush praised efforts by Jamaica's leader to shore up the Caribbean island's economy and democratic system. Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley... an ex-socialist who now embraces free-market ideals... met with Bush today at the White House to discuss Jamaica's debt load. At an earlier news conference, Bush pointed to Jamaica's inability to win aid from Congress and said he would be willing to conduct a full-scale review of current foreign aid distribution.

President Bush wants NATO leaders to meet this summer and work out a new strategy to deal with the post-Cold War situation in Europe. Bush says the policy move is facilitated by the changes and reduced tensions sweeping the continent. The president announced that he was cancelling all modernization of short-range NATO nuclear missiles and artillery shells as a result of these changes.

At a White House news conference this morning, Bush also touched on the latest developments in the hostage situation. The president expressed hope that Iran sees recent U-S efforts as gestures of good will... even though he continued to rule out negotiations for the release of more captives. Bush says he doesn't think the situation will continue to move forward anytime soon.

Police say thieves smashed the window at one of New York's largest galleries and snatched about one-Million dollars in art during a lightning-fast heist. The owner of the Nahan Gallery says detectives told him the thieves had police scanners and fled just as police arrived... leading them on a 90-mile-an-hour chase that also included a police helicopter. Authorities lost the car on the Brooklyn side of the Manhattan bridge.

ATHENS, GREECE (MAY 3) UPI - Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani said Thursday Iran does not seek resumption of ties with the United States despite the release of two American hostages, but would still work toward freeing remaining U.S captives.

According to official Iranian media reports monitored here, Rafsanjani said Iran ''ruled out the likelihood of a resumption of ties'' with the United States. ''... Iran does not want relations'' with Washington, he said.

He said Iran, however, would continue help to secure the release of Western hostages in Lebanon, ''not for the sake of the United States, but for humanitarian reasons, for the sake of our principles.''

The Iranian president was reacting to remarks by President Bush Monday, shortly after American hostage Frank Reed was released by Moslem fundamentalists in Lebanon.

Bush thanked Iran and Syria for their role in having the hostages freed, but said: ''We can't, in terms of overall relationships between countries, expect normalcy or expect vast improvements until all Americans are free.''

Responding Thursday, Rafsanjani said: ''Has Iran asked for relations with you,that you are saying such things?''

Rafsanjani was the second Iranian cleric in as many days to make an anti-American speech in public.

Apparently stung by the release of a State Department report Monday, shortly after Reed's release, which included Iran in a list of countries that supported terrorism, spiritual leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei Wednesday made a blistering attack on the United States.

Khamenei, in a speech reminiscent of his mentor, the late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, accused the United States of behaving arrogantly toward other countries, including the Soviet Union.

Rafsanjani also branded as incorrect reports in the Western media that said Iran was using its political clout to help free the hostages in order to improve relations with the United States for economic reasons.

The reactions that emerged from Washington following the release of two American hostages over the past few days, ''were like those of a stubborn and frustrated child,'' the Iranian president said.

They ''show that the United States does not want the hostages freed, that it does not want a solution to the problem of hostage-taking,'' but that American leaders wanted to use the hostage issue ''to further their colonial and political aims.''

Rafsanjani said the Shiite groups in Lebanon released Reed and fellow American hostage Robert Polhill unconditionally, on recommendations from Iran, ''though they could also have turned us down.''

He said they freed them as a show of good will, and for humanitarian reasons, but the United States ''reacted by saying it would not make deals with hostage-takers - as if Israel and the (Lebanese Christian)

Phalangists were not hostage-takers.''

He described hostage-taking as ugly, but said it was ''started by the Phalangists, who are American agents.''

Rafsanjani called once again for the release of some 400 Palestinians held in Israeli prisons, and particularly the Lebanese Shi'ite cleric Sheikh Abdul Karim Obeid, abducted by Israeli commandos from his home in July last year.

(MAY 3) UPI - Oil prices plunged Thursday after a production cutback by oil ministers of the OPEC oil cartel failed to meet traders' expectations with U.S. gasoline falling more than a penny a gallon.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for June delivery was down 69 cents from Wednesday's close to $17.99 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, near its low on the day of $17.95 a barrel.

On the Merc, unleaded gasoline for June delivery was down 1.27 cents to 59.68 cents a gallon, while prompt delivery gasoline fell 1.15 cents to 59.95 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor cash market.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt delivery WTI crude was quoted at $18.35 a barrel, down 30 cents.

On the European spot market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent slipped 35 cents to $16.15 a barrel.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was trading at $14.15 a barrel, a 55 cent loss.

''The market was not impressed with the size of the cut. The market is estimating near-term demand for OPEC crude at less than the output reduced to,'' said Michael McDermott of Paine Webber Inc. in New York.

''In the short term it does nothing to alleviate the (world crude oil) surplus,'' the trader said.

''The market only rallied earlier this week on the expectation that OPEC would make significant cuts,'' McDermott said.

Oil ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced in Geneva that their emergency meeting had agreed on a reduction of 1.5 million barrels from the current 23.5 million barrels a day.

OPEC pumps more than a third of the world's crude oil and attempts to control prices by limiting the cartel's output.

The cartel agreed in November to an output ceiling of 22 million barrels daily for the first six months of 1990, but had been pumping way over this amount because of members violating their quotas.

Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia have been the main culprits.

Bill Hinton of Stotler & Co. in New York cited reports that the United Arab Emirates was not guaranteeing its cut of 200,000 barrels a day, only that it would try to reduce by this amount.

''We're still trying to sort the agreement out,'' Hinton said.

Tom Bentz, director of trading at New York's United Energy Inc., said that based on OPEC's past performance in adhering to agreements, the market also was skeptical it would abide by this one.

Although Bentz believed there would be short-term downward pressure on prices, he was optimistic that prices would rise later given increasing demand for gasoline during the summer driving season and the upcoming scheduled maintenance of North Sea oil rigs.

''I think over time this agreement will stabilize prices,'' Bentz said.

Home heating oil for June delivery plummeted 1.86 cents on the Merc to 50 cents a gallon. It fell 2.3 cents to 55.80 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor cash market.

Sun Co., Radnor, Pa. and Marathon Oil Co., the Findlay, Ohio, unit of USX Corp., reduced the posted price they will pay for crude at the wellhead by 50 cents a barrel to $17 a barrel for WTI.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush revealed Thursday he is trying pass on to Iran more information about four of its diplomats believed killed by Lebanese kidnappers, calling it a gesture of good will rather than a bargaining ploy.

But Bush said his gestures and the recent release of Americans Robert Polhill and Frank Reed did little to boost his optimism that the remaining six U.S. hostages would be released soon.

''I can't say that I've gotten any feeling that this process is destined to go forward in a short period of time,'' Bush told a nationally televised news conference. ''I wish it were different. I so wish it were different.''

Bush reiterated his policy of refusing to negotiate with hostage takers and acknowledged concern that any move on his part could be seen as an incentive for kidnappers to continue seizing Americans.

Bush did say, however, that besides discussing Iranian assets frozen in the United States, the administration also is working on behalf of Iran to investigate what happened to four Iranian diplomats kidnapped in Lebanon 1982.

''It is the best information we have that these people are not alive,'' Bush told reporters.

''I would have in mind any gesture that wouldn't be perceived as negotiating for the release of hostages,'' Bush said of what he was prepared to do. ''If there is some way that we can go back and get any information that would relieve the anxiety of the loved ones of those four people, we ought to do that.''

Arab diplomatic sources confirmed Thursday the United States has informed the Iranian government that its four diplomats are dead.

The sources said the four Iranians were killed by Lebanese Christian militiamen who ambushed them in Beirut in 1982. The sources said that two of the Iranians were severely wounded in the ambush and subsequently died, and the other two were executed by their captors.

In revealing the United States was looking into the abductions, Bush said, ''Here's an area where they've said they'd like some information, and if we can get it, I think we ought to get it. And we're trying.''

Regarding his previously stated position that ''good will begets good will '' Bush said: ''So if that is good will, so be it. I hope it is. That's the way I would intend it, and there may be other things we can do.''

Bush's remarks followed the release of Reed, freed earlier this week after 44 months of capitivity, and Polhill, who was freed April 22 after 3 1/2 years as a hostage.

Iran has said it would keep working to free Western hostages in Lebanon held mostly by pro-Iranian Moslem groups, though sources in Iran have said the country is awaiting a gesture from the Bush administration to reciprocate for the release of the two Americans.

Bush also said he intended to honor a request for confidentiality of a message that Polhill brought to him.

''He did have a message for me, and I've said I'm going to go the extra mile. I'm not going to leave any stone unturned,'' Bush said. ''I don't think that part of it is bad. ... What I do worry about is that if anybody perceives that we're putting a higher price on some human being by all of this.''

Iran and its allies in Lebanon have been trying to trade the remaining Western hostages for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel, 16 Shiites convicted of terrorist bombings in Kuwait and Moslem fundamentalist cleric Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, who was abducted by Israeli commandos in July.

Iran also wants the United States to release the $8 billion to $9 billion in Iranian assets frozen after Iranians seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

The Arab diplomatic sources said the information on the fate of the four missing Iranians was most recently confirmed in the past two months by Christian militia leader Samir Geagea. The information was passed to Shiite leaders in Lebanon, and through them to the Iranian government.

Geagea, now involved in a continuing series of battles with another Christian military leader, Michel Aoun, has been allied with various foreign powers, including Israel during the 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

The sources said that the reports of the deaths of the Iranians are taken ano messages from the the missing diplomats and the Lebanese militia has never made any demands for ransom or offers to trade them for western hostages held by pro-Iranian groups.

Geagea, according to one source, recently told an Arab diplomatic source, ''They are finished,'' a reference to the Iranians being killed.

Despite the authoritative information, the Iranians and the supporters have continued to raise the case of the four diplomats as one reason why the remaining American hostages cannot be released.

One source said, ''It is a smoke-screen'' to cover the continued detention of the Western hostages.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - Assets of the nation's 509 money market mutual funds decreased $2.14 billion to $385.72 bilion for the week ended Wednesday, the Washington-based Investment Company Institute reported Thursday.

The institute said broker-dealer fund assets decreased $2.94 billion to $160.70 billion, assets of general purpose funds decreased $912.6 million to $132.70 billion and institutional fund assets increased $1.71 billion to $93.32 billion.

"The tail end of the tax season continues to be reflected in last week's changes of money market fund assets," said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute.

"Checks drawn on money market funds and mailed to the IRS by last-minute filers were presented for payment last week and caused a sharp drop in assets held in individual accounts," Dreyer said. "At the same time, institutional assets shot up, partly in response to a dip in the federal funds rate."

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said that average seven-day simple yields were at 7.67 percent, down from 7.69, and 30-day simple yields at 7.68 percent, down from 7.69 percent. The average maturity of fund portfolios was unchanged at 44 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, 6.06 percent, unchanged; Super-Now accounts, 5.0 percent, unchanged; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.78 percent, up from 7.74; one-year CDs, 7.87 percent, up from 7.83; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.90 percent, up from 7.84; and five-year CDs, 7.94 percent, up from 7.88.

The average rate for a one-year adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.66 percent, up from 8.58.

Average rates on 15- and 30-year fixed-rate mortgages moved up in the latest week, to 10.25 percent and 10.45 percent, respectively. Corresponding rates were 10.09 percent and 10.30 percent a week earlier.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was 12.24 percent, down from 12.27.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush voiced support Thursday for a French-German initiative to ease the way to talks between Lithuania and the Soviet Union, heartening the visiting prime minister of the breakaway Baltic republic.

''We see that as a form of concrete assistance,'' Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene told reporters following a 45-minute Oval Office meeting with the president.

Although Bush again refused to recognize Lithuania's independence and said he sees no role for the United States in resolving the conflict at this time, a White House spokesman said the president gave Prunskiene a message to carry home.

''I am personally, and the United States goverment is, committed to the self-determination of the people of Lithuania,'' press secretary Marlin Fitzwater quoted Bush as saying in his first meeting with a Lithuanian official since the small state declared its independence March 11.

Prunskiene told reporters it was too early to judge the success of her meeting with Bush. ''We have to see how the president is going to respond to the issues that I raised in the further implementation of his policies '' she said.

Bush has been under fire for deciding not to retaliate against Moscow for the economic embargo imposed in an effort to keep Lithuania in the Kremlin fold.

The prime minister said she made no specific requests of Bush, although she did reiterate that Lithuania would like the United States recognize its independence declaration. ''I didn't necessarily expect an answer today,'' she said.

Fitzwater said Bush, during the meeting, reiterated ''our long-standing policy of refusing to recognize the forcibile incorporation of the Baltic States'' into the Soviet Union in 1940.

In a statement, the spokesman also said Bush ''urged all parties to enter in good faith dialogue.''

At a news conference before the meeting with Prunskiene, Bush endorsed an a recommendation by French President Francois Mitterand and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who urged Lithuania to be cautious and suggested that the republic suspend laws passed in support of its declaration of independence.

The proposal was made in an April 26 letter to Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis, who answered Mitterrand and Kohl Wednesday by asking them to ''convey to the Soviet leadership Lithuania's consent to consider a temporary suspension of the effects of those laws.''

However, Prunskiene told reporters before she arrived at the White House that Lithuania would not suspend its declaration of independence as a first step toward negotiations.

At his news conference, Bush said Landsbergis ''has seen some merit in what was suggested by Mitterrand and Kohl, and I think that is very, very positive.''

Fending off complaints he has been too easy on Moscow, Bush also said Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev deserves credit for his ''great restraint'' in dealing with the revolutionary political reforms sweeping Eastern Europe.

While saying it is up to Lithuanians to decide how far to go in accommodating Moscow, he said, ''Whatever facilitates dialogue is good.''

As for a more active and direct U.S. role, the president said, ''If there was a constructive role for the United States, of course we should fulfill that role. But there is not. And I don't see that emerging for a lot of different reasons.''

The president also defended new U.S. proposals to lift many Cold War-era restrictions on trade by the Western allies with the emerging democracies of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Told it appears he is rewarding Gorbachev rather than punishing him, Bush said, ''I don't view this as giving something to the Soviets at all.''

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said he is preparing legislation to prevent relaxation of control on high-tech exports to the Soviet Union until Moscow ends its crackdown in Lithuania.

Disputing suggestions he was sacrificing American principles to buy time for Gorbachev's embattled reform program, Bush said, ''Of course, we favor democracy.''

But he said ''there's a lot at stake'' in maintaining the momentum of reform in former Soviet satellites of the Warsaw Pact and in the Soviet Union.

Acknowledging a ''keen interest'' in seeing Gorbachev's reforms succeed, Bush praised the Soviet leader for his hands-off response to the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe.

''I salute the man for what he has done,'' Bush said. ''I think he's under extraordinary pressure at home.''

LOS ANGELES (MAY 3) UPI - David Rappaport, the diminutive actor who starred in the brief television series ''The Wizard'' and most recently appeared in ''L.A. Law,'' was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound, police said Thursday.

Rappaport, 38, had attempted suicide March 4 and had received some counseling after the incident, said his publicist, Joel Parker.

The 3-foot, 11-inch British-born actor had been engaged to be married next Tuesday in London to a woman Parker would identify only as Eliza.

''We're saddened by the loss of a wonderful man and a great actor,'' Parker said. ''His death is a very sad thing.''

Rappaport played the cunning maverick attorney Hamilton Scheyler in three episodes of the popular ''L.A. Law'' television series last November, and in March had filmed a guest appearance in the television series, ''Star Trek: The Next Generation.''

''L.A. Law'' co-producer Rick Wallace said, ''We are all pretty shocked. Our cast and crew loved him.

''The thing we thought of him was how vital he was and how extraordinary he was as a human being,'' Wallace said.

Rappaport's body was found by a jogger in Laurel Canyon Park about 200 yards off Mulholland Drive about 6:45 p.m. Wednesday, police Cmdr. William Booth said.

''He was dead of a gunshot wound we believe was self-inflicted,'' Booth said.

Rappaport was shot once in the chest, police said, adding a gun was found nearby.

The Coroner's Office planned an autopsy for Friday.

Rappaport was reported missing at 10 p.m. Tuesday by his manager, Frankie Leigh, who had met with the actor Monday afternoon. Leigh said the actor had been depressed recently.

Authorities said that on March 4 paramedics found Rappaport unconscious and not breathing inside a car near his Hollywood home.

A hose connected to the car's exhaust pipe had been placed inside the car ''in an obvious attempted suicide,'' detective Russell Kuster said.

Leigh denied the March 4 incident was a suicide attempt and attributed the incident to fatigue from working too hard.

Rappaport was also known for his roles in the motion pictures ''Time Bandits'' and ''The Bride.''

A memorial was tentatively planned for Sunday at the Synagogue for the Performing Arts in Los Angeles. A funeral was scheduled for Tuesday in London.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - Stocks closed slightly higher in light trading Thursday with the Dow industrials ending just below 2700 as investors set their sights on April employment figures due out Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 20.72 Wednesday, added 6.53 to close at 2696.17.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.63 to 183.97 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 1.09 to close at 335.57. The price of an average share rose 11 cents.

Advances led declines 895-552 among the 1,963 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 145,570,000 shares, compared with 141,610,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Stocks managed to post their fourth straight gain despite a late bout of profit taking before the April job data, which are due for release Friday before the market's opening.

Profit taking brought the Dow, which showed double-digit gains through early afternoon, back down near unchanged at one point before rebounding to close with a modest gain.

The rest of the market outperformed the Dow for a change, holding gains even while the blue-chip indicator vacillated and trading quieted before the job report.

"We had a fairly active morning, but by lunchtime it died off," said Dale Tills, manager of institutional equity trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco. "Everybody's looking forward to those numbers tomorrow."

Figures are due out at 8:30 a.m. EDT. A sharp increase in non-farm payrolls is expected, mostly because of the hiring of temporary census takers. Payrolls are expected to be up 384,000, including 211,000 census workers. The jobless rate is expected to be unchanged at 5.2 percent.

One analyst downplayed the figures as a market factor. "There may be some apprehension about the job data, but it's been widely discussed and was discounted when the market was going down," said Alfred Goldman, market strategist at A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis. "Everybody and his barber knows the new jobs number is going to be bloated by census takers," he said. "It's ancient history as a market factor."

Strength in Treasury bonds in advance of the data helped stocks remain in the plus column, analysts said. In afternoon trading, bonds were up 17/32 to 95 1/32, yielding 8.98 percent. "Bonds are lifting and that's giving some relief to the stock market," said Goldman, referring to the recent sharp rise in long-term interest rates, which topped nine percent at one point.

On the trading floor, American General was the most active issue, up 1/8 to 47 3/4 after surging Wednesday when shareholders defeated a proxy fight from Torchmark Corp. and the American General board decided to put the Houston-based insurer up for sale. Torchmark then said it would make another bid for the company.

Texaco followed, up 1/8 to 59 1/8 in dividend-related trading. Ames Department Stores was third, up 3/8 to 3 1/4.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T was down 1/8 to 40, IBM was up 3/8 to 109 3/8, Union Carbide added 3/8 to 19, and Coca-Cola advanced 3/4 to 78.

Elsewhere, Sundstrand surged 5 1/2 to 75 3/4 amid speculation the company may get a $100- to $110-a-share takeover bid from Westinghouse Electric. Both companies declined comment on the rumors.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 178,172,040 shares, compared with 171,077,390 shares traded Wednesday.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index rose 0.74 to close at 344.97. The price of an average share gained three cents. Advances led declines 313-270 among the 820 rssues traded. Composite volume totaled 14,025,900 shares, compared with 13,640,800 traded Wednesday. Hillhaven led the Amex issues, unchanged at 1 1/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 1.86 to close at 425.44.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - The Bush administration is unfairly - and mistakenly - charging there will be huge costs from a plan to revamp the sugar program, a House Agriculture subcommittee chairman said Thursday.

In a letter to Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter, Rep. Jerry Huckaby, D-La., also chided the department for ''quite unprofessional'' behavior in expressing its objections.

Huckaby's complaint stemmed from a two-page statement - adorned with a border composed of three rows of dollar signs - that was distributed to reporters Tuesday. It charged the restructured sugar program could cost $375 million to $675 million, as well as driving up costs to consumers and raising the sugar support price.

The cost estimates were based on the assumption that large amounts of sugar would be placed under government loan and then forfeited if a system of marketing quotas is imposed. The Agriculture Department contends the quotas would come into effect as early as 1992.

''It is the intent of the subcommittee that only sugar which is eligible for domestic marketing allotments would be eligible for price support loans,'' Huckaby said, blaming a drafting error for suggesting all sugar would be eligible.

He said the final subcommittee draft would reflect the intention to continue to operate sugar as a ''no cost'' program for the government.

During a public session Wednesday, House Agriculture Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, admonished Deputy Agriculture Undersecretary John Campbell for handing out the unsigned statement.

''We would hope we would not resort to handing out leaflets in the hallway '' de la Garza said.

Meanwhile, trade ambassador Carla Hills indicated in a letter to Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., that a 10 percent cut in the sugar support price ''could be considered a fair and equitable adjustment.''

Downey is a leader of an effort to reduce the support price and allow more foreign sugar into the country. The U.S. sugar program guarantees producers a price well above world levels and uses quotas to limit imports.

The Bush administration opposes any major changes in the U.S. sugar program, preferring to seek a worldwide agreement for reform. Sugar is one of the most heavily protected agricultural products around the world.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Leaders of the House Armed Services Committee said Thursday they want to cut back on the number of reports the Pentagon must produce for Congress each year.

Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., senior Republican Bill Dickinson of Alabama, investigations subcommittee Chairman Nick Mavroules, D-Mass., and the senior GOP member of that subcommittee, Larry Hopkins of Kentucky, intorduced legislation to eliminate 59 of the 211 annual reports the Pentagon must give Congress each year.

Aspin said the legislation, if adopted, could let the Pentagon concentrate on the more useful of the reports, such as selected acquisition reports and reports on the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Some of the reports the leaders want to eliminate are required as often as every other month, and others less frequently.

WASHINGTON (MAY 3) UPI - Defense Department and Air Force officials sidestepped the question Thursday of whether the Air Force has recommended a slowing of spending on putting the MX missile on rail cars.

''We have not yet received the Air Force proposal,'' Franklin Miller, deputy assistant secretary of Defense for arms control told the strategic forces subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

And Maj. Gen. Stephen Croker, in charge of strategic programs for the Air Force, declared, ''without trying to quibble, it is technically inaccurate to say the Air Force has deleted funding.''

The question was posed by subcommittee Chairman James Exon, D-Neb., in response to reports the Air Force, as part of a revision of spending plans for the five years starting in 1992 all services are compiling, has recommended scaling back spending on the program.

Outside the hearing, Exon appeared unconvinced, and during the hearing declared, ''The Air Force rail garrison program is in big, big trouble here.''

Croker said some of the reports about cutting back on the MX program were traced to an Air Force captain at a missile base who said parts of the program were cut. And some of the captain's comments, he said, were inaccurate.

Croker also told the panel that if money for a new mobile single-warhead missile called Midgetman is cut in half it will make it impossible to field the first of the missiles in 1997, and he said it would cost an extra $1 billion in 1992 through 1994 to get it fielded 15 months sooner, and the risk of problems would be much greater.

He said that although a number of the MX rail cars will be bought before operational testing is started, the Air Force has successfully completed the testing of the various components.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (MAY 3) UPI - A state trooper who told one motorist she needed to be ''punished'' was convicted Thursday of raping her and another woman after pulling them over for speeding violations in separate incidents.

The Middlesex Superior Court jury deliberated for about seven hours over two days before returning the guilty verdict in the trial of Robert Monteiro.

Monteiro, 25, of Wilmington, was charged with two counts of rape, two counts of indecent assault and battery and two counts of seeking corrupt gifts. He was found guilty on all charges.

Monteiro had been free on personal recognizance, but Judge Robert Barton ordered him jailed pending sentencing. He could receive up to 54 years in prison when he is sentenced May 17.

Defense attorney John McBride protested the decision to revoke bail, saying that because Monteiro was a police officer, his safety would be in jeopardy in prison.

''It could amount to a death sentence for him,'' McBride said.

Monteiro, who has been suspended without pay from the state police, was found guilty of raping two women he had stopped for speeding on the Massachusetts Turnpike in separate incidents last year.

One of the victims testified that Monteiro told her she needed to be ''punished'' before he raped her on Aug. 6, 1989. The second woman, who was raped in a Framingham cemetery on Jan. 29, 1989, said she obeyed Monteiro's demands for sex because he was an officer of the law.

''She did what he told her to do,'' Assistant District Attorney Marian Ryan said during closing arguments Wednesday. ''She didn't question him because we teach people to respect police officers.''

The defense had tried to cast doubt on the credibility of the woman. Monteiro testified he had met her once briefly in late 1988 in a Framingham nightclub and claimed she had called him ''at least 12 times'' afterward.

Monteiro faces additional charges stemming from incidents in which he allegedly offered not to issue speeding tickets to two other women motorists if they would agree to have sex with him. The women said they refused and received the speeding tickets.

KALAPANA, HI (MAY 3) UPI - The last residents of Kalapana were ordered to leave before nightfall Thursday as a lava flow from Kilauea Volcano marched relentlessly toward the center of the doomed community.

''It's been a steady movement throughout the night - very, very active,'' civil defense assistant administrator Bruce Butts said from the command post on the eastern edge of town.

Shortly before daybreak Thursday, the molten rock was 125 yards from the Kalapana Store and Drive-In and another 100 yards from the historic Star of the Sea Painted Church, which officials are trying to move.

Butts said the flow had moved 25 yards between 1 and 5 a.m. - about six yards per hour - and was as active as any lava river he had ever seen during the past month in the Kalapana area.

''I actually saw lava bubbling and moving in a steady stream into that area,'' he said.

Another prong of the lava flow was moving right down a road, also heading east toward the center of Kalapana. A low ridge blocks the lava from entering the sea until just before the center of town.

Civil defense authorities placed the entire Kalapana area on evacuation notice, advising residents to complete their evacuation by 6 p.m. HST, Butts said.

Authorities set up a roadblock to keep gawkers and other unnecessary traffic out of the area to allow residents and property owners time to move their belongings, Butts said.

''What we'll do ... is allow people to come back as long as safety permits to watch the approaching lava and get a direct view of the threat to their property,'' he said.

At 2 a.m. HST Thursday, another home in the mostly demolished Kalapana Gardens rural housing area was burned to the ground by the advancing flow.

Three homes were destroyed Wednesday, bringing to 130 the number of dwellings destroyed since the eruption - the longest in Kilauea's recorded history - began Jan. 3, 1983.

Church officials were preparing to move the Painted Church out of the path of the lava to safety. Construction crews worked around the historic structure, hampered by the size of the building and its fragility due to termite damage.

''I understand the timetable for moving the church is to have it loaded onto a trailer by noon. They will start moving it by early afternoon,'' Butts said.

He said he did not know where the church would be relocated, but several offers had come in.

A temporary site has been prepared just outside of town and a contractor said he would have the church ready for Sunday services this weekend.

Authorities also told an estimated 90 campers in the area that they will have to move either to a new Red Cross emergency shelter in the town of Pahoa, 10 miles away, or to other housing.

Damage to homes, property, and roadways in the seven-year-long eruption has been estimated at more than $25 million. The devastated areas have been declared state disaster areas, and federal disaster aid is being sought.

(MAY 3) UPI - President Bush set the stage today for stepped up arms reduction talks. This came at a news conference where Bush announced that he has canceled modernization of U-S nuclear missiles and artillery shells supplied to NATO defense forces. Bush attributed the action to the easing of East-West tensions in recent months.

A French newspaper says a Syrian drug trafficker smuggling heroin to the United States permitted Palestinian terrorists to place a bomb aboard the Pan American jumbo jet that blew up in flight over Scotland in 1988. The paper says the trafficker had been extended C-I-A protection in a move that hopefully would help free American hostages in Lebanon.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - Style was back on the tracks at Pennsylvania Station Thursday as the five mahogany-panelled cars of a new American-European Express luxury train rolled off on their first New York-to-Chicago journey.

Fifty-four select guests, many wearing designer clothes, made their way past a less fashionable crowd of suburban commuters and homeless people to track No. 10 where they boarded the glittering Pullman cars, pegged to Amtrak's regular Broadway Limited train serving the New York-Philadelphia-Chicago route.

Travel & Leisure magazine, a leading leisure publication owned by American Express Co., booked the inaugural journey of America's second luxury train service to lavishly entertain executives representing its main sponsors.

American-European Express Railway Co., a private company based in Panama City, Fla., rescued 10 cars crafted by Pullman Standard Co. in the late 1940s and launched last year the first luxury train service in the United States, between Washington and Chicago.

The company will now operate six trips a week on the Washington-Chicago route and four between New York and Chicago.

As the train was about to leave the station, a crew of 13 attended to the guests who raised their crystal glasses filled with a special cuvee of premium Californian Champagne named after the luxury train.

''This is just the best you can get in terms of on-train dining experience '' said French maitre d'hotel Jean Seck, a graduate from the Ecole Hoteliere de Paris, while describing the five-course dinner to be served with three different grand-cru French wines. ''It is great to work aboard the train. I get to see a lot of the United States.''

The American-European Express service was inspired by the revival of the famed Orient-Express train in Europe and heavily borrowed from its tradition of Art Deco interior design for the Club Car lounge, where a pianist plays old tunes on a baby grand, the exclusive dining car with heavy brass fixtures and the private cabins, complete with their own bathroom.

''Interiors of American-European Express cars are designed to please the eye and recall the atmosphere of luxury European rail cars,'' said Melissa Spay, who supervized the renovation of the 50-year-old cars.

To uphold its image, American-European Express requires ''gentlemen to wear dinner jackets'' or tuxedos, while ''dresses and evening wear are acceptable for ladies.''

Travelers are not permitted to move from one section of the train to the other in order to preserve the exclusive atmosphere of the luxury cars. Shorts, blue jeans, polo shirts and jump suits are strictly taboo.

The one-way, overnight journey to Chicago from New York, Philadelphia or Washington, including two nights at the Windy City's Four Seasons hotel, cost $579 per person, based on double occupancy.

Without hotel accomodations, the one-way Washington-Chicago journey for two, including champagne reception, gourmet dinner and breakfast is $984, a truly affordable luxury deal compared to two first-class airfares priced at $956, the company said.

The price, however, does not include tips for the crew.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (MAY 3) UPI - A civilian astronomer set to blast off aboard the shuttle Columbia May 17 was declared fit for flight Thursday, ending concern he might be bumped from the mission because of an unspecified medical problem.

Columbia and a seven-member crew - a post-Challenger record - are tentatively scheduled to take off at 12:45 a.m. EDT May 17 to kick off a long-awaited flight to study high-energy astronomical targets in an ongoing U.S. drive to explore the universe from space.

With launch processing in high gear, shuttle program chief Robert Crippen announced last week that astronomer Samuel Durrance, assigned to the crew in 1984, had developed an unspecified ''medical condition'' that could force NASA to bar him from the mission.

Durrance's backup, astronomer Kenneth Nordsieck, replaced his colleague last Saturday during a critical dress-rehearsal countdown at the launch pad, fueling speculation that Durrance would be bumped from the flight after more than six years of training.

But NASA spokesman Jeff Carr said Thursday Durrance had been cleared for launch.

''Space flight medical authorities at the Johnson Space Center have determined that Astro-1 payload specialist Samuel T. Durrance is medically qualified to participate in Columbia's flight,'' Carr said by telephone from Houston.

''Durrance's medical condition has been evaluated and resolved to the satisfaction of the NASA Aerospace Medicine Board, clearing the way for his participation.''

The nature of the medical problem was not revealed, but Durrance's father, Rodney, said Tuesday it was a ''minor'' complaint.

William Lenoir, associate administrator of the office of space flight, said another astronaut's cold was revealed to have delayed a previous flight because he agreed to disclose the information. That was not true for Durrance, he said.

''It's private information and it's up to the individual,'' Lenoir said while briefing reporters in Washington. ''The individual last time said, 'Tell the world,' and this time the individual said, 'I'd rather keep it private.'''

Durrance's crewmates for the mission are commander Vance Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 43, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 45, and civilian astronomer Ronald Parise, 38.

Parise and Durrance are the first non-astronauts assigned to a shuttle flight since New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe and satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis blasted off on the ill-fated shuttle Challenger's final voyage.

The last time an astronaut was bumped from a flight so close to launch came in 1970 when Ken Mattingly was taken off the crew of the Apollo 13 moon mission after he was exposed to German measles.

Columbia's seven-member crew is scheduled to work in two shifts around the clock throughout the upcoming mission to operate a battery of telescopes in the shuttle's cargo bay that were built to study ultraviolet and X-ray radiation from deep space targets that is blocked by Earth's atmosphere.

The mission officially is scheduled to last nine days, although NASA officials have said the flight would be extended an extra day if conditions permit.

PARIS (MAY 3) UPI - France's lower house Thursday adopted legislation Thursday that would impose heavy penalties on people convicted of inciting racial hatred, including revocation of their right to hold public office and serve on a jury.

The deputies of the National Assembly voted by 307 to 265 in favor of the Communist-sponsored bill ''to repress every racist, anti-semitic and xenophobic act'' after a debate that lasted until 5 a.m.

Political experts said the vote was a setback for right-wing extremist Jean-Marie Le Pen, who called the bill undemocratic. Le Pen was recently was stripped of his legal immunity as a member of the European Parliament.

The legislation, which has to be ratified by the Senate, would deprive people convicted of inciting racial hatred of the right to stand in elections, remove their eligibility for jury service and bar them from government employment. The sanction could last for up to five years.

In an evident counter-attack, a coordinating committee of the main conservative opposition groups said Thursday they would present a motion of censure against the Socialist government Friday for granting amnesty to a number of Socialist politicians indicted for corruption.

The Communist Party said it would not support the censure motion, meaning it would almost certainly not be passed. But a series of whitewashings of scandal-tainted local Socialist politicians - including nine cleared or given amnesty Wednesday by local magistrates after indictment in a bribery scandal - has contributed to the declining popularity of President Francois Mitterrand, political experts say.

The legislators considering the anti-racism law adopted 10 amendments tabled by Prime Minister Michel Rocard's Socialists, including one deleting a clause that would have deprived offenders of their right to vote.

Two other amendments that passed canceled a clause in the original Communist proposal that would have stripped of civic rights editors and journalists of publications publishing racist statements.

The opposition Rally for the Republic Party and Union of French Democracy federation voted against the bill, but the Socialists supported it. Communist deputy Jean-Claude Gaysott proposed the legislation following a series of racially motivated killings of Arab and North African immigrants in France and a resurgence in antisemitism.

The new bill also would make an offense of extreme cases of ''revisionism'' - a school of history that denies the Nazi holocaust against the Jews took place in World War II. Under one of the Socialist amendments that was passed, however, this would only apply to historians who deny that ''crimes against humanity'' happened.

Legal experts said that clause could affect the case of Bernard Notin, a historian at Lyon University, whose revisionist teaching - denying the existence of Nazi gas chambers - has offended many French in a city that was the capital of the French resistance during World War and scene of many crimes against Jews.

The deputies rejected numerous amendments tabled by the only deputy of Le Pen's National Front party with a seat in the National Assembly, Marie-France Stirbois.

Stirbois read out a list of alleged crimes carried out by Arabs in France and screamed at the leftist benches ''you are the foreigners' parties'' as the one-eyed Le Pen looked on from the public gallery.

(MAY 3) UPI - The Food and Drug Administration has approved A-Z-T treatments for children suffering from AIDS. Since 1987, A-Z-T... the only drug shown to prolong the lives of those infected with the deadly virus... has been used to treat AIDS-infected adults. The F-D-A was slow to approve the treatment for children because of the drug's side effects.

U-S blood centers will now screen all blood donors for hepatitis C virus... the most common serious disease spread through blood transfusions. The Food and Drug Administration approved the new test yesterday. Health experts predict screening will prevent up to 100-thousand cases of hepatitis C each year.

A resolution urging Washington Mayor Marion Barry NOT to seek re-election is scheduled to be presented to the D-C Democratic State Committee tonight. The resolution cites Barry's indictment on drug charges... his coming trial... and his health problems after admitting he is an alcoholic.

NEW YORK (MAY 3) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that M1, the basic U.S. money supply, fell $4.8 billion in the latest reporting week, while the respective broader M2 and M3 aggregates rose and decreased.

M2 rose $1.2 billion and M3 fell $8.0 billion.

The narrowly defined M1, which is made up of cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money that is available for immediate spending - fell to a seasonally adjusted average of $805.6 billion in the week ended April 23 from a revised $810.4 billion the week before.

Over the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $803.2 billion, a 5.5 percent rate of increase from the previous 13 weeks, the Fed reported.

The broader measure of money, M2, averaged an estimated $3,278.6 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $3,277.4 billion. M2 includes M1, plus passbook savings, small time deposits, including money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and certain other short-term assets.

M3, which includes M2 plus large time deposits, repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts and institutional money market funds, averaged $4,073.6 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $4,081.6 billion, the Fed said.

GREENBELT, MD (MAY 3) UPI - The Hubble Space Telescope's critical guidance system was tested for the first time Thursday and engineers unexpectedly discovered signs that the $1.5 billion observatory was slowly wobbling back and forth.

Engineers at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt and the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., began 18 hours of tests on the 12-ton telescope's precision pointing system, built to keep the giant instrument firmly locked onto guide stars during astronomical observations.

But ground controllers were surprised to receive data showing the massive observatory was slowly bobbing back and forth about one 600th of a degree every minute, far more than allowable.

''The fine guidance system (FGS) is the instrument that detected the oscillation,'' said David Pine, deputy program manager of the telescope project. ''You're looking at a very slow, very slight motion.

''In the scale of the fine guidance sensor, it's a big number. But we've just begun working with the FGS and there's going to be a lot of tweaking and adjustments and analysis that has to get done. We don't even known whether the FGS is where the oscillation originates.''

As one scientist put it, ''rather than holding (a guide) star absolutely steady, it's allowing the star to drift up and down. It's certainly an oscillation that needs to be gotten rid of.''

The fine guidance sensor testing ran into trouble earlier due to communications problems and the unexpected wobble forced engineers to begin a fresh analysis of data beamed down from on-board tape recorders to

As for the potential impact of the latest snag in space telescope activation, Pine said ''it's premature to get upset.''

''I would expect we'll solve the problem and probably solve it fairly quickly. We're just beginning to get the data down to look at it in detail '' he said.

Pine said problems, to some extent, are unavoidable given the telescope's sheer complexity.

''It's got a gigantic ground system (that is) attached to the most complex unmanned satellite we've ever launched,'' he said. ''It's a combination that's going to take a while to learn. The telescope, to its credit, is doing everything we're directing it to do.''

The guidance system testing began after the telescope's hatch was apparently closed for a second time by accident.

A ''data uplink error to the telescope's computer'' triggered an ''inertial hold mode'' Wednesday night, causing the door that protects the telescope's sensitive equipment to close as ''a normal part of inertial hold,'' a NASA statement said.

Engineers were pleased that the door closing did not ''upset the telescope's rate gyros,'' which has just been reprogrammed to be less sensitive because movement of the door had sent the telescope into time-consuming hibernation-like states twice before, the statement said.

The door was reopened at about 11:25 p.m. ''and operators continued with their planned activities,'' the statement said.

The pointing system will be critical when the telescope begins its 15-year mission of studying stars, planets and galaxies in the far reaches of the universe.

The mission is expected to revolutionize understanding of the birth, structure and ultimate fate of the universe by peering more deeply and with greater clarity into the universe than ever before.

The telescope was placed into orbit last week by the space shuttle Discovery and technicians began an eight-month process of slowly turning on the telescope's many systems and five high-tech instruments.

Problems in the initial steps of slowly starting the telescope forced NASA behind schedule in the eight-month process, delaying the historic first image of the heavens.

TYLER, TX (MAY 3) UPI - An all-white jury Thursday convicted three former Sabine County lawmen on murder charges in the fatal beating of a black jail inmate.

The state district court jury deliberated about five hours before returning the verdict in the trial of former Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner, 43, and former Sabine County deputies James Hyden, 36, and Bill R. Horton, 60.

The defendants showed no emotion when the verdict was read.

The sentencing phase was expected to begin Friday. The defendants could receive anything from probation to life in prison.

The three former officers earlier were cleared of civil rights charges in a trial in Hemphill in 1988. The case increased racial tension in the Sabine County area and had sparked a protest rally in 1987.

''I had to shed some tears. It was joyful tears,'' Sarah Garner, the victim's mother, said after hearing the verdict. ''I felt we had never had justice in this case.''

Loyal Garner Jr., of Florien, La., died of massive head injuries in a Tyler hospital two days after the beating on Christmas night 1987 in the Sabine County Jail at Hemphill. He had been arrested for drunken driving.

According to testimony, Garner did not receive medical attention for his injuries for more than 12 hours.

''These three individuals, who were carrying a badges ... crossed over that line (of legality) and became criminals,'' District Attorney Jack Skeen Jr. told jurors. ''Putting on a badge is not a license to murder.''

Skeen said the incident occurred because Garner was beating on his cell door demanding to call his wife, and Ladner was overzealous in his efforts to quiet him.

''He went in there and put an end to it (the beating on the jail cell door) and in the process put an end to the life of Loyal Garner Jr.,'' Skeen said.

Defendants Hyden and Horton were considered accessories to the crime.

Defense attorneys said Ladner hit Garner in self-defense just one time.

Later, Garner grabbed for a flashlight in the booking room where the three defendants had taken him to make a phone call. Garner stumbled, they said, and hit his head on a wall.

The trial was not held in Sabine County where the defendants had been acquitted in the earlier civil rights case.

''When you get in a situation like that ... down there where the defendants know everybody, it's much harder for the prosecution,'' Skeen said.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 4) UPI - CIGNA Corp. Thursday reported first-quarter income of $42 million, or 54 cents a share, compared with $85 million, or $1.02 a share, for the year-earlier period.

The insurance company said revenues rose slightly to $2.8 billion from $2.7 billion in the first quarter of 1989.

CIGNA Chairman Wilson Taylor said the earnings drop reflects unusually severe winter storms in Europe which reduced after-tax earnings by $34 million, and by inadequate pricing for property and casualty insurance.

Results for the latest period included $13 million from discontinued operations, principally the Horace Mann companies, which were sold. CIGNA completed its acquisition of Equicorp during the quarter, but the results did not reflect that deal.

CIGNA's property and casualty division had a net loss of $24 million for the quarter, including after-tax investment gains of $12 million, compared to income of $42 million for the first quarter of 1989.

''Assuming a normal level of catastrophes, I expect overall earnings for the remainder of the year to be better than in 1989,'' Taylor said. ''I also anticipate earnings growth beyond 1990, assuming price improvements in the property and casualty market.''

STAMFORD, Conn. (MAY 4) UPI - For the first time, America's 20 largest computer manufacturers in 1989 sold more products overseas than they did at home, a company that researches the industry said Thursday.

Sales abroad for the nation's top computer makers rose to 50.1 percent of total revenue from 48.4 percent in 1988, the Gartner Group Inc. reported.

However, the overall selling pace was slowed, Gartner said.

In its annual publication on the top 100 computer makers, Gartner said the top 20 produced 70 percent of U.S. computer hardware, software and services.

Industry leader IBM maintained its lead in the mainframe market, the publication reported, with its share rising to 74.2 percent in 1989 from 73.1 percent in 1988 .

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (MAY 4) UPI - Exxon Corp.'s summer trial on criminal oil spill charges has been delayed by a federal judge because of the complexity of the case and the massive amounts of evidence and untested legal issues, authorities said Thursday.

U.S. District Court Judge H. Russel Holland, at the request of prosecutors defense lawyers and Exxon, signed an order Wednesday indefinitely postponing the trial, scheduled to start June 18.

Exxon and its shipping subsidiary were indicted earlier this year on charges arising from the March 24, 1989, Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska's Prince William Sound.

The indictment was returned after a secret plea bargain agreement was exposed and fell through. The plea bargain would have included a comprehensive $550 million environmental restoration settlement paid by Exxon.

Exxon is charged with violations of the Clean Water Act, the Refuse Act, the Migratory Bird Act, the Ports and Waterways Safety Act and the Dangerous Cargo Act - for spilling the oil, killing wildlife and alleging that Exxon was negligent and employed unqualified and incompetent tanker crewmen.

Exxon pleaded innocent at arraignment last month and the trial date wa set. But both Exxon company presidents later wrote letters waiving their right to a speedy trial and lawyers on both sides said the case involved such a massive amount of documents and such complex issues that they needed more time to prepare for trial.

Exxon defense lawyer James Neal, in an affidavit requesting a delay, said, ''So far as I have been able to determine, most of the statutes cited in the instant indictment have never been litigated in the circumstances of an oil spill from a vessel.''

Holland agreed in his trial delay order Wednesday and said ''the court is satisfied that this prosecution involves novel questions of fact and law.''

If convicted of the three misdemeanors and two felonies, Exxon faces an estimated $700 million in fines plus restitution, under a law that permits the Justice Department to press for double damages in penalties. Exxon lawyers have objected to application of that law in this case.

The case has been shrouded in secrecy, with the grand jury testimony and other evidence being sealed by the court.

Other material accumulated in the case includes testimony presented to the Alaska Oil Spill Commission, the National Transportation Safety Board, Congress, FBI interviews and the 5,000-page transcript from the trial of Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood.

Hazelwood is appealing his March misdemeanor conviction of negligent discharge of oil. He was cleared of three more serious charges of drunken and reckless operation of the tanker.

This week Exxon started its second season of cleanup of the 11-million-gallon oil spill, the worst in U.S. history.

(MAY 3) UPI - A French newspaper today reports that a C-I-A-protected drug smuggler helped carry out last year's terrorist bombing of Pan American Flight 103.

The newspaper alleges that the C-I-A was protecting the multi-Millionaire Syrian narcotics trafficker in hopes of making contacts to help free American hostages held by Moslem fundamentalists in Lebanon.

The report says the smuggler agreed in late 1988 to put his drug ring at the disposal of the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The group wanted to avenge the downing of an Iranian jetliner by the American cruiser U-S-S Vicennes in the Persian Gulf. The downing killed 290 people.

The newspaper says the narcotics trafficker drove the bomb used in the Pan Am attack from Paris to Frankfurt, West Germany, where a Lebanese American checked a suitcase onto the plane. After his check-in, Turkish airport employees... working for the drug-smuggling ring... switched the bag with one containing the explosive device.

The bomb exploded over Scotland, killing all 270 people on board.

A U-S Embassy spokesman in Paris declined comment on the report.

(MAY 3) UPI - OPEC ministers have reached an agreement aimed at curbing oil production to counter falling prices.

The cartel announced in Geneva, Switzerland, today an accord that will reduce production by nearly one-point-five-Million barrels a day. The cut will continue through the end of July.

Excess production has caused a 25 percent plunge in prices this year. But they continued to fall today despite the announcement.

One analyst says the market was NOT impressed with the size of the OPEC cut.

In New York, West Texas Intermediate crude for June delivery was down 40 cents, to 18 dollars 30 cents a barrel. Dubai light crude fell 17 cents, to 14 dollars 56 cents a barrel.

On the European market, North Sea brent dropped 16 cents, to 16 dollars 19 cents.

There's been another Amtrak train accident... the second in about 12 hours.

About 20 people are recovering following a collision this morning between a passenger Amtrak train and a logging truck.

The train... carrying about 200 passengers from Chicago to New Orleans... slammed into the truck at an unmarked crossing in Durant, Missisippi, about 60 miles north of Jackson.

The accident trails by hours last night's derailment of an Amtrak train en route from Chicago to Indianapolis.

30 people aboard were hurt when that train struck a line of freight cars and derailed in Crawfordsville, Indiana, the second-to-last stop.

Amtrak officials say that the injuries sustained in the two collisions are mostly minor, although the driver of the truck in the Mississippi crash is in serious condition in a Jackson hospital.

Officials also say there is NO correlation between these the wrecks.

Amtrak suffered another derailment 10 days ago in Batavia, Iowa.

(MAY 3) UPI - President Bush says he will meet on Sunday with congressional leaders to try to mend mounting differences over the fiscal 1991 budget.

Bush conceded to reporters this morning that NO one seems enthused about any version of the budget. He says Sunday's so-called ''budget summit'' will primarily focus on the national deficit and the rising concern over outlays and dwindling revenues of a sagging economy.

Bush expressed hopes the meeting will move the budget forward but says he's NOT willing to negotiate on any proposed spending cuts or tax increases.

Word of the meeting comes one day after the Senate Budget Committee approved a one-point-two-TRILLION-dollar plan for fiscal 1991 that cuts defense spending by 13-BILLION dollars and trims the deficit by 43-BILLION.

On Tuesday, the House passed is own budget blueprint.

The Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law requires that the 1991 deficit be cut by 36-BILLION to a target of 64-BILLION dollars. The House budget plan meets that target, while the Senate's goes seven-BILLION dollars better.

A ship believed to be carrying illegal immigrants wrecked off the Dominican Republic coast today.

Dominican authorities say at least six people are dead and over 60 others missing. They said they had received a distress call informing them that 72 people were aboard the vessel.

Their is NO indication as to the nationalities of the passengers or the ship. But it's believed the ship was carrying illegal immigrants.

Thousands of Haitians have fled to the neighboring Dominican Republic in recent years. And officials say Domincans often use boats to travel illegally to Puerto Rico.

Dominican authorities say rescue workers have found six survivors and the bodies of the half-dozen people known to be dead.

The rescue workers... including divers... rushed to the wreck site to look for more survivors. Marine and air force personnel also are participating in the search.

(MAY 3) UPI - The only drug shown to prolong the lives of AIDS victims has been authorized for children.

The Food and Drug Administration approved the use of A-Z-T for patients three months to 12 years old. It had previously been authorized for those aged 13 and older.

Of the 128-thousand 319 cases of AIDS reported since the AIDS epidemic began, 21-hundredhundred-82 of those youngsters have died.

At least 10-thousand American children are believed infected with the AIDS virus. But only those who have shown symptoms will be eligible to receive A-Z-T.

In a related development, a government report says schools provide the least amount of AIDS education to 11th and 12th graders... a period when a youngster's sexual activity is most likely to increase. Students in smaller school districts also are said to be overooked.

The General Accounting Office report also urges more instruction on AIDS to all students. The office... the investigative arm of Congress.. couples this with a proposal for a survey on AIDS instruction in the schools.

The Alliance Against Intoxicated Motorists is providing a strong incentive to get people to turn in drunk drivers... cold cash.

The ''Drunkbusters'' program, which starts tomorrow, will offer 100-dollar cash rewards to any mobile phone user who calls a special number to report a drunk driver who is subsequently arrested and charged.

A-A-I-M President David Osborn says he will run the ''Drunkbusters'' program as long as the 10-thousand dollars earmarked for it holds out.

Osborn is asking callers to report a license plate number, location, direction and car make of anyone they suspect of driving drunk.

Osborn says he backs the cash approach because the problem is NOT between police and drunk drivers... but between drunk drivers and the public.

(MAY 3) UPI - The Soviet Union and three of its Warsaw Pact allies may have broken the law. U-S officials are questioning Moscow about intermediate-range missiles that have been found in East Germany, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia. The S-S-23 missiles are prohibited under the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty, now in effect. The Soviets say NONE of their top leaders knew about the missiles.

Leading Senate Democrats today proposed a sweeping bill to reform campaign finance laws. The plan calls for a limit on spending, and asks each taxpayer to donate three-dollars to foot most of the campaign costs. The proposal also suggests that political action committees, or PACS, be prohibited from donating to Senate candidates. Republicans are expected to fight the motion when it reaches the full Senate next week.

The prime minister of Jamaica told President Bush he doesN'T want his country to be forgotten in the rush to aid other democracies. Prime Minister Michael Manley now embraces free-market principles after a failed fling with socialism in the 1970s. Manley and Bush met in the White House about four of its diplomats kidnapped in Lebanon in 1982. Bush said the best U-S information is that the four Iranians were killed by their kidnappers. The president called the move a gesture of goodwill rather than a bargaining ploy. Bush said he did NOT want the gesture to give kidnappers any incentive to seize more Americans.

President Bush today endorsed a French-German proposal to open the way for negotiations between Lithuania and the Soviet Union. Bush met at the White House with Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene , who called the president's endorsement a form of assistance. Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis has said Lithuania is considering a temporary suspension of its laws relating to independence.

A federal appeals court today refused a stay of execution for Florida death row inmate Jesse Tafero, clearing the way for his death tomorrow. (MAY 3) UPI - President Bush calls for ground-based nuclear arms cuts... Washington concerned about possible I-N-F treaty violations in Eastern Europe... and more Texas flooding. U-P-I has it all, next:

President Bush today announced a shift in U-S strategy that ackowledges the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe and the warming of relations with Moscow.

Bush canceled modernization of NATO ground-based Lance nuclear missiles and artillery in Europe. Originally, the president had agreed to consider cuts of those weapons only after the start of a reduction in conventional forces.

But today, the president said the weapons cuts could begin with the mere signing of such an agreement.

The president's announcement was long expected with the lessened risk of war and approaching German unification. Quoting the president- ''As democracy comes to Eastern Europe and Soviet troops return home, there is less need for nuclear systems of the shortest range.

Bush also suggested a NATO summit for this summer. He proposed a review of troop levels in Europe and an expanded political role for the western alliance.

(MAY 3) UPI - President Bush today said he is disappointed with China's response to his attempts to maintain good relations following last year's Tiananmen Square massacre.

But the president offered ''NO apologies'' for NOT retaliating against the Chinese for killing hundreds of peaceful pro-democracy protesters in Beijing last June 4th.

Bush repeated his position that preserving a relationship with China in a global context is important.

At a morning news conference, Bush said ''several things'' have changed because of his policy. He said China has renewed participation in the Fulbright fellowship program and still admits Peace Corps volunteers.

Bush added he was pleased China lifted martial law in Tibet recently.

But the president said he would like to see ''a more vigorous response.''

As for what steps he has in mind for China, Bush smiled and said he has ''some diplomacy in mind.'' An aide said the administration must decide soon whether to continue most-favored nation trade status for China.

Lithuania's prime minister met with President Bush today and said she is heartened by the president's backing of a proposal for Lithuanian-Soviet negotiations.

Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene said she sees endorsement of the plan ''as a form of concrete assistance.''

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis yesterday replied to the French-German proposal. He asked leaders of the two countries to tell the Soviets that Lithuania is considering a temporary suspension of laws enforcing its declaration of independence.

Under the proposal, the suspension would pave the way for talks with Moscow. Bush again refused to recognize Lithuania's independence and said he sees NO role for the United States in resolving the conflict at this time.

But a White House spokesman said the president told Prunskiene he and the U-S goverment are committed to the self-determination of Lithuania.

Prunskiene also met members of Congress today. She asked them to resist a blind embrace of Soviet President Gorbachev. She said even ''the world's darling'' has NO right to deny her republic its independence.

(MAY 3) UPI - Democrats today proposed a campaign finance reform bill, but several key issues promise to create obstacles to a compromise with Republicans.

Leading Senate Democrats want to impose spending limits on campaigns and introduce a plan asking taxpayers to shell out three-dollars each to pay the costs of the races.

The plan also suggests that political action committees, known as PAC's, be prohibited from donating to Senate candidates. Democrats and Republicans appear to be close regarding that issue.

But Republicans strongy oppose public campaign financing and spending limits. And many Democrats privately admit it will be hard to win passage of any public financing proposal.

France's lower house today adopted legislation to penalize people convicted of inciting racial hatred.

The deputies of the National Assembly voted 307-265 in favor of the Communist-sponsored bill ''to repress every racist, anti-semitic and xenophobic act.''

Political experts said the vote was a setback for right-wing extremist Jean-Marie Le Pen, who called the bill UNdemocratic. Le Pen was recently was stripped of his legal immunity as a member of the European Parliament.

The legislators deleted a clause that would have deprived offenders of their right to vote, and a clause that would have stripped civic rights from those publishing racist statements.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Sprint Services, which provides operator services for US Sprint Communications Co., will initiate service here Friday when it opens the sixth of its regional operations centers.

Sprint Services provides assistance in placing person-to-person, collect and credit card calls for customers dialing from business, residential and pay telephones using the US Sprint nationwide fiber-optic network.

Presently, Sprint Services serves US Sprint with call assistance exclusively for US Sprint customers. The company will expand its market coverage later this year to include local exchange carriers and other telephone traffic.

Sprint Services employees will begin accepting calls on Friday after technicians cutover the first of multiple switches on the US Sprint network which will route calls to the Jacksonville center.

The Jacksonville center, located in the Westland Business Park, is the sixth to be opened by Sprint Services since June 1989. The company operates five other centers -- Kansas City, Mo.; Nashville, Tenn.; Phoenix Ariz.; Richmond, Va. and Indianapolis, Ind.

Approximately $7.5 million has been invested by Sprint Services in state-of-the-art electronic switching and computer equipment, building improvements, furniture and fixtures for the Jacksonville center.

Most of the new jobs brought to the Jacksonville area in the next two years will be customer agent positions. There are approximately 130 persons already employed by Sprint Services in Jacksonville.

''We're creating a non-traditional work environment with well-trained customer agents," said LeAnne Bargamin, director - operations for the Sprint Services' Jacksonville and Richmond centers. ''Our customer service capabilities represent the highest standards of the industry.

''Our participative training and leadership approach highlights professionalism, problem solving and service, enabling agents to manage their own performance and careers.''

Sprint Services, a unit of US Sprint, is headquartered in Kansas City, Mo. Another division of Sprint Services, Sprint Gateways, offers a full line of products in the ''900'' pay-per-call industry using US Sprint's all-digital fiber-optic network.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company based in Kansas City, Mo.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - A former Defense Department official has withdrawn a $360 million ''whistle-blower'' lawsuit he had filed against Hughes Aircraft Co.

The withdrawal came after the Department of Justice had investigated the suit brought last year by former government contracting officer Patrick M. Kelley. Agreeing with the dismissal, the Justice Department filed papers earlier in the week dismissing the suit in the U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

Kelley, who managed government contracts at Hughes' Ground Systems Group in Fullerton, Calif., brought his suit five months after he retired, charging that Hughes had inflated costs in its government proposals from 1983 to 1989. His withdrawal of the suit is consistent with Hughes' steadfast contention over this period, and in defense of the suit, that the costs in question properly estimated legitimate expenses incurred during manufacturing.

Also, in a separate whistle-blower action filed against Hughes by Michael D. Denlinger, the Justice Department recently informed the U.S. District Court that the government has declined to join in that $9.6 billion lawsuit as well.

A former Hughes employee, Denlinger claims that the company had installed defective parts in government equipment. Hughes has denied the charges and a lengthy Justice Department investigation found nothing to support his claims.

MEMPHIS, TN (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Despite the shifting airline industry picture last year due to strikes and bankruptcies, Fred Martin's company is seeing the profitable fruits of a program started four years ago.

Martin is head of Dobbs International Services, one of the world's largest inflight caterers, serving more than 70 million meals per year on 60 scheduled airlines. He reported a 10 percent increase in sales and revenues for last year to Dobbs' parent company, Greyhound Dial Corp.

The company has instituted several strategies to navigate the changing courses of the airline industry. One, Martin said, gives Dobbs a ''significant competitive edge.''

''We are now seeing the fruits of our quality improvement process strategy which virtually assures us of the highest levels of customer satisfaction at the best possible price,'' he said. ''We see our emphasis on meeting customer requirements as the focal point of a total culture commitment and the driving business strategy for the future of our company.''

Successes reported by the company, which Martin said are a direct result of the quality improvement process, include the achievement of the highest service rating possible from three of its largest customers, increased FDA inspection scores, a decrease in delays per flight and an increase in the percentage of customer satisfaction per flight.

QIP (quality improvement process) at Dobbs focuses on giving employees the tools and training to carry out one of the company's favorite mottos, ''Do it right the first time.'' The company has entered into a series of joint projects with both suppliers and customers, such as directly linking the partners' sophisticated computer networks together for ordering and billing functions.

ENGLEWOOD, CO (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - U S WEST Inc. Friday announced the winners of its ''Reaching Beyond Classroom Walls'' 1990 outstanding teacher program.

Fourteen teachers, one from each state in U S WEST's service territory, received a $5,000 cash award to pursue professional development. In addition, three of the teachers, from Montana, Oregon and Utah, will receive awards equivalent to one year's salary and expenses to work on a specific project to improve the educational environment in their community.

The teachers were introduced and the sabbatical winners announced at U S WEST's annual shareowners' meeting Friday by chairman and chief executive officer Jack MacAllister. The program is part of a $26 million U S WEST commitment to educational excellence.

More than 800 nominations were received in this year's teacher recognition program.

''We look for teachers with an unusual commitment to students; teachers who make extraordinary efforts to make classroom subjects come alive,'' said Theresa Montoya, program officer for the U S WEST Foundation.

The sabbatical winners were selected based on their plans for the year and how they intended to apply the sabbatical experience to future teaching activities in their communities.

''Nominations are made by students, parents, associates or any person familiar with the teacher's work,'' said Montoya. She said that no similar sabbatical program exists in the region for teachers in the kindergarten through high school grade level.

In addition to the outstanding teacher program, the educational initiative includes support for early childhood education and programs to help ensure educational excellence at primary, secondary and post-secondary levels.

ST. LOUIS (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - McDonnell Douglas Corp. Friday announced that it has donated research and engineering equipment valued at more than $120,000 to Pittsburg State University in Pittsburg, Kan.

The company is giving more than 20 pieces of equipment, including such items as an auger analysis system, an electro spectometer, and a precision analyzer, to the university's Physics Department.

''The equipment will allow us to broaden the physics research we offer,'' said Larry L. Long, the university's assistant professor of physics. ''More importantly, it will give our students the opportunity to work on very current equipment, preparing them for work after graduation.''

Under the 15-year-old excess equipment donation program, universities may choose equipment from a list of items that are no longer needed by McDonnell Douglas. The equipment is donated free of charge, with the school picking up the shipping costs.

For the past two years, McDonnell Douglas has targeted the program toward historically black colleges as part of its efforts to encourage minority university-level education.

ENGLEWOOD, CO (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - U S WEST increased earnings in 1989 on the strength of the greatest demand for new phone lines in the company's history, Jack A. MacAllister, chairman and chief executive officer, told the company's shareowners here Friday.

MacAllister told the sixth annual shareowners' meeting at the Scanticon Hotel and Conference Center that the company added 340,000 new lines in 1989, an increase of nearly three percent. And in the 12 months ended March 31, 360,000 phones lines were added.

MacAllister said the company's success also was due to successful introductions of new products. He said U S WEST's Voice Messaging Service (network-based answering machine capability) has proven extremely popular and said the company expects to offer it in every major metropolitan area within the region by the end of the year.

He also reported that Express Service, which a year ago was available only in Omaha, has been expanded to seven of the 14 U S WEST states. Customers who order Express Service get same-day installation of new service, with a double-their-money-back guarantee if installation is late.

MacAllister told the shareowners that information services of the future are available today in the company's Omaha gateway, called CommunityLink. He said information is the only commodity in the world ''that gains value when it's used'' and that the market for such services is growing dramatically.

''And so will companies like U S WEST grow -- companies that excel in delivering information where and when it's needed,'' he said.

U S WEST President Richard D. McCormick told the group that the company's non-telephone operations showed tremendous improvements.

He said growth in the cellular-phone and paging operations of the NewVector Group was impressive. The company has 66 percent more cellular customers than it did a year ago, he said.

McCormick also said that early sales of cable TV service in the United Kingdom are right on target. And telecommunications sales on the same systems ''are running much stronger than our estimates.'' The company is a partner in 11 cable franchises in the U.K.

Overall, he said, U S WEST has ''assembled a very healthy balance of projects that have generated good, steady income for today while building solid value for tomorrow.''

Howard Doerr, U S WEST executive vice president and chief financial officer, said the company's compound annual net income growth rate was 20 percent over the last five years, better than the average of the seven regional Bell holding companies.

''Our earnings per share growth for the same period is 50 percent greater than the average of the seven companies. And for the most recent two years, 1988 and 1989, we compare even more favorably -- number two in income growth and number one in earnings per share growth,'' he said.

Doerr said U S WEST posted a 7.4 percent increase in earnings per share in the first quarter of 1990, the best among the seven regional companies.

He also reminded shareowners that U S WEST has increased its dividend in each of the last six years, with the cumulative increase at nearly 50 percent.

U S WEST owns U S WEST Communications and other companies involved in communications, data solutions, marketing services and financial services.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - AIFS Inc. (ASE/PSE:AIF), an international educational services company, Friday announced that it has filed a Registration Statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission (''SEC'') covering the solicitation of consents from the holders of the company's Senior Subordinated Debentures, due Jan. 1, 2001, Series 11-1/4 percent (the ''Debentures'') to the proposed buy-out of the public stockholders of the company at $6.50 per share by a management group led by Roger O. Walther, president and chief executive officer.

The consents also seek approvazl of certain amendments to the Debenture Indenture which, upon consummation of the proposed buy-out, would eliminate or modify certain restrictive covenants contained in the Identure.

Receipt of the consents from the holders of a majority of the $10 million principal amount of outstanding Debentures is a condition to completion of the buy-out transaction. The company expects to solicit the consents commencing in July 1990 following receipt of necessary SEC and other regulatory clearances.

The proposed consent solicitation will be made only by means of a prospectus that complies with federal and state securities laws.

In return for obtaining the consents, upon consummation of the proposed buy-out, the company intends to increase the interest rate on the Debentures to 13-1/2 percent per annum and, for a period of ninety (90) days after the consummation of the buy-out, the company intends to offer to repurchase, at 90 percent of par value plus accrued interest, $2,500,000 in aggregate principal amount of outstanding Debentures.

Offerman & Company Inc. (''Offerman'') will act as financial advisor to the company in connection with the consent solicitation. When available, prospectuses may be obtained from Offerman at 621 North Lilac Drive, Minneapolis, Minn. 55422, 612/541-8999. -0-

AIFS Inc. designs, markets and operates educational and cultural programs world-wide. The company, through its operating subsidiaries, provides opportunities for American college and high school students to study and travel abroad and brings foreign youths to the United States on a variety of cultural exchanges.

The company also operates 20 language centers throughout the United States and 20 abroad for intensive English language training for foreign students.

The modifications to the terms of the debentures may be deemed to create a new security. A registration statement relating to these securities has been filed with the securities and exchange commission but has not yet become effective. These securities may not be sold nor may offers to buy be accepted prior to the time the registration statement becomes effective.

This press release shall not constitute and offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy nor shall there be any sale of these securities in any state in which such offer, solicitation or sale would be unlawful prior to registration or qualification under the securities laws of any such state.

PHOENIX (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Talley Industries Inc. (NYSE: TAL) Friday announced it has engaged Kidder Peabody & Co. to advise and assist in a restructuring move to reduce Talley's debt level and improve its capital position.

William H. Mallender, Talley's chairman stated, "The turmoil in the debt market world-wide makes it incumbent on the company to reduce its dependence on debt financing and achieve a debt level that is compatible with market conditions that now prevail, and are expected to continue well into the 90s.

"We believe that a goal for debt reduction of approximately 50 percent over the next 24 months is achievable through a combination of selling some of the operating companies from our portfolio and a reduction in our real estate inventory.

"Fortunately, our portfolio of attractive operating companies allows us to select those that will achieve prices that meet our deleveraging requirements.

"In reviewing the portfolio, we have decided to choose sales candidates from three segments: our Industrial Products, Specialty Products and Savings Banks. While the real estate market is weak in Phoenix, sales from our inventory reasonably can be expected in the period to produce some assistance in furthering the program."

"We will move vigorously in this effort in order to achieve a material reduction in the debt level quickly," Mallender said. The company has commenced working capital reduction programs, selected capital expenditure cutbacks and operating expense curtailment, which will positively impact on the company's debt level and profitability.

The programs will give Talley the ability to continue to access capital markets at favorable terms, add focus to its very successful government products and services and other businesses, and continue its efforts to reduce the company's real estate investment.

Talley Industries is a diversified designer, manufacturer and supplier of aerospace, industrial and commercial products and services, including high reliability electronic components and stainless steel rod and bar products.

Talley also invests in and develops real estate, primarily in the Phoenix area, and operates a federally chartered savings bank as an autonomous, wholly owned subsidiary, which specializes in serving the Asian population in the greater Los Angeles area.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Security Pacific Corporation announced that Jose A. Castro, vice president of Community Affairs, has been elected 1990-91 chairperson of the National Council on Corporate Volunteerism (NCCV), a division of VOLUNTEER -- The National Center.

NCCV, the nation's only professional association for administrators of corporate volunteer programs, is the principal provider of training, technical assistance and information-sharing services for the more than 100 companies nationwide who actively support employee volunteerism.

Castro is responsible for leading the organization's efforts to promote and support corporate volunteerism throughout the United States.

He also serves on the board of directors of VOLUNTEER -- The National Center, a non-profit, privately funded resource organization that helps people address community problems through volunteering.

Castro represented the NCCV recently at a White House luncheon honoring President Bush's 1989 Volunteer Action Award recipients. The President's Volunteer Action Awards program was established in 1982 to call attention to the contributions of the nation's 80 million volunteers and to demonstrate what can be accomplished through community service.

In 1986, Castro's efforts in establishing and managing employee volunteer programs helped earn Security Pacific the President's award for ''Best Overall Corporate Effort.''

Castro joined Security Pacific in 1981 as a public affairs respresentative. In his current capacity as vice president in the Community Affairs Division, he is responsible for managing Security Pacific's statewide community education programs, and overseeing the corporation's employee/retiree volunteer community service programs in the western United States.

He is a member of several community and civic organizations in California including the board of directors of the United Way of Southern California, region two; the Los Angeles Unified School District's Adopt-A-School Council, where he serves as chair; the California Education Partnership Consortium coordinating council; and the University of Southern California School of Education's Board of Councilors.

He also serves on the board of trustees for the Latin Business Association; and he is a founding member of the Hispanic Bankers Association, and of the Corporate Volunteer Council of Southern California.

Castro, 35, earned an associate of arts degree from D-Q University and East Los Angeles College, and a bachelor's degree in child development from California State University, Northridge. He is a graduate of the Coro Foundation's Fellows Program in Public Affairs, as well as Claremont Graduate School's Public Policy Analysis Program.

A native of Southern California, Castro presently resides in Pasadena with his wife, Lupe, and daughter, Marissa.

With more than $86 billion in assets, Security Pacific Corporation is the fifth largest bank holding company in the United States. Security Pacific Corporation operates one of the largest banking franchises in the western U.S. through its affiliate banks in Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California and Arizona.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Columbia Savings and Loan Association (NYSE:CSV/PSE:CSVPRA) announced Friday a net loss for the first quarter of 1990.

Edward G. Harshfield, president and chief executive officer, stated: ''In line with our previous announcement on April 2 that Columbia had net losses for January and February, Columbia sustained a full first quarter loss of $293.3 million ($14.62 per share, primary and fully diluted), for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, compared with net earnings of $7.9 million (20 cents per share, primary and fully diluted) for the comparable period in 1989.''

Columbia said that the difference between the market value and the amortized cost basis of its high-yield bond and manditorily redeemable preferred stock portfolio increased by $273.6 million between Dec. 31, 1989 and March 31, 1990. This increase was primarily the result of the continuing decline in the high-yield market, primarily in January and February 1990.

Such difference would have been reflected as a further lower of aggregate cost or market (LOCOM) adjustment, except that Columbia also increased its provisions for credit loss reserves in the first quarter by $192.7 million so that the accounting loss resulting from the LOCOM adjustment for the quarter was $80.9 million.

The increased credit loss provisions were necessary to bring the credit loss reserve up to an appropriate level ($300 million at March 31, 1989 (approximately 9.3 percent of the carrying value of this portfolio at such date)) after sales and charge-offs were taken in the first quarter due to increased levels of credit deterioration.

Net interest income in the first quarter of 1990 was $12.7 million, as compared with $60.2 million in the first quarter of 1989.

The decline in net interest income was primarily due to the loss of interest income on assets that were placed on non-accrual status at the end of 1989 and the reversal of previously accrued but uncollected interest income on assets that were placed on non-accrual status during the first quarter of 1990.

Due to the first quarter loss, Columbia had a stockholders' deficit of $215.6 million, compared with stockholders' equity of $77.6 million at December 31, 1989.

Columbia is a California-chartered savings and loan association with 29 offices in Southern California.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - FarWest Financial Corp. (NYSE/PSE:FWF) Friday reported a loss of $26.2 million, or $3.36 per share for the quarter ended March 31.

This lowered the book value per share from $12.37 at Dec. 31, 1989, to $9.02 at March 31, 1990.

Due to the mandate to dispose of non-investment-grade securities imposed by last summer's FIRREA legislation, FarWest Financial is required to account for these securities at the lower of aggregate cost or market. This requirement caused FarWest Financial to recognize a lower of cost or market accounting reserve of $36 million during the first quarter.

At March 31, FarWest Savings and Loan's tangible net worth to assets ratio was in excess of 1 percent, but this does not meet the current regulatory capital requirement. FarWest Savings and Loan continues to work with the Office of Thrift Supervision with regard to its Capital Compliance Plan.

At March 31, FarWest Financial's total assets were $4,033 million.

MIAMI (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Biscayne Holdings Inc. (AMEX:BHA) Friday reported net sales of $6,545,000 and a net loss of $572,000 (six cents per share) for the first quarter of 1990.

This compares with net sales of $7,535,000 and a net loss of $438,000 (six cents per share) for the first quarter of 1989.

The operating loss for the first quarter of 1990 was $684,000, compared with $330,000 in 1989. Interest expense was $411,000 in 1990, compared with $134,000 in 1989. Interest and other income was $181,000 in 1990, compared with $423,000 in 1989.

The 1990 and 1989 first quarter results included net charges of $16,000 and $495,000, respectively, related to non-cash losses from Biscayne's 30 percent investment in SPI Partners L.P. (''SPI''). The losses generated by SPI primarily relate to the amortization of assets which reduce the taxability of the partnership's earnings.

Commenting on the results, Chairman Earl W. Powell stated: ''The financial instabilities experienced in the retail apparel markets continued throughout the first quarter of 1990. This resulted in decreased net sales and an increased operating loss in the first quarter.

''On the positive side, our companies are booking record orders for shipment in the second half of 1990, which should enable us to meet our operating projections for the year. Since the fall season has always been the strongest for our Andy Johns outerwear line, we anticipate that a substantial portion of its operating income in 1990 will be generated in the third quarter.

''Interest expense has increased and interest income has decreased following the issuance of a $26.5 million dividend to our stockholders in December 1989. Also as the amortization of assets declines, the impact on net income of non-cash charges from our SPI investment will be nominal in 1990.''

TUALATIN, OR (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - In Focus Systems Inc. today filed suit against Computer Accessories for patent infringement, alleging CA incorporated In Focus Systems patented technology in CA's VersaColor projection panel.

CA is also alleged to have used In Focus Systems LCD components in a prototype VersaColor unit shown to customers at November's COMDEX show.

The In Focus Systems' complaint accuses Computer Accessories of misappropriating trade secrets, violating the Lanham Act, and willfully infringing on In Focus Systems' patent. The suit was filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of California.

This suit follows In Focus Systems' announcement of the world's first 8 true color liquid crystal display (LCD) projection panel in late 1989, and a 64-color panel in April 1990. In Focus was awarded U.S. Patent No. 4,917,465 on April 17, 1990, for a display apparatus comprised of stacked birefringent LCD panels with associated optical components.

The technology enables the projection of data and images created by color computer software onto a wall or screen using a simple overhead projector. The technology also can be incorporated into direct view monitors for use in portable and laptop computers. In lay terms, the display system described in the patent is formed by stacking two or more LCD panels that are tuned to subtract different portions of the color spectrum from light passing through the stack. Together the panels cooperate to produce a full range of true colors.

During the months prior to the public introduction of its 480C color LCD product in October 1989, In Focus and CA were discussing a proposed business venture. In Focus revealed details of its color LCD technology so CA might evaluate the merit of the proposed venture. Later, CA is alleged to have breached the confidential relationship and used In Focus Systems trade secrets to develop a competing product.

The complaint also alleges unfair competition. The amount of damages has yet to be determined.

The desktop presentation market served by the In Focus Systems 480C color projection panel is in a boom phase with the use of computer-generated presentation visuals growing to $8.9 billion by 1993 from $4.4 billion in 1989, according to Desktop Presentations (Mountain View, Calif.). For individual product categories, Desktop Presentations predicts that sales of computers used for presentations will grow from about $2 billion in 1989 to over $3 billion in 1993, software from $668 million in 1989 to $1.1 billion in 1993, and output devices from some $1 billion in 1989 to over $2.6 billion in 1993.

In Focus Systems offers a complete line of LCD projection products and accessories priced from $925 to $5495 (U.S. domestic price).

In Focus Systems Inc. was founded in October 1986 to develop, manufacture and market innovative information display products. The company shipped its first product, an LCD projection panel, in February 1987 and introduced the industry's first true color panel in October 1989. BERLIN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Schering AG, Berlin, West Germany announced Friday that the board of executive directors has approved a definitive agreement to acquire all of the outstanding shares of Codon, a closely held California biotechnology company.

The acquisition will be made by Schering Berlin Inc., its U.S. management holding company located in Cedar Knolls, N.J.

The definitive agreement has been approved by both Codon's board of directors and a majority of of each class of its shareholders.

This represents the first step in Schering's program to accelerate its R&D activities in the biotechnology arena.

Codon is located in the San Francisco Bay Area. The company now has more than 100 employees engaged in research, process development and manufacturing activities.

Codon's research expertise is primarily directed towards human and animal health programs with a particular focus on cardiovascular disease.

Codon's development of anticoagulant proteins is especially promising.

The company has filed several patent applications in this area. Schering is a well suited partner for the future development of such compounds given its research and development expertise in the cardiovascular area. Schering and Codon have previously collaborated in the cardiovascular field and had established strong operational ties which ultimately led to the acquisition.

Codon's skill and expertise in process development and manufacturing broadly expands Schering's capabilities in biotechnology. It enables Schering to rapidly evaluate its own proprietary protein products as well as license discoveries from universities and other biotechnology companies.

NORCROSS, GA (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - KHD Group of West Germany announced Friday that it had reorganized its U.S. operations by selling its Atlanta-based agricultural equipment unit, Deutz-Allis Corp., to a management group.

Terms of the sale were not disclosed.

In 1989, sales of Deutz-Allis tractors, combines, planters and other farm and lawn and garden equipment totalled $300 million.

''The divestiture of Deutz-Allis allows KHD to concentrate on the company's core industrial businesses in the U.S.,'' said Siegfried Barschkett, board member of KHD.

''We are absolutely committed to continuing, and to strengthening, our company's U.S. engine business and high-technology industrial operations '' added Dr. Peter M. Rudhart, president of KHD Deutz of America, the Atlanta-based holding company for the group's U.S. operations.

KHD's largest American subsidiary now is Deutz Corp., a leading distributor of high-quality diesel engines.

Deutz-Allis was purchased by Robert J. Ratliff, president and CEO, and other members of current management, with equity financing provided by Hamilton Robinson and Co. Inc., a New York-based private investment group.

KHD said the sale ensures that continued technical support and a reliable supply of spare parts will be available to customers and dealers.

With the sale of Deutz-Allis, which is retroactive to December 31, 1989, KHD has completed on schedule a two-year restructuring program designed to focus corporate resources on markets where KHD has a significant competitive presence.

Dr. Rudhart noted that while Deutz-Allis' recent operating performance had improved, the unit nonetheless had lost market share in the highly competitive American farm market.

The sale of unprofitable and non-strategic businesses by KHD worldwide since 1987 resulted in the divestiture of companies with total annual sales of approximately $600 million.

KHD Group posted an operating profit in 1989 of $24 million - the first positive result since 1986 - compared to an operating loss of $77 million in 1988.

Total sales of $2.4 billion in 1989 were down 11 percent due to the sale of Deutz-Allis and the Deutz Argentina subsidiary. Adjusted for discontinued activities, 1989 sales increased by 5 percent and the order backlog at the end of the year, based on continuing operations, was up 23 percent. For 1990, KHD expects both higher sales and profits.

KHD is engaged in the production of engines and turbines; the manufacture of agricultural machinery; and construction of industrial plants worldwide.

The engine and turbine business, the most important unit, represented 62 percent of sales last year. Agricultural machinery accounted for 27 percent of sales while the industrial plant division contributed 11 percent of sales volume.

SPARTANBURG, SC (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - TW Services Inc., the nation's fourth largest food service company, Friday named Coco-Cola USA as the primary soft drink syrup supplier for its Hardee's restaurants and Canteen contract food service operations.

The conversion process will begin within 30 days.

The Hardee's and Canteen divisions were previously served by both Coca-Cola and other soft drink suppliers.

Under the new contract, Coca-Cola USA will supply 465 Hardee's restaurants operated by TW Services, the largest franchisee of Hardee's Food Systems.

Coca-Cola will also supply the company's Canteen division, which operates more than 1,600 contract food service accounts and 70 recreational services accounts in 44 states.

Coca-Cola USA is already the primary soft drink syrup supplier for the company's 213 Quincy's, 206 El Pollo Loco and 1,001 Denny's restaurants, as well as 273 Denny's operated by franchisees.

''Consistent with other company-wide programs to maximize operating efficiencies, we have decided to consolidate our soft drink supplies with Coca-Cola,'' said H. Stephen McManus, senior vice president of TW Services.

''The strength of the Coca-Cola trademark, the marketing and technical expertise Coca-Cola brings to our food service operations, and the special attention we can expect through a dedicated account team makes this consolidation the right thing for our company.''

TW Services, which became a wholly owned subsidiary of TW Holdings (NASDAQ:TWFS) on Dec. 6, 1989, is the fourth-largest food service company in the United States based on 1989 revenues of $3.5 billion.

The company's two principal lines of business are contract food services and recreational services as well as restaurant chains through its Canteen Hardee's, Quincy's, Denny's and El Pollo Loco business units.

SEVILLE, SPAIN (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - In an unusual marriage of history and modern technology, IBM scientists are racing against the ravages of time to capture and store on computers more than 8 million fragile and priceless documents, volumes and maps related to Spain's exploration of the New World.

The materials are part of a centuries-old treasure trove of carefully preserved records, housed in the ornate Archivo General de Indias in Seville, Spain. Their display on computers is slated to be a major event during a celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' first voyage to America, to be held on October 12, 1992.

''This project is made possible thanks to an emerging technology called image processing,'' says Rafael Aguilar, manager of technology and external programs, IBM Spain.

Image processing is the technology that makes it possible to scan any type of information -- including fragile handwritten documents -- for transformation into digitized electronic images. The images are stored on optical discs and can then be retrieved and displayed on an IBM Personal System/2(a) computer screen. A variety of methods can be used to improve readability, such as zooming in on sections of a document or changing the contrast.

''With this new technology, the IBM Spain Scientific Center in Madrid is working with funding and support from the Ramon Areces Foundation and Spain's Ministry of Culture to capture and preserve handwritten documents which otherwise would decay over time,'' says Aguilar.

All this work is going on in a building called the Lonja, built by King Philip II in 1583 as a place for merchants to carry out their trade. Toward the end of the 18th century, the building was converted into the Archive which today houses 5.6 miles of shelves containing some 82 million pages of manuscript texts and approximately 7,000 maps and drawings.

CHANDLER, AZ (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Motorola Semiconductor's ASIC Division and Synopsys Inc. (Mountain View, CA) Friday announced a technology partnership agreement to jointly develop software libraries and models for Motorola's MCAIV CDA emitter-coupled logic (ECL) ASICs.

The announcement coincides with Synopsys' announcement of ECL Compiler, the first commercially available synthesis software optimized for ECL design.

Under terms of the one-year agreement, Motorola will purchase ECL Compiler for its major design centers in support of its ECL customers, and share information about its current and future MCAIV ECL ASIC technology with Synopsys. In turn, Synopsys will share their product development plans with Motorola and continue to develop commercial software that is compatible with Motorola ECL technology.

ECL Compiler will be fully integrated into Motorola's Open Architecture CAD System (OACS), along with Synopsys' Design Compiler and HDL Compiler which were integrated into OACS earlier this year.

Synopsys Inc. develops and markets high-level logic synthesis software for designing ASICs and electronic systems. The Synopsys tools support both VHDL and Verilog for HDL-based design. Synopsys is the market leader in logic synthesis tools, one of the fastest-growing segments of the electronic design automation market, with installations in over 100 companies worldwide.

Motorola's Chandler, Arizona-based ASIC division is a major worldwide supplier of semicustom and structured custom ICs, which it manufactures using gate array, cell-based and functional-block techniques. The division also develops, acquires and maintains advanced computer-aided design software dedicated to the design of application-specific circuits.

The ASIC division is part of Motorola's Phoenix, Arizona-based Semiconductor Products Sector, with 1989 sales exceeding $3 billion. Motorola is the largest and broadest supplier of semiconductors in North America with a balanced portfolio of more than 50,000 devices.

LAS VEGAS (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Showboat, Inc. (NYSE: SBO) Friday announced a modest gain in revenues, a decrease in operating income and an increase in net loss for the seasonably slack first quarter ended March 31 1990.

Net revenues for the company in the March 1990 three month period rose three percent to $81.4 million up from $79.8 million in the like period in 1989, and an improvement on the $77.0 million achieved in the December 1989 quarter.

Income from operations was $4.1 million, down from $6.0 million a year ago. The company's net loss, most of which occurred in January, was $1.3 million or $.11 per share against $.4 million or $.03 per share a year earlier.

Ocean Showboat, Inc. and subsidiaries, which owns and operates the casino-hotel in Atlantic City, recorded net revenues for the first quarter 1990 of $66.6 million, level with the $66.0 million in the like quarter a year earlier. First quarter operating income before depreciation, parent company management fees and net interest expense decreased to $7.6 million from $8.7 million registered a year earlier.

In making today's announcement, J.K. Houssels, chairman and president, stated, "First quarter operating results at our Atlantic City facility were affected by changes in casino management and by construction, operating, and marketing activities designed to position our casino-hotel for the opening of Trump's Taj Mahal casino-hotel.

"We expect to see an increase in the number of customers in the second quarter as a result of the Trump Taj Mahal casino-hotel opening and the lessening of unusual facility disruption."

Houssels continued, "We are very pleased with the 14 percent increase in first quarter 1990 net revenues at our Las Vegas casino-hotel which reflect recent management changes and more focused marketing efforts. However, the construction and remodelization of that facility, just underway, will have a negative impact on earnings in this years second and third quarters."

Showboat, Inc. through its subsidiaries, operates casino hotel resorts in Las Vegas and Atlantic City featuring casino gambling, bowling, and other sports attractions and special events.

CLEVELAND (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Sealy Inc. has named David J. McIlquham 35, to the newly created position of vice president, marketing.

McIlquham is participating in the development, direction and implementation of marketing strategies and plans; advertising; new product development; and merchandising for the Sealy and Stearns & Foster brands of bedding products, reporting to R. James Alexy, senior vice president, Marketing/Sales.

McIlquham most recently served as vice president, marketing at Samsonite Corp., a leading luggage manufacturer headquartered in Denver. He was previously general manager at Samsonite in Stratford, Ontario and vice president, marketing at Samsonite in Toronto.

Prior to joining Samsonite, McIlquham held various marketing and financial positions at General Electric in Canada. Malcolm Candlish, Sealy's chairman and chief executive officer, also joined the company from Samsonite where he served as president and CEO from 1983 until June 1989.

Alexy stated, ''We needed an executive with a strong marketing background to support our company's expanded and newly integrated marketing program. David brings these strengths as well as an intimate understanding, gained from working with Malcolm at Samsonite, of the management and marketing disciplines we have introduced at Sealy. As a consequence, he was at full speed on day one at the company. We are fortunate to have him.''

Sealy Corp. is the world's largest bedding manufacturer. Sealy Mattress Co., a wholly owned subsidiary, produces the complete Sealy line of mattresses including the world famous Posturepedic. Other operations include: The Stearns & Foster Bedding Co., one of the oldest and largest premium-brand bedding manufacturers in the country; Advanced Sleep Products, a leading manufacturer and distributor of waterbeds; Woodstuff Manufacturing Inc., a manufacturer of waterbed furniture; The Sealy Furniture Co. and the Stearns & Foster Upholstery Furniture Co., manufacturers of convertible sofas.

CLEVELAND (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - TransCapital Financial Corporation today announced a net loss of $3.4 million, or $.35 per share, for the quarter ended March 31, 1990. This compared with net earnings of $1.3 million, or $.13 per share, for the period ended March 31, 1989. In keeping with the Company's plan for continuing to comply with all regulatory capital requirements, assets declined to $5.2 billion at March 31, 1990, compared with $6.4 billion a year ago.

Commenting on these results, TransCapital Senior Vice President and Chief Financial Officer William D. Snider said, ''In the first quarter we continued to operate with very narrow interest margins because of an abnormally flat yield curve. While this has been the case for some time, the trend in the first quarter is positive, as the net interest margin before loan loss provision increased 20 percent in the 1990 first quarter compared with the fourth quarter of 1989.

However, the fact that we have reduced our asset size has negatively affected our net interest margin which is down by approximately $1.8 million from the first quarter of 1989. Our provision for loan losses has increased by $2.8 million compared with 1989's first quarter due to an increase in non-performing loans. Total non-performing loans are approximately 2 percent of total assets at March 31, 1990.''

TransCapital Financial Corporation is Ohio's largest savings and loan holding company with approximately $5.2 billion in assets. It is a majority owned subsidiary of American Capital Corporation, (AMEX:ACC). Through its wholly owned subsidiary, TRANSOHIO Savings Bank, it has offices in the Cleveland, Akron, Columbus and Cincinnati markets of Ohio.

Through two other affiliates, AmeriStar Financial Corporation and OMNI

NEW YORK (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - S.E. Nichols Inc. (ASE:NCL), announced Friday that its net loss for the fiscal year ended February 3, 1990 was $37,232,000 or $7.90 loss per share after providing reserves of $30,800,000 for store closure costs and restructure costs recorded in connection with its new retail program.

Included in this reserve is a charge of $27 million recorded in the fourth quarter related to the costs of the previously announced program of reopening deep discount stores operating under the name ''Pharmhouse''.

The Pharmhouse stores feature a policy of everyday low pricing with emphasis on pharmacy, health and beauty aids, video rentals, greeting cards, housewares, food and snacks and other general merchandise. The first three stores under this program have been reopened and two additional stores are reopening in several days. An additional 12 store reopenings under this new retail format are planned by the end of July 1990 with the remaining planned reopenings to be completed before the end of the current fiscal year.

Kenneth A. Davis, chief executive officer of S.E. Nichols, stated that the sales of the first three reopened Pharmhouse Stores have exceeded management's expectations.

The company is currently engaged in discussions with its secured lender regarding the extension of its existing secured lending facility beyond June 30, 1990 and the company has retained investment bankers to advise it in its efforts to otherwise restructure the company. However, there can be no assurance that such facility will be extended or that the company will succeed in its financial restructuring efforts.

The company is also seeking waivers of certain financial covenants from several financial institutions.

The company further announced that it anticipates that the company's independent accountants will issue a qualified opinion with respect to the company's year end financial statements. Such qualification relates to the existence of substantial doubt concerning the Company's ability to continue as a going concern by reason of uncertainties in the company's ability to obtain adequate financing to satisfy its obligations during the forthcoming year.

Total revenues for the fiscal year ended February 3, 1990 amounted to $214,315,000 compared to $276,571,000 for the prior year ended January 28, 1989. The decline in sales was attributable to the previously announced 11 store closure program and an overall decline in sales for the ongoing discount department stores. Loss from continuing operations amounted to $44,258,000 or $9.39 loss per share, after recording a provision for restructure and store closure costs of $30,800,000 compared to $5,401,000 or $1.15 loss per share for the same period of the prior year.

Income from discontinued operations including a gain on the sale of the company's F.R. Schreiber Wholesale Division, amounted to $4,675,000 or 99 cents per share compared to that division's income of $1,949,000 or 41 cents per share for the same period last year.

The company's net loss for the year, after recording an extraordinary gain from early extinguishment of debt of $2,351,000 or 50 cents per share, amounted to $37,232,000 or $7.90 loss per share compared to $3,452,000 or 74 cents loss per share for the prior year. Sales for the fourth quarter ended February 3, 1990 amounted to $62,022,000 compared to $86,106,000 of fourth quarter sales in the prior year. Net loss for the quarter, after recording a $27 million provision for restructuring and store closing costs and a $1,545,000 extraordinary gain on early extinguishment of debt, amounted to $28,665,000 or $6.08 loss per share compared to $3,267,000 or 70 cents loss per share in the same period of the prior year.

S.E. Nichols Inc. (ASE:NCL) operates a chain of retail stores located primarily in the mid-Atlantic states.

DALLAS (MAY 4) BUSINESS WIRE - American Healthcare Management Inc. (ASE:AHI) Friday announced the completion of the sale of undeveloped real property in Diamond Bar, California, for net proceeds of $7.1 million.

The proceeds will be used to reduce long-term indebtedness. Including the Diamond Bar proceeds, AHM has repaid approximately $25.2 million of secured debt issued in its reorganization, $15.7 million of which has been repaid thus far in 1990. Additionally, AHM announced results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

For the quarter, revenues were $127.4 million compared with $125.5 million in the year-earlier period. Net income was $0.8 million or 5 cents per share compared with $7.0 million or 59 cents per share for 1988. Net income includes extraordinary credits reflecting the utilization of tax loss carryforwards.

The company's results were affected by additional interest expense associated with secured indebtedness issued in connection with its recent reorganization which was not incurred in the year- earlier period, and an increase in revenue deductions.

Revenues in the year-earlier period included the operations of San Clemente General Hospital, which was sold on July 3, 1989. Excluding these operations, AHM's total revenues from continuing operations increased 8.6 percent over the first quarter of 1989.

This increase was attributed to higher outpatient volumes along with rate increases. Outpatient revenues increased 12.7 percent while inpatient revenues increased 7.7 percent on a 2.8 percent decline in patient days.

Revenues deductions for the first quarter increased 14.3 percent to $56.5 million vs. $49.5 million in the like period last year.

The increase was attributable to the implementation of more conservative methods of calculating these amounts, an increasing gap between the company's charges and expected reimbursement under Medicare and Medicaid programs, and an increase in that portion of the company's revenues subject to discounts from health maintenance organizations.

Operating expenses during the first quarter were $60.7 million, 2.0 percent less than recorded in 1989. Interest expense of $5.0 million increased 147 percent over the like period in 1989 due to the secured debt issued by AHM in its reorganization.

Also, earnings for both the current and prior-year periods included extraordinary items related to the effect of tax loss carryforwards totaling $168,000 or 1 cent per share and $2.4 million or 20 cents per share, respectively.

American Healthcare Management Inc., headquartered in Dallas, owns or leases seventeen hospitals in ten states with approximately 2,203 licensed beds. AHM's common stock is listed on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol AHI.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - LAACO Ltd. Friday announced that it has reached an agreement to sell its Topanga Canyon Property, totaling some 1,600 acres, to the Mountains Conservancy Foundation for $25 million in cash.

The sale of the property is subject to funding of the transaction and certain other contingencies. The sale is scheduled to close on Jan. 31, 1991.

The Mountains Conservancy Foundation, with headquarters in Solstice Canyon Park, Malibu, intends to use the property as a public park. The largely undeveloped acreage, in the vicinity of Topanga Canyon Blvd. and Pacific Coast Highway, stretches from the Pacific Ocean beachfront to the Santa Monica Mountains.

Most of the 1,600 acres are little different today than they were when the land was part of Rancho Boca de Santa Monica, a Spanish land grant to the Marquez family. The ranch was best known in the 1880s for the bathhouse it maintained for vacationing beach-goers.

Like many ranchos, it was the subject of a boundary dispute which was eventually resolved by a land patent signed by President James Garfield on July 21, 1881, 19 days after he had been struck by a bullet which would take his life two months later.

Following the Presidential patent the rancho was divided among five members of the Marquez family, with each receiving their land in several "allotments." Bonifacio Marquez received 1,857 acres, almost all of which was in his Allotment No. 2. Bonifacio died in 1891, and his Allotment 2 was sold by his widow in 1899 to E.C. Stelle for $7,394.04.

The land eventually was acquired by William Randolph Hearst, who sold it to LAACO in the 1930s. LAACO Ltd. is a California limited partnership.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) COMTEX - Congressman Dan Glickman (D-Kan.) yesterday lobbied for the merger of the Securities and Exchange Commission and Commodity Futures Trading Commission while others called for a less extreme measure of switching control of stock index futures from the CFTC to the SEC to reform the stocks and futures markets.

Testifying before the House subcommittee on telecommunications and finance Glickman said a bill he recently introduced with Rep. Dennis Eckhart (D-Ohio) to merge the two agencies is needed because, the present system is stifling competition by inducing "regulatory forum shopping."

"The present split system diverts energy and creativity not into keeping the U.S. the world's financial center or in ensuring the security of markets," Glickman said. "Rather, it causes investors to focus on shopping around for the most favorable regulation."

The Securities Industry Association, which represents the interests of the Wall Street community, is calling for a more modest response of granting the SEC control over stock index futures. The SIA contends this is needed to curb market volatility and renew individual investor confidence in the stock market.

Stock index futures, traded in Chicago but based on the prices of stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange, allow investors to bet on the movement of a basket of stocks without buying the actual securities. Program trading allows investors to profit from the differences in the prices of futures contracts on stock indexes and of the corresponding stocks. Those quick shifts between products have been cited as a cause of stock market volatility.

"We believe that establishing the SEC as the sole regulator for equity-related products and harmonizing margin policy for these products will help restore investor confidence in our markets as well as creating the most uniform, simplest and best regulatory framework for insuring the integrity of the securities markets," said Edward O'Brien, president of the SIA.

O'Brien added further regulatory change is unnecessary because there have been no similar complaints of market gyrations in the cash and futures markets for other financial products.

Glickman says a comprehensive approach is needed because a piecemeal solution would cause even more headaches.

"The same logic which drives that argument (transfer of stock index futures from CFTC to SEC) would have us transfer responsibility for futures and options on U.S. government debt to the Treasury Department and regulation for trading on currency derivatives to the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System," Glickman said. "If you think we have problems with the present system, can you imagine the confusion that would result from this line of reasoning and regulating?"

In yesterday's Washington Post CFTC Chairman Wendy Gramm charged that brokerage firms were jealous of the growth of futures markets and, "under the umbrella of the SEC, want to regain better times simply by grabbing the successes of the futures markets."

Asked to comment, O'Brien said, "Gramm's mandate is to protect her agency. I believe her conclusions are incorrect but that does not impugn her motive."

HONG KONG (MAY 4) - Raw silk prices are expected to remain stable for the next few months as supplies from China are reported to be on the rise, dealers here said Friday.

The market was active during the week with local silk garment manufacturers making several deals of raw silk steam filature white 2022 denier on stocks here at 52.50 U.S. dollars a kilo for Grade AAA, and 51.30 dollars a kilo for Grade AA, they said.

Dealers said the local and official silk prices quoted by Chinese trading firms here were unchanged for the past few weeks.

The local market was quiet during the course of the semi-annual trade fair in neighbouring Guangzhou which closed Monday.

Market sources said the raw silk prices would remain stable in the next few months as buyers from Hong Kong had managed to obtain increased quotas for raw silks while competing with larger European and Japanese buyers.

Sources also said southern China's Guangdong province had increased raw silk output by six percent for the first four months this year compared with the same period in 1989.

They attributed the increased output to sufficient rainfall in major silk-producing areas in the province, yielding an abundant harvest of the mulberry plant - the main diet of the silkworm.

HONG KONG (MAY 4) - Hong Kong's traditional role as economic middleman between China and Taiwan is threatened by the growing prospect of direct trade and financial links across the Taiwan Strait.

"The trend would bring us serious repercussions," said Anthony Chan, an economist with the consultancy firm Business International. "Our re-export trade and tourism, on which our economy is heavily dependent, would be hit."

Beijing and Taipei have in recent years become friendlier towards each other, with Taipei relaxing bans on indirect trade and travel in mainland China, though still shunning direct official contact.

China, in need of overseas investment after the June 4 massacre in Beijing, has extended open arms to investors from Taiwan, an Asian economic powerhouse plagued by soaring production costs.

A "mainland fever" has gripped Taiwan since mid-March, when the Nationalist government allowed business delegations to visit mainland China, territory controlled by its 40-year political rival.

Squadrons of exploratory groups have since set off after secret trips earlier by top Taiwan magnate Wang Yung-ching, head of Formosa Plastics Group and one of the world's richest men.

Mr. Wang said he planned to build a multi-billion U.S. dollar petrochemical complex in Xiamen in southeastern China.

Hong Kong's go-between role "will certainly be threatened" as Taipei comes under increasing pressure from its business lobby to open official channels with the mainland, said Corina Larkin, an analyst with Political and Economic Risk Consultancy Ltd.

Taiwan banks would eventually be able to do their own project financing in China, bypassing this British colony, Miss Larkin said.

Tam Siu-cheung, head of the International Institute for Technology and Business Management, argued that the impact would be small as Hong Kong has been "the China stepping-stone for other overseas investors who can always deal in China directly but prefer not to.

BANGKOK (MAY 4) - Thailand is to return to Indonesia six orangutans and two black gibbons confiscated here earlier this year after they were smuggled out of that country, foreign ministry officials said Friday.

They said the ministry had informed the Indonesian embassy here earlier this week that the animals which were seized in February at Bangkok airport as they were about to be smuggled out on a flight to Yugoslavia would return to Jakarta ''as soon as possible''.

The orangutan and the black gibbon are endangered species.

Some of the orangutans were very ill when they arrived here, but all are now in good health and ready to return to their jungle habitat, the officials said.

MANILA (MAY 4) - Japanese Ambassador Tsuneo Tanaka reiterated Friday Tokyo's commitment to sponsor projects aimed at alleviating poverty in the Philippines, a month after communists threatened Japanese interests in this country.

Mr. Tanaka told reporters he briefed Philippine Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus Friday on "our outline for pro-poor measures for the rest of the year, which President (Corazon) Aquino is vigorously pushing."

He said these would include irrigation and bridge construction, small-scale government grants for energy projects, and a donation of 120 garbage trucks for Manila.

He also signed a seven million-peso (306,399-dollar) cultural grant for the Philippines' national museum.

Mr. Manglapus told reporters Manila was about to submit to Tokyo the Philippine government's proposals for projects to be funded by official development assistance from Japan.

New People's Army (NPA) guerrilla chief Romulo Kintanar warned Tokyo last month to stop allowing its official development assistance (ODA) to Manila to be used for "counter-insurgency" purposes.

The Japanese embassy denied the allegation but took steps to protect its nationals in the country.

Mr. Tanaka and Mr. Manglapus did not mention anything about the NPA threat Friday.

"I think the government efficiently utilized Japanese ODA during the past year," Mr. Tanaka said.

BEIJING (MAY 4) - China's foreign debt at the end of 1989 was 41.3 billion dollars, most of it in medium- and long-term borrowings, the State Administration of Exchange Control (SAEC) said Friday.

It was the first time that China had given such a precise figure for its 1989 foreign borrowings. Previously it has only said that the amount was about 40 billion dollars.

In a brief statement carried by the New China News Agency, the SAEC said the total included 37.03 billion dollars in medium- and long-term debt and 4.27 billion dollars in short-term debt.

The debt service ratio has previously been put at 15 percent, well below the danger line of 25 percent set by China's economic planners.

The SAEC is a Chinese government agency that co-ordinates foreign borrowings and sets exchange rates.

Friday's publication of a precise 1989 debt figure came after Chinese and Japanese delegations to the Asian Development Bank (ADB) annual meeting in New Delhi failed to agree on resuming Japanese loans to China.

Japan has frozen an 810 billion yen (5.5 billion dollar) credit to China pending agreement among the Group of Seven (G-7) leading industrialised countries to resume lending to Beijing following last year's bloody crackdown on democracy protests here.

Foreign bankers here say that until bilateral and multilateral lending resumes, commercial banks will be reluctant to plunge back into the Chinese market.

China's foreign debt enters a peak repayment period in the 1990's, but Finance Minister Wang Bingqian told the National People's Congress (parliament) in March that Beijing was "fully capable of repaying foreign debt."

The debt is denominated mostly in U.S. dollars and Japanese yen.

Besides what it owes abroad, the Chinese government also has a domestic debt of 80 billion yuan (21.5 billion dollars), according to figures announced in November.

Singapore (MAY 4) - Credit Agricole, the world's 11th largest bank, has set up an offshore branch in Singapore as one of two key Asian pillars in its bid to become a global bank, officials said Friday.

Marc Brugiere-Garde, the bank's general manager, called Singapore ''an ideal base'' for Credit Agricole's operations in the region.

He said the Singapore branch would concentrate initially on treasury and foreign exchange, corporate lending and trade finance.

The French bank set up a joint-venture securities company in Thailand recently and plans to open a branch in Tokyo in the next few months.

Credit Agricole's second Asian pillar in Hong Kong is involved mainly in trade financing and serves northern Asia, including China, Korea and Taiwan.

MANILA (MAY 4) - Thirteen companies including Chinese vehicle maker Aeolus have applied to enter the Philippine market under a new category for small cars, the trade and industry department said here Friday.

The others include Honda, Mitsubishi, Nissan and Daihatsu of Japan, Fiat of Italy, Volvo of Sweden, and KIA of South Korea, plus several joint ventures between local and foreign firms, a department statement said.

The new category, the so-called "people's car," will allow the local assembly and manufacture of cars with engine displacements of 1,200 cc and below, to be priced at about 175,000 pesos (7,650 dollars) each.

The local market is now dominated by Nissan, Mitsubishi and Toyota, which manufacture cars with 1,300-cc engines or bigger, priced at a minimum of 260,000 pesos (11,380 dollars) each.

The people's car category was created to make cars more accessible to middle-class Filipinos, many of whom have to rely on second-hand cars due to the high prices of brand-new ones.

Aeolus, which plans to market the "Jiangnan" brand of cars here, broke into the Philippine vehicle market last year when it sold more than 200 buses to companies serving Manila and its suburbs.

PARIS (MAY 4) - French company Alcatel said Friday it had signed a contract with the Nepalese telecommunications network to provide a transmission system for sparsely-populated areas.

The contract with Alcatel's West German subsidiary SEL Alcatel is worth some six million Deutsche marks (3.5 million dollars) and is being financed by the World Bank "which could constitute a precedent for future projects in the Asian region," Alcatel said in a statement.

SEL Alcatel is to provide and install 16 base stations and 400 outstations enabling some 2,000 far-flung subscribers to be connected to the existing telephone system, with the first stage of installation to be completed by the end of this year.

ANKARA (MAY 4) - Some 18 Kurdish separatist guerrillas and three government militiamen were killed Thursday in two separate clashes in south-eastern Turkey, according to reports reaching here Friday.

The semi-official Anatolian Agency said 17 guerillas of the illegal Kurdish Workers' Party (Pkk) were killed by security forces in an incident near Sirnak in Siirt province.

The second clash reportedly occured near Yuksekova in neighbouring Hakkari province where village guardsmen engaged a group of rebels infiltrating from Iraq.

Three guardsmen and one guerilla were killed before the rebels slipped back into Iraq, the report said.

ACCRA (MAY 4) - The world's major cocoa producers, many of whose economies have been badly hurt by the steep fall in the price of the commodity, have decided to act together to boost prices.

The technical arm of the Cocoa Producers' Alliance "has decided to act in concert to attain remunerative prices for cocoa through pursuance of policies aimed at halting the expansion in cocoa production," David Aninakwah of the Ghana Cocoa Board said late Thursday.

Mr. Aninakwah told reporters that the group had expressed concern over persistent low world market prices for cocoa.

Representatives of Ivory Coast, Brazil, Ghana, Malaysia, Nigeria and Togo are to end a five-day meeting here Friday on ways to shore up weak prices.

Malaysia is the only country attending the meeting which is not a member of the alliance.

Mr. Aninakwah said the present situation "exposes the economies of producing countries to the risk of destabilization, reduces their capacity for development and the possibility of honoring their external debts."

Over-production of cocoa and the inflexible attitude of both producers and consumers which had charactized recent International Cocoa Agreement (ICCO) council meetings had pushed down prices to their lowest levels in 14 years.

The Ivory Coast, the world's largest producer, is presently facing a deep economic crisis which has sparked social unrest in recent months.

Ghana, the world's number three producer after the Ivory Coast and Brazil which depends on cocoa revenue for between 60 and 70 percent of its export earnings, says it is losing some 100 million dollars in cocoa sales a year.

The Ivorian Cocoa Minister, Guy Alain Emmanuel Gauze, told Thursday's news conference: "There is the need for cooperation instead of confrontation between cocoa producing and consuming countries in efforts to halt the 36-percent price slide seen in the last five seasons."

LONDON (MAY 4) - Britain said on Friday that it supported the decision by U.S. President George Bush to abandon modernization of short-range nuclear missiles and nuclear artillery in Europe.

During the last two years British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has strongly argued the case for modernising the Lance missiles with a range of up to 500 kilometres (about 305 miles) in Europe while warning of danger if western Europe were cleared of nuclear weapons.

Mrs. Thatcher and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl held opposing views on this with the result that serious crisis within the North Atlantic Treaty organisation (NATO) was but narrowly avoided a year ago.

A NATO summit is due to be held in London during the European summer months.

A spokesman for the foreign office said on Friday that "we are supportive of the United States" on the matter, that "the circumstances have changed considerably" in eastern Europe and that the U.S. decision was in recognition of these changes.

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd in Brussels on Thursday denied that the U.S. decision was a setback for Mrs. Thatcher. He said: "We have no quarrel with the president's formulation."

The foreign office said on Friday that Mrs. Thatcher had discussed the matter with Mr. Bush recently.

The British government also expressed satisfaction with a U.S. proposal to accelerate discussions with the Soviet union concerning a further reduction of nuclear forces in Europe.

The United States has accepted that negotiations on short-range nuclear missiles could begin as soon as a first treaty on conventional disarmament were signed in Vienna, probably before the end of the year.

The NATO conference to be held in London at about the end of June will discuss a new political strategy and military requirements, and particularly the role of U.S. nuclear weapons in Europe, the foreign office said on Friday.

The NATO allies will also examine progress in, and the outlook for, negotiations on conventional disarmament in Vienna and the process for the conference on security and co-operation in Europe. This will be attended by 35 countries -- all countries in Europe except Albania, together with the United States and Canada.

The United States wants to strengthen the role of this meeting.

The director of the International Institute for Strategic Studies here, Francois Heisbourg, said that the new U.S. initiative "is not a surprise". He said that "it is a good decision - not to accept it and to appear to believe in modernisation would have damaged the credibility of NATO."

He also said: "It is the practical conclusion of the changes in Europe. It creates the right psychological conditions for negotiations on the short-range nuclear missiles."

Meanwhile in Bonn, Mr. Kohl expressed satisfaction with the U.S. decision. A spokesman for the government said that Mr. Bush had contacted Mr. Kohl before announcing his decision.

The spokesman said: "The chancellor agrees with the U.S. president particularly on the fact that negotiations on ground-based, short-range U.S and Soviet nuclear weapons should begin as soon as a first agreement on conventional forces in Europe has been signed.

"In addition it is desirable to intensify current negotiations on disarmament.

"The chancellor believes, like President Bush, that one of the key questions for NATO is the strengthening of the political role which it has always had, and a revision of the structure of its armed forces."

GENEVA (MAY 4) - Nearly 17,000 new AIDS cases were reported to the World Health Organisation here in April, taking the total recorded across the world to 254,078, the U.N. body announced Friday.

The increase was well above the numbers reported in previous months and was due to statistics from Africa, particularly Malawi and Uganda.

But the WHO warned that between six and eight million people were in reality thought to be infected with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

At the end of April 63,842 cases were reported from Africa compared with 51,657 the previous month. Uganda reported 12,444 sufferers, the biggest number in a single African country, Zaire 11,732 and Malawi 7,160.

The United States had 126,127 cases, Brazil 10,510, Mexico 4,131 and Canada 3,735.

France has the highest number in Europe with 8,883 sufferers, followed by 6,068 in Italy, 5,295 in Spain and 4,653 in West Germany.

South-east Asia remained the least affected region with just 94 cases.

FRANKFURT, WEST GERMANY (MAY 4) - U.S. fast food chain McDonald's hopes to open its first hamburger outlet in East Germany by the end of the year, its West German subsidiary said here Friday.

The first new venture would not be in East Berlin, as McDonald's thinks that its West Berlin operation already includes enough outlets to handle the needs of the whole city, but by the end of next year there could be up to 15 McDonald's in East Germany.

It could be a highly profitable venture for McDonald's if the East Germans prove as hamburger hungry as their West German neighbours.

West Germany, with 319 outlets, is McDonald's third largest market after the United States and Japan.

McDonald's is hoping to operate in East Germany by granting franchises to local businessman, rather than signing a country-wide accord with a major enterprise as was the case in Hungary, said Walter Rettenwender of McDonald's West Germany.

McDonald's is currently established in three east European countries, Yugoslavia and Hungary where it has two restaurants apiece, and the Soviet Union, where it recently opened its first outlet in Moscow.

PRAGUE (MAY 4) - Czechoslovakia is owed some 120 billion koruna (seven billion dollars) by other countries, equivalent to its total borrowings from Western banks, Foreign Trade Minister Andrej Barcak has said here.

The Soviet Union alone accounts for 20 billion koruna (1.2 billion dollars) in long-term borrowing from Prague, the CTK news agency quoted Mr. Barcak as telling parliament.

Mr. Barcak said that 26 billion koruna (1.5 billion dollars) of the total was arrears owed by countries "where for the most part it is very difficult to get paid."

Last year, Czechoslovakia received only three billion koruna (176 million dollars) in repayments, he added.

It is the first time that the Prague government has officially released detailed figures on money owed it by other countries, and identified the countries involved.

Of the total 26 billion koruna, eight billion are owed directly to Czechoslovak enterprises, and more than 17.5 billion to the state, most of it in the defence sector.

These government loans had been granted for political reasons by the previous communist government to "friendly or brother countries," but the current government "has halted all deliveries on the basis of these loans " Mr. Barcak said.

The countries owing money to Czechoslovakia were: Syria, Algeria, Turkey, Egypt, Libya, Mozambique, Nigeria, Ghana, Sudan, Zambia, Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Ethiopia, India, Iran, Tanzania, Tunisia, Yemen, Burma, Nicaragua, Angola, Mongolia, Cuba, Cyprus and the Soviet Union.

NEW DELHI (MAY 4) - The annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank ended here Friday after three days of talks without agreement on the major issues facing the bank.

Many of the 1,500 delegates flew out of the Indian capital after the key speeches were made Thursday, leaving a near-empty hall to listen to the 12 addresses Friday morning.

Before the meeting opened Wednesday, all the talk was of lending to China and Vietnam and replenishing the bank's soft loan fund.

However, by the end of Friday's session neither of these issues had been resolved and differences between the two sides were if anything wider than before.

China, India and the bank's other developing member countries were clearly disappointed at the lack of progress during the three-day meeting, but the United States and Japan appeared satisfied at the success of their delaying tactics.

China, Vietnam and Afghanistan made strong pleas for the resumption of lending to their impoverished countries, but the United States, Japan and bank officials remained unmoved.

"After last year, it was just a routine meeting," one bank official said, referring to the 1989 annual meeting in Beijing which coincided with the height of student protests in Tiananmen Square.

Last year's meeting was dominated by heated disputes over the establishment of a new private-sector lending body, which was in the end pushed through at the insistence of then bank president Masao Fujioka.

This year's meeting reflected the softer approach taken by Mr. Fujioka's successor, Kimimasa Tarumizu, who has already gained a reputation for consensus management since he took over the bank in December.

On Tuesday, one day before the official business of the meeting began, the 22 mainly Western donors to the soft-loan Asian Development Fund met to discuss a timetable for replenishing the fund, which was originally set to run until the end of 1990.

ORLEANS, France (MAY 4) - The Japanese NGK group has decided to build a spark-plug factory near this central French city, local development officials said Friday.

The NGK group is the world's second biggest manufacturer of spark plugs after the French Champion company.

The investment will total between 100 million and 120 million francs (about 17 million to 20 million dollars), and the plant will eventually employ 120 people.

NGK has said that after one year of negotiations on a possible joint venture with the French SIBAL group, which failed because of opposition from the Peugeot car maker, a customer of Sibal, it decided to set up its own plant in an area where several Japanese firms were already present.

LONDON (MAY 4) - The British TSB banking group offered its Target life assurance, pension and investment funds for sale on Friday.

The bank, formed out of the Trustee Savings Bank, bought the funds for 227 million pounds (372 million dollars) in 1987. Analysts put its value now at between 100 million and 120 million pounds.

But they said that it could interest a European bank seeking access to British fund management since the funds managed 1.37 billion pounds.

The bank said that the Target group "no longer has a place within the strategy of the insurance and investment services division".

In the year to October Target had premium income of 212 million pounds, but profits fell to three million pounds after provision of 13 million pounds for doubtful debts, compared with 20 million pounds a year earlier.

The offer for sale was the latest of a number of moves by TSB to improve profitability and to concentrate on banking services.

At the beginning of the year the bank announced that it was reducing its workforce by 5,000 people during five years.

TSB shares rose one pence to 132 pence on the news which had been expected.

NAIROBI (MAY 4) - Kenyan President Daniel arap Moi Friday accused the United States of behavior towards Kenya ''unbecoming for a friendly country''.

Speaking in western Kenya, the president said that ''any country, any embassy, that comes to sow seeds of discord to stir up trouble and divide citizens will not be permitted, because we want peace''.

Moi was referring to address given by U.S. ambassador to Kenya Smith Hempstone to Rotary Club members in Nairobi on Wednesday in which he hinted that Washington would like to see more democracy.

Hempstone said ''a strong political tide is flowing in our Congress - which controls the purse strings - to concentrate our economic assistance on those of the world's nations that nourish democratic institutions, defend human rights and practise multi-party democracy''.

The ambassador said he did not presume to instruct the Kenya government on how to govern, but was merely relating a statement of fact about political life in America which might become ''a fact of political life in other donor nations tomorrow''.

President Moi, whose address was relayed by Nairobi radio, said that ''an outsider, a European, cannot understand Africans: and I cannot understand American society, I cannot nor can I pretend to know, but African society I know, and they should ask me.

''They should not come to say you must do this, you must do this. Are we children? Kenya is supposed to be more or less the best friend of America, but the way it is behaving towards us is unbecoming for a friendly country''.

ROME (MAY 4) - Italians go to the polls on Sunday to vote in local and regional elections after a lacklustre campaign, which has failed to kindle public interest, but has nevertheless claimed the lives of six candidates, all killed by the Mafia.

The bickering between parties in the governing coalition, all threatening to form alternative alliances, has left the wider public cold, as if the average man-in-the-street wants to demonstrate with his indifference that he has not been taken in by a political debate reduced to simple confrontations between clans and rival interests.

The discovery on Thursday of the body of Antonio Stellitano, 31, who was standing in Reggio di Calabria, the southern tip of Italy, brought to six the number of candidates assassinated in the run-up to Sunday's elections.

The real toll is nearer 10 if one counts the candidates killed before campaigning officially started. Investigators say the victims were all eliminated by the mafia, the Neapolitan Camorra or the Calabrian N'drangheta.

The violence has overshadowed the purely verbal in-fighting within the of governing coalition between the Christian Democrats and the Socialists. The Socialists have repeatedly threatened to form an alliance with the so-called "lay" parties and the Communists, although this looks decreasingly likely given the acrimony of the current relations between the Socialists and Communists.

For the Communists, Sunday will be the first electoral test since its "historic" congress in Bologna in March, where it failed to rid itself of the designation "communist". Bogged down by its internal struggle betweeen reformists and the hardliners, it looks like a casualty of the fast evolution of the Eastern bloc countries, which it supported, but which have clearly left it behind.

One outcome of the erosion of the power of the traditional political parties is likely to be a high rate of abstention. Another is the upsurge in regional parties, like the Lombard League in the Milan region, which are all fielding candidates.

Together with the ecologists and left-wing groups, they have considerably to lengthened the lists of candidates: 993 lists and 9,330 candidates for 15 regions, 920 lists and 21,451 candidates for the 87 provinces concerned and 21,758 lists and 375,546 candidates for the 6,374 town councils being elected, according to interior ministry figures.

MUNICH (MAY 4) - Bayerische Motoren Werke (BMW) chairman Eberhard von Kuenheim said here Friday his firm's aim to set up a jet engine joint venture with Rolls-Royce a "first real step towards diversification".

Von Kuenheim also said the venture was "not a copy of another" company - an allusion to rival Daimler-Benz' aerospace activities, including a jet engine linkup with Pratt & Whitney.

The BMW chairman said that two years' of intensive preparations had gone into the effort to achieve the joint venture with Rolls-Royce, in which BMW is to hold a 50.5 percent share.

Under the venture, in which the two companies will invest more than one billion marks ($595 million), BMW will take over the aerospace firm KHD Luftfarhrtechnik at Oberursel, near Frankfurt, from the Kloeckner-Humboldt-Deutz company.

Initially, the BMW Rolls-Royce GmbH venture, to start up July 1, will concentrate on Rolls-Royce's "Tay & Trent" short-haul jet engine program. But a new jointly-developed jet engine will be introduced within five years' time, von Kuenheim said.

He said no further partners were being considered for the venture. BMW chief financial officer Volker Doppelfeld said BMW will be able to finance the venture of its own resources without any need for raising money on capital markets.

BMW initially began manufacturing airplane engines in 1916, and in the early 1940s had a role in the development of jet engines, an activity which the firm abandoned in 1969.

MOSCOW (MAY 4) - Some 300 delegates met here Friday for the founding congress of the Russian Social Democratic Party, the first political movement to emerge since the communist party renounced its monopoly on power in March.

The three-day congress, gathering representatives of associations, social democratic movements and liberal clubs from several towns in the Russian Soviet Federal Soviet Republic, is due to elect a collegiate party leadership of three to seven members, delegates said.

A progressive member of the Congress of People's Deputies, Yuri Afanassyev, recently resigned from the communist party to join the leadership of the social democrats. Mr. Afanassyev is joint chairman of the inter-regional group in the Soviet parliament.

The democrats have started out as a Russian party, but hope later to develop federal structures throughout the Soviet Union.

They began Friday's proceedings, attended by about 10 foreign guests, with a minute's silence in memory of Patriarch Pimen of the Russian Orthodox Church, who died on Thursday at the age of 79.

PRAGUE (MAY 4) - Vaclav Havel will again stand as a candidate for the Czechoslovak presidency after the country's first free elections in 44 years, the national news agency Ctk reported here Friday.

Havel has been officially put forward by the Civic Forum to continue as head of state after elections on June 8-9. The new parliament will have 40 days to nominate a president.

Havel was one of the founders of Civic Forum, the opposition group which led the overthrow of the old communist government in December last year. He was chosen interim president on December 29.

BRUSSELS (MAY 4) - The European Economic Community's executive on Friday announced a 60-million-dollar campaign to combat farm subsidy fraud, an industry that experts say costs the Community billions each year.

If approved by ministers, the money will be alloted over five years to help member states tighten surveillance over EEC perks for food production and export, crop diversification and land that is taken out of production.

According to European Parliament estimates, as much as five billion European Currency Units (ECU's) (six billion dollars) -- roughly one-tenth of the EEC budget -- is lost through fraud each year, most of it in agriculture.

A top-level EEC panel is working to cut a swathe through the complex EEC laws and regulations that, experts say, provide many loopholes for fraud.

FRANKFURT, WEST GERMANY (MAY 4) - Frankfurt share prices soared 1.65 percent on Friday, boosted by news that West German metalworkers and management had reached agreement on introducing a 35-hour week and a six percent pay rise, averting fears of a strike. The DAX index ended the day up 31.10 points on Thursday's close at 1,912.89 points, while the Commerzbank index was up 38.1 points at 2,333.5.

The agreement, which came after 19 hours of negotiations here, officially covers the powerful IG Metall union's 700,000 members in the state of Baden-Wurttemberg but is expected to be endorsed at federal level.

It provides for a two-step reduction of the work week from the current 37 hours, first to 36 hours by April 1, 1993, and then to 35 hours by October 1, 1995, and for a six percent pay rise this year, more than double the current inflation rate.

IG Metall, the biggest single sector union in the western world with 2.6 million members and covering industries with a total four million employees, had already staged selective "warning strikes" in some areas this week and was threatening an all-out work stoppage if its demands were not met. A union spokesman said that it was the first time that western metalworkers had achieved such a reduction in working hours.

IG Metall's membership covers such key industries as the auto sector and computers as well as steel and machine tools, and its wage and conditions agreements are seen as the benchmark for other industries.

The central bank, the Bundesbank, has warned against high wage rises in the metallurgical industry because of their inflationary impact, and other industries are likely to face demands for pay rises well above inflation and shorter working hours in the wake of the IG Metall deal.

But news of the agreement gave a boost to the Frankfurt share market and to the dollar, with most economic analysts seeing the deal as much less harmful to the economy than a strike. "The market is relieved because there was a major risk of a strike," said one Frankfurt dealer.

Steel and machine tool stocks such as Thyssen and Mannesmann rose by up to 11.50 Deutsche marks, while auto stocks also soared, with Volkswagen up 14.70 Deutsche marks at 601.90, BMW up 12 Deutsche marks and Daimler-Benz up 15. The key computer stock, Siemens, also did well, putting on 15.50

Deutsche marks to 776.50.

The agreement apparently also comforted foreign investors, as a large number of foreign buy orders came in after the agreement was announced.

The Deutsche mark rose on the foreign exchange market against the dollar, which was quoted at 1.6780 Deutsche marks at 11 a.m. (0900 GMT) against 1.6820 at the beginning of the day.

Fears of a strike had helped push the Deutsche mark down earlier in the week. "The West German economy can well support such an agreement," said Petra Ott, an economist with the Frankfurt subsidiary of Citibank. "In the past three years the metalworkers have obtained relatively small wage increases, while companies' profit situation has improved considerably."

West German industry would be far better able to cope with increased wage costs than with a strike, which would have had disastrous consequences at a time when companies are working at full capacity, she added.

WARSAW (MAY 4) - Solidarity leader Lech Walesa took a battering in an opinion poll published Friday, coming fourth in a list of people Poles want as their head of state.

The non-communist Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki was the most popular potential presidential candidate, with the backing of 24 per cent of those polled by the official Public Opinion Research Centre, the Polish news agency PAP reported.

Second came Bronislaw Geremek, leader of the Solidarity group in parliament (19 per cent), followed by General Wojciech Jaruzelski, the current head of state, who led the communist crackdown on Solidarity in 1981, with 16.9 per cent.

Just 16.1 per cent of those polled said they preferred Mr. Walesa, who was re-elected leader of Solidarity on April 21. Though seen as the hero of Poland's struggle against communism, Mr. Walesa has also come in for criticism for being authoritarian and for using Solidarity to serve his own ambitions.

Presidential elections are not due in Poland until 1995, but Solidarity has called for the vote to be brought forward to early next year and implied that the constitution should be amended to have the head of state chosen by direct suffrage rather than by parliament.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) - A chinese diplomat announced his defection Friday and said 13 other diplomats had defected in the United States since Chinese government forces crushed the pro-democracy movement last June.

Lin Xu, a third secretary in the Embassy's education office, said he fled the embassy Wednesday and took refuge with pro-democracy student friends after learning he had been blacklisted and was about to be recalled.

The diplomat, who refused to divulge the whereabouts of his wife and daughter, said ''a majority'' of the officials in the embassy supported the democratic movement.

The 33-year-old Communist Party member said four diplomats had defected from consulates in San Francisco and Chicago, one from the consulate in New York, and five from the Chinese Embassy in Washington, including himself.

Until now, only two defections had been known to the U.S. public. Speaking at a news conference, Li said the U.S. government ''should hold a very strong policy against the Chinese government.'' Li intends to apply to the U.S. government for political asylum.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (MAY 4) - West German food retail cooperative Rewe has put in a bid for troubled rival Co op, a move which could create a retail giant with annual sales of some 41 billion Deutsche marks (24.1 billion dollars).

A Co op spokesman on Friday confirmed that Rewe had made an offer, but refused to give details. The Co op board of trustees would make a decision at its next meting on May 14, he added.

Co op shares were suspended Friday on the Frankfurt, Dusseldorf and Munich stock markets, but the move was not seen as significant since only a very small proportion of shares are in public hands.

Co op underwent a crisis in late 1988 amid press reports of doubtful management practices, but was able to continue operation and the group, born out of the union movement, is now controlled by the DG-Bank and BfG banks, who stood as guarantors to the rescue package.

The banks have refused to comment on the Rewe move.

Co op made a consolidated loss of 250 million Deutsche marks (147 million dollars) last year, but is hoping to reduce it this year to 150 million Deutsche marks on sales of 11 billion (6.4 billion dollars).

The group has 7,000 shops and employs 46,000 people, and also controls 12 agro-food subsidiaries.

The generally well-informed business letter Czerwensky Intern said that Rewe planned to cede some Co op stores in towns where it is already present to rivals Spar or Edeka, and was offering to take over Co op's debt.

Rewe, founded 60 years ago, had sales last year of 20.5 billion Deutsche marks, or 16.5 percent of the West German food retail market.

KHARTOUM (MAY 4) - A sudanese Army officer was Friday sentenced to life imprisonment by a military tribunal here for taking part in the April 24 coup attempt against the government of General Omer Beshir.

A statement broadcast by the official Radio Omdurman identified the officer as Lieutenant Awadalla Abdel gadir Agabna.

A colleague of Agabna, Colonel Mohamed Abbas Ghaleb, ws jailed for 10 years and three other officers were ordered dismissed from the army.

The sentences were regarded here mild, following the execution by firing squads of 28 coup leaders on the day of the coup attempt. Fourteen others were later either given jail sentences or dismissed from the army.

General Beshir, who came to power after overthrowing the democratically elected civilian government of Prime Minister Sadiq al Mahdi in June last year, warned that he ''will not tolerate or forgive any plot'' against his government again.

The April attempt was the second by the military against the government in less than a month.

ANKARA (MAY 4) - Turkey freed two leaders of the banned United Turkish Communist Party on Friday after they went on a hunger strike in protest at their detention on a propaganda charge since November 1987.

The state security court released on bail Haydar Kutlu and Nihat Sargin, the general-secretaries of the illegal Turkish Communist Party and the banned Workers' Party of Turkey respectively, at the 32nd session of their trial.

Coming out of Ankara jail, Mr. Kutlu told journalists that he wanted to see the creation of a "big Marxist" party in Turkey, adding that he planned to work for the release of all prisoners of conscience.

Both men, who have been ordered not to leave the country, said they wanted to get the communist party legalized.

Turkish Prime Minister Yildirim Akbulut said Friday that he was "satisfied" with the court's decision. Informed sources said the premier plans next week to put proposals to cabinet which would modify three articles in the penal code repressing free speech.

Mr. Kutlu said he was sorry not to see his wife at the prison gates. Cicek Yagci is still behind bars, accused - like her husband and Mr. Sargin - of "communist propaganda".

Both men were arrested on November 16, 1987, when they arrived at Istanbul airport from West Germany after living there in self-imposed exile since the September 1980 military coup.

Their homecoming followed the formation of a new government after general elections, which stated that it wanted to develop the democratic process in the country.

CARACAS (MAY 4) - Caribbean countries are reeling from a decade of foreign debt, high inflation and economic stagnation, studies published Thursday said.

The Economic Comission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC) said in a report at its meeting here that only Barbados showed significant growth in the gross domestic product (GDP) in 1989, according to ECLAC preliminary estimates.

The GDP of the region as a whole increased in 1989 by 1.1 per cent, slightly higher than the year before. The increase, however, was less than the growth in population, resulting in a 1 per cent drop in the per capita product, the second consecutive year of decline.

PORT-AU-PRINCE (MAY 4) - Former economy minister Leslie Delatour said 56 million U.S. dollars were funneled out of Haiti in 1988 in a hemorrhage he called "catastrophic" for the Haitian economy, a newspaper here reported Friday.

In an interview in Le Nouvelliste newspaper, Mr. Delatour said the economy was being bled dry by the transfer of funds out of the country, which hit a record 87 million dollars in 1983.

Mr. Delatour, who took over the economics portfolio after Jean-Claude Duvalier was ousted as president and fled to exile in France in 1986, quoted figures issued by the U.S. Government.

From 1980 to 1988, 277 million dollars were funneled out of the country, said Mr. Delatour, who now works as a consultant for a U.S. bank.

A top Central Bank official told the newspaper it was difficult to stop the outgoing flow of capital, since the country had an open-market economy and the government was legally powerless to intervene.

LONDON (MAY 4) - Captain Dirk Coetzee is talking. And the South African government, in the person of Judge Louis Harms who was appointed to investigate the existence of alleged police 'death squads,' appears to be listening.

"Like all policemen in South Africa, I have lied. But the future will prove I'm an honest man. I had to talk about this to clear my conscience," Capt. Coetzee said Friday.

During a 90-minute interview, Capt. Coetzee described his professional life before, during and after he became one of the leaders of a group of South African police officers involved in political assassinations between the late 1970's to the mid-1980's.

"My intention was to go and blow up the new transit house of the ANC in Swaziland," Capt. Coetzee said, describing one of many "anti-terrorist" operations against the African National Congress outside South African borders.

"We sat under a tree drinking beer, waiting for those bombs to go off. About 15 minutes later there was a huge bright light ... the transit house was cut up into three pieces and three people ended up in hospital," he said.

Describing this and other incidents of harassment, torture and murder of South African government opponents that he knew about, planned or took part in,

Capt. Coetzee spoke with eerie frankness, often smiling as he recounted the operations of the 'death squads'.

Capt. Coetzee, who said he had recently joined the ANC under whose protection he was placed shortly after he fled South Africa on November 5, was in London to give evidence to the Pretoria-appointed commission headed by Mr. Harms.

Although he spoke quickly and showed ready command of details now a decade old, little of the evidence he offered had not already come out in commission hearings or in South African news reports.

The commission has been meeting in the basement of the South African embassy here over the past two weeks to hear testimony from Capt. Coetzee and another self-confessed death squad member, David "Spyker" Tshikalanga, both of whom said their lives were in danger in South Africa.

Accra (MAY 4) - The special technical group of the Cocoa Producers' Alliance (Cpa) ended a five-day meeting here Friday optimistic that the market will respond positively if their resolutions are implemented by producers.

The resolutions were not made public.

The Accra meeting, the second by the committee this year, was called to discuss ways of maximizing export earnings from cocoa, prices for which have crashed to their lowest levels in many years,

It was attended by the Ivory Coast, Brazil, Ghana, Malaysia, the world's top four producers, Nigeria and Togo. Malaysia is not a member of the Cpa but says it is willing to join.

The economies of cocoa producers have been critically hit by the crash of cocoa prices.

The Ivory Coast, the biggest producer, is going through a serious economic crisis and Ghana, the third biggest producer said it lost 100 million dollars last eyar from cocoa sales.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) - The United States Friday rejected Cuban assertions that U.S. military maneuvers in the Caribbean and on the Guantanamo Naval Base on eastern Cuba were designed to unnerve Havana.

"These claims are totally false," said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher. "These are routine periodic exercises that are not directed against Cuba."

U.S forces are currently engaged in three sets of exercises involving naval forces and troops from Guantanamo.

Cuba has branded the maneuvers "simulated acts of aggression" and has responded by deploying combat troops and tanks around the U.S. naval base.

Mr. Boucher accused Cuba of crying wolf and stoking fears of a U.S. invasion "to muster anti-U.S. sentiment among the Cuban people and draw their attention away from Cuba's very real internal difficulties."

The U.S. maneuvers involved naval forces and Marines conducting so-called DEFEX exercises in the Caribbean south of Cuba, Global Shield north of Cuba and Ocean Venture with a mock landing in Puerto Rico.

Cuba lodged a protest with the United Nations Security Council Thursday, saying the U.S. maneuvers were "totally unjustified" and created a "dangerous situation."

The U.S. military presence at the base -- which Cuba considers illegal -- has been a source of tension in this region of the island for 30 years.

The Cuban Government claims the United States has increased its forces at the base in the last four months.

It says there are now 12 instead of six U.S. warships anchored there, and that additional 155 mm artillery pieces have been brought in to back up the estimated 3,000 troops stationed at the base.

AMMAN (MAY 4) - King Hussein of Jordan will meet with Iraqi President Suddam Hussein in Baghdad on Saturday when the two men will discuss the forthcoming Arab summit which Iraq wants to host, authoritative sources said here Friday.

The summit has been called to discuss what Arab countries allege are Israeli threats against Iraq backed by the United States and Britain, as well as the emigration of Soviet Jews to the Israeli occupied territories.

Iraq has said it wants to host the summit before the end of May.

The two leaders are also expected to put the finishing touches to a deal whereby Iraq will supply petrol to Jordan through Saudi Arabian pipelines, the sources said.

The deal will mean savings of 50 million dollars a year for Jordan which currently transports the petrol overland from Iraq.

King Hussein, who last visited Iraq on March 3, will be accompanied by his prime minister Moudar Badrane.

CAIRO (MAY 4) - Egypt and Syria are concerned about the danger of "uncontrolled emigration of Soviet Jews," Syrian President Hafez al-Assad said in an interview appearing Saturday in the Cairo daily Al Akbar.

Mr. Assad held talks in Damascus this week with President Hosni Mubarak, the first Egyptian head of state to visit Syria since 1977, the year the former Egyptian President Anwar Sadat visited Jerusalem and initiated the process leading to the Camp David agreements and Egypt's peace treaty with Israel.

The Syrian leader said he and Mr. Mubarak had reached "agreement on several things to be accomplished ... to remedy shortcomings affecting the Arab situation," without specifying what those actions were.

"Egypt and Syria are aware of the gravity of the danger represented by the uncontrolled emigration of Soviet Jews to Palestine," he said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) - President George Bush has authorized a seven million dollar emergency grant to help care for Palestinian refugees in the Middle East, the State Department announced Friday.

The funds will be given to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA), department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

He said the grant would "provide urgently needed funds for UNRWA to provide essential services to the refugees at a time of increased needs" due to a growing refugee population.

Such services include education vocational training and medical and relief services to more than two million Palestinian refugees, he said.

The grant, made from a discretionary fund known as the Emergency Refugees and Migration Account, will bring to 57 million dollars total U.S. contributions for Palestinian refugees in 1990.

BUCHAREST (MAY 4) - Romanian President Ion Iliescu met here Friday with opponents of his provisional government who want him and other former communist officials barred from standing for office, official sources said.

The sources said that Mr. Iliescu held talks in the parliament building with representatives of the "Timisoara Group", which has been demonstrating in the capital to back calls that the presidential election scheduled for May 20 be postponed.

When the demonstrations began 12 days ago, Mr. Iliescu described opponents of the ruling National Salvation Front (NSF) as "hooligans", and as late as Thursday an official spokesman insisted that the government would not negotiate with them.

Friday's meeting was announced from the balcony of Bucharest University, the centre of the demonstrations, by Stelian Tanase, spokesman for the Group for Social Dialogue, an intellectuals' movement closely associated with the NSF.

Opposition sources said that late Thursday, the vice-president of the NSF, Nicolae Dimitru, held a meeting with members of the "Timisoara Group", which takes its name from the city in western Romania where the revolution against the communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu began in mid-December.

The Timisoara Alliance of opposition groups has alleged that Mr. Iliescu and other senior NSF officials cooperated with the Ceausescu regime until its final months, and that they have since tried to "hijack" the revolution.

NEW DELHI (MAY 4) - At least two people were killed and others injured when police opened fire to quell fights between supporters of rival political parties in the northeastern state of Tripura on Friday, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

Activists of former prime minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress (I) party fought members of the independent Communist Party of India-Marxist during a protest sponsored by the CPI-M against "corrupt and inefficient" Congress (I) rule in the tiny state bordering Bangladesh, PTI quoted officials as saying.

One person died, a dozen policemen and an unspecified number of other people were injured, and hundreds of arrests were made, PTI said.

One of the injured died later in hospital.

JAMMU, INDIA (MAY 4) - Some 15 people died in violence in Kashmir on Friday as authorities outlawed a radical Moslem women's group in the northern Indian state, officials said.

Moslem separatists blew up two bridges in the Kashmir valley, an official spokesman said, while roads were cut in the south of the state.

The spokesman said the 15 dead included seven suspected separatists shot by Indian troops as they returned from training in Pakistan.

Pakistan rejects India accusations that it is aiding separatists in Kashmir, which is claimed by both countries.

A Hindu businessman, Khooshi Ram, was shot dead in the state's Hindu-majority Jammu region, the spokesman said, but all other incidents of violence occurred in the Moslem-dominated Kashmir valley.

Security forces rounded up 97 more suspects, taking to almost 900 the total detained since a crackdown was launched across the valley on April 6. An area commander of the Hibzul Mujahedeen, one of the Moslem groups fighting for the secession of Kashmir from India, was among those arrested.

Three suspected militants, a Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) man and a policeman were killed in separate incidents in Srinagar, the state's summer capital, the spokesman said.

Security troopers killed an ex-soldier suspected of harbouring militants in the valley's Kupwara district, the spokesman said.

Earlier, an official spokesman announced that police had outlawed the organisation Dakhtarane Millet (daughters of faith) late Thursday, accusing it of being a wing of the Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front (JKLF).

He said Aasiyeh Andrabi, leader of the millet with an enrolled membership of 70,000, had not been arrested and was living in Srinagar.

"No one from the group has been arrested or jailed," the spokesman said.

The ban on the group, the ninth militant outfit banned since April 1, followed police accusations that it had indulged in "subversive and terrorist activities." It came two months after Ms. Aandrabi urged Kashmiri women to kill Indian security men to defend their honour during raids on their homes.

The millet, Kashmir's only women's organisation, has charged Indian paramilitary troopers with mass rape of Kashmiri girls and attacks on pregnant women and children, allegations denied by state authorities.

BOGOTA (MAY 4) - At least four people were killed, including a 3-year-old child, when a car-bomb exploded in the southern city of Cali, home to Colombia's second most powerful drug cartel, police reported.

They said some 20 people were injured in Thursday's attack, which was aimed at a pharmacy belonging to a chain of chemist stores run by the Cali cocaine-trafficking cartel chiefs.

Seven houses and 20 shops were seriously damaged in the explosion, officials reported.

No group claimed responsibility for the bombing but authorities believed it was part of an ongoing war between the Cali gang and its more powerful rival, the Medellin Cartel, which takes its name from the northwestern city where it is based.

The two cartels are held responsible for smuggling 80 per cent of the cocaine consumed in the United States, the world's largest drug-consuming nation.

The cartels have been locked in a bloody feud for control over the New York market, currently believed to be in the hands of the Cali group.

Both groups have also been engaged in a retaliatory war against the government since President Virgilio Barco ordered a crackdown on drug traffickers in August.

More than 200 people have been killed in attacks blamed on the drug barons since then.

SAN SALVADOR (MAY 4) EFE - A Salvadoran Air Force pilot was wounded and two helicopters were damaged by leftist rebels who have stepped up their attacks around the country in the past few days, Army officials reported.

They said the pilot was injured when his helicopter came under fire Thursday from rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) while on patrol duty near the city of San Miguel, 140 km northwest of the capital.

A second helicopter was hit in the clash, officials said.

The attack came on the third day of a new FMLN offensive in at least six of the country's 14 provinces.

Rebels have put the casualty toll at more than 180 while Army officials say 48 people from both sides have been killed or wounded.

The latest offensive comes despite plans for a resumption of peace negotiations between the guerrillas and the rightist government of President Alfredo Cristiani.

Cristiani Thursday said the attacks would not alter the government's intention to seek peace and said the talks could begin within two weeks.

Peace negotiations between the two sides broke down in October when ten people were killed in a suspected military-linked bomb attack on a trade union headquarters.

Days later, the FMLN launched its biggest-ever offensive in which more than 2,500 people were killed.

Political violence has claimed more than 75,000 lives since the guerrillas began fighting a series of U.S.-backed Salvadoran governments in 1980.

Rights groups blame death squads linked to the Army for more than half the deaths.

Meanwhile, the Armed Forces Thursday slammed as FMLN propaganda two communiques released Thursday by alleged young military officers who accused top-ranking officers of widespread corruption.

Officials dismissed the charges claiming the statements were the work of the FMLN and were an attempt to create divisions within the military.

In a press release, Army officials said similar communiques in 1981 and 1989 were later found to have been planned by the guerrillas.

LIMA (MAY 4) EFE - The head of Peru's Joint Chiefs of Staff has said the military will respect the outcome of next month's run-off presidential election, denying rumors of a coup in the event of a victory by independent candidate Alberto Fujimori.

In a statement Thursday, Adm. Alfonso Panizo said there was no reason to think that whoever wins on June 3 would not be able to take power, adding that the Armed Forces would guarantee and ensure the ballot is carried out correctly.

"It is not up to the Armed Forces to decide who should or shouldn't rule the country," Panizo said.

His comments came a day after President Alan Garcia described the coup rumors as "rubbish," saying they were part of a "dirty war" waged by Fujimori's opponents.

Fujimori, an agronomist of Japanese descent, is tipped to win the ballot run-off against conservative candidate novelist Mario Vargas Llosa of the FREDEMO coalition.

But his predicted victory has reportedly triggered fears of discontent in strategic sectors such as the Armed Forces and the Roman Catholic Church.

In a recent newspaper interview, hardline retired Army Gen. Luis Cisneros Vizquerra warned that the era of coups in Peru had not ended and that if the country was seen to be heading towards anarchy the military would be forced to take control.

Separately, ruling APRA party leader Sen. Javier Valla Riestra warned that a minority group in the Armed Forces was vigorously opposed to Fujimori and was planning a coup.

Observers have said some members of the military were openly against a member of Peru's Japanese immigrant community becoming president.

Meanwhile, conservatives within the Roman Catholic Church are said to be uneasy over the considerable support Evangelists lent to Fujimori's campaign.

In his statement Thursday, Panizo urged Peruvians to go the polls and not to fall into traps laid by people aiming to destabilize the country.

Peru is currently in the throes of a crippling economic crisis and a brutal decade-old insurgency being waged by the Maoist "Shining Path" rebel group.

MADRID (MAY 4) EFE - Renowned Spanish novelist Alfonso Grosso has been admitted for the third time to a psychiatric clinic suffering from severe mental depression, the Madrid daily Ya reported Friday.

Citing a doctor at the San Juan de Dios clinic, located outside Malaga, 430 km south of Madrid, Ya said Grosso had entered the clinic Tuesday.

It was the third time the author of "Florido Mayo" and "La Zanja" had to undergo psychiatric treatment.

In 1988, Grosso tried to commit suicide by jumping from a balcony at his home in the southern village of Valencia de la Concepcion.

Born in 1928, Grosso was one of the leaders of Spain's +social realism+ literary movement in the 1950s and was a strong critic of late dictator Gen. Francisco Franco, who ruled from 1939 until his death in 1975.

MADRID (MAY 4) EFE - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev did not stalk out of the May Day parade in Red Square because he was being insulted by radical protesters -- he had already left before the jeering began, Moscow Mayor Gavril Popov said on a visit to Madrid.

In an interview Friday in the Spanish daily El Pais, Popov said that Gorbachev, along with himself and other Soviet officials, walked out after the protesters halted in front of the Lenin Mausoleum podium and prevented more people from entering the square.

"For over ten minutes, the same demonstrators stood in front of us, and Gorbachev had no choice but to walk away. He left because the demonstration had practically ended and so did I," Popov said.

It was after the officials left that the up to 40,000 protesters -- including anarchists, members of fledgling opposition parties and supporters of Lithuania's unilateral declaration of independence -- began whistling and chanting slogans and insults.

Popov said the officials knew what they were in for by granting free access to the May Day parade, while in the past only carefully-chosen "loyal and patriotic workers" were allowed to take part.

"That took certain amount of courage because it was clear that the demonstration was going to be hostile. But it was approved nonetheless. From that point of view, it represents a serious step on the road to democracy," Popov said.

"Gorbachev did not walk out because he did not like what was on the banners they were carrying although obviously he did not like it. He was annoyed, but I was at his side and the shouts did not come until long after he was gone."

Popov, in Madrid to appear in a panel discussion of Soviet economic reforms and its repercussions on bilateral trade with Spain, said an investigation was underway to determine if a group of Lithuanian demonstrators had orchestrated the protest.

BOGOTA (MAY 4) EFE - During this month's presidential elections, President Virgilio Barco's government is to ask Colombians if they support the idea of calling a national constituent assembly to reform the constitution.

Under a decree announced Thursday, the government is to hold a a plebiscite during May 27 presidential elections to ask voters to choose whether a "constituent assembly where social, political and regional forces will be represented" is needed.

Also Thursday, the Liberal government said it would hand out cash to presidential candidates running in May's polling to help cover their security costs, as part of a campaign to ensure the elections are not disrupted by drug, left-wing rebel or right-wing violence.

The four main contenders whose parties are represented in parliament will receive dlrs 52,000, while the remaining nine hopefuls will receive between dlrs 12,500 and dlrs 20,000.

Nine days ago, the presidential candidate for the leftist M-19 party, a former rebel group, was gunned down on a domestic flight by a 21-year-old assailant. He was accompanied by 12 secret police officers and two bodyguard candidate for the leftist Patriotic Union party was also murdered.

M-19's new candidate, Antonio Navarro, Liberal party hopeful Cesar Gaviria Social Conservative party candidate Rodrigo Lloreda and the Nationalist Conservative's Alvaro Gomez Hurtado are the four main contenders to replace Barco.

LA PAZ (MAY 4) EFE - Some 30 hunger strikers Friday began their tenth day of fasting in protest at the concession to a U.S. firm of exclusive exploration rights on Bolivia's deposits of the valuable mineral lithium, which are considered to be the largest in the world.

Community leaders from the southern province of Potosi, where the lithium deposits are located, began the strike in a bid to force the government to cancel a contract giving the American Lithium Corporation (LITHCO) 40-year exploration rights on the mineral.

Under the deal, which has yet to be passed by Congress, LITHCO is to invest an initial dlrs 40 million to exploit the estimated 9-million tonne deposits located around Lake Tauca, on Bolivia's southern border with Chile.

The protesters claim that the contract, signed in March, is unlikely to benefit the region, alleging that Potosi lost out substantially with similar contracts in the past to exploit tin and silver.

Despite its previous extensive deposits of silver and tin, Potosi is one of Bolivia's poorest regions.

"We want Congress to reject the contract with LITHCO because we don't want the Lithium to be looted like the silver and the tin was," striker Eduardo Salamanca said this week.

Regional governments and trade unions have likewise slammed the Potosi contract as being unfavorable to Bolivia.

The hunger strikers are also pushing for the contract to be put to public tender, although the government claims that under the country's fiscal laws it is not obliged to do so.

According to experts, moves to exploit the mineral could prove vital for Bolivia's economy given the sharp slump in the world tin market, formerly the country's major foreign exchange earner.

Described by scientists as the "mineral of the future," Lithium -- the lightist known metal -- has a great variety of uses in aerospace technology, pharmaceuticals and textiles.

Speaking to EFE Wednesday, Deputy Mining Minister Carlos Zamora hit out at the hunger strikers saying that they would make other potential foreign investors nervous.

"The effects of the strike will be to make foreign investors flee and scrap an oportunity to exploit the lithium, a (process) which Bolivia cannot handle, neither technologically nor financially," Zamora said.

The government has insisted that only LITHCO -- which controls 60 percent of the world market in lithium -- has the resources to competently exploit the mineral, which in turn would enable Bolivia to speedily earn badly-needed foreign currency.

The protest, held in both a press union headquarters and in the reception area of a luxury hotel in La Paz, comes amid an 8-day-old general strike.

Although the stoppage has only been partially heeded in most sectors, it has been strongly backed by some 60 percent of the country's 23,000 miners.

GERONA, SPAIN (MAY 4) EFE - Police have arrested a man in possession of 30 kgs of cocaine, worth about dlrs 10 million on the black market, in his hotel room in the Mediterranean resort of Lloret de Mar on Spain's Costa Brava, authorities said Friday.

The suspect was arrested Thursday and identified as Eduardo Gonzalez Molina, 42, of Colombia.

A government spokesman in the provincial capital of Gerona, 600 km northeast of Madrid, said Gonzalez was believed to be a member of an international drug gang that smuggles cocaine to Switzerland through Spain.

In a separate raid, another 11 kgs of cocaine were discovered in a car in Barcelona and two men and two women were arrested.

Authorities say Spain is a major gateway for cocaine smuggled into Europe from South America.

MADRID (MAY 4) EFE - Spain's Socialist government Friday approved a multi-billion-dollar plan to improve road and rail access to major cities in a bid to fight congestion on the nation's highways.

The plan will concentrate on improving access to Madrid, the port city of Barcelona -- which is to host the 1992 Summer Olympic Games --, the southeastern city of Valencia, the southern resort capital of Malaga, and Seville, where the Expo' 92 World's Fair is to be held.

Speaking after Friday's cabinet meeting where the plan was approved, Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez told reporters that the dlrs 15 billion dollar project was an answer to "the anguish of transport in large cities."

Some of the money is also to be spent on improving commuter train services.

Around two thirds of the project is to be financed by the government, while regional authorities will put up the remaining costs.

Millions of Spaniards and foreign tourists encounter huge tailbacks each holiday and during the summer on a number of Spanish highways, many of which are only two lanes.

Roads into major cities are also frequently blocked after bank holiday weekends, while traffic in city centers is gridlocked during rush hours.

LIMA (MAY 4) - A Peruvian senator warned Friday that leftist rebel violence, which has caused around 20,000 deaths in Peru over the last decade, is on the increase despite rumors the country's main guerrilla group had split into rival factions.

Sen. Enrique Bernales, head of a parliamentary commission on leftist rebel insurgency in Peru, said so far this year 1,100 people had been killed in guerrilla-related violence, and that the number of attacks was rising.

Referring to rumors that the Maoist "Shining Path" group, considered the most brutal in Latin America, had spilt into two, the senator said if this was the case then the most violent faction had won control of the movement as the attacks had not eased off.

Bernales said the state had been unable to assert itself in Shining Path strongholds, located in Peru's central and southeastern Andes and remote Upper Huallaga jungle valley, where the government has declared a state of emergency to deal with the violence.

The leftist senator added that the only note of optimism for an end to Peru's violence was that "society has began to mobilize in favor of peace."

Both of candidates in next month's presidential runoff, conservative Mario Vargas Llosa and independent Alberto Fujimori, have ruled out peace talks with the rebels until they end attacks.

Efforts to make peace overtures to Shining Path have all failed, with Peru's Roman Catholic Church reportedly alleging that it has been impossible to reach any kind of understanding with the group.

Rebel violence over the last ten years has cost Peru some dlrs 17 billion in losses, according to Bernales' commission.

Officials said Friday 70 suspected rebels had been captured in the northern department of La Libertad after a shootout with security forces.

They did not say whether the guerrillas were members of Shining Path or Peru's other rebel group, the smaller and less extreme Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement (MRTA) which emerged in 1984.

In 1985, the MRTA agreed to a truce with center-left President Alan Garcia's government, but broke the cease-fire complaining the group's demands were not being considered.

JAKARTA (MAY 4) KYODO - THE WEEKLONG TREK OF JAPANESE PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU THROUGH SOUTH ASIA HAS HELPED TO PAVE THE WAY FOR GREATER JAPANESE POLITICAL INFLUENCE IN THE REGION, BACKED BY TOKYO'S CHECK-BOOK DIPLOMACY.

KAIFU, WHO FLEW INTO JAKARTA FRIDAY FOLLOWING A TOUR OF INDIA, BANGLADESH, PAKISTAN, AND SRI LANKA, SET OUT HIS SOUTH ASIA POLICY IN A SPEECH TO THE INDIAN PARLIAMENT ON MONDAY, SAYING THAT JAPAN INTENDS TO INCREASE

POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC COOPERATION WITH SOUTH ASIAN COUNTRIES TO HELP POLITICAL STABILITY AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT IN THE REGION.

INDIA'S ENGLISH NEWSPAPER THE INDEPENDENT NOTED IN AN EDITORIAL ON WEDNESDAY THAT JAPAN'S POLITICAL VISION HAD BEEN LIMITED TO CHINA AND SOUTHEAST ASIA IN THE PAST BUT THE JAPANESE ARE NOW SEEKING TO EXTEND THEIR INFLUENCE TO SOUTH ASIA THROUGH INCREASING ECONOMIC AID TO THE SOUTH ASIAN ASSOCIATION FOR REGIONAL COOPERATION (SAARC).

SAARC, WHICH GROUPS INDIA, SRI LANKA, PAKISTAN, BANGLADESH, NEPAL, BHUTAN AND THE MALDIVES, WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1985 TO STRENGHTEN ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COOPERATION IN THE REGION.

INDIAN PRIME MINISTER VISHWANATH PRATAP SINGH, IN HIS TALKS WITH KAIFU ON MONDAY, WELCOMED JAPAN'S AID OFFER TO SAARC IN A DEPARTURE FROM THE TRADITIONAL INDIAN POLICY AGAINST RECEIVING COOPERATION OUTSIDE THE REGION.

''SOUTH ASIAN COUNTRIES HAVE TRADITIONALLY ATTACHED MORE IMPORTANCE TO MILITARY POWER THAN ECONOMIC MIGHT IN INTERNATIONAL ORDER,'' A JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID, NOTING THAT THESE COUNTRIES NOW REALIZE THEY LAG BEHIND SOUTHEAST ASIA IN ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT.

UNDER AN EMERGING NEW INTERNATIONAL ORDER, TRIGGERED BY THE DEMOCRATIZATION OF COMMUNIST EASTERN EUROPE AND CLOSER RELATIONS BETWEEN THE SOVIET UNION AND THE UNITED STATES, MILITARY POWER HAS ONLY A LIMITED IMPACT ON INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS, THE OFFICIAL SAID.

AS THE WORLD'S SECOND LARGEST ECONOMY AFTER THE UNITED STATES AND BY FAR THE LARGEST AID DONOR TO ASIA, THE JAPANESE PRESENCE IS BEING STRONGLY FELT AMONG THE FOUR SOUTH ASIAN COUNTRIES KAIFU VISITED.

WHILE IN PAKISTAN, PRIME MINISTER BENAZIR BHUTTO TOLD KAIFU THAT PAKISTAN EXPECTS JAPAN TO PLAY A ROLE IN SEEKING A PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF THE KASHMIR DISPUTE WITH INDIA.

THE DISPUTE HAS MOUNTED SINCE MID-JANUARY AS NEW DELHI AND ISLAMABAD ACCUSED EACH OTHER OF INSTIGATING THE DISPUTE OVER HINDU- DOMINATED INDIA'S MOSLEM MAJORITY STATE.

KAIFU URGED THE LEADERS OF INDIAN AND PAKISTAN TO EXERCISE RESTRAINT OVER KASHMIR, AND SOFTENED HIS ADMONITION WITH PROMISES OF FINANCIAL BENEFITS.

IN INDIA, KAIFU COMMITTED JAPAN TO EXTEND 100 BILLION YEN IN GOVERNMENT CREDITS TO INDIA FOR FISCAL 1990, AND HE REMINDED BHUTTO THAT TOKYO WAS GIVING A TOTAL OF 60 BILLION YEN TO PAKISTAN FOR THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR AS THE TWO TALKED OVER THE KASHMIR ISSUE.

KAIFU ALSO LACED HIS TRIP TO BANGLADESH AND SRI LANKA WITH PROMISES OF AID

-- 31.2 BILLION YEN IN GOVERNMENT FUNDS TO BANGLADESH AND THE DISPATCH OF A LARGE JAPANESE FACT-FINDING MISSION TO SRI LANKA THIS YEAR TO HELP COLOMBO IMPLEMENT ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS.

KAIFU ALSO SOUGHT TO REASSURE ASIAN COUNTRIES, AS HE DID IN HIS INDIAN PARLIAMENT SPEECH, THAT JAPAN WILL CONTINUE ITS COMMITMENT TO ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE TO THE REGION, SAYING JAPAN WOULD NEVER EXTEND AID TO EASTERN EUROPE AT THE EXPENSE OF ASIA.

KAIFU WILL MEET WITH INDONESIAN PRESIDENT SUHARTO ON SATURDAY, AND HIGH ON THE AGENDA IS THE CAMBODIAN CONFLICT. THIS IS ANOTHER AREA WHERE JAPAN IS TRYING TO FLEX ITS POLITICAL MUSCLE IN GETTING CAMBODIAN PREMIER HUN SEN AND HIS POLITICAL RIVAL, PRINCE NORODOM SIHANOUK, TO MEET IN TOKYO TO SETTLE THE 11-YEAR-OLD WAR.

A JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID JAPAN WILL PLAY AN INCREASING ROLE IN PROMOTING PEACE, STABILITY AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT IN ASIA, A ROLE SUPPORTED BY ITS ECONOMIC MIGHT.

BELGRADE (MAY 4) KYODO - VISITING JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER TARO NAKAYAMA SAID HERE FRIDAY HE PLANS TO VISIT THE UNITED STATES IN EARLY JUNE FOR A BRIEFING ON U.S.-SOVIET SUMMIT TALKS SLATED TO START IN WASHINGTON IN LATE MAY.

NAKAYAMA TOLD REPORTERS OF THE PLAN AT A BELGRADE HOTEL AFTER ARRIVING HERE EARLY FRIDAY ON THE SECOND AND LAST LEG OF A SIX-DAY TOUR OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA AND YUGOSLAVIA.

HE SAID HE WANTS TO VISIT THE U.S. TO MEET U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES BAKER IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE U.S.-SOVIET SUMMIT TALKS IN ORDER TO GET A GRASP OF SOVIET VIEWS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE IN CONNECTION WITH JAPAN'S POLICY TOWARD THE SOVIET UNION AND EUROPE.

FAILING A MEETING AT THE BEGINNING OF JUNE, NAKAYAMA SAID, HE PLANS TO HOLD TALKS WITH BAKER WHEN A 24-NATION FOREIGN MINISTERIAL MEETING ON AID FOR EASTERN EUROPEAN COUNTRIES IS HELD IN BRUSSELS IN MID-JUNE.

NAKAYAMA INDICATED THAT JAPAN WANTS TO UNDERSTAND SOVIET VIEWS ON DISARMAMENT, ECONOMIC REFORMS AND OTHER ISSUES THROUGH THE U.S. IN PREPARATION FOR VISITS TO JAPAN BY SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDNADZE, THIS SUMMER, AND PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV NEXT YEAR.

HE ALSO INDICATED THAT JAPAN WANTS TO GO TO THE ANNUAL SUMMIT TALKS OF SEVEN MAJOR INDUSTRIAL COUNTRIES TO BE HELD IN HOUSTON, TEXAS IN JULY, WITH A CLEAR PERCEPTION OF SOVIET TRENDS.

KUALA LUMPUR (MAY 4) KYODO - MALAYSIAN DEFENSE MINISTER AHMAD RITHAUDDEEN URGED JAPAN ON FRIDAY TO DISPEL FEARS ABOUT THE POSSIBILITY OF JAPAN'S RESURGENCE AS A MILITARY POWER.

WITHOUT IDENTIFYING PARTICULAR COUNTRIES, RITHAUDDEEN SAID REMOVAL OF THE CONCERN IS AN ''IMPORTANT TASK'' FOR JAPAN.

HE RAISED THE ISSUE IN A MEETING WITH HIS JAPANESE COUNTERPART YOZO ISHIKAWA, WHO LATER ASSURED THE MALAYSIAN DEFENSE MINISTER THAT JAPAN WILL NOT BECOME A MILITARY POWER AS IT WAS DURING WORLD WAR II.

MALAYSIA WAS UNDER JAPANESE MILITARY RULE DURING THE WAR. ISHIKAWA ARRIVED HERE EARLIER IN THE DAY FROM BANGKOK TO CONCLUDE A FIVE-DAY TOUR WHICH ALSO TOOK HIM TO AUSTRALIA AND THAILAND, THE FIRST TRIP TO THE THREE COUNTRIES BY JAPAN'S TOP DEFENSE POLICY MAKER.

IN A MEETING WITH ISHIKAWA IN BANGKOK THURSDAY, THAI DEFENSE MINISTER CHAVALIT YONGCHAIYUDH ALSO REFERRED TO SUCH FEARS BEING RAISED IN THE MEDIA BUT SAID JAPAN SHOULD NOT BE TOO CONCERNED.

CHAVALIT SAID HE IS AWARE THAT JAPAN'S DEFENSE CAPABILITY IS MAKING A CONTRIBUTION TO STABILITY IN ASIA.

DURING FRIDAY'S MEETING, RITHAUDDEEN ALSO EXPLAINED MALAYSIA'S EFFORTS TO MAINTAIN THE SAFETY OF THE STRAITS OF MALACCA AND SAID THIS HAS BEEN BENEFITTING JAPAN, WHICH IS HEAVILY DEPENDENT ON OIL IMPORTS SHIPPED THROUGH THE NARROW WATERWAY BETWEEN MALAYSIA AND INDONESIA.

ISHIKAWA APPRECIATED MALAYSIA'S EFFORTS TO PROTECT OF THE STRAITS, ACCORDING TO JAPANESE OFFICIALS.

CONCERNING THE REGIONAL SECURITY SITUATION, RITHAUDDEEN SAID MALAYSIA IS OPPOSED TO THE INCREASED PRESENCE OF MILITARY BASES IN SOUTHEAST ASIA BY EXTERNAL FORCES.

THIS WAS INTERPRETED AS AN OBJECTION TO SINGAPORE'S OFFER TO ALLOW THE UNITED STATES TO USE ITS MILITARY FACILITIES ON THE ISLAND REPUBLIC, MALAYSIA'S SOUTHERN NEIGHBOR.

BEIJING (MAY 4) KYODO - CHINESE COMMUNIST PARTY GENERAL SECRETARY JIANG ZEMIN TOLD SENIOR JAPANESE POLITICIAN MICHIO WATANABE FRIDAY THAT CHINA

WILL CONTINUE WITH ONE-PARTY COMMUNIST RULE DESPITE THE REFORMS UNDER WAY IN THE SOVIET UNION AND EAST EUROPE.

''CHINA WILL MAINTAIN THE LEADING ROLE OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY...WE ALLOW NO INTERFERENCE IN OUR SOCIALIST SYSTEM WHICH WE CHOSE AFTER LONG YEARS,'' JIANG SAID IN AN HOUR-AND-HALF MEETING WITH WATANABE AT THE ZHONGNANHAI GOVERNMENT COMPLEX, JAPANESE SOURCES SAID.

WATANABE, A FORMER FINANCE MINISTER, WHILE PLEDGING THAT JAPAN WILL KEEP ITS PROMISE TO PROVIDE 810 BILLION YEN PACKAGE OF OFFICIAL LOANS TO CHINA IN THE PERIOD 1990-95, URGED CHINA TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE TO IMPROVE RELATIONS WITH OTHER WESTERN NATIONS TO PROVIDE A SUITABLE ENVIRONMENT FOR JAPAN TO RESUME THE LOANS, THE SOURCES SAID.

JAPAN SUSPENDED THE LOAN PACKAGE LAST JUNE TO PROTEST THE BLOODY CRACKDOWN AGAINST CHINA'S PRO-DEMOCRACY MOVEMENTS, IN ACCORDANCE WITH CALLS BY MAJOR INDUSTRIALIZED NATIONS TO IMPOSE ECONOMIC SANCTIONS.

JIANG, REFUSING TO RESPOND TO WATANABE'S CALLS, SAID NO PRESSURE CAN POSSIBLY MAKE CHINA GIVE IN. ''WE CANNOT MAKE OUR 1.1 BILLION PEOPLE BOW THEIR HEADS.'' HE WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

JIANG, WHO VISITED NORTH KOREA IN MARCH, SAID NORTH KOREAN LEADER KIM IL SUNG ENJOYS HIGH POPULARITY AND THERE WERE NO SIGNS OF POLITICAL CHANGES OR MOVES FOR ECONOMIC REFORMS, THE SOURCES SAID.

WATANABE ASKED FOR CHINESE ASSISTANCE TO FACILITATE A JAPANESE PLAN TO SEND FORMER DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER SHIN KANEMARU TO PYONGYANG SOMETIME IN SEPTEMBER OR OCTOBER TO SEEK AN EARLY RELEASE OF TWO JAPANESE SEAMEN DETAINED THERE SINCE NOVEMBER 1983 ON ESPIONAGE CHARGES.

WATANABE SAID THE RELEASE OF ISAMU BENIKO, SKIPPER OF THE FREIGHTER NO.18 FUJUSAN MARU, AND YOSHIO KURIURA, ITS CHIEF ENGINEER, WILL CONTRIBUTE TO STEPPED-UP TRADE BETWEEN JAPAN AND NORTH KOREA, THEY SAID.

WHEN QUERIED BY WATANABE, JIANG SAID CHINA-JAPAN FRIENDSHIP ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT SUN PINGHUA WILL START PREPARING FOR MEETINGS IN BEIJING BETWEEN CHINESE LEADERS AND KANEMARU WHEN KANEMARU STOPS THERE ON HIS WAY TO NORTH KOREA, ACCORDING TO THE SOURCES.

JIANG SAID CHINA HAS MADE SEVERAL INQUIRIES ON THE SEAMEN ISSUE BUT HAS RECEIVED NO RESPONSE FROM NORTH KOREA.

BUT HE SAID CHINA WILL CONTINUE TRADE EXCHANGES WITH SOUTH KOREA ON A NON-OFFICIAL BASIS, THEY SAID.

BEIJING (MAY 4) KYODO - MONGOLIAN PRESIDENT PUNSALMAAGIYN OCHIRBAT ARRIVED IN BEIJING FRIDAY FOR A FOUR-DAY GOODWILL VISIT TO CHINA AND THE FIRST TOP-LEVEL TALKS WITH CHINA IN 28 YEARS.

THE VISIT BY THE MONGOLIAN HEAD OF STATE MARKS THE FULL RESTORATION OF RELATIONS BETWEEN THE COMMUNIST NEIGHBORS WHICH FELL OUT DURING THE PERIOD OF CHINA-SOVIET CONFRONTATION IN THE 1960S.

HOWEVER, IN A WELCOMING RECEPTION IN HONOR OF THE MONGOLIAN GUEST IN THE EVENING, OCHIRBAT AND CHINESE PRESIDENT YANG SHANGKUN EXPRESSED DIFFERENT VIEWS ON THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION.

YANG SAID THE CHINESE PEOPLE WOULD ADHERE TO THE COMMUNIST PARTY'S LINE WHATEVER CHANGES OCCUR ELSEWHERE AND THAT UNSTABLE ELEMENTS WERE INCREASING IN THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION.

FOR HIS PART, OCHIRBAT SAID FAVORABLE CHANGES WERE NOW SEEN IN THE WORLD POLITICAL ATMOSPHERE WHICH WOULD PROMOTE MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING AND TRUST, THAT MOVES WERE AFOOT FOR POLITICAL SETTLEMENT OF REGIONAL CONFLICTS, AND REMARKABLE PROGRESS WAS TAKING PLACE IN DISARMAMENT.

ON THE SITUATION IN MONGOLIA, OCHIRBAT SAID THE DEVELOPMENT OF DEMOCRACY AND OPENNESS MARKS A NEW PHASE IN THE SOCIETY.

NEVERTHELESS, YANG AND OCHIRBAT SHARED THE VIEW THAT RELATIONS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES SHOULD BE DEVELOPED.

OCHIRBAT HELD TALKS WITH YANG AND PREMIER LI PENG ON FRIDAY AND WILL MEET COMMUNIST PARTY GENERAL SECRETARY JIANG ZEMIN ON SATURDAY.

MONGOLIAN FOREIGN MINISTRY SOURCES ACCOMPANYING OCHIRBAT SAID MONGOLIA AND CHINA WILL SIGN PACTS ON COOPERATION IN SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY AND CULTURE, THE PROTECTION OF NATURE, AND MEDICAL CARE, DURING OCHIRBAT'S VISIT.

THE SOURCES ALSO SAID MONGOLIA WILL BRIEF CHINA ON DEMOCRATIC REFORMS UNDER WAY IN MONGOLIA BUT THE ISSUE IS UNLIKELY TO BECOME A MAJOR TOPIC.

JAKARTA (MAY 4) KYODO - JAPANESE PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU SAID ON FRIDAY THAT COOPERATION BETWEEN JAPAN AND THE ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHEAST ASIAN NATIONS (ASEAN) IS VERY IMPORTANT FOR MAINTAINING THE PEACE AND PROSPERITY OF THE ASIAN-PACIFIC REGION IN A PERIOD OF CHANGING INTERNATIONAL ORDER.

KAIFU, WHO ARRIVED IN JAKARTA FROM COLOMBO EARLIER IN THE DAY ON THE FINAL LEG OF A FIVE-NATION ASIAN TOUR, UNDERSCORED JAPAN'S COMMITMENT TO ASEAN IN A SPEECH HE MADE AT A WELCOMING BANQUET HOSTED BY INDONESIAN PRESIDENT SUHARTO.

JAPAN WILL MAKE EVERY EFFORT TO PROMOTE ITS RELATIONS WITH ASEAN, THE SIX-NATION REGIONAL GROUP CURRENTLY CHAIRED BY INDONESIA, KAIFU SAID.

THE JAPANESE PREMIER PRAISED SUHARTO FOR HIS EFFORTS TO SEEK PEACE IN CAMBODIA THROUGH A SERIES OF MEDIATION TALKS BETWEEN THE RESISTANCE FORCES AND THE VIETNAM-BACKED REGIME IN PHNOM PENH.

TURNING TO THE INDONESIAN ECONOMY, KAIFU SAID JAPAN WILL DO ITS UTMOST TO HELP INDONESIA ACHIEVE A TAKE-OFF IN ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT.

SUHARTO, IN TOASTING KAIFU, REMINDED THE JAPANESE LEADER OF THE ECONOMIC INEQUALITY BETWEEN INDUSTRIALIZED AND DEVELOPING NATIONS, SAYING THAT INEQUALITY ALWAYS MAKES THE WORLD UNEASY.

SUBSTANTIVE TALKS ON BILATERAL AND REGIONAL RELATIONS WILL TAKE PLACE AT A SCHEDULED TWO-HOUR MEETING WITH SUHARTO SET FOR SATURDAY MORNING.

EARLIER, KAIFU PAID COURTESY CALLS ON SUHARTO AND VICE PRESIDENT SUDHARMANO. ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE SACHIYO AND DAUGHTER MUTSUMI, KAIFU SPENT 30 MINUTES CHATTING WITH SUHARTO DURING THE MEETING AT THE MERDEKA PRESIDENTIAL PALACE. SUHARTO EXPRESSED SYMPATHY WITH KAIFU ON THE TIGHT SCHEDULE OF HIS NINE-DAY TRIP, SAYING ''YOU MUST BE VERY TIRED FROM THE TOUR.''

THE JAPANESE PREMIER WAS GREETED BY FOREIGN MINISTER ALI ALATAS AT THE AIRPORT AND HONORED WITH A 19-GUN SALUTE IN A WELCOMING CEREMONY AT THE PALACE.

KAIFU'S VISIT TO INDONESIA COMES AMID GROWING WORRY BY LOCAL OFFICIALS THAT SOME OF JAPAN'S AID TO INDONESIA WILL BE DIVERTED TO EASTERN EUROPE TO BOLSTER ECONOMIC REFORMS THERE. EASTERN EUROPE IS ALSO EXPECTED TO FEATURE IN KAIFU'S TALKS WITH SUHARTO, ACCORDING TO INDONESIA'S STATE SECRETARY MURDIONO.

IN HIS TALKS WITH SUHARTO SATURDAY, KAIFU PLANS TO OUTLINE JAPAN'S AID PROGRAM TO INDONESIA FOR THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR, JAPANESE OFFICIALS SAID. A FULL PICTURE OF THE PROGRAM WILL BE UNVEILED AT A CONFERENCE OF AID-DONOR COUNTRIES TO INDONESIA THAT IS SLATED TO TAKE PLACE IN JUNE IN THE HAGUE.

JAPANESE DIPLOMATIC SOURCES SAY THE SIZE OF THE OFFICIAL AID JAPAN PLANS TO EXTEND TO INDONESIA IN THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR WILL REMAIN AT THE SAME LEVEL AS LAST YEAR.

INDONESIA IS THE LARGEST BENEFICIARY OF JAPAN'S AID PROGRAM. TOKYO COMMITTED MORE THAN 2 BILLION DOLLARS IN OFFICIAL FUNDS IN BOTH 1988 AND 1989.

THE LEVEL OF FOREIGN AID IS NOT INDONESIA'S ONLY CONCERN, HOWEVER. INDONESIAN HUMAN RIGHTS GROUPS HAVE URGED JAPAN TO ACCOMMODATE HUMAN RIGHTS CONCERNS IN ITS AID DECISIONS.

JAPAN'S SIZEABLE AID TO INDONESIA HAS ENCOURAGED THE COUNTRY'S ECONOMIC GROWTH, BUT SUCH GROWTH ALSO CAN CREATE MONOPOLIES, NEPOTISM AND CONGLOMERATES, TWO MAJOR INDONESIAN HUMAN RIGHTS GROUPS SAID IN A STATEMENT HANDED TO THE JAPANESE EMBASSY WEDNESDAY.

THE TWO GROUPS HAD SOUGHT A MEETING WITH KAIFU EARLIER THIS WEEK BUT HE DECLINED THE INVITATION. JAPAN'S AMBASSADOR TO INDONESIA, MICHIHIKO KUNIHIRO, SAID THE JAPANESE EMBASSY IS READY TO PASS THE STATEMENT ON TO KAIFU, HOWEVER.

THE TWO GROUPS ARE THE INSTITUTE OF THE DEFENSE OF HUMAN RIGHTS AND THE INDONESIAN FRONT FOR THE DEFENSE OF HUMAN RIGHTS. BOTH ARE NONGOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS WITH MEMBERSHIPS CONSISTING MOSTLY OF INTELLECTUALS AND STUDENTS.

KAIFU, WHO HAS ALSO VISITED INDIA, BANGLADESH, AND PAKISTAN ON HIS CURRENT TRIP, IS SET TO RETURN TO TOKYO ON SUNDAY.

ALLENDALE, NJ (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Sharplan Lasers, Inc., a subsidiary of Laser Industries, Ltd. (AMEX: LAS) announced today that it has received Food and Drug Administration marketing clearance No. K900346 specifically for laparoscopic cholecystectomy procedures.

"We are pleased that our company was the first laser manufacturer to receive FDA marketing clearance for endoscopic laser cholecystectomy gall bladder removal. This new procedure represents a significant breakthrough in the treatment of gall bladder problems which are one of the most common adult disorders. The FDA marketing clearance includes the company's Nd:YAG Sharplan Models 3000 and 2100 surgical lasers, the Sharplan MediLas models 4060N and 40N," said Ruben Derderian, president of Sharplan.

In announcing this clearance, it was pointed out by Sharplan that the laparoscopic approach has wide patient appeal because it is rapidly transforming gall bladder removal from a major invasive procedure to a minimal operative one. Patients experience less discomfort, minimal scarring, shorter hospital stays and a faster return to work, when this procedure is used.

"Although many laser manufacturers have obtained FDA marketing clearance for general surgery cholecystectomic procedures, the FDA now requires a separate marketing clearance for endoscopic or laparoscopic cholecystectomy. It is important for hospitals contemplating a Nd:YAG purchase that they procure equipment that has specific FDA marketing clearance because most third party payers such as Blue Cross and others are now refusing reimbursements for surgical procedures performed using a device without FDA marketing clearance," Derderian continued.

The FDA marketing clearance includes not only Sharplan's lasers but also the company's new MicroLase contact fibers and sapphire contact probes. These new accessories provide surgeons with an optimal choice of equipment enabling them to more easily perform the desired procedures.

Sharplan's announcement of its receipt of FDA marketing clearance for laparoscopic cholecystectomy should provide further stimulus to this minimally invasive procedure which, according to many in the field, will eventually become the treatment of choice for all gall bladder removal.

RICHMOND, VA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Circuit City Stores, Inc. (NYSE: CC) today announced record April sales of $154.8 million, which represents a 17 percent increase from April 1989 sales of $132.0 million and a 1 percent decrease in comparable store sales.

"Since our stores are closed on Easter Sunday, the shift of Easter this year from March to April affected our sales comparisons," said Richard L. Sharp, Circuit City's president and chief executive officer. "In addition, the calendar change caused March to have one additional Saturday this year and April to have one less Saturday. The result was a stronger comparable store sales increase for March and a reduction in April sales. We continue to expect comparable store growth averaging in the low single digits for the full year."

Circuit City Stores, Inc. is the nation's largest specialty retailer of brand-name consumer electronics and major appliances. TOLEDO, OH (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - The Toledo Edison Company, an operating unit of Centerior Energy Corporation (NYSE: CX), announced today the pricing of two series of tax-exempt pollution control bonds, totaling $67.3 million, the proceeds of which will be used to redeem three series of existing pollution control bonds.

The refinancing at lower interest rates will result in annual savings of about $825,000, as Centerior Energy continues its intensive cost-reduction efforts.

The principal amount of the pollution control revenue refunding bonds issued by the Ohio Water Development Authority is $33.2 million. The principal of bonds issued by the Ohio Air Quality Development Authority is $34.1 million.

The bonds will be issued for a term of 29 years to yield 8.25 percent to the investor. The bonds, priced at 97.259 percent, have a coupon rate of 8 percent. The cost to Toledo Edison is 8.35 percent.

The bonds, which are secured by Toledo Edison's first mortgage bonds, are not callable for 10 years.

Moody's Investors Service rates the bonds Baa3. Standard & Poor's rates the bonds BBB-.

The underwriters are Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. and McDonald & Company Securities, Inc. The bonds cannot be purchased directly from Toledo Edison.

The new bonds will be used this August to redeem a $9 million, 9.75 percent series due Aug. 15, 2000; a $21.5 million, 10 percent series due Aug. 15, 2000, and a $36.8 million, 10.125 percent series due Aug. 15, 1995.

The bonds were originally issued to finance water and solid waste disposal facilities at Perry 1, a nuclear unit located northeast of Cleveland, and air pollution control facilities at two coal-fired power plants in the Toledo area.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Pathe Communications Corp. (NYSE: PCC) today reported net income of $46.4 million, or $.77 per share, for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990, compared with net income of $10.3 million, or $.91 per share, in the prior year period. Income before extraordinary items was $28.4 million, or $.47 per share, in the first quarter of 1990 compared with a loss before extraordinary items of $13.6 million, or $1.19 per share, a year earlier. First quarter 1990 revenues were $76.8 million versus $91.8 million in the same period last year.

Shareholders' equity at the end of the quarter rose to $156.1 million from $110.8 million at the end of 1989.

Results for the current year period included an extraordinary gain of $6.4 million from the company's early extinguishment of debt and $11.6 million due to utilization of tax loss carryforwards. The provision for income taxes of $18.2 million was partially offset by the tax benefit due to the tax loss carryforward. In the prior year period, an extraordinary gain of $23.9 million was recognized on repurchases of subordinated debt.

The latest repurchase of subordinated debt reduces Pathe's total subordinated debt to $45 million at March 31, 1990. This represents a total subordinated debt reduction of $229 million since mid- December 1988.

As anticipated, the sale and leaseback of certain European theater assets that were negotiated in 1989 resulted in a gain of $50.1 million recorded in the first quarter of 1990. An additional gain of approximately $30 million will be recorded later in 1990. Those theaters continue to be operated by Pathe.

Pathe's cinema restructuring efforts include the acquisition and construction of additional new multiplexes that will replace older, less profitable, existing sites. In March 1990, Pathe acquired Gallery Cinemas in the United Kingdom from Cineplex Odeon Theaters, which included 10 new multiplex developments.

Pathe Communications Corp. is one of the world's largest producers, distributors, and exhibitors of motion pictures primarily for the international theatrical market. The company also distributes motion pictures for commercial television and home video markets.

MIDLAND, MI (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Frank Popoff, president and chief executive officer of The Dow Chemical Company (NYSE: DOW), has announced that David T. Buzzelli, president and chief executive officer of Dow Chemical Canada Inc., has been appointed to the newly created post of vice president and corporate director of Environment, Health and Safety. Buzzelli will relocate to Midland prior to Aug. 1, 1990, the effective date of his new assignment.

Commenting on the announcement, Popoff said, "We have seen a dramatic increase in the amount of management time being invested worldwide in protection of the environment. How we address the environment will have an enormous impact on our future success. In creating this new position, we further signify Dow's global commitment to the environment.

"Dave Buzzelli's management experience and extensive background in manufacturing and environmental affairs will help ensure continuous improvement in our performance locally and globally," Popoff added. "His aim will be to fully integrate environmental concerns into all of our business and operations decisions. In this way, we plan to continue to earn public recognition for the leadership role we have taken in protecting the environment."

The organization reporting to Buzzelli will include Health and Environmental Sciences, Corporate Medical and Corporate Safety, Environmental Affairs and Security and Loss Prevention. The complete organization under Buzzelli's direction is expected to evolve over the next several months.

Buzzelli graduated from the University of Minnesota with a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering in 1964. After earning a master's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Delaware in 1965, he joined The Dow Chemical Company in Midland. He held several process engineering positions before becoming technical director of the Michigan Division Process Development group in 1976. In 1980, after holding various positions in Agricultural Chemicals production, he became manager of Agricultural Products, Health and Environmental Services in the Michigan Division.

In 1984, Buzzelli was appointed director of Government and Public Affairs for The Dow Chemical Company and a vice president of Dow U.S.A. He became a member of The Dow Chemical Company's Management Committee in 1985 and was appointed president and chief executive officer for Dow Chemical Canada Inc. in 1986.

HOUSTON (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - The Hearings Examiners in Houston Lighting & Power Company's (HL&P's) current rate case have issued a report and proposed order, the company announced today. The Hearings Examiners have recommended that the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC):

-- Increase annual base revenues for HL&P by $227 million, which is the level HL&P implemented last June as bonded rates. This is the first step in a proposed three-step rate moderation plan.

-- Allow a return on equity of 12.45 percent. HL&P had requested a return of 14.3 percent.

-- Approve a three-phase rate moderation plan for HL&P's share in the two units at the South Texas Project.

-- Authorize deferred accounting treatment for Unit 2 of the South Texas Project.

-- Allow in rate base the remainder of HL&P's Limestone 2 lignite plant investment, but not allow current recovery of costs expended to date on the Malakoff lignite plant and the Trinity Mine, which are yet to be constructed. Under the recommendations such costs would be the subject of a future prudence inquiry.

In its original filing, HL&P had requested a first step rate increase of $432 million out of a total three-step rate moderation plan of $854 million.

Previously, a report and proposed order had been issued in connection with the PUC's prudence inquiry regarding the South Texas Project. In the report issued yesterday, the Hearings Examiners recommended that the results of the prudence inquiry be considered in setting the appropriate level of rates for HL&P.

The Hearings Examiners' recommendations are scheduled to be considered by the PUC on May 30.

HL&P is a subsidiary of Houston Industries Incorporated (NYSE: HOU), headquartered in Houston.

DETROIT (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Grand Truck Western Railroad has reached agreement on a new labor contract with more than 300 road crew employees, bringing contract settlements to 97 percent of its operating craft employees.

The new locally negotiated contract, reached with the United Transportation Union (UTU), will save the railroad between $3 million and $5 million annually. The contract was ratified on May 1, by 83 percent of the union membership and was signed on May 2 by union and company representatives.

The contract will take effect on May 14, 1990, and extend through Dec. 31, 1994. The agreement permits Grand Trunk to eliminate the second brakeman in its train crews. The UTU road crew members also agreed to discontinue the practice of stopping trains enroute for the purpose of eating meals. In return for these increases in productivity and efficiency, the compensation package includes severance and productivity payments, and significant bonuses which amount to $6,000 to $8,000 annually per employee.

The contract includes a cost-of-living allowance (COLA) provision which takes effect during the last two years of the contract, a 401-K plan, and a supplemental unemployment benefit plan designed to compensate employees who may be furloughed.

Grand Trunk Western President Gerald L. Maas, who participated in the contract signing Tuesday, believes that the contract will further strengthen Grand Trunk's future.

"This is a significant agreement because it improves productivity, which lowers costs, thereby improving our competitive position," said Maas. "Increased productivity is expected to support our efforts to grow the business, enhancing job security -- the most critical issue facing employees today."

"I feel that this agreement is fair and beneficial to the employees and Grand Trunk for the long term," said T.R. Chriswell, general chairman, United Transportation Union. It gives Grand Trunk the ability to better compete in the marketplace."

Grand Trunk Western Railroad is a Class I railroad operating 959 miles of road in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. GTW provides rail service to automotive, chemical, utility, steel, forest and food product and other industries in its territory, and connects with other railroads to provide service to the entire North American continent. It is headquartered in Detroit.

MIDLAND, MI (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Denis Wilcock, executive vice president of Dow Europe, and Yves Bobillier, president of Dow Latin America, have been appointed to new executive management positions with The Dow Chemical Company (NYSE: DOW).

Wilcock has been named president of Dow Chemical Canada Inc., replacing David T. Buzzelli. He will report to Keith R. McKennon, executive vice president of The Dow Chemical Company and president of Dow Chemical U.S.A. In addition, he will join the Dow Management Committee.

Bobillier has been named executive vice president of Dow Europe with responsibility for the Plastics Group. He will report to Andrew J. Butler, president of Dow Europe, and become a member of the Dow Europe Executive Committee. He continues as a member of the Dow Management Committee.

The appointments will be effective on Aug. 1, 1990. Wilcock has served as executive vice president of Dow Europe since 1987. In addition to his management responsibility for the Plastics Group, he has also headed the strategic programs devoted to the automotive, packaging and durables industries. He has been a member of the Dow Europe Executive Committee.

Wilcock joined Dow in 1965 in Botlek, the Netherlands. He served in Rotterdam as a technical service engineer in styrene-butadiene latex and moved to Horgen in 1966 as a specialty engineer. He became a Section head in 1968 and was appointed Research and Development manger in Designed Products, Dow U.S.A., in 1972. He returned to Europe as Research and Development manager for Coatings in 1974.

Wilcock is a graduate in chemistry and physics from Widnes Technical College in England.

Bobillier has served as president of Dow Latin America since 1985. In 1987 his responsibilities were broadened to include the Dow Brazil organization. He joined Dow in 1969 as a salesman for Agricultural Products. He became a product marketing manager in Zurich, Switzerland, and subsequently was named sales manager for Agricultural Products in Dow France.

Bobillier received a master's degree in agricultural chemical engineering from the ETH Polytechnical School in Zurich and a master's degree in business from INSEAD in Fontainebleau, France.

ATLANTA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Contel President and Chief Executive Officer Donald W. Weber told shareowners at the company's annual meeting that Contel Corp. (NYSE: CTC) achieved its "best year ever" in 1989, pointing to a strong financial performance and several strategic decisions - including a major cellular properties acquisition - that have positioned the company for growth in the 1990s.

"As we stand at the threshold of a new decade, I believe the 1990s hold particular promise for the telecommunications industry," Weber said. "I also believe that Contel is strategically well positioned for the next decade."

Charles Wohlstetter, chairman of Contel, spoke to meeting attendees about the increasingly important role telecommunications plays in world events. He quoted former Secretary of State George Schultz' statement that the recent political upheavals in Eastern bloc nations were "a by-product of the emergence of the information revolution."

"The increasing reach and power of our still relatively 'new' industry, telecommunications, is indeed startling," Wohlstetter said.

Contel's 1989 results included a 7 percent increase in revenues to $3.1 billion, and a 4 percent increase in net income, which reached $287 million. Return on average common equity was approximately 18 percent, one of the highest returns in the industry for the second straight year. Dividends per common share paid in 1989 increased 5.8 percent to $1.09, a new Contel record. Contel's board of directors declared a quarterly dividend of 27.5 cents per share, an indicated annual dividend of $1.10. During 1989, Contel also declared its first two-for-one-stock split.

First-quarter 1990 results were in line with management's expectations, Weber said. Revenues continued to increase at a 7 percent pace, compared with the year-earlier period. However, as expected, net income declined, due almost entirely to costs associated with the acquisition of 13 metropolitan cellular systems from McCaw Cellular Communications, which was completed in February. The $1.3 billion acquisition, the largest in Contel's 29-year history, made Contel Cellular (NYSE: CCXLA) the nation's sixth largest cellular service provider. Contel Cellular is a 90-percent owned subsidiary of Contel.

"You cannot invest to build long-term shareholder value without sacrifice " Weber said. "The acquired properties will add to Contel a dimension of long-term growth and profitability that would not have been possible if we had not made the deal."

RICHMOND, VA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Best Products Co., Inc. today reported fiscal 1989 sales of $2,094,570,000 and a year-end net loss of $53,809,000. The company, which was acquired in a leveraged buyout in November 1988, had anticipated a loss because of higher incremental interest and amortization expenses resulting from the buyout.

Jerry Goldress, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "1989 was our first full year as a leveraged company, and we're very pleased with our operating results. We were able to comfortably service our debt and we continue to pay our vendors as promptly as any business in the industry."

Goldress cautioned that 1988 and 1989 results are not fully comparable because results after the acquisition are recorded under the "purchase accounting" method. Those results include incremental depreciation and amortization related to purchase accounting adjustments as well as interest on the acquisition-related debt.

Sales for the fourth quarter of 1989 totalled $858,451,000. Sales for the post-acquisition period during 1988 were $809,457,000.

Total sales for fiscal 1988 were $2,088,317,000. 1988 and 1989 sales are not fully comparable, however, because 1988 was a 52-week year while 1989 was a 53-week year.

Best reported a net loss of $43.7 million during the period before the acquisition in 1988, including $32 million worth of acquisition-related expenses, and net earnings of $39.3 million during the post-acquisition period.

Interest expense for fiscal 1989 increased $83.7 million over fiscal 1988 to $147.8, $24 million of which represents higher amortization of deferred financing costs. Depreciation and amortization expense on owned and leased property and intangible assets also increased $14 million over 1988.

Stewart M. Kasen, president and chief operating officer, said, "Our 1989 results are consistent with the company's cash flow expectations, and confirm our ability to successfully compete in today's retail environment. We remain confident and enthusiastic about 1990 and beyond."

Best was acquired by Adler & Shaykin, a New York-based investment firm, in a leveraged buyout on Nov. 8, 1988.

Best, one of the nation's largest discount retailers, operates 194 Best showrooms in 27 states. The company also operates Best Jewelry, a chain of 35 fine jewelry and giftware stores.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Chevron Resources Co., a wholly-owned unit of Chevron Corporation (NYSE: CHV), today announced the sale of geothermal operations in Nevada and Utah to California Energy Co., Inc. (AMEX: CE)

The purchase price is $68.7 million, which will be reduced to $51.2 million in the event Chevron's partner in the Beowawe, Nev., operation exercises a right of first refusal to buy Chevron's interest.

Chevron Resources Co. President Bob Daniel said the geothermal operations were sold as part of the corporation's ongoing program to concentrate on business lines and assets that fit Chevron's long-term strategic outlook. Daniel said he expects most employees at the three sites to be hired by California Energy Co.

The geothermal projects are: -- Beowawe, where Chevron owns a 50 percent interest in a partnership which operates the 15.6-megawatt generating facility;

-- Desert Peak, Nev., where Chevron has a 100 percent interest in the entire project, including a 9-megawatt generating plant;

-- Roosevelt, Utah, where Chevron owns a 69 percent interest in a field that sells steam to a utility-owned 25-megawatt plant.

The agreement also calls for California Energy to acquire leasehold interests of about 17,600 acres in Utah and about 70, 000 acres in Nevada.

WORCESTER, MA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Norton Company (NYSE: NRT) today reported first quarter income from continuing operations of $17.2 million, or 89 cents per share, on sales of $414.4 million. This compared with income from continuing operations of $26.3 million, or $1.25 per share, on sales of $388.2 million for the corresponding quarter in 1989.

First quarter 1990 income was reduced by a 15-cent per share loss incurred in the company's Brazilian operations. This compared with income of 11 cents per share recorded from Brazilian operations in the first quarter of 1989. An extraordinary item of $2.2 million, or 12 cents per share, was recognized in the first quarter of 1990, the result of tax loss carryforwards. This compared with a similar tax benefit of $2.1 million, or 10 cents per share, recorded in same period last year. Also recorded in 1989 net income was $2.1 million, or 10 cents per share, from Eastman Christensen Company (ECC), which was classified as a discontinued operation. No income was realized from ECC during the first quarter of 1990.

Abrasives' first quarter operating profit declined 48 percent from the strong performance recorded in the same quarter of 1989, due principally to Brazilian losses. Despite these losses, Abrasives segment income more than tripled over fourth quarter 1989 income, with domestic and European operations recording significantly higher margins.

Engineering Materials reported excellent results. Operating profit increased over 7 percent on a 6 percent improvement in sales, compared to the strong first quarter results in 1989. All three Engineering Materials businesses -- Performance Plastics, Advanced Ceramics and Chemical Process Products -- contributed to the improved results.

Norton Company is the world's largest manufacturer of abrasives and a leading producer of engineering materials, including advanced ceramics, performance plastics and chemical process products. Norton had 1989 sales of $1.53 billion. The company employs 16,800 people and operates 92 plants in the United States and 19 other countries.

CYPRESS, CA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Terry Hartshorn, president and chief executive officer of PacifiCare Health Systems (NASDAQ: PHSY), today learned that he has been named "Alumnus of the Year" by UCLA's Health Services Management Alumni Association. The award will be presented at a May 24th dinner to be held at the California Yacht Club.

According to Jack Schlosser, dinner co-chairman and partner in the Los Angeles office of Heidrick and Struggles, "Mr. Hartshorn was selected to receive this award because he is truly a standout in his field. Not only did he help pioneer the HMO concept," Schlosser explains, "but he is a role model both within the business world and the community. We are proud of Terry's success, and of the fact that he is a graduate of UCLA's Health Services Management Program."

Hartshorn joined PacifiCare when it was founded in 1976, and since that time, the corporation has grown to become the nation's ninth largest health maintenance organization -- and the fourth largest in California.

Upon learning of his selection, Hartshorn said "this certainly is an honor. Many of today's industry leaders in healthcare graduated from UCLA's Health Services Management Program, and I'm flattered to be recognized by such an accomplished group."

Hartshorn is the third person to receive the organization's "Alumnus of the Year" award. Previous recipients were Walter W. Noce Jr., president of Saint Joseph's Hospital of Orange, and James E. Haden, president of Queen of the Valley hospital, West Covina.

In addition to its annual awards dinner, the 300-member organization holds educational seminars, and raises funds in support of UCLA's Health Services Management Program.

PacifiCare Health Systems Inc., owns and operates health maintenance organizations in California, Oregon, Washington, Oklahoma and Texas. The company has an insurance subsidiary with licenses in 33 states, and an independent utilization review subsidiary.

HOUSTON (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - ENSR Corporation (AMEX: ENX) today reported record revenues for the first quarter at $44.4 million, up 27 percent from the $34.9 million reported in the first quarter of 1989. The company also returned to profitability with earnings in the first quarter of $1,441,000 or $.14 per share, compared with a net loss of $2,537,000, or $.27 per share, during the first quarter of 1989.

The first-quarter results include an $895,000 gain on the sale of Transtec Environmental, Inc., a specialized transportation company.

ENSR CORPORATION

(Unaudited; in thousands, except per-share data)

Quarter ended March 31:	1990	1989
Revenues	$44,440	$34,875
Net income (loss)	1,441	(2,537)

EL CAJON, CA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Construction has passed the halfway mark on the new $3 million Sycuan Gaming Casino and it is slated to open in late summer of this year. The new facility, located near the Singing Hills Country Club, broke ground in February of this year. According to Marketing Director Fritz Opel, tribal management plans to create a high-quality, leisure time gaming environment and to offer the highest gaming jackpots in Southern California.

The expansion also calls for the renovation of the existing gaming center and will include a new 2,000-seat bingo hall, a state-of-the-art 55-table card room and a 40-seat restaurant and buffet serving continental cuisine and Oriental specialties. In addition, a 250-seat off-track betting parlor as well as a full- service cocktail lounge with entertainment are planned.

The 58,000-square-foot structure was designed by Andy Pulsipher Architects a Phoenix-based firm with a concentration of work in the Southwestern United States.

A Southern California Indian motif was chosen by the designers to reflect the locale and tradition of the Sycuan Indians, 75 of whom make their homes on the El Cajon reservation. Profits from the new casino will be used by the Sycuans for future reservation redevelopment projects such as new homes, roads, improved healthcare and educational funds.

Sycuan business manager Jim Trant feels the new facility will appeal to a broader cross-section of patrons who enjoy leisure-time gaming.

The new casino is projected to host gaming diversions for more than 3,000 guests, doubling the current capacity of 1,500 patrons daily. New amenities will also include expanded parking immediately adjacent to the facility, valet parking services, full security and satellite television.

Located four miles east of the Singing Hills Country Club on Dehesa Road, the Sycuan Gaming Casino is open seven days a week and offers 26 sessions of bingo each week. The poker casino is open 24 hours every day. For those interested in obtaining further information, the Sycuan Indian Reservation has an 800 hotline, 800-27-BINGO, and provides information on free bus service at 619-445-6013.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Oaktree Chemicals today introduced a new product guaranteed to revolutionize swimming pool maintenance.

SCI-62 (which garners its name from Sorber Chemical Industries of Holdrige Neb. -- product No. 62) is a safe alternative to chlorine. It was developed by Sorber Chemicals as an environmentally safe method to kill micro-organisms in water. SCI-62's active ingredient is copper sulfate, a time-proven agent used in the control of algae, bacteria and fungus.

What sets SCI-62 apart from other swimming pool chemicals is its safety. It has been rigorously tested, and is registered with the FDA and EPA. Furthermore, SCI-62 makes water safe enough to drink. It has no noxious odor, won't cause eye irritation, bleached hair or dry skin, and can safely be stored for long periods of time.

Not only is SCI-62 environmentally safe, it's also less expensive than either chlorine or bromine. For example, a pool owner who spent $500 on bromine last season can expect to spend $200 this season using SCI-62.

Unlike chlorine and bromine, SCI-62 may not require the addition of extra chemicals such as soda ash, acid conditioners and stabilizers. Nor is there a recommended waiting period using SCI-62. Simply determine the number of gallons the pool holds, add SCI-62 at a rate of one quart per 15,000 gallons of water, and the pool is ready to use.

The Oaktree Chemicals swimming pool kit includes three gallons of SCI-62, a copper test kit to test for proper levels of SCI-62 and an instruction guide on testing and usage. the $179 swimming pool kit can only be purchased by calling Oaktree Chemicals at 800-551-6400. SCI-62 kits are also available for use in hot tubs, spas, fountains and reflecting pools.

ST. LOUIS (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - In a major action, Comprehensive Care Corporation (NYSE: CMP) announced that it has obtained agreement from its senior secured lenders to restructure $41 million in senior secured debt.

CompCare signed agreements with its senior secured lenders for modifications of its loans as part of an overall plan to reduce debt. The plan calls for the repayment of $17 million of bank debt by May 31, 1991. As part of the restructuring, CompCare has pledged its remaining unencumbered real property and certain other assets. The company expects to reduce debt mainly by divestiture of assets and receipt of income tax refunds. Any sale proceeds and income tax refunds will be shared among the company and its senior secured lenders.

CompCare, based in St. Louis, is a national private provider of chemical dependency treatment programs.

W. James Nicol, CompCare's president and chief executive officer, said the company hopes to repay all $41 million to its senior secured lenders as quickly as possible.

"The keys to recapturing value for our stockholders are in reducing debt and restoring the profitability of our remaining facilities," he said. "This debt restructuring has given us the necessary time and working capital to proceed toward those goals."

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) has submitted to the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC) it's annual Integrated Resource Plan updating the company's 20-year energy forecast.

The plan projects a 25 percent increase in peak demand in the PE service territory by the year 2009, necessitating almost 2,000 megawatts (mw) of electric capacity additions and load reductions to meet customer demand and maintain an adequate margin of reserve.

PE projects the need for three 350-mw coal fired generating plants between the years 2003 and 2008 to supply most of 1,448 mw of additional capacity expected to be needed by the end of the 20-year period. Most of the rest of the necessary additional capacity, 350 mw, is expected to come from such non-utility generation as cogeneration and independent power production.

PE said conservation and load management programs are expected to eliminate the need for 519 mw of capacity by the year 2009.

The plan also noted that with Limerick nuclear Unit 2 in commercial operation, and with the conversion to coal of an oil-fired unit at its Cromby Generating Station in 1998, PE will continue to minimize its dependence on oil, "greatly reducing the risk of service interruption and potential cost increases to our customers."

Joseph F. Paquette Jr, chairman and chief executive officer, said that PE is concerned about the country's increasing dependence on foreign oil. "In planning for the future," he said, "we are applying lessons we learned in the past. We view foreign oil as highly undependable and potentially very expensive.

In 1990, PE expects to generate 67 percent of its power through nuclear plants, followed by 19 percent coal, 5 percent oil and 4 percent hydro.

By the year 2009, oil-fired units are expected to supply 8 percent of PE's customers' total electric energy needs. Nuclear is still expected to provide the majority of generation at the end of the 20-year period, 52 percent, followed by coal, 36 percent, and hydro, 3 percent.

The report noted that concurrent with construction plans to provide adequate electric supply, "PE has initiated various demand side rate strategies and incentives to encourage conservation, to alter customer use through load management and to provide additional reserve through the use of interruptible loads.

OLD GREENWICH, CT (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - American Brands Inc. (NYSE: AMB) announced today that its ACCO World Corporation's European group has acquired Hetzel & Co., manufacturers of plastic folders, binders and other office accessories. Hetzel is located in Stuttgart, West Germany, and also has operations in Switzerland and Belgium.

Hetzel's 1989 revenues were 36 million Deutsche marks (approximately $21 million). The purchase price was not disclosed.

ACCO World is the premier manufacturer of office supplies in the world. This acquisition further enhances ACCO's operations in Europe and their preparations for the post-1992 European marketplace.

The group in Europe includes such other leading brands as ACCO, Rexel, Eastlight, Twinlock, Sasco, King-Mec (Italy), Val-Rex (France) and Derwent.

Freddie Hall, chairman and chief executive officer of ACCO's European group, commented: "Hetzel has secured a strong base in the German market at a crucial time in the country's economic and political development. The combination of Hetzel's local brand and manufacturing strengths along with our combined management and investment resources will allow us to develop Hetzel's position in the market and take full advantage of wider market opportunities as they arise."

American Brands' office products core business reported record results in 1989 with revenues of $968 million and operating income of $97 million. Revenues for the first quarter of 1990 were $241 million.

American Brands is a global consumer products holding company with four core businesses -- tobacco, distilled spirits and life insurance as well as office products. Each has brand name leaders in its industry.

TORONTO (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - ARC International Corporation (AMEX, TSE: ATV) today announced consolidated operating results for the quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Net sales for the first quarter of 1990 were approximately $19.8 million, about the same as last year. It should be noted that the 1989 figures include $1.63 million of sales obtained from the microwave component manufacturing business which was sold earlier this year, and that such business reported profits for the first quarter of 1989.

Income from operations amounted to $578,988 compared to $954,108 last year. The first quarter of 1989 was the last profitable quarter reported by the microwave business.

First quarter operating cash flow (net income plus the non-cash expenses of depreciation and amortization) was $326,849 or $.05 per share compared to $501,078 or $.08 per share last year. A net loss of $122,034 or $.02 per share compares to net income of $40,839 or $.01 per share last year. Overall, our businesses generated sufficient cash from operations to service all of the company's debt.

The cable television and theatre and restaurant segments enjoyed a strong first quarter recording gains in both sales and operating income compared to last year. The measurement testing segment reflected lower operating levels as a result of the sale of the microwave business.

Commenting on the results, Arnold S. Tenney, president and chief executive officer of ARC, said: "Although first quarter income from operations declined as a result of the foregoing reasons, management is encouraged by the momentum now developing in our businesses and remains optimistic that results for 1990 will be much better than those achieved last year."

ATLANTA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - A U.S. holding company formed by top executives of Deutz-Allis Corp. today announced plans to purchase the North American farm equipment company from its Cologne, West Germany-based parent company, Klockner-Humboldt-Deutz (KHD) AG.

The holding company, Allis-Gleaner Co. (AGCO), was formed by five top

Deutz-Allis executives, including Robert J. Ratliff, president and CEO; James M. Seaver, vice president and director of marketing; John M. Shumejda, vice president, combine operations, Edward R. Swingle, vice president, parts division; and Robert J. Hohlman, corporate controller.

Terms of the purchase were not disclosed. However, Ratliff reported that equity financing for the management acquisition will be provided by the New York-based Hamilton Robinson and Co. Inc., a privately-funded investment group with equity holdings in a number of other industries.

"I want to emphasize that the only significant change we are making to Deutz-Allis Corp. is to bring the ownership back to the United States," said Ratliff. "Otherwise, our employee organization, our dealer network, our product line and all other elements of the company will remain in place. The new company will honor all existing contracts, and will service all existing warranties on Deutz-Allis products now in use in the U.S. and Canada."

Deutz-Allis was formed in 1985, when KHD acquired certain agricultural equipment product lines from Allis-Chalmers Corp. In 1987, with the U.S. agricultural economy in deep recession, Deutz-Allis recorded losses of $83 million. In 1988, Ratliff, who had previously served as president of Uniroyal Tire Co., joined Deutz-Allis as president and CEO.

Under Ratliff's leadership, new management practices were put into effect to reduce manufacturing and operating costs, interest expenses, and to strengthen credit terms. At the end of 1988, Deutz-Allis losses had been reduced to $28 million. And by the close of 1989, corporate earnings before interest and taxes generated a profit for the first time since the formation of Deutz-Allis.

MIAMI (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines took an important step along its path to recovery today as trustee Martin Shugrue met with pilots who had engaged in an eight-month-long strike in sympathy with a machinist's strike against the airline's former management.

At a meeting in Miami, pilots of Eastern's Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) Master Executive Council (MEC) and Shugrue agreed that an end to the labor strife that had plagued Eastern since its takeover by Frank Lorenzo in 1986 is essential to the rebuilding process of the airline.

ALPA said that at the meeting, Shugrue emphasized that he is committed to the collective bargaining process, and that he recognizes ALPA as the sole legitimate bargaining agent for the airline's 3,000 pilots. In addition, ALPA said, Shugrue stated that all Eastern pilots -- both those working and those who have not yet returned to work since the pilots' sympathy strike ended in November 1989 -- have a right to participate in the rebuilding process of their airline.

He stressed the need to negotiate a back-to-work agreement on a timely basis so that all Eastern pilots will actually have the opportunity to participate in that process.

"We are encouraged by Mr. Shugrue's comments," said Capt. C.H. Copeland, chairman of the Eastern pilots' ALPA MEC. "It's obvious that he has a great deal of insight into the nature of the problems at Eastern, and we're confident that he has what it takes to get a financially viable Eastern back into the air."

"As of today," Copeland continued, "not a single pilot who left the cockpit because of Lorenzo's gross mismanagement of this airline has been able to return to Eastern since the end of the strike. Mr. Shugrue assured us that a resolution to this situation is feasible and, in fact, desirable."

"Shugrue is the antithesis of our former management," Copeland continued. "He recognizes that the collective bargaining process works, and that unions play an important role in the stability of an airline. He pledged to treat pilots as meaningful members of the Eastern team, and we pledged to do whatever is necessary to get Eastern healthy again. We are confident that we will be able to negotiate a realistic back-to-work agreement that will protect the interests of all Eastern pilots."

In a recent letter to Eastern pilots, Copeland wrote: "Mr. Shugrue is well aware that the Eastern pilots' fight was against the powers that were bleeding the life out of our airline in a slow agony of controlled liquidation. With Eastern's future in responsible hands, however, our efforts can now be directed to healing the wounds this airline suffered under Lorenzo's mismanagement."

DOWNERS GROVE, IL (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of ServiceMaster (NYSE: SVM) announced today the offering of an automatic cash distribution reinvestment plan for shareholders, and declared a third quarter cash distribution of $.46 per share payable July 31, 1990, to shareholders of record on July 5, 1990.

ServiceMaster today approved the establishment of an automatic distribution reinvestment plan, enabling shareholders of ServiceMaster to accumulate additional shares in lieu of receiving cash distributions. The voluntary plan, scheduled to take effect with the third quarter distribution, also permits shareholders to make additional cash contributions on a quarterly basis. The enrollment card and booklet fully describing the plan will be mailed to shareholders by June 1, 1990.

C. William Pollard, president and chief executive officer, said that many ServiceMaster shareholders have asked for a distribution reinvestment program over the past years, and today ServiceMaster is pleased to offer this option. Pollard further stated that the automatic reinvestment of cash distributions in additional ServiceMaster shares, eliminates the cost of broker commissions and service charges.

ServiceMaster declared a third quarter cash distribution of $.46 per share payable July 31, 1990, to shareholders of record on July 5, 1990. The third quarter cash distribution of $.46 reflects the cash distribution policy for 1990 previously announced by the company. This policy provided that ServiceMaster shareholders can expect to receive total distributions in 1990 of $1.85 per share, and that taxable income per share on average for shares held the entire year will be within a range of $.95 to $1.00 per share for 1990.

ServiceMaster is a leader in providing the services of professional cleaning, termite and pest control, maid service and lawn care, appliance and other home mechanical repair and maintenance to residential and commercial customers. These services are offered through a worldwide network of over 5,000 ServiceMaster, Terminix and Merry Maids company-owned and franchised branches, and the leading home service contract business, American Home Shield. ServiceMaster is also the leading company in the United States providing supportive management services to health care, educational and industrial facilities. These services include management of plant operations and maintenance, housekeeping/custodial, laundry and linen, clinical equipment maintenance and food service.

NEW YORK, (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Bowne & Co., Inc. (AMEX: BNE) announced today that it had reached a definitive agreement covering its purchase of selected assets of Sorg Incorporated. Bowne will acquire certain equipment, exclusive rights to the Sorg name and trademarks, and the Appeal Securities Act Handbook for the purchase price of $6 million. In addition, all of the work-in-process from Sorg's New York facility will be purchased.

As part of this transaction, Bowne will employ certain key members of Sorg's New York management and sales staffs. Operating as the Sorg Division of Bowne, these Sorg veterans will provide continuity to the quality service that Sorg customers have come to expect.

Richard H. Koontz, president and CEO of Bowne, said, "Sorg has been a respected financial printer for many years, and we are pleased that through this agreement we will be able to provide continuing service to Sorg's many loyal customers. The press equipment included in the purchase will not only give us the extra press capacity to handle work of the new Sorg Division, but will also allow us to retire some of our older equipment, thus improving our cost position in the industry."

Because Sorg is presently operating under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Code, this agreement is subject to, among other conditions, final approval by the Bankruptcy Court. Progress toward this approval is proceeding, and closing is expected before the end of this month.

Headquartered in New York with 33 offices in the United States and Canada, as well as affiliates around the world, Bowne & Co., Inc. today handles more of the world's financial printing than any other company.

Bowne serves attorneys, investment bankers, corporate officers and government officials by meeting their document building and communications needs worldwide. These documents include registration statements, proxy materials, prospectuses, tax-exempt bond offering circulars, tender offers private placements and reports to stockholders.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - The Board of Directors of the Red Cross of the Bay Area today announced the appointment of Roger W. Dickson as Chief Executive Officer of the organization effective June 1. He succeeds Interim Executive Director Glenn Petersen.

Dickson is currently Senior Executive Director of the Red Cross Mid-America Chapter in Chicago, the second largest chapter in the United States. His responsibilities include directing all aspects of planning and delivery systems which provide Red Cross services to seven million people through a network of headquarters and regional service centers.

"We are delighted that we found such a highly qualified person within the Red Cross organization and were able to attract him to the San Francisco Bay Area," said Bob Davis, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Red Cross Bay Area. "We'd also like to express our deep appreciation to Glenn Petersen for the tremendous job he's done as Interim Executive Director in a very challenging period."

During his ten years with the Mid-America Chapter, Dickson also has been one of the key architects of the chapter's strategic plan and led in the restructuring of service delivery systems and the realignment of regions. He has managed various parts of the headquarters organization, including the blood program.

A native Californian and UCLA graduate, Dickson joined the Red Cross as Director of Youth Services in Pasadena, Calif. in 1973. He has served as Chapter Executive Director in Ansonia, Conn.; Assistant Executive Director in Bridgeport, Conn.; and Assistant National Director of Youth Services in Washington.

EDMONTON, ALBERTA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Echo Bay Mines Ltd. (AMEX: ECO) today reported a net loss of US$37.9 million (US$0.38 per share) in the first quarter of 1990 after a US$42.4 million (US$0.43 per share) write-off, as previously reported, of its investment in the Muscocho group of companies. This compares with net earnings of US$10.6 million (US$0.11 per share) in the first quarter of 1989. Quarterly revenues rose to US$73.6 million this year from US$59.8 million last year.

Operating cash flow, which was unaffected by the write-off, declined to US$20.4 million (US$0.21 per share) from US$21.8 million (US$0.22 per share) in the first quarter of 1989.

Higher gold and silver prices were more than offset by cost increases associated with commencement of underground mining and sulfide ore processing at McCoy/Cove in Nevada. Operating earnings and cash flow were also affected by higher costs associated with the startup of gold production at Kettle River in Washington state, and by the absence of substantial low-cost production from the Borealis mine in Nevada, which was mined out late last year as planned. Production was higher and costs per ounce were lower at the company's other two major mines, Lupin and Round Mountain.

Quarterly gold production rose by 32,528 ounces, or 23 percent, to 174,829 ounces. Silver production increased by 133,853 ounces, or 33 percent, to 538,707 ounces.

The company's average cash production cost rose by US$44 per ounce (to US$254 from US$210). The average price realized per gold-equivalent ounce sold during the quarter rose by US$13 (to US$423 from US$410).

Write-Down of Muscocho Investment The investment write-off, as previously announced, reflects the company's decision not to proceed with an earlier plan to exchange its shares in the Muscocho group companies for a direct interest in the group's Magino and Magnacon gold mines in Ontario, Canada. The decision reflected a reassessment of minable ore reserve grades and underground mining costs based on new information and four months of operating experience since the agreement was reached last December.

The December agreement had provided for Echo Bay to exchange its approximate one-third ownership of the common shares of Muscocho Explorations Ltd., Flanagan McAdam Resources Inc., and McNellen Resources Inc., plus Cdn.$10 million in cash and a Cdn.$5 million loan facility (subsequently increased to Cdn.$10 million), for a direct undivided 37.5 percent ownership of the Magnacon gold mine and 50 percent of Magino.

The agreement was subject to Echo Bay being satisfied that no circumstances exist which materially and negatively affect the business, affairs, operations or condition of the Muscocho group companies or their properties. Since December, however, material negative changes have become apparent, particularly in cash cost estimates at both Magnacon and Magino. Estimates of Magnacon's minable ore reserve grade are down 28 percent and underground mining costs per ton are up 16 percent, while at Magino the grade is estimated to be 17 percent lower and mining costs 16 percent higher.

In December, cash production costs were projected to be approximately US$350 per ounce for Magino and US$330 per ounce for Magnacon. Today, the current and foreseeable costs of producing gold, particularly at Magnacon, are significantly higher than the gold price.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Apparel Business Systems (ABS) has announced the development of a new Unix version of its comprehensive software system, designed for use on the new IBM PS2 and RISC/6000 high-power personal computers.

The development is a breakthrough in systems design in the small- computer environment. It provides manufacturers, distributors and importers of apparel and footwear with a first-time opportunity to utilize the ABS application system in a turnkey package at a fraction of the former cost.

Formerly, an entry-level ABS/IBM system required a minimum investment of $75,000 for hardware and software installations. With the new Unix-based package, total system cost begins at $25,000 for hardware and software.

ABS President Robert J. Shallow said the development addresses a major problem among manufacturers, distributors and importers of apparel and footwear -- that of outgrowing systems as the business expands.

Shallow emphasized that the system provides the full functionality of the ABS application software package now in use in larger IBM equipment at more than 500 companies around the world.

The current software for conventional personal computers is too slow and too limited in capacity to remain applicable as companies grow in size and product-line complexity.

ABS is the pioneer developer of specialized computer software packages for the apparel and footwear industries, having established the first operating system for this application in 1973. Its systems are in use by more than 500 companies, including many of the largest and best- known names in apparel and leather goods.

The ABS package covers all facets of accounting and financial management, order entry and control, component and finished goods inventory, including style and price identification features not available in most comparable software systems. The company also provides system customization to individual requirements, together with around-the-clock technical support services to customers.

Unix is a revolutionary open operating system which is becoming an industry standard. It provides users with the flexibility to use various types of computer hardware interchangeably.

The IBM RISC/6000, introduced within the past year, is a high- performance personal computer capable of handling up to 256 work stations, in effect functioning as a minicomputer at a fraction of the hardware cost.

Headquartered in Philadelphia, ABS has full-service offices in New York and Santa Ana, Calif., and affiliates in St. Louis, Dallas, Australia, Canada, South America and the United Kingdom.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Allan C. Bloomquist has been appointed deputy director for the Capital Enhancement Division of the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS), it was announced here today by Patrick G. Caviness, director of the division.

The Capital Enhancement Division was formed recently to help find new capital for profitable and viable thrifts that fall short of capital requirements. Bloomquist will be responsible for developing nationwide marketing plans to match qualified investors with eligible thrifts.

"His expertise in marketing, banking and acquisitions should be extremely helpful in expanding our capability to assist qualified investors in the acquisition of thrifts," said Caviness. "The initial priority will be to design and develop the nationwide marketing program for Matchmaker. He will also play an integral role in helping individual thrifts develop marketing strategies to attract capital," added Caviness.

Bloomquist was most recently vice president and director of marketing for Midwest Financial Group, Peoria, Ill., a $2.3 billion regional bank holding company. Before that he served as vice president and director of marketing and strategic planning for 1st Source Bank, South Bend, Ind.

The new OTS executive holds a master of business administration degree from Harvard Business School, and a bachelor of arts degree in economics from Middlebury College, Vt.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - As a first step toward improving the value to employers of health care cost and quality control operations, CIGNA Corporation (NYSE: CI) today announced that EQUICOR's Corporate Healthcare Management (CHM) will be integrated into CIGNA's Intracorp subsidiary.

The company announced Tuesday that a new Employee Benefits Division Health Management Services unit had been created to develop health care policy and enhance existing medical, dental and mental health quality/cost management services. Intracorp's quality/cost control and disability management services are a major feature of CIGNA's Health Management Services offered to employers.

"Bringing together two companies with a superb record of effective utilization review tools and techniques strengthens our ability to deliver quality health services at a lower cost to employers," said Terrence T. Burke, senior vice president of Health Management Services. "The advantages of servicing an employers' complete quality/cost control needs on all fronts is a key strategic goal," he said.

The company also announced that Warren D. Fuller will continue as president of Intracorp.

"The increasing cost of health care continues to dominate the industry's attention," Fuller said. "With the integration of Intracorp and CHM we are ideally positioned to maintain and build upon our leadership role."

Celebrating its 20th anniversary this year, Intracorp is the nation's largest single provider of health care cost control and disability management according to a recent Business Insurance ranking.

Intracorp provides services to insurers and more than 20,000 employers in both the accident and health and property and casualty markets. It has more than 4,000 employees located in 120 offices and five regional service centers across the United States and Canada. The headquarters for the combined organization will be Intracorp's Berwyn, Pa., home office.

CHM has 300 employees located in Nashville, Tenn.; Brea, Calif., and Pittsburgh. It's ranked as the ninth largest provider of health care cost management services.

CHM's Pittsburgh operation will become the sixth service center for the combined operation, adding to Intracorp's service network in Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Los Angeles and Dallas. Functional responsibilities for sales, marketing, human resources management and finance will be merged into Berwyn leadership over the next few months.

HOUSTON (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - TEPPCO Partners, L.P. (NYSE: TPP) today reported a net loss of $0.6 million, or 4 cents per unit, for the period from the completion of the initial public offering of master limited partnership units on March 7 through March 31, 1990.

The results for the 25-day first quarter period were adversely impacted by an explosion and fire that occurred on the partnership's liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) pipeline system near North Blenheim, New York, on March 13, which interrupted propane deliveries. The financial results include a $1.5 million charge for pipeline repairs and testing. Operating revenues for the period were $12.1 million and operating income was $1.7 million.

Net income on a pro forma basis for the first quarter of 1990 was $1.0 million, or 7 cents per unit, compared with pro forma net income of $7.7 million, or $0.52 per unit, for the first quarter of 1989. In addition to costs associated with pipeline repairs and testing, first quarter net income was impacted by significantly warmer-than-normal weather in the partnership's market area and delayed gasoline shipments as a result of governmentally mandated seasonal vapor pressure changes. The 1989 first quarter results include a $2.6 million gain on the sale of products while no comparable gains were realized in 1990.

Pro forma operating revenues for the first quarter of 1990 were $38.3 million, compared with $44.4 million in the year-ago period, and pro forma operating income was $9.7 million, compared with $16.7 million for the first quarter of the previous year.

The Partnership filed on May 1, 1990, with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a general tariff increase on refined petroleum products transportation to become effective June 1, 1990.

The Partnership declared, April 17, a cash distribution of $0.1528 per unit for the period March 7 through March 31 as a pro rata share of the quarterly distribution rate of 55 cents per unit.

NEW ORLEANS (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Reporting on what's been described as Entergy's "turnaround year," Chairman and President Edwin Lupberger told stockholders today the '90s will be a decade of opportunity for Entergy Corp. (NYSE: ETR).

Lupberger made that prediction in his address at the company's 41st annual meeting of stockholders at the New Orleans Hilton Hotel. In his remarks Lupberger described Entergy's future as bright, its balance sheet as one of the most pristine in the industry, and its earnings as more secure and predictable than ever before because of agreements reached with regulators across its four-state service area.

These positive developments were emphasized despite the company recording a loss of $473 million in 1989. The loss was substantial, Lupberger said but it was nonrecurring, did not involve cash, and is not likely to "occur again in the foreseeable future of this company." Lupberger went on the describe the company as being in "a very strong cash position that allows us to take on a newly found financial and strategic flexibility."

The loss, Lupberger said, was the net effect of Entergy's decision to write off its investment in the one-third complete Grand Gulf Unit 2 nuclear generating facility in Port Gibson, Miss. The company invested more than $920 million in the unit.

CHICAGO (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Brook Furniture Rental, Inc. today completed its $15 million purchase of the furniture rental business of California-based John Breuner Company from B.A.T Industries, making the combined entity one of the four largest companies of its type in the U.S.

"We made this acquisition in order to build the business," said Robert W. Crawford, president of Brook, "and I'm going to work shoulder to shoulder with the people at Breuner's to do just that.

"The acquisition will make Brook a $50 million company in 1990," said Crawford. "That continues the extraordinary growth of a company that had $1 million in sales only 10 years ago."

Crawford is optimistic about the future of the furniture rental industry. "It's approaching $1 billion, yet we've hardly scratched the surface of the need for temporary furniture. Right now office furniture accounts for about one third of the business, but it's growing fast. Residential is also growing, and there are a lot of niches," he added.

The closing marks the first completed sale in B.A.T Industries' divestiture of its retail operations, which include Chicago-based Marshall Field's, Ivey's in the southeast and Saks Fifth Avenue. B.A.T acquired Breuner's when it acquired Marshall Field's. B.A.T has indicated it wants to complete sales of all its U.S. retail divisions by mid-year.

In 1979, Crawford acquired his firm, then called Broyhill, with sales of less than $1 million. He changed its name, moved its product upscale and diversified from residential to include office, convention services and sales of returned furniture.

A former executive with Procter and Gamble, Crawford has 25 years experience in managing businesses, including divisions similar in size to his expanded company. He also holds an MBA from the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania.

WALTHAM, MA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Thermo Electron Corporation (NYSE: TMO) today announced that it has entered into a memorandum of understanding to acquire E.M. Lamort S.A., a French manufacturer of equipment used in paper making and paper recycling. The acquisition is subject to several conditions, including approval by Thermo Electron's board of directors and regulatory authorities in the United States and France.

E.M. Lamort is a leading manufacturer of advanced stock-preparation systems used in manufacturing recycled paper. The company also manufactures and markets, under licenses from Thermo Electron and its subsidiaries, a range of other paper making machinery and accessories. Thermo Electron and Lamort currently are joint-venture partners in operations in Sweden and North America.

Under the agreement, Lamort would become part of Thermo Electron's Web Systems subsidiary, which manufacutres web-process dryers and related pollution-abatement and heat-recovery systems for coated paper, magnetic tape, and photographic products, and accessory equipment for paper machines including doctors and blades, self-cleaning shower systems, and profiling systems to enhance paper uniformity and quality. The subsidiary is headquartered in Auburn, Mass.

William Rainville, president of Thermo Electron Web Systems, said, "We are extremely pleased to be building upon a business relationship that is more than 40-years strong, especially at a time when environmental matters such as paper recycling are gaining global importance. We envision Lamort's facilities in France as a primary manufacturing center for paper recycling equipment, which will be a tremendous advantage in serving Europe's and North America's growing market."

Thermo Electron develops, manufactures, and markets environmental and analytical instruments, custom-engineered and pre-packaged cogeneration systems, industrial process equipment, biomedical materials and products, and fabricated biomedical and aerospace components. The company also provides metallurgical heat treating, water quality engineering, and analytical laboratory services.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Pfizer Inc (NYSE: PFE) and Shiley Incorporated learned today that the California Supreme Court will not review the Court of Appeal decision in the Khan case. Judy Khan alleges that she is concerned that a Bjork-Shiley artificial heart valve, which is working properly to save her life, might malfunction at some unknown future time. Pfizer also announced today that the Federal Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit in St. Louis, affirmed a decision dismissing a very similar case, Sill v. Shiley, where a Missouri plaintiff also sought recovery for emotional distress in regards to a properly functioning Shiley valve.

The lower court in Khan ruled that all six of the plaintiffs' product liability claims were invalid; however, it held that plaintiffs could pursue a cause of action based on a theory of "deceit." Pfizer said the California Supreme Court's decision in Khan was not surprising because the court each year grants review to only about 10 percent of the civil cases in which it is sought. Today's decision means only that the Khan plaintiffs will be able to litigate further their "deceit" claim.

Pfizer and Shiley said they intend to defend this action vigorously. Claims of deceit are difficult to prove, and the plaintiffs face a number of stringent legal and factual burdens, the company said. These burdens include, among others, proving that defendants intentionally caused emotional harm by concealing or misrepresenting material information with the intent to deceive, that the plaintiffs relied on this false information, and that the plaintiffs have been damaged as a result of their reliance.

Pfizer said the difficulty the Khan plaintiffs will have proving these elements is demonstrated in a recent federal court of appeals ruling. In that case, the Third Circuit summarily affirmed a district court opinion which dismissed claims similar to the one asserted by the Khan plaintiffs ruling that "it is preposterous to suggest that a manufacturer of a product which is obviously intended to save...lives...deliberately engaged in conduct specifically 'calculated to cause emotional distress to some particular person.'"

The Eighth Circuit ruling in Sill brings to 19, the number of cases in other jurisdictions involving claims substantially similar to those asserted by the Khan plaintiffs which have been summarily dismissed by the courts, including the federal court of appeals for the Third and Fourth Circuits, as well as a federal district court in Oregon. In addition, 19 other cases have been withdrawn voluntarily.

The corporation's two largest affiliates, BNE-N.A., and, subsequently, Connecticut Bank and Trust Company, N.A., have signed similar orders with the OCC. BNE-Old Colony in Rhode Island, another BNEC affiliate, announced this week it has also signed a similar order with the OCC.

The order deals comprehensively with the development and implementation of plans, policies and procedures, and details improvements in the operations and condition of Maine National Bank, particularly in the areas of management, asset quality, and loan administration.

Maine National Bank President and Chief Executive Officer Wayne C. McGarvey said, "This order reflects policies and procedures which we certainly consider to be sound measures for our bank. We are pleased to acknowledge that many of the changes outlined in the order are already well underway here at Maine National Bank."

Maine National Bank is a $1.1 billion full-service financial institution with 46 branch offices throughout the state of Maine.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Mutual Aid Savings and Loan Association under government receivership and appointed the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to manage the institution.

The receivership did not result in any interruption of Mutual's day-to-day operations. The institution and its two branches will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Mutual was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition which is likely to further weaken the financial condition of the institution, and has suffered losses that have depleted all of its capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Mutual had substantially insufficient capital and failed all its capital requirements by more than 100 percent. The thrift had continuing losses resulting from a high level of non-earning assets. The thrift had a low yield on interest earning assets such as the performance of loan participations acquired from the now defunct Bell Savings and Loan of San Mateo, Calif.

The loan participations were in land acquisition, development and construction loans originated by Bell. All of the projects were plagued by construction delays, cost overruns and high vacancy rates, resulting in a high delinquency rate and lower earnings.

As of Dec. 31, 1989, Mutual reported assets of $104.4 million, liabilities of $107.38 million and tangible capital of negative $2.95 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 2.83.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Clarence W. Keel, President and Chief Executive Officer of Seaboard Savings and Loan Association (NASDAQ: SEAB), announced consolidated operating losses for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 totalling $121,632 after taxes or $.14 per share.

This compared to an operating profit of $7,455 or $.01 per share for the comparable quarter of 1989 and losses of $1,130,099 for the previous quarter of $1.28 per share.

The primary cause of the reported losses was the effect of non-earning assets on the Association's interest margin. Interest income not recorded on the non-earning assets for the first quarter totalled approximately $190,000. The reduction in interest income was partially offset by a gain on the disposition of land totalling approximately $56,000.

Total assets at March 31, 1989 were $107,437,052 as compared to $105,954,164 at March 31, 1988. The Association's net worth at March 31, 1990 was $6,615,861 or 6.16 percent of total assets.

Seaboard is a Virginia chartered stock savings and loan assocation and provides mortgage and retail banking services principally in the Hampton Roads area of Virginia. Headquartered in Virginia Beach, Virginia, the Association has four offices, two in Virginia Beach, one in Norfolk and one in Portsmouth. Currently the Association has approximately 900 stockholders and 891,184 shares of stock outstanding.

NEWTON, MA (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - University Bank, National Association (AMEX: UBN) today announced its results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990. The results reflect the decisions to both write down and charge off various loans totaling $2,210,000 and to substantially increase loan reserves by $3,628,000. At quarter end after recording the $2,210,000 in losses, the loan loss reserves and related real estate owned reserves totaled $5,822,000, up from $2,682,000 at year end 1989. Primarily, as a result of these charges, the quarter's net loss was

During the first quarter, an examination of the loan portfolio was performed by representatives of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency. While the final report has not been received, management feels that the first quarter results reflect a realistic assessment of the existing portfolio in light of continuing weaknesses in the New England real estate sector.

Effective for the second quarter of 1990, personnel and operational reductions have been instituted which will significantly cut operating expenses on an annualized basis. The corporate work force was reduced by 15 percent and the salaries and benefits of the remaining employees have been reduced from 5 percent to 20 percent. A $400,000 one-time charge relating to these operational and personnel changes is included in the first quarter results.

At quarter end, primary capital is $19,874,000 with total assets of $405 million.

University Bank, N.A. is a commercial bank founded in 1927. Headquartered in Newton, Mass., the bank operates from branch locations primarily in Middlesex County and specializes in real estate lending. In addition, the company operates mortgage banking offices from locations in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

VERNON, BRITISH COLUMBIA (MAY 4) PRNEWSWIRE - Far West's sales for the first three months of 1990 were $2,193,000. This represents a decrease of 32 percent over sales of $3,226,000 for the same period in 1989. Net income was $5,000 for the first three months of 1990, or 0 cents per share compared to $298,000, or 7 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

Far West said it estimates that Canadian and United States orders for fall 1990 delivery will be 10 percent to 15 percent less than last year. The customer base has not dropped, however, the customers have reduced the size of their orders compared to 1989. This indicates that Far West is not being affected by the trend for retailers to reduce the number of labels they will be carrying for the 1990/91 season. Far West's customers are also aware that the company carries backup inventory in the popular styles in the event they wish to order additional product during the year.

Indications are that U.S. sales will be between $500,000 and $750,000 for 1990.

The marketing team has developed lists of new customers in both Canada and the United States. The fall 1990 lines have been and will continue to be shown to these prospective accounts. Selected key retailers are also being shown the design boards for spring 1991. The advantage to showing the spring 1991 styles early is that retailers have an opportunity to work with Far West and fit its lines into their marketing plans.

In addition, the marketing team is developing a comprehensive program to promote Far West's two fashion lines, namely Boardheads and West Wave. Ski instructors, Boardhead's team riders, West Wave extreme skiers and other trend setters are being approached to wear the Boardhead and West Wave products. At the present time, Far West has three Boardhead team riders and two West Wave extreme skiers who enter competitions wearing the products. Boardheads will be the official clothing supplier and major sponsor of the Myers Rum All-A-Board Windsurfing Series. Seagrams is the principle sponsor of this series of six regattas culminating in the U.S. National Championship to be held in San Francisco during August 1990.

Far West has continued its policy of paying a portion of its previous year's profits out to its shareholders as a dividend. This year, a dividend of 9 cents per share will be paid on May 9 compared to 12 cents per share last year.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Capitol Federal Savings and Loan Association of Denver, Aurora, Colo., under government conservatorship and appointed the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to manage the institution.

The conservatorship did not result in any interruption of Capitol Federal's day-to-day operations. The institution's main office and its 17 branches will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund.

Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Capitol Federal was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition and has suffered losses that have depleted all of its capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Capitol Federal has suffered heavy losses on construction and real estate loans. The economic downturn and depressed real estate market in Colorado contributed to a high level of non-earning assets, a condition that has also lowered Capitol Federal's ratio of interest-earning assets to interest-bearing liabilities.

On Feb. 16, 1990, OTS issued a capital directive to the thrift that, among other limitations, restricted its investment, lending and borrowing activity and its authority to declare or pay cash or stock dividends.

OTS' Topeka District has made a priority criminal referral to the FBI for investigation.

As of Feb. 28, 1990, Capitol Federal reported assets of $1.03 billion, liabilities of $1.09 billion and negative tangible capital of $64 million, for a negative tangible capital-to-assets ratio of 6.07 percent.

WEST PALM BEACH, FL (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Jewelmasters, Inc. (AMEX: JEM) today announced that it has reached an arrangement for early termination of its license agreement to operate 30 diamond departments as part of the fine jewelry departments at the Woodward & Lothrop and John Wanamaker stores, operated by Woodward & Lothrop Incorporated. The original agreement had an expiration date of January 1993. Under the new arrangement the company will cease its operation at these stores in July 1990.

The termination agreement provides for Woodward & Lothrop and John Wanamaker to purchase the company's fixtures, trim and a portion of its inventory in the departments. Jewelmasters intends to reduce the remaining inventory levels in these stores through increased promotional activity until termination date, as covered by the new agreement with the stores.

Jewelmasters' fine jewelry sales in these two groups have decreased to an unprofitable level and it was therefore considered to be in the best interest of the parties to terminate the relationship. Sales in the 30 locations involved accounted for approximately 11 percent of Jewelmasters' sales volume for its most recent fiscal year ended Feb. 3, 1990.

Woodward & Lothrop and John Wanamaker will resume operation of these fine jewelry departments without a licensee.

Jewelmasters, Inc. designs, manufactures and sells fine jewelry through leased departments in better department and specialty stores nationwide.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Barnett Banks, Inc. (NYSE: BBI) announced today that Barnett Bank of Jacksonville, N.A. has assumed the deposits of Tucker State Bank of Jacksonville from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). The acquisition includes all of the deposits, certain other liabilities and some of the assets.

Tucker State Bank was closed by the Florida Comptroller at 6 p.m. today and placed under the control of the FDIC, which then turned the deposits over to Barnett. With two offices and deposits of $46 million, the acquisition strengthens Barnett's presence in Jacksonville, where it has 31 offices and deposits of more than $1.5 billion.

"We want to assure Tucker State customers that we look forward to delivering the same level of service that Barnett's millions of customers in Florida and Georgia have come to expect," said Hugh Jones, chairman and CEO of Barnett Bank of Jacksonville, N.A.

Barnett is assuming deposits of approximately $46 million. In addition, Barnett has an option to acquire $35 million of the loan portfolio and certain other assets, with an option to return the loans to the FDIC. Barnett's purchase premium is $110,000.

Both former Tucker State Bank offices will begin offering Barnett products on Monday. Deposits continue to be insured by the FDIC. Customers may continue to bank in their usual manner, using Tucker State Bank checks.

Barnett is a 113-year-old company with assets, including the recent acquisitions, of more than $30 billion and offices in Florida and Georgia. Its stock (BBI) is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

DALLAS (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Hewlett-Packard's Computer Peripherals, Bristol Division, England and Interphase Corp. (NASDAQ: INPH) announced today that Interphase's SCSI host bus adapters have been tested and certified with HP's Digital Data Storage (DDS) format tape drive, the HP35450A.

Interphase's SCSI (Small Computer System Interface) host bus adapters for the VMEbus and EISA bus are completely compatible with HP's DAT drive. The Interphase products tested include: the V/SCSI 4210 Jaguar, the V/ESDI 4201 Panther which includes a SCSI port, and the E/SCSI 4810 Barracuda. The 4210 for the VMEbus and the 4810 for the EISA bus both feature single or dual SCSI channels and are capable for controlling as many as 14 SCSI devices in all.

Digital audio tape technology offers very high storage capacity while the recording device and the tapes themselves take up very little room. A DAT tape can store 1.3 GigaBytes of data and yet the tape cartridge itself is about the size of a credit card. The HP35450A uses the same form factor as a five and a quarter-inch floppy drive. In contrast, a half-inch reel-to-reel tape can store only 140 MegaBytes of data and the tape transport is usually mounted in a cabinet the size of a small refrigerator. Access to data stored on a DAT tape is also much faster. Whereas half-inch reel-to-reel or quarter-inch cartridge tape drives takes minutes to access data, a DAT drive can access any file in about 20 seconds.

"It is very important to us that our peripheral storage devices are compatible with products from the leading controller companies," said Bob Tillman of HP. "It says to our OEM and system integrator customers that they won't have any problems integrating our devices into their systems."

"Demonstrating our SCSI adapters are compatible with leading technology such as HP's digital audio tape drive is a key strategy of ours," said Michael E. Cope, president and CEO of Interphase. "DAT is a very promising technology. It's only a matter of time before we see large-scale implementation of it."

ST. LOUIS (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - INTERCO Inc. (NYSE: ISS) today announced that its bank lending group has agreed to extend to Oct. 1, 1990, certain loan payments due May 7, 1990, including a $225.9 million payment on INTERCO's existing bridge loan. This loan waiver extension will allow time to finalize an amendment to INTERCO's existing bank credit agreement.

INTERCO previously announced it had reached tentative agreement with the steering committee of its bank lending group on basic terms for the restructuring of its bank debt. The proposed terms include a repayment schedule which would extend all remaining payments due in 1990 into 1991 and 1992 and provide a continuing credit facility for INTERCO's working capital and letter of credit needs. The full bank group is presently considering these proposed terms.

The Board of Directors of INTERCO will consider additional restructuring proposals during a meeting now scheduled for May 9, 1990, and it is anticipated the company will make a further announcement shortly thereafter.

SAN ANTONIO (MAY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - BANK ONE, TEXAS expanded its presence in San Antonio today when it assumed deposits of approximately $287 million and certain other liabilities of the former First State Federal Savings Association, announced Harvey R. Mitchell, chairman and chief executive officer of BANK ONE, TEXAS, and Jim R. Hamilton, chief executive officer of BANK ONE's San Antonio offices.

First State was closed today by the Office of Thrift Supervision, which appointed the Resolution Trust Corp. as receiver. In a traditional purchase and assumption transaction, BANK ONE did not acquire First State's loan portfolio but has an option to purchase selected loans and other assets at fair market value.

The eight offices of the former First State will open as usual Monday, May 7, and will begin doing business as BANK ONE.

"We are extremely pleased that BANK ONE can offer these new offices to businesses and consumers," said Hamilton. "We are looking forward to getting acquainted with and to serving our new customers and neighbors across San Antonio."

Customers of the former First State should continue to use their checks and make deposits and loan payments as before. All deposits were transferred intact to BANK ONE and remain insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

BANK ONE, TEXAS, NA had assets of approximately $14 billion and deposits of approximately $11.6 billion at March 31, 1990. BANK ONE, TEXAS has more than 100 offices statewide and is an affiliate of BANC ONE CORP. of Columbus, Ohio.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - Three suspects in a lightning-fast $1 million art theft at a Soho gallery were arrested late Thursday, police said.

The trio was believed to be part of a group of four or five masked bandits who early Thursday smashed a window at SoHo's Nahan Gallery at 381 West Broadway, snatching more than $1 million in art and antiquities, said Officer Fred Weiner, a police spokesman.

Police were summoned to the scene but the bandits eluded them by speeding away in a black Monte Carlo and a white Chrysler sedan through Lower Manhattan and across the Manhattan Bridge into Brooklyn at 80 mph, Weiner said.

The first suspected thief arrested was Ronald Rescigno, 29, of Queens, whom police found getting a haircut at a salon around 1 p.m., Weiner said.

Rescigno was traced ''though a search of known locations, after police recovered the late model black Monte Carlo Super Sports used in the getaway,'' Weiner said.

He declined to discuss the evidence found in the car, which was abandoned in Brooklyn near the Manhattan Bridge.

''We're not saying too much because there's at least one more man who hasn't been caught yet,'' he said.

Officers next arrested Robin Tellier, 29, in Queens at 6 p.m.

A search of Tellier's home recovered three guns and several police scanners resembling those the group used during their escape.

A third suspect, Timothy Burns, 23, of Queens, turned himself into police at 7 p.m., Weiner said.

He said Rescigno, Tellier and Burns were all charged with one count each of burglary and reckless endangerment.

None of the artwork - some of which belonged to the gallery's retrospective of the French artist Max Papart's work - was recovered, and one or two remaining accomplices were at large, Weiner said.

Kenneth Nahan, owner of the Nahan Gallery, said three etchings by Papart and Roman and Etruscan antiquities from the second and third centuries B.C. were taken and estimated the value of the works stolen at more than $1 million.

''In four minutes, they had everything they were after,'' Nahan said.

The Nahan Gallery, with 11,000 square feet, is one of the largest in SoHo.

BOSTON (MAY 4) UPI - Fifty-four minutes and 38 seconds into the Wales Conference final, a split-second of tiredness was the difference in the Boston Bruins' 5-3 victory over the Washington Capitals.

Brian Propp scored on a 15-foot shot with 5:22 left to play Thursday night beating goalie Mike Liut inside the left post. Propp, skating down the left side of the slot, worked a give-and-go with Cam Neely.

''I thought Neely would shoot for sure, he was in good position,'' said Liut. ''But he passed it back to Propp, who hung onto it and that froze me a bit then I guess his hands were quicker than my feet at that point in the game.''

Propp, who has four goals in the playoffs, said of the 34-year-old Liut, ''At the end of the game, he's pretty tired and it just works out that way sometimes.''

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series will be played Saturday night in Boston Garden.

Dave Poulin scored into the empty net with 15 seconds left for his second goal of the game, capping the Bruins' three-goal third period.

''Dave Poulin came through again,'' said Boston coach Mike Milbury. ''He's the guy that leads the show when we're down.'' Poulin was instrumental in Boston's first-round comeback against Hartford, keying a rally from a three-goal deficit in Game 4 against the Whalers.

On Thursday, Boston tied the score 3-3 at 1:05 of the third period on Poulin's seventh goal of the post-season. The center, standing to the right of the crease, knocked home Dave Christian's pass from the top of the left circle.

''In the third period, we started to turn it over at our blue line and we got burned for it,'' said Washington Coach Terry Murray. ''When you come into the third period with a 3-2 lead you'd like to be able to do a better job defensively - the goals were because of our mistakes.

The Capitals, playing in their first-ever conference championship, had won seven of their previous eight games.

Liut, who played many games in Boston Garden during his five years with Hartford, said the smaller rink demands good checking.

''At this point in the season you have to win the boards, and you especially have to win the boards in this building,'' he commented.

Washington took a 3-2 lead late in the second period on unassisted goals by John Tucker and Kevin Miller 1:21 apart. Both tallies came off Boston mistakes.

Tucker's first goal of the post-season came off Andy Moog's poor clear of a Michal Pivonka slap shot from the blue line. Moog tried to flip the puck towards the right point but Tucker knocked the puck down with his glove, moved in on Moog and scored from 12 feet at 16:18.

Miller scored after intercepting a Ray Bourque pass deep in the Boston zone. Boston's star defenseman attempted a cross-ice pass from the left boards but Miller knocked the puck down with his stick, skated into the slot, deked, and after Moog sprawled across the mouth of the goal, knocked the puck inside the left post.

The Capitals were without star winger Dino Ciccarelli who is sidelined by a sprained left knee.

Boston opened the scoring 1:18 into the game on Garry Galley's third goal of the post-season. Neely's slapshot from the right circle was blocked by Washington's Neil Sheehy, the puck rebounded towards the top of the slot where Galley gathered it in, took two stides and fired a low shot from 15 feet which ricocheted in off Liut's right pad.

Miller missed a chance to tie the game with a penalty shot at 2:55. Bourque was whistled for tripping Miller inside the blue line on a breakaway. Miller aimed his penalty shot towards the right corner but the 15-foot attempt bounced off the crossbar.

Washington succeeded in tying the game 1-1 at 10:08 on John Druce's seventh power-play score of the playoffs. Druce, who had just 8 goals inthe regular season, collected his 13th score of the post-season with an 8-foot shot from left of the slot. Defenseman Bob Rouse set up Druce with a pass from the top of the right circle.

Neely put Boston ahead 2-1 with a power-play goal at 18:37 of the first period. The winger's eighth post-season goal came off Craig Janney's feed from behind the net, Neely stopping the puck with his left skate then knocking it under Liut from 12 feet.

Washington came into the series as the only team to win four road games during the playoffs.

(MAY 4) UPI - New York City authorities say three suspects have been arrested in Thursday's one-Million-dollar art heist from a Soho gallery. The trio is thought to be part of a group of four or five masked bandits who smashed the gallery window and made off with the art works. NONE of the artwork has been recovered.

The last remaining residents of Kalapana Gardens on the big island of Hawaii were ordered to evacuate Thursday night. Civil defense officials say lava flow from Kilauea Volcano continues to snake through the rural housing area at the rate of six yards per hour.

DENTON, MD (MAY 4) UPI - A pediatrician and county health officer fed up with solutions that haven't worked is proposing paying teenage girls a $30 monthly fee to avoid getting pregnant.

Dr. John Grant of Caroline County said he has tried dispensing birth-control and tried offering advice, and now he wants to try what would be the first government-backed program of its kind in the nation.

The plan to pay teenagers $30 a month not to get pregnant is drawing fire from critics who said the fees would be a government intrusion and would do nothing to educate boys who contribute to the pregnancies.

Under Grant's proposal, the program would be directed at teenagers who have had one pregnancy and are viewed at higher risk of another.

Grant told The Washington Post that paying teenagers not to get pregnant is cheaper than providing health care for their children in the future.

A spokeswoman for the Governor's Council on Adolescent Pregnancy said the plan was a move in the right direction, and lauded the effort for providing counseling along with the incentive.

But she also added that the proposal likely would not work in a larger urban area such as Baltimore, which has the state's highest teen pregnancy rate.

(MAY 4) UPI - Britain's opposition Labor Party has a commanding lead over the Conservatives in Thursday's local elections, but the margin isN'T as big as predicted. British television says Labor won 16-hundred-95 seats in local councils, compared to 665 for the Conservatives. The results apparently are NOT the negative referendum on Prime Minister Thatcher that Labor predicted. More than two-thousand seats are still to be declared in the elections for more than five-thousand seats in England, Scotland and Wales.

Panama's President Guillermo Endara says rumors of a coup attempt against him are just that- rumors. Word of a possible overthrow attempt spread after a guard was killed Tuesday night when about 30 guards surrounded the Presidential Palace and blocked nearby streets. But Endara says the mobilization was a routine exercise, and the guard was accidentally shot. The Panamanian president returned home Thursday from a five-day U-S trip during which the Senate approved an aid package for Panama.

Another car bomb in Colombia- this time in Cali, the country's number-two cocaine capital. Authorities say four people were killed in Thursday's powerful blast and at least 12 others were injured. Cali's municipal government secretary says an estimated 220 pounds of dynamite hidden in a car and exploded outside a supermarket. The official says a three-year-old boy was among the victims. Seven homes were destroyed.

Officials say 25 people were injured Thursday when an Amtrak train crashed into a log truck at a railroad crossing in rural Durant, Mississippi. Durant police say 20 passengers and four crew members were injured, as well as the truck driver who suffered a fractured arm. This is the third Amtrak accident in 10 days, but Amtrak officials say there's NO connection among the incidents.

(MAY 4) UPI - Several men in a car lobbed a grenade at the campaign headquarters of Guatemala's right-wing National Liberation Movement Thursday. A party official says five cars and a computer system were seriously damaged, but there were NO injuries. The official says the party will NOT ask the government for help in determining who's responsible for the attack because- in his words- ''It would be useless considering the same incapacity they have shown in confronting other problems in Guatemala.'' Elections are to be held in the fall.

Democrats and Republicans in the Senate are divided over a Democratic proposal that would revamp campaign finance laws. Democrats are seeking a campaign spending limit and public financing of the races. Republicans strongly oppose the spending cap and any taxpayer funding of campaigns. But the two parties appear to be in agreement on political action committees, known as PAC's. Both favor prohibiting PAC's from donating to Senate candidates.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - President Bush simply bowed to political reality in Europe by announcing a willingness to remove unwanted short-range nuclear weapons. He failed to mention their intended replacement: an air-launched missile.

''We're trading in two handguns and replacing them with an assault rifle '' said Daniel Plesch of the British American Security Information Council. ''I think that has to send a negative signal (to the Soviets).''

Bush announced he was canceling modernization of short-range nuclear forces in Europe and he opened the door for U.S.-Soviet negotiations on removing all such weapons following the signing of a conventional arms reduction agreement.

He appeared to have little choice.

The United States has an estimated 3,710 ground-based nuclear warheads in Europe - about 700 on the aging Lance short-range missile, 1,500 on artillery shells and another 1,500 on gravity and depth bombs.

Lance - mostly in West Germany - has a range of about 80 miles and artillery has a range of about 18 miles. In other words, the only targets these weapons can hit are the Eastern European countries that are now friendly to the West.

In addition, the West German, Belgian and Dutch governments - in the wake of the dramatic developments in Eastern Europe - made it clear their citizens were not going to stomach more ground-based nuclear weapons on their soil.

According to a recent U.S. government analysis in West Germany, 85 percent of the populace supports removal of all nuclear weapons.

The U.S. plan to replace the Lance in Europe with an updated version, for all intents and purposes, was already dead before Bush made his announcement.

In agreeing to forego modernization of Lance and nuclear-tipped artillery shells, Bush was simply avoiding a devisive issue for the NATO alliance.

It is also hoped by administration officials that the removal of short-range weapons from West Germany might lead the Soviets to acquiesce to membership of a unified and perhaps nuclear-free Germany in NATO.

At the same time, however, the United States is developing what it considers to be a more palatable alternative for NATO - an air-launched nuclear missile that would not have to be stationed as close to the Western-Eastern divide and would be less visible to Europe's anti-nuclear activists.

Bush requested $118.6 million in his fiscal 1991 budget for a Short-Range Air Missile-Tactical (SRAM-T), also called the Tactical Air-to-Surface Munition or TASM, with a range of about 280 miles.

These new missiles, strongly supported by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, could be fired from afar from fighter aircraft in Europe during a conflict and strike the western Soviet Union.

Gen. John Galvin, supreme allied commander of Europe, said after the fall of the Berlin Wall, ''I think that it is absolutely necessary that we have a missile that, with the combination of the aircraft, will give us the range to reach the Soviet Union.''

Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., agreed and a senior British government official told The New York Times: ''TASMs are absolutely the key, the key to it all.''

At a NATO meeting in Brussels Thursday, Secretary of State James Baker refused to say if TASM would be part of any short-range arms control treaty, saying he preferred to ''duck'' the question.

This was probably because it is still unclear whether NATO members other than Britain would be willing to accept this new air-launched nuclear missile.

What is clear is that the issue of TASMs will become a key part of future NATO meetings on the West's nuclear strategy in Europe.

''NATO is having to reach for a new rationale for nuclear weapons in Europe,'' said David Shorr of the British American Security Information Council.

(MAY 4) UPI - Atlanta rookie Greg Olson should play with the flu more often.

''I'm not feeling well - I think the flu is coming on, so I was more relaxed at the plate,'' Olson said after he sparked a three-run rally in the ninth inning Thursday with an RBI double, leading the Braves to a 4-1 triumph over the Montreal Expos. ''I'm a 29-year-old rookie so the center fielder (Dave Martinez) was playing me in (the ball went over Martinez' head). I guess with another man on second he had no choice.''

Olson doubled home Andres Thomas from second with one out in the ninth inning to give the Braves a 2-1 lead.

Three Atlanta pitchers combined to limit Montreal to two hits as the Braves recorded their fifth straight victory after losing five consecutive games.

''The guys played well in a good ballgame, now our streak is going the other way,'' Atlanta Manager Russ Nixon said. ''Tom Glavine is a fine pitcher. Too bad his record does not show how good he is. Charley Kerfeld is all pumped up. We need more Charley's on this team.''

Kerfeld, 1-2, earned the victory and Joe Boever pitched the ninth to earn his second save. Glavine pitched seven innings, allowing the only run and Nixon's bunt single. Wallace Johnson doubled off Boever in the ninth.

Montreal Manager Buck Rogers wishes he could get the same effort from his team.

''The bats are dead. We are not swinging,'' Rodgers said. ''The kids are playimg well but the veterans who let us down in the last two months of the '89 season are back in the same hole.''

In other National League action, Cincinnati blanked New York 5-0 and Houston defeated Montreal 4-1.

In the AL it was: Cleveland 10, New York 5; Minnesota 3, Detroit 1; Milwaukee 9, Kansas City 5; Seattle 10, California 8; and Texas at Chicago was rained out.

Reds 5, Mets 0

At New York, Jack Armstrong and Randy Myers combined on a five-hitter, Joe Oliver slammed two home runs, and Cincinnati benefited from three Howard Johnson errors. Armstrong, 5-0, allowed three singles and a double in 7 2-3 innings. Sid Fernandez, 1-3, allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings.

Astros 10, Phillies 3

At Philadelphia, Ken Caminiti collected three RBI and Bill Gullickson yielded six hits in 7 1-3 innings helping Houston. Gullickson, 2-1, struck out four and walked three. Some early wildness by Phillies starter Terry Mulholland, 1-1, helped Houston take a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

(MAY 4) UPI - The Philadelphia 76ers learned Thursday night what Mark Price already knew.

Price, taking advantage of Philadelphia's decision to cover Cleveland Cavaliers center Brad Daugherty one-on-one, set a team playoff record by dishing out 18 assists to go with his 18 points and Daugherty scored a season-high and team playoff record 34 to give the Cavaliers a 108-96 victory over the Sixers.

The Cleveland victory evens the best-of-five series at two games apiece and sets up a decisive Game 5 scheduled for Saturday.

''They've been content not to leave me and Craig (Ehlo) up front,'' Price said. ''You've got to make a choice. If they're going to play Brad one-on-one, I'll give him the ball all night long. I just don't think they have anyone who can stop Brad in the low post.''

The Sixers sure didn't Thursday night and Daugherty made the most of it.

''Brad had a tremendous game,'' said Cleveland Coach Lenny Wilkens. ''I've not seen him play better.''

Neither has Charles Barkley.

''We shot the ball poorly (45.6 percent from the field) and Brad Daugherty had a career night,'' said Barkley, who led the Sixers with 23 points. ''I think those are the two things. We've got to do something to shut him down. He's too good not to double.''

The home team has won each game of the series and the Cavaliers wasted little time getting the home folks excited, taking an early lead and never looking back.

''They came home and did what they had to do,'' Barkley said. ''Now, it's time for us to go home. The home crowd definitely is a factor. You've got to get off to a good start and we haven't done that the last couple of games.

''We were playing the whole game from behind and that's not good. You can't play games from behind, especially on the road.''

Cleveland, trying to win a playoff series for just the second time in the team's 20-year history, also got 21 points from John ''Hot Rod'' Williams and 15 points from Ehlo. Daugherty, who had nine rebounds, hit 12-of-15 shots from the field and 10-of-12 from the foul line.

Daugherty missed the first half of the regular season following corrective foot surgery but is finally in shape and fresh, which gives Cleveland an advantage when he gets the ball down low.

''You just can't let up at this point, no matter what the situation,'' Daugherty said. ''Our guards just did a good job of getting me the ball where I feel comfortable.''

Elsewhere: the Los Angeles Lakers advanced to the second round with a 109-88 victory over the Houston Rockets and the Chicago Bulls eliminated the Milwaukee Bucks with a 110-86 rout.

-- AROUND THE NBA --

LA Lakers 109, Rockets 88

At Houston, James Worthy scored 10 of his 20 points in the final 7 1-2 minutes to power the Lakers past the Rockets. The Lakers won the best-of-five series, 3-1, and will meet the winner of the Utah-Phoenix series in the Western Conference semifinals. The Lakers used a 12-2 run midway through the fourth quarter to open a 10-point lead and closed the Rockets put with a 12-2 spurt in the final four minutes. Magic Johnson added 19 for the Lakers and Vlade Divac contributed 18 off the bench. Akeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 28 points and 14 rebounds.

Bulls 110, Bucks 86

At Milwaukee, Michael Jordan scored 25 points, Scottie Pippen added 20 and the Chicago Bulls took its first ever playoff series from the Bucks.

Chicago will advance to the second round to play the winner of the Philadelphia-Cleveland series. The Bulls used a 13-0 second period run and 2 of 11 shooting by the Bucks in the second quarter to race to a 56-39 halftime lead and were never seriously challenged. The game featured a bench-clearing fourth quarter scuffle involving Chicago's Ed Nealy and Milwaukee's Greg Anderson.

(MAY 4) UPI - Yankees rookie third baseman Mike Blowers experienced a nightmare Thursday, committing four errors that helped Cleveland record a 10-5 victory over New York.

Cleveland trailed 5-1 in the seventh when Blowers' first two errors contributed to a four-run Indian comeback that tied the score.

''I had a tough day,'' Blowers said. ''If I make a couple of (good) plays we have ourselves a ballgame, it didn't turn out that way.''

Blowers' bobbled Chris James' grounder following a two-out single by Brook Jacoby to set up the rally. Jacoby scored on Sandy Alomar Jr.'s single, Mitch Webster hit a two-run single off Jeff Robinson, 0-1, and Blowers kicked Tom Brookens' grounder which brought in Dion James to even the score at 5-5.

Blowers committed an error in each of the last two innings.

''Blowers will just have to work through it,'' New York Manager Bucky Dent said.''He's out there busting his butt everyday, we can't blame him too much, it's one of those things.''

Alomar, who drove in five runs for Cleveland, could sympathize with Blowers.

''Well it happened to me today, too,'' he said. ''My throw went into center field. If I throw (Steve) Sax out maybe they don't get any runs, so it happens to him (Blowers) too. You have to hang in there.''

With most of the season still to come, Dent hopes Blowers can put the nightmare game behind him.

''All he's (Blowers) got to do is worry about tomorrow,'' Dent said. ''He's got to shake it off and come back another day.''

Jesse Orosco, 1-1, the fourth of five pitchers used by Indians' Manager John McNamara, was the winner. Doug Jones hurled two innings for his eighth save.

In other American League games, Minnesota defeated Detroit 3-1, Milwaukee pounded Kansas City 9-5, Seattle beat California 10-8, and Texas at Chicago was postponed due to rain.

In the NL it was Cincinnati 5, New York 0; Houston 10, Philadelphia 3; and Atlanta 4, Montreal 1.

Twins 3, Tigers 1

At Detroit, Gary Gaetti lined a two-run home run over the left-field fence in the 10th inning to lift Minnesota and complete a three-game sweep of the Tigers. Kirby Puckett walked to open the 10th against Mike Henneman, 0-2, who took over to start the ninth. Terry Leach improved to 2-0.

Brewers 9, Royals 5

At Kansas City, Mo., Robin Yount smacked a three-run inside-the-park homer and Rob Deer added a two-run blast powering Milwaukee to their fourth straight victory. Jamie Navarro, 1-0, scattered eight hits over five innings. Loser Mark Gubicza, 1-4, allowed seven runs and 11 hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Mariners 10, Angels 8

At Seattle, Jeffrey Leonard hit two homers, including a three-run shot that highlighted a seven-run fourth inning for Seattle. Rookie right-hander Brent Knackert, 1-0, allowed no runs and one hit in two innings. Chuck Finley, 3-2, took the loss for California.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 4) UPI - A church promising salvation through sex for cash ''sacrifices'' is a front to skirt pandering laws and is not protected by the U.S. Constitution, a federal judge ruled.

After hearing six days of testimony, U.S. District Judge William Matthew Byrne Jr. found Thursday that Will and Mary Ellen Tracy's Church of the Most High Goddess is not based on a bona fide religion and that its leaders are insincere in their claimed religious beliefs.

''I find their testimony is incredible. The religion has no basis to it other than sexual conduct,'' Byrne said in ruling from the bench.

The church ''is nothing but a shield attempted to be asserted by (the couple) to protect themselves from the laws of the state of California,'' he added.

The decision ends a civil rights lawsuit filed against the city of Los Angeles by the couple. The suit was brought after the Tracys were convicted by a Municipal Court jury Sept. 8 of operating a house of ill repute, and Mary Ellen Tracy was also found guilty of prostitution.

In the suit, the Tracys, who represented themselves, alleged that authorities were denying them their freedom of religion and expression by investigating them for sexual offenses.

After the judge's ruling Thursday, Will Tracy told reporters, ''There is no religious defense in federal courts. I think (the decision) is appalling.''

His wife, Mary Ellen Tracy, the 47-year-old mother of eight who claims to have had sex with 2,000 men as the High Priestess of the church, said she was ''totally devastated.''

''This is such a slap in the face after all I've gone through,'' she said.

Will Tracy said the ruling will be appealed, but that the church will be forced to shut down in the meantime.

During the trial, the Tracys testified their religion requires its male members to perform oral copulation on Mary Ellen Tracy, offer a $150 sacrifice, then ''purify'' themselves by having intercourse with her.

Assistant City Attorney Byron Boeckman, who dubbed the trial ''the civil rights case from hell,'' argued that the church was nothing more than a front for prostitution.

Byrne agreed.

''The sacrifices, I believe, were really a payment for sexual favors,'' he said, adding that the fact that church members were almost all male ''also tends to show a lack of sincerity in (the Tracys') religious beliefs.''

Moreover, the judge pointed out that the couple probably took in income of more than $100,000, ''but no books or records were kept of any kind, and all the bills were paid in cash.''

''I find the church is an innovation of the plaintiffs set up as a result of their arrest for prostitution,'' he said.

As a result of their criminal convictions, Mary Ellen Tracy faces a year in County Jail. Her husband was sentenced to six months. The jail terms, however, were stayed pending the outcome of an appeal.

During the last day of testimony Wednesday, the Tracys were asked about ads they placed in sexually oriented newspapers that showed nude photos of Mary Ellen Tracy and read, ''I love sex. ... I'm looking for clean, sincere, mature open-minded gentlemen to have sex as part of hedonistic religious rituals.''

Mary Ellen Tracy testified she met some of the men on the beach, as well as on Hollywood and Sepulveda boulevards, both known hang-outs for prostitutes.

''You brought back whatever showed up, didn't you?'' Boeckman asked.

''No. I was somewhat discriminating,'' she replied.

BEIJING (MAY 4) UPI - A tiny underground group led by dissidents from last year's pro-democracy protests emerged Friday on the anniversary of a famed student movement to demand political reform in China and the fall of the ''generals running the country.''

The government marked the 71st anniversary of the ''May 4th Movement'' by deploying dozens of police and a water cannon truck to cordon off central Tiananmen Square, the center of last year's student-led demonstrations.

The square's closing, used repeatedly by authorities this spring to avert renewed protest, was ostensibly for ceremonies welcoming the visiting leader of Mongolia's Parliament, and for a youth event later in the day.

The underground group, calling itself the Mainland Democratic Compatriots Committee, announced its goals in a statement to foreign news agencies. Its existence was confirmed in an interview with one of the organizers, a known student activist.

The announcement brought to three the number of dissident cells confirmed in Beijing, although others are believed to exist. Some have published leaflets renewing demands for democratic change.

Each group numbers only a handful. They claim larger numbers of sympathizers, saying the sweeping crackdown after the pro-democracy movement was crushed last June has cowed the population.

''China is politically unstable and economically in decline,'' the Compatriots Committee said in its brief statement.

''Our goal is to unite with all citizens who want a strong and prosperous China, and to struggle to bring down these generals running the country,'' it said, an apparent reference to senior leader Deng Xiaoping and President Yang Shangkun.

The student organizer, a 21-year-old active in the Tiananmen Square occupation last spring, said his group had only five organizing members but was seeking broader support.

''We do not want to overthrow communism,'' he said. ''We want reform, we want change. We are patriots. We love our country.''

The announcement coincided with the marking of the May 4th Movement, a 1919 student campaign that began as a protest against China's weakness at the hands of foreign colonial powers but turned to demands for democracy and modernization.

Last May 4, students led hundreds of thousands of people into the streets of Beijing in one of the biggest demonstrations of the six weeks of protests before the army opened fire June 3-4. The city and its campuses were reported quiet Friday.

Although May 4th is recognized by the government, officials kept its commemoration low-key, sponsoring seminars at colleges and running editorials in the press stressing patriotism and ideology.

''Patriotism is the richest spiritual contribution of the May 4th Movement '' trumpeted the Communist Party newspaper, People's Daily. ''To carry on the spirit of patriotism is to be devoted to the cause of socialism and socialist modernization of the motherland.''

Party leader Jiang Zemin presided over a rally Thursday marking May 4th as a ''great anti-imperalism and anti-feudalism movement.'' He made a generally conciliatory speech aimed at intellectuals, in part blaming the party itself for its loss of prestige.

In the interview, the student activist said the Compatriots Committee hoped to organize a modest show of solidarity on campuses but has been stalled by heavy police presence and tough regulations.

He said he had been expelled from school, arrested and jailed briefly.

The student said the group's basic demand was for a review and rehabilitation of those people killed and arrested in last year's crackdown. Many of the dead were classified as ''thugs'' or criminals in what the government branded a ''counterrevolutionary rebellion.''

LOS ANGELES (MAY 4) UPI - Three former high-level Mexican officials, including a former head of the federal police, discussed ways to deal with U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena, who was later kidnapped and slain, federal prosecutors said.

In a pretrial brief released Thursday, prosecutors alleged Manuel Ibarra Herrera, former director of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police, was among 10 men who met in Guadalajara in October 1984 to discuss an agent with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration who ''was causing significant problems.''

''The group agreed that something would have to be done about him,'' said the court document, which was filed Tuesday.

Prosecutors alleged that Javier Garcia Paniagua, former secretary of state under President Jose Lopez Portillo, was present at a later meeting. Garcia, a past director of Mexico's federal police, was the president of Mexico's dominant political party, the Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI), in 1985. He currently serves as Mexico City's police chief.

The document also charged Miguel Aldana Ibarra, the former director of Interpol in Mexico, was present at meetings to discuss ways to deal with the troublesome DEA agent.

The trial memorandum was filed by U.S. Attorneys Manuel Medrano and John Carlton in preparation for a major trial involving four suspects indicted in connection with Camarena's 1985 torture-slaying.

Camarena, who worked undercover for the DEA, angered Mexican drug kingpins when he tipped authorities to the presence of vast marijuana fields in the Mexican countryside.

The resulting raid by authorities cost drug traffickers billions of dollars in lost street sales.

Camarena was kidnapped from a Guadalajara street in February 1985 and taken to a house owned by convicted drug trafficker Rafael Caro Quintero, where he was interrogated and tortured. His mutilated body was found at a ranch 65 miles away a month later.

The court affidavit was the first time Garcia's name had been publicly linked to Camarena's disappearance. He has not been indicted in the case.

Mexico Attorney General Enrique Lavarez del Castillo has maintained that all of those responsible for Camarena's death have been brought to justice. About two-dozen people have been convicted in Mexico for involvement in the kidnap and murder, and three others are serving jail terms in the United States.

The pretrial memorandum said four meetings were held to discuss what to do about Camarena. At the third meeting in December 1984, conspirators passed around a photograph of the drug agent and said they were ''going to take care of him.''

The final meeting took place in February 1985, just a few days before Camarena was kidnapped and slain.

The document says from 1982 to 1985, the Guadalajara cartel became one of the most powerful international drug operations, dealing in marijuana and cocaine.

''Corruption amongst Mexican high-ranking government and law enforcement officials was pervasive,'' the memorandum said. ''Law enforcement officials were on the traffickers' payroll, and facilitated matters by providing protection for marijuana and cocaine loads and escorting marijuana shipments being transported and smuggled into the United States.''

LONG BEACH, CA (MAY 4) UPI - Blacks who live in predominantly black neighborhoods are more likely to suffer high blood pressure than those living in racially integrated areas, researchers said.

Dr. Marvin A. Bohnstedt of the California Department of Health Services said Thursday that his study shows that high-stress elements such as economic deprivation, family instability, crime and high population density may aggravate high blood pressure among residents of black neighborhoods.

Dr. Clarence Grim, a professor of medicine and hypertension research at Martin Luther King Jr.-Drew Medical Center in Los Angeles, said the study demonstrates that the problem is ''predominantly a socio-economic issue.''

''As one moves up the socio-economic ladder, blood pressure goes down,'' Grim said. ''Something about being better educated, having more money, is healthy.''

The study will be circulated Saturday during the fifth International Interdisciplinary Conference on Hypertension in Blacks, a five-day meeting that began Thursday and has drawn nearly 1,200 experts on high blood pressure.

The conference, coordinated by the International Society on Hypertension in Blacks Inc., addresses what Grim considers to be ''the major health problem of black Americans.''

Grim said one in three blacks in the United States over the age of 18 suffers from hypertension. That statistic climbs to two of three blacks among those who are age 50 or over.

High blood pressure contributes to a variety of ailments, including strokes and heart disease, a leading killer of American adults. Known as the ''silent killer,'' hypertension often produces few overt symptoms. Factors such as heredity, obesity, high salt intake and emotional stress are commonly thought to play a role.

Previous studies have shown that blacks are 1 1/2 to 2 times more susceptible to high blood pressure and are affected 5 to 7 times more severely by the problem than whites are.

The conference, which continues through Monday, will also examine the problem of high blood pressure among black populations in other nations.

Dr. W.F.T. Muna, the secretary-general of the Pan African Society of Cardiology, said that hypertension is an emerging problem in Third World countries.

Muna said smoking is increasing among residents of African nations because of more aggressive sales by American and European cigarette companies.

''As Africans begin to live longer, they are beginning to have all of the health problems (of old age),'' Muna said. ''The Third World countries have no facilities to treat chronic disease.''

Dr. James W. Reed of the Morehouse School of Medicine in Atlanta said lifestyle changes may contribute to the increasing hypertension problem in Africa.

''How we live in this country and how we are trying to teach everyone else to live is having a major impact on hypertension,'' Reed said.

BONN, West Germany (MAY 4) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker arrived in Bonn Friday for key German unification talks and meetings with his Soviet and European counterparts.

Baker traveled to the West German capital from Brussels, Belgium, where he outlined to his NATO counterparts U.S. proposals to scrap plans for the modernization of short-range nuclear arsenals in Europe.

He was widely expected to brief his Soviet and European counterparts on the proposals during a series of scheduled bilateral meetings in Bonn Friday, in advance of a key foreign ministers conference Saturday on German unification.

Officials said Baker would meet with foreign ministers Eduard Shevardnadze of the Soviet Union, Hans-Dietrich Genscher of West Germany, Markus Meckel of East Germany and Douglas Hurd of Britain. Baker also planned to meet West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

The unification negotiations were devised at a 35-nation conference in Ottawa in February and have been dubbed the ''two-plus-four'' process, because they involve the two Germanys and the four World War II victors - Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Bonn meeting was preceded by ''working-level'' meetings of foreign ministry officials from the six states, but will be the first at the ministerial level.

The conservative-led governments of the two Germanys have called for speedy unification of the two states, divided since Germany lost World War II.

But the four victorious powers retain special rights over Germany - and its plan to unite.

Experts believe the major stumbling block in the negotiations will be the military affiliation of a united Germany, following the Soviet Union's rejection of a Western proposal for both states to be part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Western military alliance.

Both German governments favor the proposal, and have indicated they would allow Soviet troops to remain in what is now East German territory, at least for an interim period.

But during his recent visit to Moscow, East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere said his government would only consider joining NATO if the alliance changed its strategy and structure.

Observers believe the Western delegations at the Bonn talks will tell their Soviet and East German counterparts that the decision not to modernize NATO's land-based short-range nuclear missile is the first step toward a new NATO strategy.

President George Bush announced Thursday that the modernization of the missiles and nuclear shells had been canceled, and urged NATO leaders to plot ''a new strategy'' for the alliance.

The announcement coincided with a meeting of foreign ministers at the NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, where Baker outlined the U.S. plan to his 15 counterparts.

(MAY 4) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

President Bush plans to scrap modernizing NATO's short-range nuclear missiles. And that plan is almost certain to be a topic today when Secretary of State Baker meets with his Soviet counterpart, Eduard Shevardnadze. The two also plan meetings with other European foreign ministers who are in Bonn for tomorrow's start of the German unification talks.

President Bush says he will use a commencement address today to expound on his vision of America's future with the changes in Europe. Bush will speak at Oklahoma State University. It's the first of five commencement addresses Bush plans to deliver this month. Last year, the president outlined his foreign policy objectives in commencement speeches.

Spending on health care in the United States jumped more than 10 percent between 1987 and '88. Health Secretary Louis Sullivan urged leaders of all sectors to get together to make quality health care affordable for every American.

The government says 88 general acute-care hospitals across the nation closed in 1988. That's 19 more hospitals than the number that closed in 1987. Most of the closings are due to fewer patients, less compensation and more costs because of new technology.

ATLANTA (UPI) - The Southern Christian Leadership Conference's former national AIDS coordinator said she was fired because she refused to discriminate against a dark-skinned co-worker and rejected the ''lustful pursuit'' of SCLC President Joseph Lowery.

Brenda Taylor-Hines made the charges in a 15-page lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court this week against the civil rights group founded by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Lowery and his wife, Evelyn, were out of town at a funeral and unavailable for comment, but their lawyer, Randy Gepp, said Thursday the couple ''emphatically deny'' the charges.

''We believe these charges are vindictive, frivolous and bordering on ridiculous,'' Gepp said.

Taylor-Hines's suit said she was fired June 20, 1989, after working nine months for the SCLC. Her discharge resulted from her refusal of repeated demands by Evelyn Lowery, the SCLC women's division director, to fire an employee ''solely because of her dark skin color and ethnic features.''

Taylor-Hines, who is black, said she was ''discriminated against because of color since she would not oppress or treat darker complexioned blacks differently.''

The suit, which seeks $486,000 in damages, also claims that Joseph Lowery sexually harassed Taylor-Hines and turned their discussions of AIDS into ''sexual innuendo and direct sex talk.''

Her rejection of Joseph Lowery's ''lustful pursuit'' was another reason for her dismissal, Taylor-Hines charges.

The skin color suit is similar to one filed against the Internal Revenue Service by former employee Tracy L. Morrow, who claimed she was fired because her skin is lighter than that of her supervisor.

Final briefs in that case are being filed this month and a decision is expected later.

(MAY 4) UPI - News from around the world and across the nation... details and developments from the wires of United Press International.

About three-thousand people are marching silently at Kent State University in Ohio this morning. The vigil marks the 20th anniversary of the day National Guard troops killed four students when they fired into a crowd of anti-war protestors.

The 12-hour candlelight vigil began at midnight in the parking lot where the shootings took place May 4th, 1970. Thousands of people... young and old... have formed a mile-long line in the march around the campus.

The May 1970 shootings culminated four days of student protests at Kent State against the U-S invasion of Cambodia during the Vietnam War.

Later this morning a memorial will be dedicated near the site of the fatal shootings. George McGovern, the former senator and presidential candidate, is expected to attend the dedication ceremonies.

Some of nine students who were wounded are attending the dedication. Alan Canfora, who was shot in the wrist, called the guardsmen ''murderers'' and says Kent State purposely failed to raise the funds for the memorial.

The original design would have cost one-Million dollars... but the memorial being dedicated today is a scaled-down 200-thousand-dollar version. The memorial doesn't include the names of the slain students... but the school, under pressure, agreed last week to place a plaque nearby, listing the names.

(MAY 4) UPI - More troubles for Amtrak. For the second time in as many days... an Amtrak passenger train was involved in an accident... this one injuring 25 people.

Authorities say an Amtrak train carrying about 200 passengers en route to New Orleans slammed into a log truck at a railroad crossing in rural Mississippi.

Durant, Mississippi, police and Amtrak officials say 20 passengers and four crewmembers were treated for minor injuries and released. The truck driver was flown by helicopter to a hospital, where he's listed in stable condition.

For the snake-bitten Amtrak, it's the second accident in as many days and the third mishap by the rail carrier in the last 10 days.

On Wednesday, an Amtrak's train en route from Chicago to Indianapolis derailed and rammed into a line of parked freight cars, injuring about 30 people. And on April 23rd, an Amtrak train carrying 420 people derailed near Batavia, Iowa, injuring 97.

of the week.

There were NO fatalities in any of the three accidents.

Latvia's parliament... with a warning from its newly re-elected moderate president in mind... is preparing for a vote on independence.

The nationalist Popular Front says it has enough votes in the Latvian Parliament to declare independence today. But in declaring independence, Latvia's leaders will try to avoid a direct confrontation with Moscow and will NOT expect Western aid.

Latvia's effective president for the past two years as Parliament chairman Anatolijs Gorbunovs says he's committed to independence. But he says the Baltic people should NOT expect the West to support their drive to end a half-century of Soviet rule.

(MAY 4) UPI - Former hostage Frank Reed plans to set foot on U-S soil today for the first time since he was kidnapped by Lebanese extremists 44 months ago.

Reed, a 57-year-old teacher in Beirut, was freed five days ago. Since then he has been undergoing a physical examination and de-briefing at a U-S military facility in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

A military spokesman there says Reed will fly home today.

Reed is the second American released in little more than one week. Robert Polhill was freed April 22nd.

Reed made an emotional plea for the release of the other Western hostages- six of them Americans.

In an indirect reply yesterday, Iran said it will keep working to free Western hostages in Lebanon, held mostly by pro-Iranian Moslem groups. But President Rafsanjani said his nation does NOT want to resume ties with the United States in return. He said freeing hostages is a humanitarian goal.

Intelligence officials believe the hostages are held by various clans of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah group. But the Hezbollah issued a statement yesterday, denying its involvement.

The Hezbollah said the Bush administration will be responsible if the 16 captives in Lebanon are NOT freed. The Hezbollah called on the U-S to see to the release of all Lebanese, Palestinians and Irans jailed by Israel and other U-S allies in the Middle East.

(MAY 4) UPI - An all-white jury in Tyler, Texas, has convicted three former lawmen of beating to death a black jail inmate.

The Texas district court jury returned the guilty verdicts yesterday against former Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner and two former Sabine County deputies... James Hyden and Bill Horton.

The three were found innocent of civil rights charges in a trial in Hemphill in 1988.

The murder trial will begin its sentencing phase today. The three could receive anywhere from probation to life in prison.

The three former lawmen were found guilty in the death of 34-year-old Loyal Garner Junior of Florien, Louisiana. Garner died of head injuries in a Tyler hospital two days after the beating on Christmas night 1987 in the Sabine County Jail at Hemphill. He had been arrested for drunken driving.

District Attorney Jack Skeen says the jailers were overzealous in their efforts to stop Garner from beating on his cell door... demanding to call his wife. Defense attorneys said Garner stumbled and hit his head on a wall.

According to testimony, Garner did NOT receive medical attention for his injuries for more than 12 hours.

In Los Angeles, opening statements are scheduled to begin Monday morning in the retrial of Raymond Buckey, the sole defendant left in the McMartin Pre-School molestation case.

A jury of six men and six women, as well as six alternate jurors, was impaneled yesterday.

Buckey, a former teacher at the now-closed Virginia McMartin Pre-School in Manhattan Beach... faces charges of molesting three students from 1979 until 1983. In all, he's being retried on eight molestation charges on which jurors deadlocked at his first trial.

Buckey has steadfastly proclaimed his innocence. His lawyers and supporters have long argued that the alleged molestation victims were manipulated by social workers and fabricated the sex charges.

The first McMartin trial lasted nearly three years and cost taxpayers 13-Million dollars... making it the longest, costliest criminal trial in U-S history. Buckey and his mother, 62-year-old Peggy McMartin Buckey, were acquitted January 18th at the trial of 52 other molestation counts.

BONN, West Germany (MAY 4) UPI - The Libyan government is building an underground chemical weapons plant, possibly with West German help, less than two months after a fire reportedly destroyed a similar facility at ground level, a West German magazine said Friday.

The weekly illustrated magazine Bunte, in a brief release discussing the story in its upcoming edition, said workers were building the plant at Sabha, 403 miles south of the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

''The new poison gas factory is an underground installation,'' the magazine said.

The magazine attributed its report to West German intelligence sources. It said the plant was being built ''possibly with the help of West German firms'' but gave no details of suspected West German involvement.

The report comes less than two months after a fire was reported in a plant at Rabta that the United States and other Western nations suspected of manufacturing chemical weapons. The reports were not confirmed and some intelligence sources expressed doubt there was a fire at all.

The sources indicated the report might have been a hoax to avert the possibility of air attacks on the plant.

The head of the West German Tukay Construction Co. confirmed Thursday that two of his employees were detained in Libya, perhaps in connection with Libyan allegations that West German agents were responsible for the fire at Rabta.

Guenther Tukay, the head of the firm, said none of his employees were involved with the Rabta plant. He said his firm is a subcontractor for large West German firms in Libya.

The United States last year repeatedly accused West German firms of helping to build the Rabta plant. The Bonn government initially denied the charges but later acknowledged that West German companies shipped equipment to the Libyan plant without the necessary export permits.

Juergen Hippenstiel-Imjausen, the head of the Imhausen Chemie company, was charged with breaking export laws.

MARION, Ill. (MAY 4) UPI - Deposed Panamanian Gen. Manuel Noriega was on the intelligence payrolls of several countries at the same time he charged drug traffickers to use his nation as a safe haven, convicted Colombian drug smuggler Carlos Lehder said.

On the television show ''Prime Time Live'' Lehder, who is serving life plus 135 years in prison at the federal prison in Marion, Ill., told Dianne Sawyer Thursday that Noriega ''double crossed everybody'' and tortured drug dealers so they would pay him more.

''Noriega was always on the payroll of American intelligence, but he was always also on the payroll of the Soviet intelligence, of the Cuban intelligence, and Israel intelligence,'' he said. ''But at the same time he was on the payroll of some Colombian traffickers. He was working every side of the corner.''

The television interview was Lehder's first since he was convicted in May 1988 of smuggling 3.3 tons of cocaine into the United States. His case is on appeal, so he refused to talk directly about his involvement in the drug trade.

He said he was in the ''airplane business.'' He said he also gave about $20 million to the Nicaraguan Contras.

He told Sawyer he would not testify against Noriega because he felt Latin Americans needed to stick together against U.S. pressure.

In a letter to Noriega this week, Lehder said the fallen Panamanian strongman should plead guilty and chastised him for informing on drug dealers for the U.S. government before his downfall.

The letter also said Lehder, 40, would not testify against Noriega, ''because despite your sins, we are of the same, fraternal Latin race.''

Noriega, 51, is at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in Miami awaiting trial on drug trafficking charges that could bring him up to 145 years and $1.1 million in fines if he is convicted.

Lehder, whose capture in 1987 was heralded as a major victory in the war against drugs, talked a little about his life of luxury on the island of Norman's Cay, south of Nassau, Bahamas. Authorities said the island was a safe haven and refueling stop for Colombian planes loaded with drugs bound for the United States.

They said he made at least $300 million a year in the smuggling business and was responsible for developing the first major drug smuggling network in the United States. That network eventually became the vehicle for the powerful Medellin cocaine cartel of Colombia and is responsible for most of the illicit contraband that reaches the United States.

''Henry Ford pioneered the mass production of cars. Lehder pioneered the mass transportation of cocaine to the United States,'' said former U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle, prosecutor for Lehder's 7 1/2-month trial in Jacksonville, Fla.

Lehder said his appeal would focus on his kidnapping from Colombia. He said he felt he should have been tried there, instead of being brought to the United States.

''I'm not blaming the United States,'' he said. ''What I am saying is, 'Let me be tried, judged, sentenced and punished - or executed - by my people in my country.'''

Lehder, who is not wanted for drug smuggling in his country, said he was brought to the United States to face U.S. drug charges while many American smugglers were left alone. He said President Ronald Reagan was involved in a ''cocaine gate.''

''I know there was a cocaine gate. There was a cocaine gate,'' he said. ''And when do I come into play? I come into play when they put me in the front. They put me in the spotlight and say, 'This is the guy. This is the guilty one.'''

(MAY 4) UPI - Powerful thunderstorms crept out of Texas early Friday following a week of torrential downpours, leaving behind flooding and some tornado damage, while rain fell on parts of the South, the Midwest and mid-Atlantic states.

The National Weather Service reported that just under 26 inches of rain has fallen on north Texas this year, twice the normal amount. Vice President Dan Quayle, who visited flooded areas south of Dallas Thursday, announced that federal aid would be given to Texas counties devastated by high water.

The stubborn storm front quietly made its way out of Texas early Friday, but floodwaters were still coursing through the streets of north Texas cities.

Authorities were searching for a fourth person missing and feared drowned when her car was swept into a rain-swollen creek north of Dallas.

A tornado struck the Lovicks Landing fishing-resort marina in east Texas Thursday afternoon, overturning and twisting mobile homes, uprooting trees and giving minor injuries to at least five people, the Shelby County sheriff's department reported.

The same storm spun off a tornado and a funnel cloud in the Nacogdoches area earlier in the afternoon, downing several trees and causing roof damage at a chicken farm. No injuries were reported.

The Trinity River in Dallas crested at nearly 47 feet at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, the third-highest stage since the levee was built after the waterway rose to a record 52.6 feet in 1908.

A light band of thunderstorms crossed from southeast Texas into southwestern Louisiana early Friday, the weather service reported, while scattered rain and isolated thunderstorms continued in parts of Arkansas.

Isolated thunderstorms hit the South overnight. Birmingham was blasted by 69-mph winds and 1 1/2 inches of rain. Temperatures ranged form 63 in Knoxville, Tenn., to 77 in Miami.

An extended period of heavy rains in far western North Carolina Friday morning caused the Tennesee River to overflow its banks, causing flash flooding in Franklin, N.C., and other areas in Macon County, authorities said.

''We had hail the size of golf balls early on. We've had several busineeses evacuated, the inventory moved from the businesses,'' said sheriff's dispatcher Karen Finch.

No fatalities or injuries had been reported, but four people were evacuated from two residences, said David Dills, the county's emergency servcices coordinator.

''The major part of the storm has passed us. We do have flooding pretty well all over the county. The city of Franklin was hit the hardest,'' Dills said. ''The Tennessee River is over it's banks. We've got little creeks that have never been out of their banks that are across the roads.

''All of that was in about four hours. In the south side of Franklin, some busineses have water in them, but we do not know the extent of the damage '' Dills said.

The mid-Atlantic region was rainy from southern New Jersey to West Virginia. Western Pennsylvania and the West Virginia panhandle registered in the 40s. Parts of eastern Pennsylvania were 50 and Maryland was in the low to mid 50s.

New England was under cloud cover early Friday, with temperatures mainly in the 40s. Portland, Maine, however, slipped down to 39 degrees and Boston made it to 50.

In the Midwest, rains fell over much of the region. An extensive area of showers and thunderstorms covered central and eastern Missouri. A strong line of thunderstorms was reported in southwestern Indiana and eastern Illinois. Southern Illinois also reported rain.

On the West Coast, weather was balmy and dry from Canada to Mexico early Friday as a high-pressure area brought warm dry air to Washington and Oregon.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Layoffs in heavy industry pushed the nation's jobless rate up to 5.4 percent in April from 5.2 percent in March, the highest since September 1988, the Labor Department said Friday.

Private analysts had expected a lower number, mainly because the Census Bureau hired thousands of temporary workers last month to assist with the 10-year count of the population.

''Manufacturing employment showed further weakness,'' the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said in a monthly report. ''The decline was concentrated in the durable goods component, with the largest job loss occurring in the machine industry.

''Factory jobs have decreased by 280,000 over the past 13 months,'' the report added.

The April jobless rate was the highest since 5.4 percent in September 1988 according to government economists.

Total civilian employment declined slightly to 118.1 million in April.

But the number of new jobs created increased by 64,000 for the month, the Labor Department said, as the Census Bureau added 80,000 temporary workers to the federal payroll.

The agency had been expected to hire more people.

According to analysts at Mitsubishi Bank in New York, ''Many of these workers will remain on the Census Bureau's payroll through mid-May.''

Construction employment was also down in April, but the number of jobs increased at the nation's mines and an estimated 10,000 people returned to work in the clothing manufacturing business after March layoffs.

The Labor Department said that employment held steady in retail trade, transportation and public utilities, while in the finance industry a small gain in the insurance business was offset by a decline in the hard hit real estate sector.

''After strong growth in the first quarter, employment in the services industry was about unchanged overall, even though the health services component added another 45,000 jobs,'' the Labor Department said.

Including military personnel, the April jobless rate stood at 5.3 percent.

For adult men, the jobless rate jumped last month to 4.8 percent from 4.5 percent, for women it climbed to 4.8 percent from 4.7 percent and for teenagers it increased to 14.7 percent from 14.4 percent, the Labor Department said.

But the jobless rate for blacks fell to 10.4 percent from 10.6 percent in April, and edged up to 8 percent from 7.7 for the Hispanic population, the department also said.

(MAY 4) UPI - Prices closed lower Friday in lackluster trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as investors consolidated profits amid uncertainties over global interest rates.

The blue-chip Hang Seng Index, which eased 3.15 points Thursday, lost 7.64 points to 2,946.97.

Utilities gained 15.59 points, Financials lost 8.10, Industrials closed down 21.17 and Properties shed 5.61 points. Volume amounted to 990 million shares, compared with 867 million shares Thursday.

"There was a bit more buying than earlier in the week but it is a slow period and people just aren't playing the markets," said Howard Gorges, an analyst with South China Securities. "People are being cautious because of uncertainty over rising interest rates in the United States, and a lot of investors are just consolidating right now."

Elsewhere in Asia, markets, banks and most major corporations and government offices remained closed in Tokyo Friday as part of the Golden Week national holidays. Trading will resume Monday, May 7.

In Singapore, stocks ended the week higher on the Singapore Stock Exchange as bargain hunters and small investors took advantage of the depressed prices of many stocks.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which gained 7.71 points Thursday, climbed 13.99 points to 1,479.88. The narrower All Singapore Index, which added 1.36 points in the previous session, rose 5.40 point to 408.37.

Turnover amounted to 52.74 million shares, up from the 42.85 million shares Thursday.

Some analysts were optimistic and said the upward turn could herald the start of a long-awaited technical rebound. Others were more cautious, contending it was too early to be certain that a rally was developing. In the absence of trading in Tokyo during the Golden Week holidays, analysts attributed the better mood to improved performances on Wall Street.

On the trading floor, the ASEAN Fund paced the advancing issues followed by Seaview Corp, Development Bank of Singapore, Singapore Press (foreign shares), and Cold Storage.

Overseas Chinese Banking Corp. (foreign shares) led the declining issues followed by Oriental Holdings, Singapore Airlines (foreign shares), Metal Box, and Singapore Bus.

In Australia, stocks closed slightly lower in light trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The key All Ordinaries Index, which gained 5.0 points Thursday, lost 7.4 points to 1,460.6. The All Industrials Index slipped 1.9 points to 2,274.6 andthe closely watched All Resources Index eased 3.9 points to 845.9.

Turnover amounted to 56.1 million shares, below the 81.3 million shares hands Thursday.

Analysts said stocks drifted lower throughout the day with small losses occurring across the board.

Among the day's highlights, in the banking sector, Westpac Bank added two cents to $5.18, ANZ Bank slipped two cents to $4.98, and NAB Bank eased two cents to $6.30.

Elsewhere, Coles-Myer eased eight cents to $7.45, News Corp. slipped four cents to $9.96, Pacific Dunlop added one cent to $4.75, Brambles gained five cents to $12.45, and CRA Mining lost ten cents to $11.25.

STARKE, Fla. (MAY 4) UPI - A faulty electric chair component shot out flames around convicted killer Jesse Tafero's head as he was executed early Friday for the 1976 slayings of two police officers at a highway rest stop.

Three surges of electricity were sent through Tafero's body, the first at 7:07 a.m. EDT and the last at about 7:10 a.m. EDT. Each time, flame erupted from a headpiece and a cloud of smoke rose to the ceiling.

Ashes fell to the prisoner's shirt as he was prounounced dead at 7:13 a.m. EDT.

A replacement sponge in a headpiece caused the flames, said Florida State Prison spokesman Bob Mcmaster, who added he had never before seen flames during an electrocution.

''It appears unusual. That amount of smoke is unusual,'' Mcmaster said.

After the first two jolts, Tafero's chest moved, and he appeared to continue breathing. But Mcmaster said that prison physician Dr. Frank Kilgo believed Tafero was dead within seconds of the first jolt and said there was no indication he felt pain.

''There was a fault in the headpiece. ... It was not (human) tissue that was burning. It was the headpiece,'' Mcmaster said. ''There was some arcing in the headpiece itself. We believe he was dead after the first few seconds. I believe he was unconscious from the moment (electricity) hit him.''

In Florida executions, electricity passes from a wire into a sponge filled with saline solution that is placed directly on the head, Mcmaster said.

''It was the sponge. They had put the first new sponge in there since 1979. It was not an appropriate sponge,'' he said. ''It was the sponge causing the fire.''

Tafero, 43, with his head shaven and his eyes covered by a black mask, smiled briefly as he was strapped into the electric chair at Florida State Prison and had electrodes attached to his head and lower right leg.

Tafero, whose final request for a stay late Thursday was denied by the U.S. Supreme Court, devoted his last words to criticizing the system that led to his death.

''Well, I'd like to say that the death penalty as applied in the state is very arbitrary and capricious,'' Tafero said. ''For instance, this morning I filed two motions in court. It seems the federal court judge and circuit court judge have just ignored my petitions. They were not heard by any court in the state of Florida.

''I think it's very unfair. I think it's time that everyone woke up to see that the same laws that can go against crime can go against you tommorrow.''

Tafero was the 22nd person executed in Florida and the nation's 124th since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment in 1976. His execution came exactly one year after Florida's last execution, when Aubrey Adams was put to death.

Some 39 witnesses, including nine journalists and several law enforcement officers, were present when Tafero died. No relatives were present.

About a dozen anti-death penalty protesters held a candle-light vigil at the prison gates, some carrying signs with slogans such as ''The death penalty brings out the killer in each of us.'' A handful of capital punishment supporters also were at the prison.

Tafero ate about half of his last meal of scrambled eggs, fried pepperoni, toasted Italian bread, two tomatoes, steamed broccoli, asparagus tips, fresh strawberry shortcake with real whipped cream, whole milk and hot tea Mcmaster said.

At about 3 a.m. EDT Friday, he spoke by telephone to his girlfriend, Sonia Jacobs, one of his co-defendants, who is serving a life term at a women's prison in Broward County for the same crime. He also spoke by telephone to his and Jacobs' daughter, Christina Tafero, 15, who lives with guardians in New York.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta and U.S. District Judge Lenore Nesbitt refused earlier Thursday to grant Tafero a stay, rejecting claims that mitigating circumstances were not considered by the trial jury that recommended the death penalty.

Tafero, one of three murder defendants, was convicted of two counts of first-degree murder, robbery and kidnapping in the Feb. 20, 1976, shooting deaths of Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Philip Black and Canadian Constable Donald Irwin, who were killed at an Interstate 95 rest stop in south Florida.

Tafero had been scheduled for execution Wednesday, but Nesbitt delayed it to consider his lastest appeal.

In previous appeals, Tafero had unsuccessfully argued that his attorneys were incompetent, that eyewitness testimony was insufficient to convict him and that his chief accuser, Walter Rhodes, had recanted his trial testimony.

Tafero, Jacobs, her two children and Rhodes were asleep in a car at the rest stop when Black and Irwin approached to investigate.

Black spotted a semi-automatic handgun, confiscated it and prepared to arrest Rhodes for a weapons violation, but a fight broke out, and Black and Irwin were killed.

Department of Corrections records indicate both Jacobs and Tafero fired at the officers. Jacobs was convicted of first-degree murder.

(MAY 4) UPI - A 12-hour vigil is under way at Kent State University. About three-thousand people gathered early this morning to mark the 20th anniversary of the killings of four students by National Guard troops during a protest against the war in Vietnam. A memorial will be dedicated later today. Nearby, Kent State planted 58-thousand 175 daffodils in memory of those killed in the Vietnam War.

Statistics indicate one out of three black people in the United States has high blood pressure. And researchers say blacks who live in primarily black neighborhoods more often have hypertension than blacks who live in areas that are integrated. The California Health Services Department says blood pressure appears to go up from stress such as financial problems, crime and high population density.

American and Soviet dancers united in Boston last night in the world's most beloved ballet... ''Swan Lake.'' The Boston Ballet, with a lot of help from the Bolshoi and Kirov ballets, lifted the curtain on the first of 18 performances. The audience gave a 10-minute standing ovation. Billed as a ''glasnost'' version made possible by rapid political change, this ''Swan Lake'' was three years in the planning.

RIGA, Latvia, U.S.S.R. (MAY 4) UPI - Latvian nationalist lawmakers overcame a filibuster bid by Russian conservatives Friday and placed an independence declaration on their Parliament's agenda.

''This discussion is nonsense,'' parliamentary Deputy Inulis Berzins of the Latvia Popular Front told the chamber. ''We have known exactly what the problem is for 50 years.''

The 139-56 vote to put the independence proclamation on the agenda set the stage for the newly elected and nationalist-controlled Parliament to vote later Friday on the declaration stating Latvia's intention to end a half-century of Soviet rule.

The tally on the agenda vote was a likely harbinger of the expected independence vote, indicating the Popular Front had about five votes more than the two-thirds majority needed to pass the proclamation in the Baltic republic.

The nationalist group has said it had enough votes in Parliament to approve the independence declaration, but - unlike nationalists in neighboring Lithuania - has promised to eschew confrontational tactics and provide for a transitional period in an effort to appease Moscow.

An independence proclamation in Riga would make Latvia the last of the three Baltic republics to take a formal step toward ending communist rule in the nothern region.

The draft declaration describes the Soviet Union's June 17, 1940, annexation of Latvia as ''an international crime that resulted in the occupation of Latvia and the liquidation of the sovereign state power of the Latvian Republic.''

Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel sent the Latvian legislature a telegram saying, ''I wish this session of your freely elected parliament the greatest success in its work of discussing the democratic orientation of your republic's further development.''

The agenda vote Friday followed a two-hour exchange of angry barbs in which the minority conservative deputies, nearly all of them ethnic Russian, accused the majority of stifling debate on the independence document. The nationalists accused the conservatives of deliberately obstructing the proceedings.

''Half a day is not enough for all of us to clarify the meaning of this declaration's text,'' said Sergejs Dimans, head of the conservative Latvian Communist Party's 50-deputy bloc.

''This document contains far too serious conclusions, and I don't know that we are truly ready,'' Dimans said.

Several hundred people massed for a second day outside the 19th century Parliament hall in Riga's Old City, chanting ''Freedom to Latvia,'' and singing national anthems.

On its first day of work Thursday, the new Parliament declined a chance to break completely with the past and re-elected a moderate as president to lead the republic's fight for freedom.

Anatolijs Gorbunovs, Latvia's effective president for the past two years as Parliament chairman, affirmed his commitment to independence, but said the Baltic people should not expect the West to support their drive to end five decades of Soviet rule.

Lithuania presisidnt Vytautas Landsbergis came to Riga to attend the opening of the Latvian Parliament, and said his republic's unilaterial declaration of independence March 11 was a better way of achieving independence than the more gradual path envisioned by the Latvian declaration.

In a half-hour speech before he was chosen president, Gorbunovs appeared to rebuke the Lithuanians for their expectations of Western aid and for the confrontational tactics that have mired them in a nearly 8-week-old showdown with Moscow.

''It would be naive to expect care packages of help from the West,'' Gorbunovs said. ''The world is not going to risk what has been achieved in arms control and what has been achieved with (Soviet President) Mikhail Gorbachev for the sake of 5 million Balts.''

No foreign nation has recognized Lithuanian independence. Gorbachev has taken a tough line in the Baltics, imposing an economic blockade against Lithuania and harshly warning Latvia and Estonia against similar moves toward secession.

''We must show the world that we are not endangering East-West dialogue, that we are not endangering European security,'' Gorbunovs told the Latvian Parliament. ''Our work is not confrontational in danger.''

The Latvian Popular Front, which gained control of the Parliament in March 18 elections, opted for the moderate Gorbunovs as part of its strategy to avoid the combative tactics adopted in Lithuania.

A draft of the Latvian proclamation, a copy of which was obtained by United Press International, indicated the Parliament also will not match the radical step of neighboring Estonia, which in its March 30 sovereignty statement declared Soviet laws invalid on Estonian soil.

The Latvian draft proclamation recognizes the validity of the former free state's Feb. 15, 1922, constitution, which began an 18-year period of independence that was ended by Moscow's annexation in 1940.

But the draft concedes that Soviet law would remain in effect during a transitional period in which negotiations with Moscow would be held.

PROVIDENCE, RI (MAY 4) UPI - A 12-year-old boy who turned in his parents for using drugs was returned to their custody even though he told police his father had threatened him, a lawyer for the family said Friday.

Investigators for the state Department for Children and Their Families determined that Paul Lizotte Jr. and his wife, Joan, pose no threat to their son Paul Jr., said the Lizotte's lawyer, Louis Pulner.

The agency is satisfied that the Lizottes are good parents able to raise their two children in a proper setting, Pulner said.

DCF spokeswoman Patricia Matthews confirmed that the agency investigated the possibility of abuse or neglect in the home. She said she could not release the results of the review because the information is confidential.

The Lizottes, both 31, were arrested April 19 after young Paul told police he found a dozen bags of marijuana under his parents waterbed.

In an affidavit filed in District Court, the boy said his father once threatened to harm him if he ever told anyone about the marijuana. He also said his parents never tried to hide their drug use from him.

Woonsocket police asked the DCF to investigate the family's home. Detective Guy Baillargeon said if the DCF found no evidence of trouble, he was confident the boy would come to no harm.

The boy's parents were charged with possession of marijuana and possession with intent to distribute. They were released on personal recognizance and are scheduled to appear in court on June 21.

PITTSBURGH (MAY 4) UPI - A federal bankruptcy court judge will allow Allegheny International Inc. shareholders and creditors to vote on a reorganization plan proposed by Japonica Partners, a New York investment group.

U.S. Bankrutpcy Judge Joseph Cosetti Thursday authorized Japonica to solicit votes for its $655 million cash plan for reorganizing Allegheny International, which makes Oster and Sunbeam brands small appliances.

Japonica attorney Herbert Minkel said ballots will be mailed Wednesday to Allegheny International's creditors and shareholders. They must be returned by June 8, and Cosetti has scheduled June 21 for a confirmation hearing on the proposal, Minkel said. Japonica last week said it had received bank commitments of $425 million to back its reorganization plan.

Most major creditors and shareholders voted in favor of Allegheny International's own plan of reorganization, but negative votes by Japonica and its affiliates defeated the plan.

Allegheny International last week said it still felt its own $687 million reorganization plan is the "only viable plan." Allegheny International's plan proposed to pay most creditors with newly issued stock rather than cash.

Cosetti signed the order authorizing Japonica to solicit votes on its plan but he said he would not rule until at least Monday on an Allegheny International suit that seeks to disqualify Japonica's votes on AI's own proposal.

Cosetti also has scheduled a hearing on Monday on Japonica's suit against Allegheny International, which claims the company's senior managers, the Donald, Lufkin, Jenrette investment banking firm and GKH, a Chicago investment banking firm, secretly had offer to "cash out" certain creditors in exchange for their pledges to vote for the AI plan.

Allegheny International filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in February 1988.

Wheeling-Pittsburgh, its creditors and major shareholders last month announced they had reached a tentative agreement to resolve disputed issues in the bankruptcy case and work toward a consensus plan.

COLUMBUS, OH (MAY 4) UPI - The decision on an appeal by Rep. Donald ''Buz'' Lukens, R-Ohio, convicted of having sex with a minor, will be made sometime after Tuesday's primary, a judge said.

Judge Alba Whiteside said Thursday the county appellate court is still debating the case. A decision is expected within 30 days.

Lukens, 59, seeking re-election to a third term in Congress, filed an appeal of his may 26 conviction of contributing to the unruliness of a minor. A court convicted Lukens of having sex with a 16-year-old girl.

Whiteside said the appellate court's decision is not being delayed intentionally until after the primary, which will choose the Republican candidate for Lukens' district in western Ohio.

''Maybe we're being more careful because of the national importance,'' said Whiteside, who is hearing the appeal with Judge Dean Strausbaugh and Judge John Young.

The judges heard arguments on Nov. 30. Whiteside said it is not unusual for judges to spend six months in deciding a case.

''This is not a simple, easy case,'' he said.

The court could uphold the conviction or order a new trial for Lukens, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $500. He is free pending the outcome of the appeal.

In an April 19 fund-raising letter to voters in his congressional district Lukens said, ''A NOT guilty verdict on my appeal is expected to come down within 14 days. Finally!''

On Wednesday, Lukens announced for re-election after months of quiet campaign appearances throughout his district. He is opposed in the primary by state Rep. John Boehner and former Rep. Thomas Kindness, R-Ohio. The Ohio Republican Party has demanded that Lukens drop out of the race.

Lukens has said he made a ''a dumb mistake,'' but he maintains he is innocent. He said Wednesday he wants the people to decide his future.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Layoffs in heavy industry pushed the nation's jobless rate up to 5.4 percent in April from 5.2 percent in March, the highest since January 1989, the Labor Department said Friday. "Employment was weak in April," said Janet Norwood, commissioner of the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. "Job growth continues to be slow."

Private analysts had expected a lower number, but the Census Bureau hired fewer than expected temporary workers last month to assist with the ten-year count of the population.

"Manufacturing employment showed further weakness," the Labor Department said in a monthly report. "The decline was concentrated in the durable goods component, with the largest job loss occurring in the machine industry. "Factory jobs have decreased by 280,000 over the past 13 months " the report added.

The April jobless rate was the highest since 5.4 percent in January 1989, according to government economists. The jobless rate also hit 5.4 percent in September 1988, they said.

"What we got in April was an economy that is still struggling to break out of the slowdown," said Robert Dederick, chief economist at Northern Trust in Chicago. "It's an economy that still hasn't got its footing. "The economy is still on a sluggish growth path," Dederick said.

The April increase follows strong employment gains in the wake of the unseasonably mild weather in January and February. "That large growth early in the year probably overstated employment strength and may have contributed to the weaker data that we are now seeing," Norwood said. "Nevertheless, unemployment has changed very little in recent months."

Total civilian employment declined slightly to 118.1 million in April. Even though the Census Bureau added 80,000 temporary workers to the federal payroll, the total number of new jobs created in April increased by 64,000 for the month, the Labor Department said.

"There were less census jobs than we expected, by they're not permanent so that doesn't really matter," said Brian Keyser, an economist at First Fidelity Bancorp in Philadelphia.

According to analysts at Mitsubishi Bank in New York, "Many of these workers will remain on the Census Bureau's payroll through mid-May." Construction employment was also down in April, but the number of jobs increased at the nation's mines and an estimated 10,000 people returned to work in the clothing manufacturing business after March layoffs.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (MAY 4) UPI - A NATO decision on whether to replace obsolete land-based missile systems with new short-range, air-to-surface weapons is likely a year away, a senior alliance official said Friday.

The official also stressed there are no plans by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for an intermediate-range air-based missile, as suggested in recent reports.

NATO's Nuclear Planning Group meets next week in Canada, but officials said it is unlikely to be any dramatic announcement from the first meeting of Atlantic alliance defense ministers since December.

''We've already made two decisions,'' said the senior NATO official, referring to Thursday's announcement by President Bush to scrap plans to modernize aging Lance missiles and artillery shells in Europe.

''We're probably six months at least, but probably a year away from making further decisions,'' the official said. ''A year from now, I foresee we ought to have pretty well worked through where we want to go with our force posture.''

He said NATO members ''don't know enough'' yet about the much-touted Tactical Air-to-Surface Missile, or TASM, to make a deployment decision in an upcoming series of high-level meetings.

The NATO nuclear group meets May 9-10 in Alberta, Canada. NATO defense ministers meet May 22-23 in Brussels, foreign ministers gather June 7-8 in Scotland and a heads-of-state summit will be held in London, probably in late June or early July.

The air-based TASM, under planning and development since 1978, is expected to be ready for deployment by 1995.

The NATO official said the weapon would have a range, from its launching aircraft, of ''considerably less'' than 310 miles. The air-based TASM would not be covered by the Intermediate Nuclear Forces treaty, which mandates a 310-mile limit on land-based systems.

Any longer-ranged TASM, he said, would require another 10 years of development.

''I didn't say there was no study going on,'' the official said of an intermediate-range TASM. ''I know there are a number of companies with gleams in their eyes. But we have no system like that. We have not pointed to a system like that for our own force structure.''

Bush on Thursday called for accelerating arms-control talks on short-range nuclear forces in Europe, but Secretary of State James Baker did not rule out unilateral NATO withdrawal of the nuclear artillery shells.

''There is no rush to do that,'' the senior NATO official said. ''We've never determined an obsolete date for the shells.''

With minor upkeep, the howitzer-fired shells ''could be around for quite a while,'' he said. The Lance missiles are far more expensive to maintain because leaks can develop in the self-propelled weapons.

The Soviets likely made unilateral withdrawals of some short-range nuclear weapons when their ground troops were sent home from Czechoslovakia and Hungary, the NATO official said, but ''those withdrawals from a military standpoint have not had much of an impact. They've been on the fringes.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said Friday that Congress at some point ''may be called upon'' to vote for sanctions protesting the Soviet crackdown in Lithuania if President Bush refuses to take action.

Mitchell repeated his position that the president is in the best position to decide what steps should be taken in response to the Soviet economic sanctions against the breakaway Baltic republic.

But the Maine Democrat said he regrets that Bush has not taken action. Mitchell said a failure to act could create a ''difficult situation'' in future talks with the Soviets, giving them the impression that they will have a ''free hand'' to impose their will in negotiations.

''Ultimately, if he (Bush) refuses to take any action, we may be called upon to do so,'' Mitchell said. ''I still hope the president will reverse his decision and take some action.''

Mitchell declined comment on a bill introduced Thursday by Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., that would bar Bush from relaxing controls on high-tech exports to the Soviet Union until Moscow ends its crackdown in Lithuania and begins talks on independence.

The administration had called for liberalizing restrictions Wednesday on 43 technologies previously protected because of potential military applications.

The Senate voted Tuesday in favor of a resolution urging Bush to hold up granting most favored nation trade status to the Soviet Union until talks begin on Lithuanian independence.

MOSCOW (MAY 4) UPI - Russian Orthodox faithful throughout the world Friday mourned the death of Patriarch Pimen, the leader of a 50-million-member church revitalized under glasnost.

The church's Holy Synod of top bishops chose Metropolitan Filaret of Kiev and Galich, who heads the church in the Ukraine, as acting patriarch early Friday.

Filaret, 61, former rector of the Moscow Theological Academy, will chair the Holy Synod until a permanent successor to Pimen as ''patriarch of Moscow and all the Russias'' is chosen by a church council of bishops, priests and lay people to be called within six months.

President Mikhail Gorbachev, Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov and the Supreme Soviet each sent telegrams of condolences to church leaders.

''His humanist activities, aiming to affirm the ideals of good, justice, mercy and peace, won praise in broad public circles in this country and abroad,'' Gorbachev said.

The Supreme Soviet praised the late patriarch for his ''outstanding services to his homeland and his universally recognized peacemaking and charitable activity.''

Pimen, 79, died Thursday afternoon at his home in Moscow ''after a prolonged illness.'' The exact cause of death was not released.

Pimen was the 14th patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church and the fourth since the Russian Revolution.

He was elected patriarch in 1971 during the Brezhnev era of stagnation when the official creed of atheism was still encouraged. He was seen at the time as the favored candidate of Kremlin leaders because he paid deference to the authorities in return for their toleration of the church.

Pope John Paul II sent a message to Filaret Friday expressing ''profound condolences'' for the death of ''His Holiness Patriarch Pimen.''

John Paul said Pimen gave his people ''the joy of living'' in ceremonies marking the 1988 millenium of Christianity in Russia and witnessed ''the beginning of a new story of the church, but also of the society and culture of his country.''

The pontiff also told Filaret he was praying ''for you, for the bishops, for the clergy and for all the faithful of your church.''

A Vatican spokesman said the Holy See will send a delegation to attend Pimen's funeral.

The patriarch's body was moved to a cathedral in downtown Moscow Friday afternoon for a special prayer service and to allow the faithful to pay last respects, the Russian Orthodox church said.

Funeral services were planned for Sunday morning.

After the Russian Revolution in 1917, the Orthodox Church lost its official position as the country's dominant religion. Its property, as well as that of all other religions, was nationalized.

While officially tolerated, churches and church members were often persecuted and religious activity was looked down upon by the Soviet authorities until Gorbachev's reform policy of glasnost, or openness.

Under Gorbachev, Pimen benefited from a rebirth of the Russian Orthodox faith that saw dozens of churches being converted back to places of worship after years of use as warehouses, garages and government buildings. People flocked to services in record numbers once the stigma of church membership was lifted.

The Russian Orthodox Church is the largest of the national churches commonly grouped together as Eastern Orthodox churches. They split with the Western church beginning in the 5th century.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - Mary Lea Johnson Richards, a pharmaceutical heiress who became a major Broadway and film producer, died Thursday in a Pittsburgh hospital, it was announced Friday.

Richards, 63, underwent a liver transplant two weeks ago at Presbyterian University Hopital in Pittsburgh, according to a spokesman. A native of New Brunswick, N.J., Richards maintained homes in New York, Southampton, N.Y., and Boca Raton, Fla.

She was the wife of Broadway producer Marty Richards, with whom she founded the Producers Circle Co. in 1976. The company's shows have won a total of 22 Tony Awards and a Pulitzer Prize and include ''On the Twentieth Century,'' ''Sweeney Todd,'' ''Crimes of the Heart,'' ''La Cage aux Folles,'' ''Foxfire'' and ''Grand Hotel,'' a current Broadway musical hit.

The couple also produced the films ''The Boys from Brazil,'' ''The Shining '' and ''Fort Apache, The Bronx.'' At the time of her death, Johnson was co-producing the film ''Hart'' with Michael Douglas's production company.

Richards, daughter of Johnson & Johnson heir J. Seward Johnson, was a graduate of the New York Academy of Dramatic Arts. Her first marriage, which ended in divorce, was to William Ryan, a newspaper editor, and her second was to Victor D'Arc, a psychiatrist whom she charged had hired hit men to murder her at the time of their divorce in 1978.

In 1983, she and her two brothers and three sisters brought suit in Manhattan Surrogates Court challenging the will of their father, who had left his $350 million estate to his third wife and former housekeeper, Barbara Piasecka Johnson. It was the largest inheritance contest in the history of the state.

Richards and her siblings settled out of court for 12 percent of their father's total estate.

In addition to her husband, Richards is survived by five sons and 10 grandchildren.

RALEIGH, NC (MAY 4) UPI - Duke University researchers have found what they believe is the general location of a gene thought to be responsible for a hereditary form of Alzheimer's disease, a published report said Friday.

The discovery brings scientists one step closer to finding a cause and cure for the debilitating brain disease, which primarily strikes the elderly, said Allen Roses, director of Alzheimer's research at Duke. Roses also said the finding supports the theory that at least some types of Alzheimer's disease are inherited.

The Duke researchers based their conclusions on a study of 32 families, 28 of which had several family members who developed Alzheimer's in their 60s or later. Results of the study were presented Thursday to a meeting of the American Academy of Neurology in Miami, the Raleigh News and Observer reported Friday.

Each human has 23 pairs of chromosomes made up of genes that carry the blueprint for all life. The gene for familial, late-onset Alzheimer's disease is located on the top half of the long arm of chromosome 19, Roses said.

The Duke researcher compared the unfinished task of pinning down the precise gene location to finding a broken plate in the closet of a house somewhere between Los Angeles and New York. "Exactly where it is, we do not know," he said.

The National Institute on Aging called the research "extremely important." "Once we know where the gene is, we can determine how the disease develops " said Carl Banner, health science administrator at the institute.

Medical scientists believe ten percent to 30 percent of all Alzheimer's cases are caused by a genetic defect, Banner said. About 2.5 million Americans are afflicted with the degenerative brain disorder, which causes people to lose their memory and prevents them from thinking clearly. There is no cure or effective treatment for the disorder.

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA (MAY 4) UPI - The government and the African National Congress wrapped up three days of historic and critical talks Friday intended to pave the way for formal power-sharing negotiations to end the country''s grinding racial conflict.

Government and ANC officials said the two delegations led by Presdient Frederik de Klerk and ANC leader Nelson Mandela would address a joint evening news conference to discuss the outcome of their historic meetings.

The end of the talks - carried out in the first formal meeting between the country's largest black political movement and the white government - came as state-run media and pro-government newspapers disclosed details of a nine-nation European tour by de Klerk beginning next week.

State-run radio, describing the trip as the most important undertaken by a South African head of state since the National Party swept to power in 1948 on a platform to protect white Afrikaner privilege, said de Klerk would visit France, Britain, Switzerland, West Germany, Greece, Portugal and Spain.

The Afrikaans newspaper Die Burger, the ruling party's mouthpiece in the Cape Province, said de Klerk also would visit Italy and Belgium.

''This will be the first time that a South African head of government can visit outside the country without having to be defensive over the country's racial policies,'' Die Burger said.

The last major trip by a South African president, former President Pieter W. Botha, occurred in 1984, when he visited seven European countries shortly after the signing of a non-aggression pact between Mozambique and South Africa. De Klerk also is widely expected to visit the United States in June.

A joint communique issued after a 90-minute meeting Thursday said the ANC and the government sides had identified stumbling blocks to full power-sharing negotiations and that they would work Friday ''towards bridging these differences.''

It said both de Klerk and Mandela had ''expressed their satisfaction with the progress achieved so far.''

The talks have focused on ANC demands the government create a ''climate conducive'' to further negotiations and de Klerk's insistence the ANC halt its limited guerrilla war against white rule.

Specific ANC demands included the lifting of a 4-year-old state of emergency, the release of all political prisoners, the return of thousands of ANC exiles and the withdrawal of troops from the nation's black townships.

In a related development Friday, the Prisons Service confirmed two political prisoners at Pretoria's maximum-security facility had been attacked by other prisoners last week in an apparent revenge assault over reports of a possible amnesty for political offenders.

''The prisoners responsible for the conflict were separated from fellow inmates and there have been no further incidents since,'' a statement said.

STILLWATER, OK (MAY 4) UPI - Seven Army ROTC students accused of cheating on a military ethics test will be punished, but they were still to be commissioned as officers Friday at a graduation attended by President Bush, university officials said.

Lt. Col. Conrad McHugh, head of Oklahoma State University's Military Department, said letters of reprimand will be placed in the cadets' permanent files.

''It's a permanent part of their record,'' McHugh said. ''It's pretty severe. It sounds like something simple, but it's not.

McHugh said official records are reviewed constantly when the Army considers promotions or assignments.

The seven found guilty of cheating were among 11 senior Army ROTC students being commissioned Friday. Seven others are to be commissioned in December.

Bush was scheduled to deliver a commencement address at Oklahoma State University's football stadium before leaving for Tulsa for a Republican Party fund-raiser and a speech at the spring awards banquet of the Oklahoma Foundation for Excellence.

Officials said they hoped the return of fair weather would enable them to fill the 50,000-seat football stadium. Had stormy weather persisted, the event would have been moved inside to Gallagher-Iba Arena, which seats fewer than 6,400 people.

NORFOLK, VA (MAY 4) UPI - The retiring skipper of the USS Iowa Friday blasted the Navy's investigation into the explosion that killed 47 of his sailors, saying the probe was riddled with unsubstantiated speculation.

Capt. Fred P. Moosally, 45, speaking out for the first time about the inquiry, said the investigation was "based on unsubstantiated third-party information, requirements that don't exist, and supposition."

The Navy's investigation into the April 19, 1989, explosion in the Iowa's turret No. 2 during gunnery exercises off of Puerto Rico said Gunner's Mate Clayton Hartwig "most probably" caused the blast. The inquiry portrayed the 24-year-old sailor, one of those who died in the explosion, as a troubled man bent on suicide and sabotage.

Moosally, who retired Friday after a 24-year naval career, spoke emotionally during a change-of-command ceremony on the deck of the World War II battleship under rainy skies before hundreds of crewmen, officers and members of Congress.

An often tearful Moosally praised the 1,500-member crew, but briefly lashed out at the Navy's handling of the inquiry. He said the Navy's report "is irreconcilable with the results of every inspection held on board Iowa before and after April 19."

"It is too bad the Iowa investigation team consisted of managers, and apparently not very good managers at that," he said. "People more concerned about determining whether the paperwork was done than if people were properly trained."

Moosally had received a non-punitive letter of caution for administrative deficiencies following the Navy's investigation of the explosion. The Navy cited a "failure of leadership" and noted a "marked deficiency in command oversight" aboard the ship

Cmdr. John Morse, the Iowa's executive officer under Moosally, will serve only a brief stint as the ship's skipper because the Iowa is scheduled to be decommissioned this fall along with the battleship USS New Jersey.

Moosally has accepted full responsibility for everything that happened on his ship. In a written statement released last year he said, "I have no excuses for the problem areas that were found aboard Iowa during the investigation."

Moosally, a 1966 graduate of the Naval Academy and native of Youngstown, Ohio, has said he may write a book about his experiences. He will return to the Washington, D.C., area, where his family lives.

Among Moosally's assignments during his career were chief Navy liaison to the House of Representatives, administrative assistant to the chief of naval operations and program coordinator of the Aegis cruiser program.

CHICAGO (MAY 4) UPI - The 1980s marked a decade during which farm debt fell substantially following a period of widespread financial distress, but most analysts look for a modest upturn this year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said Friday.

Writing in the bank's Agricultural Letter, economic adviser and Vice President Gary L. Benjamin said farm debt retreated in 1989 for the sixth consecutive year.

"Recent reports from major farm lending institutions suggest that total farm debt declined nearly two percent last year to an 11-year low of about $135.6 billion," Benjamin said. "The total at the end of 1989 included about $74.3 billion in farm loans secured by real estate and $61.3 billion in non-real estate farm loans."

The non-real estate loans primarily are short- and intermediate-term loans used to finance production and equipment expenditures. Farm real estate debt declined about three percent and non-real estate debt fell less than one percent last year, he said. Commercial banks are the largest source of loans to farmers, accounting for one-third of all farm debt.

"In marked contrast to the continuing decline in overall farm debt, the portfolio of farm loans held by banks rose about 4.5 percent in each of the past two years," Benjamin said. "The upturn of the past two years has offset most of the earlier declines and pulled farm loans held by banks to within five percent of the peak reached in 1984."

He said farm debt owed to banks in the Seventh Federal Reserve District rose 4.6 percent last year, paced by a comparatively large rise in farm real estate loans. Gains in farm debt in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin contrasted sharply with another decline in Michigan.

"The strongest gains in bank loans to farmers have been in Iowa, up nine percent last year and up 20 percent over the past two years," Benjamin said. "Loans in Illinois were up four percent last year, Indiana up 3.3 percent, Wisconsin up 1.7 percent and Michigan down 6.1 percent."

Nationwide, farm loans held by the Farm Credit System declined last year for the seventh consecutive year. Year-end data showed FCS loans to farmers dropped nearly three percent to $40.3 billion and was down 44 percent from the peak year of 1982.

With the decline, the FCS now accounts for approximately 26 percent of all farm debt compared with 34 percent in the early 1980s. As for the 1990s, Benjamin said both lenders and farm borrowers remain cautious about taking on new responsibilities.

"Prospects for another year of strong net cash farm earnings, particularly in the Midwest, suggest that repayments on existing farm debts will remain favorable and that many farmers will continue to rely heavily on internally-generated funds to cover new expenditures," he said.

JERUSALEM (MAY 4) UPI - Jerusalem's District Court rejected Friday a request by Jewish settlers to appeal their eviction from a disputed church-owned building in the Old City's Christian Quarter, Israel Radio reported.

Israel's High Court had ordered 130 settlers out of the 72-room building by May 1. The settlers complied with the decision, which allowed 20 people to remain as representatives of a Panamanian company that purchased the building's lease.

In his decision Friday, Judge Eliyahu No'am said the chance of a successful appeal of the eviction was limited and turned down the settlers' request, Israel Radio reported. No'am also ordered the settlers to pay the expenses of the eviction hearings - about $2,500 - to the building's owners, the Greek Orthodox Patriarchate.

The church and the settlers also are involved in court cases over the validity of the lease and right of occupancy of the building, which is around the corner from the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, Christianity's holiest site.

The Jewish occupation of the Christian Quarter building in the middle of Christian Holy Week last month sparked several demonstrations led by church leaders and sharp criticism - including opposition from Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek and the United States.

The religious Jewish newcomers maintain they were unaware they were moving in during the Holy Week but say they are allowed to live anywhere in Jerusalem.

The controversy was fueled further when Israel's Construction and Housing Ministry said it provided $1.8 million toward the purchase of the building's lease.

Relatives of the Armenian tenant who lived in the building for nearly 40 years - and who has since apparently left the country - said he did not know Jews would move in and that he was tricked into selling the lease.

In the Israeli-occupied territories Friday, the military maintained a curfew on Nablus, the West Bank's largest Arab town. The curfew, confining more than 100,000 Palestinians to their homes, was imposed Thursday by the army to discourage demonstrations during the dedication of a Torah scroll of Jewish scriptures at a Jewish religious institute in Nablus.

Prominent Israeli politicians, including the parliament's speaker, attended the ceremony at the Joseph's Tomb Yeshiva and the army apparently feared the event would provoke Palestinians. Government proposals to expand settlement in the Israeli-occupied territories and the Christian Quarter dispute have heightened Arab fears.

The outlawed Islamic Resistance Movement, known by its Arabic acronym Hamas, had distributed leaflets calling on Palestinians to attack ceremony participants.

Overnight, the army demolished one house and sealed three others belonging to West Bank Arabs accused of attacking Israelis and suspected collaborators, military sources said.

Military sources also said a 19-year-old Palestinian from the U.N.-run Amari refugee camp was shot and wounded Friday during a confrontation with Israeli soldiers. Palestinian sources said Nasser Mohammed Naji was shot while Israeli security forces were trying to capture him.

Naji was armed with a pistol and had been sought by authorities for some time, the military sources said. He was suspected of participating this year in the slayings of six Palestinians accused of collaboration, including the mukhtar of the Amari camp, the sources.

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND (MAY 4) UPI - OPEC ministers said Friday their decision to cut oil production by about 1.5 barrels a day to boost prices will be felt at the gas pump in six to eight weeks.

The ministers, reacting to the initial market skepticism that led to a price decline Thursday rather than the anticipated increase, said once the effect of the cuts is felt, the price of oil should start to rise.

"If there is a real reduction in production of (only) one million barrels a day, prices will rise in six to eight weeks," said Indonesian Mines and Energy Minister Ginandjar Kartasasmita. "I think it's a good agreement. It's more than we had hoped for," he said. The agreement is to stand through July.

The Iranian oil minister, Gholamreza Aghazadeh, acknowledged oil prices declined sharply on news of the agreement but said traders were simply waiting for the cuts to take place.

"Any further fall in the market price and any instability is undesirable, not only from the point of view of OPEC members but also from non-OPEC producers, and it is also against the interests of the consumer countries " he said.

On the European market Thursday, Dubai light crude fell 55 cents to $14.15 a barrel and North Sea Brent lost 35 cents to $16 a barrel. In New York, the benchmark U.S. West Texas Intermediate crude dropped 69 cents to $17.99 a barrel.

"It is a very good agreement. Give the market some time to observe its effects," Iraqi Oil Minister Issam Abdul Raheem said of Thursday's price declines.

Independent analysts attending the two-day emergency OPEC meeting that ended Thursday agreed oil prices should rise once the market is convinced the cartel is serious about cutting production.

Widespread cheating in the past, especially by the United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia, and Kuwait, has hurt OPEC's credibility, the analysts added.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said it estimated April oil production at 23.5 million barrels a day and agreed to reduce it by 1.445 million barrels a day to 22.05 million barrels, slightly below the official ceiling for the first half of the year that was set last November.

OPEC's reference price, based on a basket of seven crude oils, was set at $18 per barrel for the first half of the current year but overproduction caused a 25 percent plunge in prices since the start of the year. The price of a barrel fell as low as $14.70 recently and is now at about $15.50.

One difference from past production quotas is that the UAE, which never accepted a quota for the first half of 1990, appears ready to honor the new accord.

UAE Petroleum and Mineral Resources Minister Mana Saeed Otaiba called the agreement "positive" and said his country would immediately cut production by 200,000 barrels a day as agreed. "OPEC was determined to correct the market trend and achieve a balance between supply and demand," he said.

The informal agreement worked out by OPEC's eight-member price monitoring committee calls on Saudi Arabia to cut production by 430,000 barrels a day Kuwait by 400,000 barrels and Nigeria by 140,000 barrels.

Sadek Boussena, the Algerian oil minister and OPEC president, insisted the informal accord, which was not signed, is political in nature and involves production cuts by all 13-member countries to underline the cartel's determination to force prices higher.

"If the UAE are inside the system, it means that OPEC can reach agreements much more easily," he said. "My interpretation of the agreement is that the situation was negative enough in March and April to convince them to do something to avoid a further price deterioration."

Boussena said the cuts will remain in effect until OPEC's next meeting July 25 even if the price goes above $18 a barrel before then, but industry analysts doubt the cartel's cohesion would hold in the unlikely event oil prices rise that much.

The July 25 meeting is to set new production quotas for the last half of the year.

ST. LOUIS (MAY 4) UPI - Representatives of about 12,000 machinists whose contracts expire this weekend met Friday with negotiators from McDonnell Douglas Corp. in an effort to reach agreement on a new contract, company officials said.

District 837 of the International Asssociation of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, which represents 11,850 of the 12,800 union workers at the St. Louis plant, was scheduled to vote Sunday whether to go on strike against the aerospace firm.

Cassell Williams, president of District 837, said before Friday's meeting that he would urge members to reject the company's offer and authorize a strike when the contracts expire Sunday.

However, a seven-day "rollover" period between the strike vote and the first available walkout date would allow for further bargaining that leaders said could still lead to a new pact.

Rich Eichwald, a spokesman for McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Co., said both sides sat down at 10 a.m. for renewed talks. "We hope that it's a positive discussion and that we get positive results," Eichwald said. "We hope that union leadership will recommend passage of our contract on Sunday. "We're still willing to talk to the union on any issues that they feel are obstacles to an agreement," Eichwald said.

Several smaller unions whose contracts also expire Sunday were expected to follow the machinists' lead. Contracts with other unions expire in June. McDonnell Douglas is the largest employer in St. Louis.

Members of the machinists' union said they were dissatisfied with the comparison between the company's contract offer and a contract reached with workers at McDonnell Douglas's plant in California.

McDonnell Douglas has proposed a 5.5 percent wage increase the first year of the new pact, followed by increases of three percent in the second and third years of the agreement. Hourly wages now average $14.

Among problems Williams cited in the company's proposal was a reduction in annual salary increases. Also, retirees and survivors of deceased workers would get no pension increases, compared with four to 18 percent increases for those groups at the California plant, Williams said.

HANOVER, WEST GERMANY (MAY 4) UPI - Three suspected members of the Irish Republican Army were surprised early Friday while apparently preparing to bomb a British military barracks, officials said.

A civilian guard accompanied by a dog was making a routine check of the barracks area just after 2 a.m. when he discovered the men outside a housing block for 70 soldiers at the British army's Langenhagen Barracks in Hanover.

The men, who had cut through a fence to reach the barracks, fired three shots but the guard was not hit. The gunmen fled, leaving behind three bags containing timing devices and about 100 pounds of Semtex, a highly explosive substance, police said.

The West German Federal Prosecutor's Office said it assumed the IRA, which is trying to drive the British out of Northern Ireland, was responsible. It said the IRA has carried out similar attacks on British military installations and soldiers in Germany since 1987, killing seven people.

Semtex is a Czechoslovak-made explosive now strictly regulated by the Czechoslovak government. However, President Vaclav Havel said in March that Czechoslovakia's former communist authorities supplied 1,000 tons of Semtex to Libya, explaining, ''This means world terrorism now has supplies of Semtex to last 150 years.''

WILMINGTON, NC (MAY 4) UPI - A twin-engine cargo plane crashed and burned Friday morning while trying to land at Wilmington airport, killing one person aboard the plane and injuring another.

The injured person was in critical condition at New Hanover Memorial Hospital, officials said, but the identities of the survivor and victim were not released immediately.

The Nomad 34, contracted by United Parcel Service, was enroute from Raleigh to Wilmington when it missed its approach at the airport. FAA spokeswoman Arlene Salac said that when the plane ''circled back to land again, the engine stalled and the plane crashed in a swamp.''

The time of the crash was about 7:31 a.m. EDT.

The plane crashed several hundred feet from a runway. The runway was later closed, but was expected to reopen by the end of the day.

National Transportation Safety Board inspectors were expected to arrive in Wilmington Friday afternoon to begin investigating the crash.

The plane, owned by Jerry Fountain of Jacksonville, N.C., was carrying UPS standard cargo, said Bob Kemp, director of Wilmington airport. There were no hazardous materials on board, he said.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - U.S. forces were involved in the December air assault in Colombia that led to the death of fugitive druglord Jose Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha, Newsday reported Friday.

A small U.S. special operations team planned and carried out the raid with an elite Colombian police unit, the newspaper said, citing a congressional source who was briefed on the mission and an unidentified special operations officer familiar with the raid.

The report came one day after President Bush denied that U.S. troops were used in Colombia in the attempt to capture Rodriguez Gacha, one of the leaders of the infamous Medellin drug cartel.

A reporter asked Bush Thursday whether U.S. forces have been involved in missions such as searches for the cartel leaders.

''No. Inside Colombia? Be more specific, please, and I'll try to help you '' Bush replied.

The reporter then began to ask whether the U.S. military played a role in Rodriguez Gacha's death, when Bush cut in, ''No. U.S. troops in Colombia? No. That's the answer. Next. Or do you have a follow on?''

The point was not raised again at the news conference.

Newsday said three other defense sources and a House aide ''confirmed that at least three U.S. military personnel took part in the helicopter assault.''

Fredy Rodriguez Gacha, 17, died along with his father and several bodyguards in the gun battle.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying the mission was covert, with U.S. involvement concealed and protected by ''plausible deniability,'' meaning that ''it was to be carried out in a fashion that would enable top U.S. officials to say they were not aware of it.''

''A military intelligence source said the Colombian police presence in the operation was characterized as 'window dressing,''' Newsday said.

The newspaper also quoted the congressional source as saying, ''Officially they did it, but in fact it was us.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and chief of the thrift bailout, said Friday he will resign before his term expires, but pressure from the White House will not dictate the timing of his departure.

''I'm making the decision,'' Seidman said after testifying before the House Resolution Trust Corp. Task Force.

Seidman told the group he has not decided when he will leave his job as the nation's top banking regulator, although President Bush said Thursday that a good candidate to replace Seidman already has been found.

''Clearly, I will stay until, in my mind, the RTC is up and running,'' Seidman said.

As chairman of the FDIC, Seidman also serves as president of the RTC, the government agency created last year by Bush's $166 billion thrift bailout plan to manage and sell the assets of failed savings and loans.

The 69-year-old regulator has hinted he will leave as soon as June 30, nearly a year before his term expires. Recent reports have quoted unnamed White House officials as saying there is increasing friction between Seidman and Bush and Treasury Department officials.

Administration officials reportedly have been distressed by Seidman's warning the bailout may cost hundreds of billions of dollars more than estimates used when the plan was devised. Current estimates of the cost, which taxpayers are ultimately responsible for, have ranged as high as $500 billion.

Seidman said he has not been swayed by his critics and also declined comment on a reported White House offer to name him an ambassador-at-large should he step down early.

''I was going to leave anyway,'' he said. ''I've been in this job five years and I made a personal decision that I'd leave.''

On Thursday, Seidman telephoned Bush to recommend William Taylor, acting president of oversight board of the RTC, as his successor. Bush told a news conference that administration officials were ''very high'' on Taylor as a replacement.

Taylor, 50, has been acting president of the RTC Oversight Board since February. He had served in various capacities at the Federal Reserve Board since 1976.

Asked what advice he had for his successor, Seidman said, ''My first advice is to take a hard look before you take the job. Don't expect a lot of praise over a long period. Don't be impatient. This is a long, hard job.''

Although Seidman, appointed by President Reagan, has taken flak from the administration, his candor has won high marks from both parties in the House and Senate.

''You will be missed, Chairman Seidman. This change does not bode well for the S&L bailout law and the RTC,'' said Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Miss., chairman of the RTC task force.

''The erratic implementation, the indifference, inattention and internal squabbling of the administration have unfortunately made a tough job yet more difficult,'' Vento said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - A Chinese diplomat announced his defection Friday, saying he had become endangered by his behind-the-scenes support for the democracy movement, and he maintained that most Chinese officials privately back reform.

Speaking calmly at a news conference, Xu Lin, 33, a third secretary in the education office of the Chinese Embassy, said he defected Wednesday night because he was going to be sent back to China ahead of schedule.

''I found myself in a dangerous situation, personally and politically. And that's why I decided to defect,'' he said through a translator. ''I'm not afraid. ... Now I am free of all the worries I had in the embassy.''

Xu said he was ''in the process'' of applying for political asylum but had not yet contacted the State Department. State Department officials said they would have no immediate comment on their response to Xu's action.

Xu refused to comment on the whereabouts of his wife and daughter, citing security considerations. But Qiang Xiao, a spokesman for the Independent Federation of Chinese Students and Scholars, which is helping Xu, said the diplomat's family left China but was not in the United States.

Xu said 70 people have defected from Chinese embassies and consulates worldwide since the government crushed a budding democracy movement June 4 in Beijing's Tiananmen Square. He said there have been 14 defections in the United States - five in Washington, four in both San Francisco and Chicago and one in New York.

Xu said he believed the ''majority'' of the 200 workers at the Chinese Embassy in Washington, as well as most Chinese officials in general, support the goals of the democracy movement.

''China has stepped backward into tragedy and totalitarian repression,'' he said, speaking on the 71st anniversary of the May 4th student movement for democracy in China.

''Every Chinese citizen with a conscience feels this is a tragic time in the history of China,'' Xu said. ''Surely this regime and strategy will fail.''

Xu said his responsibilities at the embassy included supervising Chinese students in the United States. He said he got into trouble by openly supporting the pro-democracy movement in China.

Among the ways he demonstrated his support was by refusing to forward to his superiors reports on the activities of pro-democracy Chinese students in America that were sent to the embassy by anonymous Chinese students.

Xu said he was told by friends in China that he was ''blacklisted'' as a security risk. He said he was told by his superiors that his four-year term of service had been reduced to two years - meaning he would have to return to China in July.

Xu, who has a master's degree in hydraulic and marine engineering, said he was not yet sure what he would do in the United States, and added that he realized it would take time to adust to his new life.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (MAY 4) UPI - Police arrested a suspected thief after a 41-minute car chase that would have been more exciting if the man had only accelerated a bit.

Suspect Elton Daniel Guest stayed safely under the 55-mph speed limit throughout Thursday's leisurely chase, which eventually involved 10 sheriff's patrol cars, some state troopers and a helicopter.

''He never drove erratically or recklessly,'' police spokesman Asa Higgs said. ''He just wouldn't stop.''

The not-so-hot pursuit began when a police officer turned on his car's blue lights after spotting Guest, who was wanted on a warrant for theft. Guest ignored him and drove - at the speed limit - to a nearby interstate highway.

Up to 10 police cars, two at a time, cruised behind Guest as he neatly steered through traffic onto two other highways before pulling over on a smaller road.

Guest was in jail Friday, charged with fleeing and attempting to elude police.

HOUSTON (MAY 4) UPI - Donald Trump may never set foot in the small southwest Houston bar but he still doesn't like its name.

Ron Schaefer, owner of Trumps Pub, received a certified letter from a representative of the billionaire businessman ordering him to ''cease and desist'' false claims that ''Donald Trump is endorsing your business activities.''

The letter from Joseph Silver threatened legal action if Schaefer did not come up with another name within 24 hours of receiving the letter.

Schaefer says his club is a ''neighborhood bar, complete with darts, games and friendly people'' and denies being a Trump wanna-be.

The pub's name came out of brainstorming session with his partners, who brought up the game of bridge because one man's wife was an ardent player, he said Thursday.

The resulting name was chosen because ''Trump cards are winners,'' Schaefer said.

No one even joked about any connection between the pub, which opened in January, and Donald Trump.

Silver said even though the bar's name lacks an apostrophe, it can be considered a trademark theft ''as long as it is likely to cause confusion.''

He said Trump owns the DONALD TRUMP and TRUMP trademarks and that the Trump Organization has ''people on retainer merely to do this type of work. We do this every day.''

Silver said he would seek a court order against Schaefer if the bar owner fails to comply.

But Schaefer said his attorney is drafting a response, refusing to change the name.

''Well, what can I do?'' he said. ''I don't know if I can take on Donald Trump, but I would like to hang on to the name if I can.''

LINCOLN, NE (MAY 4) UPI - An informal network of residents has formed to catch Perita, a pregnant dog that has been wandering around the city for the past month.

So far no one has been able to catch the elusive canine and her owners - Coni and Dennis Nuernberger - always seem to be a step or two behind her. Her puppies are due May 15.

''She's shy of people anyway but she gets real skittish when she's pregnant,'' Mrs. Nuernberger said. ''She won't let anyone near her and she won't stay in one place. She's scared.''

Perita, a miniature collie, vamoosed a month ago but has since been spotted at three locations in eastern Lincoln. By the time the Nuernbergers arrive, the dog is gone.

''We have run notices on the radio. We've been running advertisements in the newspaper. We call the Humane Society and Animal Control every day. We even have a special message on the answering machine that says, 'Yes, we've lost a dog.'''

An informal network of help has been developing across the city to nab the slippery pooch. Residents have not only been calling the Nuernbergers with tips and sightings, they are checking back to see if the dog has been found.

A woman, a stranger to the Nuernbergers, recently wrote the newspaper and urged residents to be on the lookout.

Nuernberger said residents should not try to catch the dog but instead call him if it is seen. There is a reward.

MIAMI (MAY 4) UPI - CentTrust Federal Savings Bank has filed a mortgage foreclosure suit against ousted Chairman David L. Paul, alleging he is not making the $60,000 monthly payments on his La Gorce Island estate.

CenTrust, which the government seized Feb. 2, said in the suit it wants a $6.06 million mortgage repaid immediately. The suit also names Paul's wife Sandra, alleging that she owes the bank $800,000.

The suit, filed this week, alleges that the Pauls fell into default on March 1 and ''have failed to cure and correct the aforesaid default.''

Paul's attorney, Sanford Bohrer, said his client ''absolutely'' will contest the foreclosure suits, even though Paul has moved to a Miami Beach high-rise.

''They're going to have big problems,'' Bohrer said. ''When you illegally seize an institution, and illegaly fire someone, you may not have the right to foreclose.''

The La Gorce estate, which fronts Biscayne Bay, has two homes and a huge teak dock. While he lived there, Paul designed a waterfall and Japanese garden.

Paul put the property up for sale early this year with an asking price of $9.5 million. Last week, a security guard hired by the federal government to watch the property from a boat claimed Paul struck him when the guard stepped onto the property during a storm.

Recently, Paul's Grand Cru luxury yacht was sold for a loss, and the state was paid more than $400,000 in back sales taxes.

Paul once controlled more than half the outstanding stock of CenTrust, but those shares are now worthless. He also has lost compensation that, according to regulators, totaled $4.8 million in the last 21 months that Paul controlled CenTrust.

According to the most recent complaint filed by regulators, there are more than a dozen liens, most by contractors, against the property. The complaint also said the federal government has a tax lien against Paul filed earlier this year for $1.2 million.

CenTrust attorneys declined to comment. Regulators have long alleged that Paul's lavish lifestyle, including the estate, was funded by CenTrust rather than Paul.

(MAY 4) UPI - The Labor Department reports that the nation's jobless rate climbed two-tenths of one percent in April to five-point-four percent. The department cited layoffs in heavy industry for the highest unemployment rise since September 1988. Private analysts had expected a lower number, mainly because the Census Bureau hired thousands of temporary workers last month.

Convicted killer Jesse Tafero became the 22nd person executed in Florida's electric chair in the last 14 years. The 43-year-old Tafero was put to death this morning for the 1976 slayings of two policemen at a highway rest stop. Tafero's final request for a stay late yesterday was denied by the U-S Supreme Court.

Tafero's last meal included scrambled eggs, fried pepperoni, toasted Italian bread, asparagus tips steamed brocoli and fresh strawberry shortcake.

Some three-thousand people are participating in a 12-hour vigil at Kent State University in Ohio before today's dedication of a memorial to four students slain there 20 years ago during an anti-Vietnam War protest. Several of the nine students who were wounded- including James Russell- joined the vigil. Russell says he's ''never come to grips'' with the National Guardsmen opening fire.

TYLER, TX (MAY 4) UPI - Character witnesses for three white former law officers convicted of beating a black jail inmate to death testified Friday that the men would be safe candidates for probation rather than going to prison.

Their testimony came in the penalty phase of the trial of three former Sabine County officers convicted Thursday in the 1987 murder of Loyal Garner Jr., of Florien, La.

Defense attorneys spent most of the morning calling witnesses who testified to the character of the defendants and said they would be likely to honor any probation requirements.

Final arguments were expected in the late morning and the jury was expected to begin deliberations later in the day.

The all-white jury deliberated about four hours Thursday before returning the verdict in the trial of former Police Chief Thomas Ladner, 43, of the southeast Texas community of Hemphill and former sheriff's deputies James Hyden, 36, and Bill R. Horton, 60.

The defendants are subject to sentences ranging from probation to life in prison.

Garner died of massive head injuries in a Tyler hospital two days after the beating Christmas night 1987 in the Sabine County Jail at Hemphill. Garner had never been in trouble with the law before.

Jeff Haas, an attorney for Horton, argued before the jury verdict Thursday against prison time, which he said might be ''tantamount to a death sentence'' for the former officers.

''I think that's something they should have thought about before beating Loyal Garner Jr. to death,'' District Attorney Jack Skeen Jr. said.

''I had to shed some tears. It was joyful tears,'' Sarah Garner, the victim's mother, said after hearing the verdict. ''I felt we had never had justice in this case.''

The three former officers were acquitted of civil rights charges in a trial in Hemphill in 1988. Ladner's attorney, John Seale, said the defendants will appeal their convictions based on the double jeopardy issue.

''You don't have to be a judge or anything else to know that,'' Seale said. ''You learn that in junior high school civics. The witnesses were the same. The testimony was the same exactly.''

In closing arguments, Skeen told the jury Garner was beating on his cell door demanding to call his wife and Ladner was overzealous in his efforts to quiet him. Garner had been arrested for drunken driving.

''He went in there and put an end to it (the beating on the jail cell door) and in the process put an end to the life of Loyal Garner Jr.,'' Skeen said. ''And his six children are going to grow up without a daddy because their father banged on the door in the Sabine County Jail.''

The defense claimed Ladner hit Garner in self-defense just one time. Then, in the booking room, where the defendants had taken Garner so he could make a phone call, the inmate grabbed for a flashlight and stumbled, smacking his head on a wall.

The case increased racial tension in the Sabine County area and sparked a protest rally.

PARIS (MAY 4) UPI - Conservative opposition parties presented a no-confidence motion Friday in the National Assembly against Socialist Prime Minister Michel Rocard, accusing his government of using an amnesty law to protect Socialist politicians charged with corruption.

The motion of no confidence introduced in the lower house of Parliament was signed by Charles Millon, an official of the Union for French Democracy grouping, Bernard Pons, a leader of the neo-Gaullist Rally for the Republic Party, and Pierre Mehaignerie, an official of the Union of the Democratic Center and 62 other opposition deputies.

The measure, known as a motion of censure in France, will be debated and voted on next week.

Political experts said it has almost no chance of passage because the Communist Party pledged Thursday to support the minority Socialist government in defeating ''this derisory motion,'' even though the Communists also are unhappy about the issue.

The motion accused the government of ''deceiving'' Parliament when it proposed an amnesty law while giving public assurances the measure would not apply to elected politicians. The law was passed Dec. 21 and the government squeezed in an amendment at the last minute to cover some political offenses.

The law subsequently was used in the case of a Socialist former minister, Christian Nucci, who was charged with illegal use of campaign funds. The charges were dropped because of the amnesty law.

On Wednesday the issue hit headlines again when nine local politicians were granted amnesty or had charges against them dropped in a corruption scandal involving false receipts.

In a democracy, the motion said, ''one cannot have two systems of justice.''

Although the motion stood virtually no chance of passage, the rare prospect of facing a united opposition was likely to worry Rocard and President Francois Mitterrand, both of whom have lost ground in opinion polls recently.

Former Prime Minister Jacques Chirac first proposed the no confidence motion, and rivals within the mainstream right endorsed it.

Former Interior Minister Charles Pasqua and his ally, Philippe Seguin, said they were ''totally in accord'' with the initiative.

Michel Noir, the dashing mayor of Lyon who is often at odds with the immigration policies of Chirac's Rally for the Republic Party, said he also felt it was ''good that there is common censure motion by the opposition.''

Justice Minister Pierre Arpaillange came under attack by Jean Foyer, who was justice minister under Charles de Gaulle, because of the amnesty law.

Arpaillange, Foyer said flatly, ''is not capable of being a minister. A courageous justice minister would have opposed the amnesty law.''

Foyer also criticized the Socialists for supporting a Communist Party bill passed by the National Assembly Thursday that will make inciting racial hatred or violence a crime punished by deprivation of many civic rights.

''It is politically stupid, for one makes (right-wing extremist) Jean-Marie Le Pen appear a persecuted martyr,'' he said.

AUGUSTA, ME (MAY 4) UPI - Gov. John R. McKernan has invited scores of leather-jacketed motorcyclists to join him for tea at his official residence.

The annual party May 16 will be the third one for the bikers, who will come from all over the state.

''He does it because (the bikers) are a group that has demonstrated the desire to help people in Maine,'' Willis Lyford, McKernan's press secretary, said Friday.

''Just because they wear leather jackets and ride powerful motorcycles doesn't mean that they shouldn't be extended the same courtesies as other groups.''

The United Bikers of Maine, a statewide motorcycle rights group, sponsors an annual Toy Run every September. Last year more than 7,000 bikers took part, and they gathered more than $40,000 worth of toys for the Salvation Army to distribute at Christmas.

McKernan likes the Toy Run, Lyford said, and the Blaine House tea is a way of thanking the bikers.

''It's not the normal kind of event that we have at the Blaine House, but the governor wants to show his appreciation for the work they do,'' Lyford said.

Last year, scores of gleaming motorcycles, almost all of them big Harley-Davidsons, lined the driveway of the official residence as their owners hobnobbed inside with McKernan and other state officials.

LONDON (MAY 4) UPI - Stock prices closed sharply higher in moderate trading Friday on the London International stock exchange amid a better-than-expected showing by the Conservative party in local elections.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which slipped 2.7 points Thursday, climbed 27.3 points to 2,162.2, ending the week with its biggest gain in more than a month.

For the week, the key index, which measures the value of Britain's largest 100 companies in terms of market capitalization, posted a gain of 55.6 points.

The narrower top 30 industrial average gained 20.2 points to 1,696.8 and 38.10 points for the week.

Volume was around 437 million shares, compared with 392 million shares Thursday.

In recent weeks, the market has been depressed by opinion polls showing the declining popularity of the ruling Conservative Party, especially after a poll last weekend showed the Tories were set to lose up to 600 council seats in Thursday's local elections.

Analysts said a certain amount of relief entered the market when it became clear that the opposition Labour Party's gains were not as high as predicted.

Analysts said that although the Labour Party posted substantial gains in the elections, voters did not punish Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for her controversial poll tax as harshlyas has been predicted.

In addition, market watchers said, the market was boosted by some technical program trading.

Investors will take a break for a banking holiday Monday. Trading will resume Tuesday.

The election results and anticipation of financial statements later this month helped British Telecom gain 8 cents to $4.14 and moved British Gas 12 cents higher to $3.23.

In the property and building sector, Stanley Miller was suspended at the company's request pending clarification of its financial position after the stock plunged 48 cents to 32 cents a share.

Insurance issues advanced under the brighter trading mood.

General Accident gained 35 cents to $16.48 as investors speculated the company will report higher results next week.

Rolls-Royce gained 6 cents $3.15 on news of a jet engine joint venture with West Germany's BMW.

Elsewhere in Europe, prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange extended this week's broad rally as investors were cheered by reports of a breakthrough in previously deadlocked labor talks in the metalworking industry.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 38.38 points Thursday climbed another 31.10 points to 1,912.89.

The key index rose 99.64 points, or 5.5 percent, over the course of the week, which included a holiday on May Day Tuesday.

AYLESBURY, ENGLAND (MAY 4) UPI - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and French President Francois Mitterrand, responding to President Bush's plan not to modernize short-range nuclear weapons in Europe, indicated Friday they may cooperate on their own nuclear weapons programs.

The two leaders stressed the need for closer cooperation on defense during a one-day summit at a 19th century French-style chateau north of London.

''If something unfortunate was to happen on the continent, we would need to bring reserves through French ports,'' Thatcher said at a news conference after the meeting. ''We are both of us the only independent nuclear deterrent powers in Europe.''

The Bush administration, signalling a stepped-up pace for shaping Europe's post-Cold War future, Thursday halted programs to modernize the U.S. nuclear arsenal and build a new ground-based missile system for Europe.

In response, Thatcher and Mitterrand asked their foreign and defense ministers to meet to enhance bilateral cooperation.

The nations are already cooperating in purchases of military hardware, including anti-air missile and radar systems, and are considering working together on future frigate programs and certain nuclear programs, the British Defense Ministry said.

''No field is precluded from such cooperation,'' including work on nuclear weapons, Mitterrand said at a news conference.

Thatcher, a staunch advocate of nuclear weapons as a deterrent to war, indicated she wanted to maintain a short-range nuclear strike capability for the foreseeable future.

''The decisions not to modernize will put increasing importance on free falling nuclear bombs,'' she said. ''They will need to be modernized to missiles from air to ground.''

Mitterrand said he approved of Bush's announcement since it meshed with his own position on short-range nuclear arms. But he said France would want to link further cuts to concrete results in the conventional arms reduction talks in Vienna.

The two leaders said they also discussed Gorbachev's precarious position in the increasingly turbulent Soviet Union, where the three Baltic republics are agitating for independence from Moscow.

''One detects here and there certain elements of fragility that could become dangerous,'' Mitterrand said when asked whether he believed Gorbachev would survive his latest troubles. ''It is impossible to apply international political relationships without thinking about all possibilities.''

Regarding Lithuania's declaration of independence, Mitterrand said France intended ''to safeguard the self-determination of Lithuania, as our diplomacy has been aimed at for years. But this is something that should not be solved by force.''

Neither Britain nor France recognized the Soviet's annexation of the Baltics in 1940.

''We still think the situation can best be resolved by continuing discussions,'' Thatcher said.

Mitterrand and Thatcher also discussed the future of European unity, and the prospect of East European countries joining the Council of Europe.

They said they hoped to meet in the service tunnel of the Channel Tunnel when it connects Britain and France in November.

''It will alter historically the position of the United Kingdom to the mainland of Europe fundamentally ... and that is a very practical thing,'' Thatcher said.

They also discussed shifting politics in South Africa.

Mitterrand and Thatcher met last weekend during a European Community summit in Dublin, where leaders of the 12 member nations instructed their foreign ministers to set terms of reference for European political union.

France had initially been concerned about the possible economic domination of Europe by a united Germany, and analysts predicted Paris and London would forge greater links to balance the emerging power of Bonn.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl moved, however, to assuage French fears and Bonn and Paris have recently reached a closer relationship, with Kohl and Mitterrand rising as leading advocates of European unity.

They last week called for swifter progress, proposing a single European currency be created by late 1992.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - With defense industry layoffs already starting, the Senate Armed Services Committee heard competing ideas Friday about how to cushion the economic blow of rapidly declining defense spending.

The suggestions ran the range from minimal government meddling in private industry to economic-adjustment legislation to protect workers. And the committee's Defense Industry Subcommittee spent the morning discussing a topic that will affect communities, defense plants and bases as Pentagon spending falls.

Three million people are employed in defense-related jobs, and the Defense Department employes 1.1 million civilians. Half a million people are directly employed in the manufacture of guns, ships, planes and other weaponry. And in the last 10 days three major firms have announced layoffs to eliminate 10,000 jobs in defense and aerospace industries.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., has proposed legislation - to be financed in part by savings created with lower defense spending - to continue health benefits for laid-off workers, provide retraining help, make contractors start planning now for alternative uses for their facilities, and give workers at least six months advance notice of a plant closing.

''The management of this adjustment is the first order of business in the post-Cold War world,'' Pell told the panel. ''It would be ironic indeed if we were unable to manage the readjustment of the magnificent defense industrial base that played such an important role in bringing us to the position we find ourselves in.''

Also testifying was Stanley Pace, chairman of General Dynamics Corp., a Texas firm that produces, among other things, the F-16 fighter, the Trident submarine, M-1 tanks and Tomahawk cruise missiles.

Pace urged a gradual reduction in spending, arguing rapid cuts will endanger the ability of industry to rebound for higher output in any future crisis. He suggested that key weapons systems should be identified and there should be at least one, preferably two manufacturers, and that an extensive research and development program should be maintained.

''We are all aware that the defense industry build-down will be challenging and often painful,'' said Pace. ''But we must be careful that we do not reshape our defense capabilities, both technologically and industrially, just for budgetary or political reasons.

''We will not be able to resurrect these capabilities, should we lose them without enormous expense and a great loss of time, both of which could cause grave damage to our nation's security.''

William Haggett, chairman of Bath Iron Works Corp., a Maine shipyard, noted that virtually all the work at U.S. shipyards is for the Navy, and urged that the government help make U.S. yards competitive in world markets.

Gordon Adams, director of the Defense Budget Project, said that while the impact may be serious for some communities and manufacturers, the reduced spending will have little effect on the economy as a whole.

Defense spending, he noted, is 5.5 percent of the gross national product, and a 5 percent annual cut in defense spending will not amount to much when matched against the GNP.

Major contractors such as McDonnell Douglass, Grumman, Northrop, Lockheed, General Dynamics and Martin Marietta rely on the Pentagon for more than two-thirds of their sales, Adams noted, and for them ''the transition may be bumpy, especiaily (for) those such as Northrop and Grumman who rely on relatively few hardware programs with uncertain futures.''

Adams also recommended against creating a separate benefits program for workers affected by defense cuts.

PORTLAND, OR (MAY 4) UPI - Jury deliberations began Thursday in the federal perjury trial of Richard Brenneke, a self-styled CIA agent who claimed the Reagan-Bush campaign tried to delay the release of 52 American hostages from Iran until after the 1980 presidential election.

Brenneke is accused of lying to a federal judge in a Denver bank fraud trial two years ago about his connections with the Central Intelligence Agency and about the Oct. 20-21, 1980, Paris meetings involving representatives of the Republican candidates and several Iranians, which the government claims never took place.

He claimed Reagans agents promised Iran weapons - Iraq invaded Iran the month before - to delay the release of the hostages until after the election. The government said Brenneke never worked for the CIA and the meetings never took place.

The jury received the case at 9:20 a.m. following closing arguments and instructions from U.S. District Judge Malcolm Marsh. If convicted of the false declarations charge, Brenneke faces up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas O'Rourke of Denver painted Brenneke as a man who ''danced around the fringes of intelligence'' but never was let into the intelligence community. He said Brenneke applied to work for the CIA in 1968 and was rejected.

Brenneke's attorney, Michael Scott, urged the jury to look at the evidence and questioned the testimony of government officials who denied Brenneke had worked for the CIA. In intelligence, he said, ''The name of the game is to deceive.''

Brenneke testified Thursday he attended one of the Paris meetings as the financial advisor due to his experience in international money-laundering.

''I was asked if I would handle the financial interactions, if they should occur,'' he said. ''In order to do so, I needed to know who was involved, the companies involved and the objective.''

Brenneke said the Oct. 20 meeting at which he was present was attended by the late CIA director William Casey, who then was manager of the Reagan-Bush campaign; Donald Gregg, a CIA agent who became the national security adviser to Vice President Bush in 1982; suspected Iranian arms dealer Cyrus Hashemi, and several other Iranians he did not recognize.

Brenneke repeated an earlier revision of his Denver testimony, saying he was told that Bush attended the meetings but did not see the vice presidential candidate at the session he attended.

''Mr. Bush was absolutely, unequivicably not at any meeting I attended in Paris, France,'' said Brenneke.

Frank Snepp, who said he was a CIA staff employee from 1968-75, testified Thursday that Brenneke provided him with reliable information when he worked as a special consultant on intelligence for a popular ABC-TV news show.

Snepp, who called the CIA ''a house of many mansions,'' said the ability of the agency to deny that people worked for it was an essential part of its purpose.

Brenneke's heart problems forced the trial to be moved from Denver and sent him to the hospital for three days last week.

DETROIT (MAY 4) UPI - General Motors Corp. is enlisting its hourly workers, designers, dealers, and even retirees to hawk its newest products in a bid to erase perceptions about poor quality and regain market share lost during the 1980s, the automaker said Friday.

The campaign, estimated to cost some $40 million, will involve about 1.2 million people affiliated with the giant automaker, many of which will get paid only $1 for appearing in ads.

"This is the largest marketing effort in GM history," company spokesman Harold Jackson said. "The theme is 'Putting Quality on the Road."' The blitz, which began this weekend and has no ending date, is seen as laying the groundwork for a spate of new products vital to GM, like its new Saturn import-fighter sedans due this fall.

It also stems from realizations by top company brass that customers who bought GM products during the past decade may not be in the market for a new GM car again.

Those results are bolstered by independent studies that show Americans are less willing to buy a domestically made vehicle again than an Asian one, even after experiencing a similar number of problems.

The campaign, which began this weekend in multi-page advertisements in major newspapers and in 20 cities where GM has facilities, is also seen as a way to build on scant market share gains made during the first quarter. GM's share of the total U.S. vehicle market during the first three months of 1990 rose 0.7 percent from year-ago levels to 35.2 percent.

"But a good part of that was import-derived cars, like its new Geo division," said industry analyst David Healy, of Barclays Bank BZW in New York, adding that many of those vehicles are built by other automakers, and that GM does not make much money on them.

GM's latest slice of the fiercely competitive vehicle market is also a far cry from the 44.1 percent car and light truck market share it commanded in 1980, the high point of the last decade.

The marketing blitz, developed with advertising agencies McCann-Erickson and N.W. Ayer Inc., says in part that GM cars are now more reliable and much better built than they were in the mid-1980s. In fact, some ads even acknowledge that the top automaker still has some way to go to surpass the Japanese in quality levels.

An internal study recently obtained by UPI confirmed that. The confidential report, completed earlier this year, listed "problems per 100 vehicles," and ranked those levels according to its North American assembly plants.

The study showed that some high-volume GM cars, like the Chevrolet Cavalier, Beretta, and Corsica models, still have a high number of "problems" per vehicle, which also include customer complaints about design and other concerns. Its Buick LeSabre and some luxury models were near the top of the list, but still below levels of many Japanese models.

GM stressed that the report by saying it does not only measure assembly or materials defects, but reflects how consumers accept the design of a vehicle, like the size of its trunk or the placement of the radio.

The United Auto Workers union has said workers are sometimes given a poor design or poor materials to work with, and said the study is not a direct reflection of workers doing a shoddy job.

GM, which posted a 54 percent decline in overall first quarter earnings to $710 million, is to negotiate a new labor pact with the UAW this summer to replace one that expires Sept. 14.

But analysts say such consumer perceptions, whether based on a poor paint job or poor design, are critical to retaining customers at trade-in time, hence GM's latest campaign.

"They have a good story to tell," said analyst Jack Kirnan, of Kidder Peabody & Co., in New York, noting that GM's efforts seem to build on Chrysler Corp.'s current marketing campaign extolling the advantages of its cars, as well as American cars in general.

"For so long the mentality in Detroit has been to compete with each other, when in reality it is more the Asian automakers they must fight," Kirnan said. "Detroit automakers are finally saying that if you want value, American cars are not really a bad choice because they are less expensive and getting better in quality."

Kirnan also said U.S. automakers may be playing on what seems to being a growing resentment toward Japanese business.

"There seems to be a very sharp rise in anti-Japanese sentiment because of all the business and real estate buying," he noted. "That may be putting a fear in Main Street America that this threatens job security. "One way they can better that equation is to buy an American car," Kirnan said. "After all, the consumer is king."

HONG KONG (MAY 4) UPI - Police fired more than 100 tear gas cannisters Friday to quell rioting at Hong Kong's largest refugee camp by boat people opposed to a pre-dawn search for weapons, officials said.

The weapons search at Whitehead Detention Center was ordered following an attempted breakout Thursday from the camp by about 50 inmates, and the escape of more than 100 boat people in a mass breakout Sunday. Most of the escapees remained at large.

Officers conducting the weapons search were met by stone-throwing Vietnamese behind makeshift barricades, but police said opposition by more than 100 boat people melted away after more than 100 tear gas cannisters were fired into the rebellious crowd.

Authorities said 10 of the 20,000 inmates of Hong Kong's largest detention center were arrested in the melee, which lasted about one hour, and 180 others described as ''troublemakers'' were transferred to other detention facilities in the British colony.

The search of the camp by about 1,500 officers continued most of the day and officials said more than 2,500 homemade weapons were confiscated - the largest single haul from any Vietnamese camp.

More than 54,000 Vietnamese are housed in the Hong Kong camps, most of them awaiting return to Vietnam as illegal immigrants.

INGERSOLL, ONTARIO (MAY 4) UPI - CAMI Automotive Inc. will add a second shift to its assembly line in September to increase production of its subcompact car, marketed in the United States as the Geo Metro and the Suzuki Swift, the company said Friday.

CAMI President Masayuki Ikuma said about 600 jobs will be created to bring the southwestern Ontario plant's car and sport utility lines to full production. CAMI currently employs 1,400 people. A second shift is being added because CAMI will begin distributing the subcompact car to Canadian dealers in the 1991 model year, the company said.

The joint General Motors of Canada and Suzuki Motor Co. of Japan plant produces the Chevrolet Sprint and Pontiac Firefly for Canada, the Geo Metro for the U.S., and the Suzuki Swift for both markets.

Also produced at the plant is a sport utility vehicle marketed as the Chevrolet/GMC Tracker in Canada and as the GEO Tracker in the U.S., and the Suzuki Sidekick in both countries. The joint manufacturing facility began production of the sport utility vehicle in April, 1989 and the subcompact car in November, 1989.

GDANSK, POLAND (MAY 4) UPI - West German President Richard von Weizsaecker laid a wreath Friday at a monument commemorating the outbreak of World War II and praised the city ''where the will to be free was born.''

''Germans know how much they owe to this city,'' Weizsaecker said on landing in Gdansk, the birthplace of Solidarity, where the first free East bloc labor union was founded in 1980.

''It was here where the will to be free was born,'' Weizsaecker said, noting Solidarity's role in sparking calls for freedom and representative government across the East bloc leading to the collapse of communist governments, including the ruling party in East Germany.

Weizsaecker arrived in Poland on a four-day official visit Wednesday at the invitation of his Polish counterpart Wojciech Jaruzelski.

The West German president's visit was one of reconciliation. The two peoples have been involved in various conflicts for centuries, and Weizsaecker hoped to assure Poles their Western border on the Oder and Neisse rivers will never be questioned by a united Germany.

Poland got a big chunk of former German territories east of the Oder and Neisse rivers at the end of World War II but West Germany has failed to officially recognize the border as inviolable.

Weizsaecker, who as a teenager was one of thousands of Nazi soldiers who invaded Poland on Sept. 1, 1939, laid a wreath at the monument to 192 Polish soldiers who for six days defended the Westerplatte peninsula.

A handful of Polish soldiers withstood the attacks of German troops from the air, sea and land and their bravado is widely acknowledged in Polish history.

The West German president later met Solidarity leader Lech Walesa for 45 minutes in the union's headquarters.

Walesa said at the meeting that the Polish Western border should be recognized as ''a matter of fact.''

The Solidarity leader said the delay in recognizing the border line has increased fears among Poles of a renewed military threat from a united Germany which prevents Poland from concentrating on economic issues.

''I am afraid that delaying the recognition of the concrete fact does not permit us to sort out our internal problems,'' Walesa said.

A recent survey by the state-run CBOS polling office and carried by the official news agency PAP said only 6 percent of Poles believed a reconciliation between Poland and the Germanies ''fully possible'', while 41 percent were optimistic and 38 sceptical.

According to the survey, 70 percent of Poles are still afraid of Germans and 10 percent remain leery of Russians, and ''prevailing is the view that the Germans from West and East Germany are equally dangerous.''

Another poll by the Solidarity newspaper Gazeta Wyborcza said the popularity of Walesa had dropped by 3 percent in one month and only 16.1 percent of Poles favored him as president.

Walesa said last month he would run for the presidency to replace communist President Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Solidarity Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki was supported by 24 percent of Poles for the job, while Bronislaw Geremek, the chairman of the Solidarity Parliamentary Caucus, was second with 19 percent and Jaruzelski third, ahead of Walesa with 16.5 percent.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (MAY 4) UPI - President Violeta Chamorro sat down Friday with top Contra leader Israel Galeano, known as ''Commandante Franklin,'' in an unprecedented meeting to discuss the disbanding of the U.S.-backed rebels.

A delegation of several Contra rebels, most dressed in camouflage fatigues met with Chamorro at the Olof Palme Convention Center in downtown Managua.

It was the first time Galeano had been allowed to set foot in Managua since the start of the nine-year civil war between the Sandinista army and the Contras.

Representing Chamorro's 9-day-old government were Interior Minister Carlos Hurtado and top presidential aide Antonio Lacayo.

The Contras signed an agreement April 19 in which they promised to gather in designated security zones by April 25 and to hand in their weapons under United Nations supervision by June 10. The Contras have moved into the security zones, but to date have not begun to disarm.

Contra leaders said Thursday they were seeking ''guarantees'' from the Chamorro government that they would not be attacked once they surrender their arms and that they be given provisions to ease their transition to civilian life.

They have also said they will not disarm until they see that the same is being done by portions of the army, made up mostly of Sandinistas who are loyal to the previous regime of outgoing President Daniel Ortega.

''The best thing for peace in Nicaragua is the demilitarization of the country,'' Aristides Sanchez, a civilian member of the Contra delegation, said Thursday.

Chamorro has said the army will be reduced from its present size of about 70,000 regular troops.

Galeano said Thursday he wanted to discuss with Chamorro the political and economic stability of the country, which has been uncertain since she assumed office April 25 from Ortega.

Galeano said he would not press demands that Chamorro rescind the appointment of Humberto Ortega as army chief. General Ortega, Daniel's brother, has controlled the army since shortly after the 1979 revolution that brought the Sandinistas to power, and the Contras have expressed fears that unless he leaves, the army will still be controlled by the Sandinistas.

Galeano said he was looking forward to the day ''when all the social classes of the country, without divisions based on political ideologies, make up one body to resolve the social, economic and political situation of the country.''

Daniel Ortega, at a news conference called on the eve of Friday's talks, warned the Chamorro government not to alter the April 19 disarmament pact.

''The people of this country are worried that the Contras are not going to disarm,'' he said. ''They have been the victims of this war.

''There cannot be more negotiations,'' Ortega said. ''There cannot be another version (of this agreement). The people of the countryside depend on the Sandinistas to protect them.''

Chamorro took office April 25 after winning a surprise landslide victory over Daniel Ortega in Feb. 25 national elections, ending a decade of controversial rule by the leftist Sandinista Front.

The Reagan administration provided hundreds of millions of dollars in military and humanitarian U.S. aid to the Contras, who fought unsuccessfully to topple the Sandinistas since 1981.

(MAY 4) UPI - The issue of independence is on the Latvian Parliament's agenda today after a failed bid to stymie the move. Nationalist lawmakers overcame a filibuster bid by Russian conservatives today and voted 139-56 to put the question of independence to a vote later today. This afternoon's balloting is expected to fall along the same lines, with nationalists having about five more votes than the two-thirds necessary to end a half-century of Soviet rule.

The Labor Department reports that last month's jobless rate was at its highest since January of last year. The Department says heavy industry pushed the April jobless rate up to five-point-four percent... a two-tenths of one percent increase from the previous month. Private analysts had expected the rate to be lower... mainly because the Census Bureau hired thousands of temporary workers last month.

A Florida State Prison spokesman says a faulty sponge in a headpiece is to blame for unusual flames and smoke at the execution this morning of convicted killer Jesse Tafero. He was executed for the 1976 slayings of two police officers at a highway rest stop. Officials say flames shot out around Tafero and smoke rose to the ceiling of the chamber at the Starke, Florida, prison when three jolts of electricity were administered over about three minutes.

A West German weekly magazine reports in Bonn that the Libyan government is building an underground chemical weapons plant, possibly with West German help. The magazine says in a brief statement discussing the story in a coming edition that the plant is being built at Sabha, about 400 miles south of the Libyan capital of Tripoli. The report comes two months after a fire reportedly destroyed a similar facility.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - DuBois Gilliam, one-time top aide at the scandal-scarred housing department, testified Friday that former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce lied when he denied any involvement in making grants on the basis of political favoritism.

But Gilliam, testifying under a grant of immunity, also told a House Government Operations subcommittee chaired by Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., that he knew of no illegal activities by Pierce during his eight-year tenure at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Gilliam, who is serving an 18-month prison term for conspiracy and accepting illegal gratuities while serving as deputy assistant secretary for program policy development, said Pierce was intimately involved in directing some projects be funded and personally approved other politically motivated projects.

The HUD scandal revolves around allegations that millions of scarce housing dollars for the poor were passed along to political cronies and business associates of Pierce and other Reagan administration officials.

As Gilliam's three days of testimony drew to an end, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., recalled Pierce's testimony before the panel nearly a year ago that he only asked top aides to see that proposals by friendly politicians and developers were given ''careful consideration.''

''I never told these people to fund anything,'' Pierce testified.

''That's untrue isn't it,'' Schumer asked Gilliam.

''In the program areas I had ... I was told what projects to fund,'' Gilliam replied.

Schumer also asked about Pierce's claim he had no ''hands on'' control of grant-making decisions, saying that Pierce's contention was false.

''As far as the (Secretary's) discretionary (Fund), it is false,'' Gilliam said.

Again, asked about Pierce's testimony, Gilliam said, ''When Secretary Pierce wanted something done, he'd say, 'Fund it.'''

''Really, what you're saying here is that Secretary Pierce lied to this committee,'' Schumer said.

Pierce, who has refused to testify again before the subcommittee, is under investigation by an independent prosecutor for his role in the award of Section 8 moderate rehabilitation grants.

But the prosecutor's mandate does not include investigation of the special projects fund and technical assistance program bankrolled through the Secretary's Discretionary Fund, which Gilliam said was used extensively as a political slush fund.

Gilliam also testified that when HUD Inspector General Paul Adams questioned grants made under the discretionary fund, ''I told him to go blank himself'' and later wrongly accused Adams of being a ''racist.''

Gilliam said he used the racism charge ''as a way of encouraging Paul Adams to back off.'' Adams is white; Pierce and Gilliam are black.

Lantos described the technical assistance program of the Secretary's Discretionary Fund as a kind of a ''dialing for dollars ... a cross between a slush fund and a political action committee.''

Under the program, cities are supposed to ask for the assistance to aid groups receiving community development money. But Gilliam said that sometimes grants were awarded without any request.

In one instance, he said, he had to travel to Camden, N.J., and tell city officials to write a letter requesting the funds because Pierce wanted to give $350,000 to the Center for Resource Development, a firm created by two of Pierce's friends simply to receive the grant.

One of those friends, Samuel Singletary, was under indictment at the time for stealing funds from a job training program in New York.

Gilliam testified Pierce ''told me he wanted me to help Sam Singletary get some funds because he was down and out. ... He told me to fund the project.''

(MAY 4) UPI - The former national AIDS co-ordinator for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference is suing the civil rights group founded by Dr. Martin Luther King Junior. Brenda Taylor-Hines filed a lawsuit in Atlanta this week, charging that she was fired because she refused to discriminate against a dark-skinned co-worker and rejected what she termed the ''lustful pursuit'' of S-C-L-C President Joseph Lowery.

Opening arguments are scheduled today in the trial of a Christian Scientist couple charged with manslaughter in the death of their two and one-half-year-old son. The child died in April 1986 of a bowel obstruction. David and Ginger Twitchell did NOT seek medical help for the boy, sticking instead to their religious belief in spiritual healing.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - The New York Stock Exchange may levy a $25 million fine against Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. and bring disciplinary proceedings against its top executives over the security frauds admitted to by Drexel and Michael Milken, a newspaper reported Friday.

The exchange is considering disciplining Drexel's chief executive officer, Frederick Joseph, and others for allegedly failing to supervise Milken, the former head of Drexel's junk bond department, according an article in The Wall Street Journal that cited unidentified sources.

Milken, facing a 98-count indictment that included insider trading and racketeering charges, pleaded guilty last week to six less serious felonies in a plea bargain deal with federal prosecutors. In order to avoid a racketeering indictment, Drexel pleaded guilty in 1986 to six felonies and agreed to pay $650 million in fines and penalties.

The exchange has stepped up its investigation of Drexel recently and subpoenaed several people to testify about the firm and Milken, the Journal said. A spokeswoman for the Big Board said the exchange would not comment on any investigation, nor confirm whether an investigation is underway.

The exchange privately brought disciplinary charges against Drexel in November, the article said. However, charges have not been brought against any of Drexel's executives, according to the Journal. Proceedings against Joseph and other Drexel executives could result in fines and suspension from the exchange, the article said.

The exchange is seeking to impose the $25 million fine against Drexel even though the firm's parent, Drexel Burnham Lambert Group Inc., filed for bankruptcy protection Feb. 13 and its broker-dealer unit is in the process of liquidating, the Journal said.

Exchange officials said late last year they wanted to fine Drexel $50 million, sources told the Journal. After the bankruptcy filing, however, exchange officials told the firm it would cut the amount in half, the sources said. Industry experts say a $25 million fine would be the largest ever imposed by the exchange against a securities firm.

In response to the article, Drexel issued a statement saying the exchange's "need to project an image of being a strong self-regulator ... should be balanced with a sense of fairness in evaluating the company's and management's behavior."

"The standard ought to be 'Was Drexel's compliance as good, or better, than other firms on the Street and were the systems diligently used?' We believe they were.

"Moreover, we now know the transgressions chiefly involved verbal agreements that were not disclosed to the firm and which no amount of diligence could have detected," Drexel said.

"It's clear that there were things that went wrong, but the firm and its shareholder-employees have already paid dearly for them. Any further penalties would be added, unneccessary punishment for creditors and shareholders and could be viewed simply as piling on."

Milken, who agreed to pay $600 million in fines and penalties, faces a possible 28 years in prison when he is sentenced Oct. 1. However, under terms of the plea bargain, prosecutors agreed not to seek the maximum penalty, Milken's attorney said.

Also under terms of the agreement, Milken agreed to cooperate, after his sentencing, with the government's investigation into corruption on Wall Street.

Milken, who pioneered the use of junk bonds that fueled corporate takeovers during the 1980s, pleaded guilty to six charges, including conspiracy and mail fraud.

CINCINNATI (MAY 4) UPI - Federated Department Stores Inc. and Allied Stores Corp., units of Campeau Corp. that are under bankruptcy protection, Friday reported losses for March that the retailers said were less than had been anticipated.

For the month, Federated posted a net loss of $9.1 million on sales of $405.3 million and Allied showed a net deficit of $8.9 million on sales of $243.4 million. The sales figures for both were higher than expected, the companies said.

Federated operates Bloomingdale's, Lazarus/Abraham & Straus, Rich's, and Burdines. Jordan Marsh, Sterns, Maas Brothers and The Bon Marche are the operating divisions of Allied.

The two retail units of troubled Campeau Corp. of Toronto, crippled by nearly $10 billion of debt used to acquire the companies, filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors Jan. 15.

March operating profits excluding interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, amounted to $38.9 million for Federated and $17.4 million for Allied.

"I believe we have turned the corner on stabilizing the business, and that we are well into a period of operational recovery," said a statement by Allen I. Questrom, chairman and chief executive officer of both retailers.

The retailers' monthly operating results have improved consistently since the bankruptcy filing. But January and February are traditionally slow months for retailers.

Bloomingdale's, which Federated took off the market earlier this week after failing to find a bidder willing to pay at least $1 billion, had a pre-tax profit of $2.5 million on sales of $100.8 million.

Pre-tax profit at Lazarus/Abraham& Straus was $661,000 on sales of $143 million; Rich's had pre-tax profit of $8.3 million on sales of $82 million; Burdine's had pre-tax profit of $5.5 million on sales of $79.6 million.

At Jordan Marsh, pre-tax profit was $16,000 on sales of $58.3 million; at Sterns, $950,000 on sales of $59.9 million; at Maas Brothers, $2.2 million on sales of $59.1 million and The Bon Marche, $4.2 million on sales of $56.6 million.

GREENBELT, MD (MAY 4) UPI - NASA tested the Hubble Space Telescope's instruments Friday in preparation for taking the observatory's historic first picture of the heavens, an image delayed until next week by glitches in the start-up.

Engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt and the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., sent commands to the telescope's science computer and received test data in return for the first time.

At 5 a.m., the engineers also began beaming another set of commands to the 12-ton telescope as it orbited 381 miles above Earth in preliminary steps toward starting some of the telescope's five high-tech instruments.

In addition, telescope scientists said they received good results from the first test of the telescope's system for finding and locking onto stars that will be used to locate targets during the telescope's 15-year mission.

''The pattern match test successfully identified and correlated stars observed with the fine guidance sensor with star catalogue data,'' a NASA statement said.

The $1.5 billion telescope was placed into orbit last week by the crew of the space shuttle Discovery, and technicians began an eight-month process of slowly turning on the complicated observatory's many systems and instruments.

The telescope is expected to revolutionize astronomy by studying stars, planets and galaxies in greater detail than ever before.

Scientists hoped one of the telescope's cameras would capture a picture of a star cluster this weekend. The image, called ''first light,'' is intended as a test. But a series of problems put the start-up behind schedule, delaying ''first light'' until early next week at the soonest.

''As best they can tell, first light will be no earlier than the first of the week,'' said NASA spokesman John Dumoulin said.

NASA astronomer Edward Weiler likened the space telescope's early activation problems to a 1-year-old stumbling and falling down ''and it was reported he was crippled.''

''It's a complex beast,'' he said.

Meanwhile, ground controllers were studying why the telescope appeared to be rolling slightly.

The rolling motion would have no major impact on research with the telescope and probably will be corrected anyway, Weiler said.

''We're not terribly concerned,'' said Weiler. ''One, it's not a major impact to science, and two, we think we can fix it.''

The telescope's ability to precisely measure the positions of stars, called astrometry, could be affected to some degree if it is not fixed, he said.

''We would have an impact on astrometry,'' Weiler said. ''But there are many other ways to control roll.''

CHICAGO (MAY 4) UPI - Trading was choppy and grain and soybean futures were mixed at the close Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Rumors the Soviet Union may have bought 500,000 tons of corn and could be in the market for more supported nearby prices. Commercials dominated the buying in old-crop corn throughout the day, but gains were limited by scattered selling activity.

Wheat was mostly higher on hopes that China would soon be back in the market. Earlier this week, the Agriculture Department offered China 2 million tons under the export bonus program.

Aggressive selling and the lack of buying interest pressured soybeans and soybean meal. Heavy delivery notices for May beans also kept the market on the defensive. Closing prices were at or near session lows.

Soybean oil futures were virtually unchanged.

Widespread rain in much of the Grain Belt added to the bearish tone. The National Weather Service said the rain was expected to continue Saturday in some parts of the Midwest and into Sunday in the eastern Corn Belt.

At the close, corn was up 1 3/4 to off 3/4, soybeans down 3 3/4 to up 1, wheat up 1/2 to 4 3/4 and oats off 1/2 to up 1/2.

UPPER CHICHESTER, PA (MAY 4) UPI - A disabled fifth-grader Friday said he won't return to his southeastern Pennsylvania school until he's allowed to bring his dog, a specially-trained collie named Ashley.

Michael Gaudiello Jr., who has muscular dystrophy, began his boycott of Rose-Tree Media School District in suburban Delaware County April 6. He says Ashley opens doors, carries his books, and keeps him upright in his wheelchair.

But officials at the school district say Ashley poses a danger to other students. Moreover, district spokeswoman Eileen Welden denied the child needs the dog's help because he is enrolled in a special program for handicapped students.

Gaudiello's parents, however, support their son's boycott and filed a discrimination action against the district with the state Human Relations Commission.

''If I thought for a moment Ashley was a danger to other students, I wouldn't let her near my own kids,'' said Jane Gaudiello, Michael's mother. ''She's very gentle.''

The people who trained Ashley accused the school district of ''discriminating against a handicapped child who by law has the right to have this dog with him.''

Laura Melhorn of Independence Dogs Inc. said her organization has trained dogs to care for handicapped children that currently attend schools in New York, New Jersey and Huntington Valley, Pa. She said there have been no problems reported.

''This dog is not a threat to anyone. She has been trained to go into a classroom atmosphere,'' Melhorn said.

GALVESTON, TX (MAY 4) UPI - The Southeast regional director of the Resolution Trust Corp. courted a Texas Bankers Association convention Friday, suggesting members buy insolvent thrifts and their real estate properties.

Carmen Sullivan, who heads the RTC's Dallas office, is responsible for the resolution and disposition of 101 insolvent savings and loans in Texas and ten in Oklahoma.

"I've got a number of thrifts I'd like to talk to you about purchasing," Sullivan told the convention, jokingly adding she hoped they were in an "expansion mood." The RTC is in charge of 400 thifts nationwide. "Estimates are that another 200 to 300 thrifts nationwide may come our way," Sullivan said.

Although the RTC inventory involves mismanaged savings and loans, bankers should be interested from the standpoint of taxpayers, community leaders, and businessmen, she said. "There's no question that disposing of billions of dollars in assets is a Texas-sized challenge," Sullivan said. "All of our assets are for sale."

Both she and Robert H. Dugger, chief economist of the American Bankers Association, said it was impossible to gauge the costs of the thrift crisis. The RTC is slated to dispose of the thrifts by the end of 1996, but Sullivan and Dugger predicted the task will take longer than that.

"We're not happy with the pace of asset disposition," Sullivan said, adding her agency has received little response from interested bankers so far. "We haven't compiled a buyers' profile yet, but we're hoping to do so," she said.

Dugger, who addressed the convention Thursday, said bankers are in a very cautious mood when it comes to financing the purchase of these properties. "We're having loss rates of 15 percent, 20 percent, 30 percent routinely in handling insolvent thrift cases," Dugger said of the nation in general.

"The costs of the thrift crisis have to be paid for by the United States government. As costs deepen, the overall government deficit increases," Dugger said.

Currently, the RTC is charged with selling the properties at 95 percent or more of market value, but Sullivan said the agency is considering a mark-down on properties that do not sell.

"The market is going to say what this property is worth," Sullivan said, emphasizing the 95 percent threshold refers to market value, not book value.

The RTC plans to set up centers where potential buyers, both institutional and individual homebuyers, can come for information on available properties, she said.

"It's principally geared toward 'big-ticket' purchasers, but we're not going to turn anybody away," she said. "You'll be able to walk into the sales center, for example in Houston, and we'll have visuals, we'll have a computer there that you can use," to see the inventory. "We want to accomodate that prospective purchaser to the maximum extent, just like you do in the private sector."

MEXICO CITY (MAY 4) UPI - A passenger train derailed in southern state of Oaxaca, killing six people and injuring 34, a spokesman for the Mexican railway company said Friday.

Two cars of the train, bound from the state capital of Oaxaca to Mexico City, went off the tracks Thursday night near Tomellin Cuicatlan, about 175 miles southeast of Mexico City.

The spokesman for Ferrocarriles Nacionales de Mexico, the state-run Mexican railway company, said six people, including a child, died in the accident. He said 34 people were injured and taken to hospitals in nearby areas.

''Twenty-five of them have been released,'' the spokesman said. ''Of the others remaining in the hospital, only one is in serious condition.''

He said an investigation of the accident has begun, and that that the derailment was probably caused by weakening of the tracks from landslides and intense rain.

(MAY 4) UPI - U-S Secretary of State Baker is in Bonn, West Germany, for a series of meetings with his Soviet and European counterparts on the eve of German reunification talks. There's a possibility the conference could be influenced by the latest U-S proposals on future NATO policy.

A senior NATO official in Brussels, Belgium, says the alliance's decision on whether to replace obsolete land-based missile systems with new short-range, air-to-surface weapons is likely a year away. The official also stresses that there are NO NATO plans for employing an intermediate-range air-based missile.

Latvian nationalist lawmakers are expected to vote on an independence proclamation later today. Legislators earlier overcame a bid by Russian conservatives to block the proclamation from being placed on the agenda. Latvia is the last of three Soviet Baltic republics to take a formal step toward ending communist rule.

EAST BERLIN (MAY 4) UPI - About 300 people demonstrated outside the Soviet Embassy Friday against anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union.

''Don't allow pogroms in the Soviet Union,'' read placards in German and Russian.

A letter to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev asking action against anti-Jewish activity, protection for Jews and a ban of the Pamjet movement on the grounds it is anti-Semitic was given to an embassy representative.

Peter Kirchner, chairman of the East Berlin Jewish Community, told reporters he had received reports that anti-Semites are planning attacks on Jews in the Soviet Union Saturday.

He said about 200 Soviet Jews who came to East Berlin on tourist visas have asked for asylum in East Germany. He said it is easier for Jews to get permission to leave the Soviet Union on a visit to East Germany than to get permission to emigrate to Israel.

The demonstration was held two days before the opening Sunday of a four-day meeting of the World Jewish Congress in West Berlin in the district of Wannsee, where the Nazi extermination campaign of Jews was planned during the war.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Enserch Corp., a diversifed energy company based in Dallas, has retained a 14.8 percent stake in a subsidiary that it took public earlier this year.

In an April 17 initial public offering, a total of 10.5 million shares of Pool Energy Services Co. stock were put up for sale at $10.25 a share. Papers filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission show that Enserch bought two million common shares through a private placement April 7.

The shares will be distributed as a special dividend to Enserch shareholders at a later date.

Pool Energy, a Houston oil well servicing company, derives half of its revenues by providing maintenance and completion services for U.S. and overseas gas wells.

The company, which also performs contract drilling services, posted 1989 net income of $3.8 million on revenues of $237.6 million.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Anti-smoking advocates told a Senate committee Friday that U.S. tobacco companies are evading foreign nations' cigarette sales and advertising restrictions, while tobacco interests contended export restrictions are unfair trade practices.

At the request of the U.S. Cigarette Export Assocation, the U.S. trade representative ruled in the 1980s that Japan, Taiwan, and South Korea must lift their advertising restrictions on U.S cigarettes, contending they were unfair trade practices. All three did so, but in 1989, Japan passed a code banning ads that encourage smoking by women and children.

Thailand currently bans the sale and advertising of U.S. cigarettes, but the export association is seeking to lift those restrictions at the U.S. trade representative and General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade levels.

"Tobacco companies have recklessly and cynically marketed cigarettes to non-smoking groups in Asia. They have targeted women and children. In countries that have banned cigarette advertising, they have circumvented laws and regulations with fake ads," said Gregory Connolly of the Coalition on Smoking or Health, made up of the American Cancer, Heart, and Lung associations.

"The evidence is increasing that the introduction of advertising is increasing rates of smoking among Asian women and children," he told the Senate Labor and Human Relations Committee.

Committee Chairman Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the United States "has become an accomplice in the industry's abuse policy" by threatening trade sanctions against countries that restrict access to American cigarettes. "Free trade is not a license to export lung cancer or ride roughshod over the anti-smoking laws of other nations," he said.

As an example, Kennedy said a Virginia Slims cigarette campaign was aired in Japan that appeared to violate the country's code against ads targeted toward women.

Connolly showed television commercials broadcast in Malaysia that apparently circumvent the country's cigarette TV advertising ban - a travel ad for "Kent" holidays, a movie ad showing More cigarettes and an ad promoting a "Salem concert" featuring Cyndi Lauper and Tina Turner. "The ads show how the companies circumvent and make a mockery of public health restrictions on cigarette advertising," Connolly said.

Former Sen. Walter Huddleston of Kentucky, now a consultant with the U.S. Cigarette Export Association, urged no restrictions. "The same number of cigarettes are going to be smoked in foreign countries regardless of whether American products are there or not. The only issue is who makes them ... and who grows the tobacco they are made of," Huddleston said.

MONTREAL (MAY 4) UPI - Boston's Ray Bourque and Edmonton's Mark Messier, leading their teams' Stanley Cup charges, joined NHL leading goal-scorer Brett Hull as finalists for the Hart Trophy as league MVP.

The NHL announced Friday its three finalists for each of the seven annual awards, to be named at the Awards Dinner, held June 6 in Toronto.

Bourque, a two-time Norris Trophy winner as the NHL's best defenseman, also is one of the finalists for that honor, selected by the Professional Hockey Writers Association.

The PHWA decides the Hart, Norris, Calder for Rookie of the Year, Lady Byng for sportsmanship and Selke for best defensive forward. The league's 21 general managers choose the Vezina Trophy winner for best goaltender and the NHL Broadcasters Association select the Adams Award winner as Coach of the Year. Finalists are chosen before the playoffs on the basis of their regular-season performances.

Bourque is the heart of the Bruins, who combine their teamwide emphasis on defense with opportunistic offense. He finished third among NHL defensemen with 84 points while leading the Bruins to the best record and best defensive ranking in the league.

Messier, having the finest season of a brilliant 10-year career, was the runner-up for the NHL scoring title with 129 points while bringing the Oilers back into Stanley Cup contention.

Hull scored 72 goals to finish fifth in the NHL with 113 points and was the only top-five scorer to play all 80 games. He also led the league in power-play goals with 27 and shots with 385.

Joining Bourque - the 1987 and 1988 Norris winner - for Norris consideration are Calgary's Al MacInnis and Chicago's Doug Wilson. MacInnis finished second among NHL defensemen in scoring with 90 points. Wilson, the 1982 Norris winner, is Chicago's all-time leading scorer among defensemen and rebounded from injuries to fashion a 73-point campaign in 70 games.

Calder nominees are Calgary's 31-year-old Soviet import Sergei Makarov, finishing his inaugural NHL season with 86 points; Chicago's Jeremy Roenick, hailed as the heir apparent to star playmaker Denis Savard, and Minnesota's Mike Modano, the 1988 No. 1 overall draft choice.

Lady Byng candidates are Hull, Los Angeles' Wayne Gretzky - more noteworthy as an absentee for the first time for Hart consideration - and the New York Islanders' Pat LaFontaine.

Selke finalists are Montreal's defending two-time winner Guy Carbonneau, ageless St. Louis checker Rick Meagher and Edmonton's Esa Tikkanen.

Vezina nominees are 1989 winner Patrick Roy of Montreal and first-time finalists Andy Moog of Boston and Daren Puppa of Buffalo.

All three Adams finalists are finishing inaugural seasons with their teams: rookie NHL coach Mike Milbury of Boston; Bob Murdoch of Winnipeg and Roger Neilson of the New York Rangers.

RIGA, LATVIA, USSR (MAY 4) UPI - Drawing cheers from a supportive crowd, Latvia's nationalist-controlled parliament Friday passed a declaration of independence aimed at ending 50 years of Soviet annexation.

The Supreme Soviet of the tiny Baltic republic, defying warnings from Moscow not to follow the lead of Estonia and Lithuania, passed the declaration by 138 votes to one, with 57 ethnic Russian deputies who oppose independence abstaining.

''Two-thirds were needed, and 132 would have been enough, but we got 138 '' said Anatolijs Gorbunovs, the leader of the nationalist Latvian Popular Front reelected as chairman of the soviet. ''The document has been passed.''

Although the declaration proclaimed Latvia's independence, it was carefully drafted to avoid conflict with Moscow and the harsh Kremlin crackdown which followed Lithuania's move toward independence.

As the deputies began leaving Parliament after the momentous vote, several thousand people standing for blocks around the parliament broke out in a cheer. The deputies waved back to acknowledge the cheers.

The crowd began chanting for Gorbunovs. After five minutes he appeared on the balcony and noddded his head slightly to the crowd, eliciting shouts of ''way to go,'' ''to your health,'' and ''good going.''

Unlike Lithuania's independence declaration March 11, Friday's Latvian proclamation called for a transitional period to sovereignty while negotiations with Moscow proceed to decide the details of secession.

Soviet television described the Latvian declaration as less radical than Lithuania's but more radical than Estonia's, indicating Latvia could have trouble getting talks with Moscow started.

With the independence proclamation, Latvia joined Estonia and Lithuania which have passed independence declarations to undo their annexation by Moscow in 1940.

Gorbunovs, an independent Latvian Communist and a moderate, immediately addressed Moscow for a dialogue in non-confrontational tones intended to elicit a positive resposne from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

''Re-establishment of independence is a process and there must be an open, honest dialogue,'' Gorbunovs said in an interview on Soviet television. But he stressed, ''the chief principle is reestablishment of sovereignty.''

The vote was a major achievement for nationalists in the republic, which has an ethnic Russian population of 32 percent. Latvians comprise only about 52 percent of the population.

A draft of the proclamation approved Friday described the June 17, 1940, annexation as ''an international crime that resulted in the occupation of Latvia and the liquidation of the sovereign state power of the Latvian republic.''

Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel had earlier sent the Latvian legislature a telegram, saying, ''I wish this session of your freely elected parliament the greatest success in its work of discussing the democratic orientation of your republic's further development.''

The Latvian Popular Front, which gained control of the parliament in March 18 elections, opted for the moderate Gorbunovs as part of its strategcy to avoid the combatative tactics adopted in Lithuania.

''Some of our people feel that if the (independence) documents are radical it would be better if there would be non-radicals who will implement them '' said Popular Front Vice President Ivars Godmanis.

Widely respected in both Latvia and Moscow, the 48-year-old Gorbunovs also belongs to the Soviet parliament.

Gorbunovs acknowledged his moderate tendencies, saying: ''As you know I have been criticized for centrism and for compromise from all sides.''

Lithuanian president Vytautas Landsbergis came to Riga to attend the opening of the Latvian Parliament Thursday and said his republic's unilaterial declaration of immediate independence March 11 was a better way of achieving independence than the more gradual path envisioned by the Latvian declaration.

But Gorbunovs appeared to rebuke the Lithuanians for their expectations of Western aid, saying ''It would be naive to expect care packages of help from the West.''

Gorbunovs said, ''The world is not going to risk what has been achieved in arms control and what has been achieved with (Soviet President) Mikhail Gorbachev for the sake of 5 million Balts.''

Gorbachev has taken a tough line in the Baltics, imposing an economic blockade against Lithuania and harshly warning Latvia and Estonia against similar moves toward secession.

Unlike neighboring Estonia, which in its March 30 sovereignty statement declared Soviet laws invalid on Estonian soil, the Latvian proclamation conceded that Soviet law would remain in effect during a transitional period in which negotiations with Moscow would be held.

But the declaration recognized the validity of the former free state's Feb. 15, 1922, constitution, which began an 18-year period of independence that was ended by Moscow's annexation in 1940.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Former American hostage Frank Reed, returning to the United States Friday after 44 months in captivity in Lebanon, pleaded for more action to free the remaining hostages so ''this tragic affair will end soon.''

The 57-year-old educator arrived at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington following a flight from a U.S. air base in Wiesbaden, West Germany. He appeared frail but cheerful as he stepped off the Gulf Stream jet with his wife, Fahimeh, and 9-year-old son, Tarek.

His welcoming party gathered on the tarmac included another former American hostage, Robert Polhill, who was released by his Lebanese captors April 22 and arrived at Andrews in similar fashion a week ago.

''Of course, it feels wonderful,'' Reed told reporters. Then, reading from a statement written on yellow legal paper, Reed urged that more be done to free the remaining Western hostages held in the Middle East.

''I ask all of you today, tonight, tomorrow,'' Reed said, ''send personal messages to every political leader involved in this terrible tragedy, asking for its end.''

''Thank you all for your love and concern and, yes, for your tears,'' Reed said. ''For I cry with you that this tragic affair will end soon. God, make it soon.''

Reed expressed thanks to Syrian President Hafez Assad and the Syrian foreign minister for their help in mediating his release, and recognized the support in the United States from families of hostages.

Referring to fellow hostages he saw while in captivity, Reed said: ''The world must not forget that what we - my mates, Brian Keenan, John McCarthy Terry Anderson, Tom Sutherland - represent is something that transcends all geopolitical ideas and motives and has been the currency of kidnappers for centuries - freedom and life.''

Reed has told U.S. authorities that for two years he was held together with fellow Americans Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, and Sutherland, both kidnapped in 1985.

He said that for various periods over three years, he also was held with London journalist McCarthy and Keenan, a schoolteacher with dual British-Irish citizenship.

He told British officials and families of the British hostages that he was held with McCarthy and Keenan just before his release and that the two were ''alive and well.''

Following his brief remarks, Reed was taken to Malcolm Grow Air Force Medical Center for medical evaluation. Doctors in West Germany said Reed lost a lot of weight and muscle mass during his captivity, but his Syrian-born wife said she was confident that Reed, a keen sportsman, will soon be strong again.

Reed, of Massachusetts, had said the first thing he wanted when he got back was a Maine lobster. His young son pulled a live one from a box on the tarmac and waved it at Reed's welcoming party, which included Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

In Wiesbaden, Reed underwent a series of medical tests as well as intensive intelligence debriefing aimed at establishing the pattern of kidnappings in Beirut, Lebanon.

Reed and Polhill, 55, were the first American hostages freed since three others were released in the fall of 1986 as part of the secret Iran-Contra arms-for-hostages swap between the United States and Iran.

Reed, kidnapped in Beirut Sept. 9, 1986, was released Monday by Moslem extremists in Lebanon and arrived Tuesday at a hostage reception center in Wiesbaden. Six Americans and 10 other Westerners are believed to remain captive in Lebanon.

Iran and its allies in Lebanon have been trying to trade the remaining Western hostages for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel, 16 Shiites convicted of terrorist bombings in Kuwait and Moslem fundamentalist cleric Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, who was abducted by Israeli commandos in July.

Iran also wants the United States to release the $8 billion to $9 billion in Iranian assets it froze after Iranians seized hostages from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene called for U.S. action Friday to protest the Soviet crackdown on her republic, saying it is ''inadequate'' for the West to simply urge both sides to negotiate.

Prunskiene made her comments at the National Press Club a day after meeting at the White House with President Bush, who has declined to recognize the breakaway Baltic republic as an independent country or to punish the Soviet Union for cutting off supplies to Lithuania.

Bush told Prunskiene Thursday that he supported Lithuanian self-determination and he indicated his support for a French-German initiative to ease the way to talks between Lithuania and the Soviet Union.

Calling her republic's March 11 declaration of independence ''untouchable '' Prunskiene said Friday the ''logical consequence'' of Western nations' support for Lithuanian self-determination would be to recognize its independence.

''The fact that these Western countries refuse to provide recognition is the major argument that Moscow uses to refuse to enthusiastically endorse our aspirations,'' she said.

Prunskiene said she did not favor sanctions that would cause the Soviet people to suffer. But she indicated the United States should withhold economic benefits to the Soviets, such as improved trade relations.

''Simply making statements that there should be compromises ... is not adequate at this time when the Soviets are interfering with Lithuania's ties with Western countries,'' Prunskiene said.

''Now that Moscow has imposed an economic blockade against Lithuania it wouldn't be logical to grant the Soviet Union most favored nation (trade) status. It would be providing implicit support for the actions that the Soviets are taking against Lithuania,'' she said.

''I hope that when (Soviet) President Mikhail Gorbachev comes to the United States (for his summit with Bush starting May 30), this question will not be left hanging,'' she said.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators have reached agreement on a trade pact, and the Bush administration has said it will seek most favored nation trade status for the Soviets once they pass liberal emigration laws - an action expected soon.

But the Senate passed a resolution Tuesday calling on the administration to delay granting most favored nation status to the Soviet Union until it ends its crackdown in Lithuania and begins talks on independence for the republic.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said Friday, ''Ultimately, if he (Bush) refuses to take any action, we may be called upon to do so.''

Prunskiene said it was not her role to tell Western countries what to do, but that she hoped they could agree to a joint statement recognizing Lithuania.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - The Soviet Union, the No. 1 customer for U.S. export grain, bought 600,000 metric tons of corn from private exporters, the Agriculture Department reported Friday. Based on Chicago prices, the deal was worth about $67.9 million.

Since last Oct. 1, the Kremlin has purchased 13.88 million tons of U.S. corn and 3.27 million tons of wheat, along with 1.2 million tons of soybean meal and 342,300 tons of soybeans.

There are 39.4 bushels of corn in a metric ton of 2,204.6 pounds, so the latest sale called for delivery of 23.6 million bushels before the corn marketing year ends Aug. 31.

During fiscal 1989, the Soviet Union bought a record 21.7 million tons of U.S. corn and wheat, the two grains covered under the U.S.-Soviet grain pact. With four months to go in the fiscal year, corn sales are approaching last year's level of 16.3 million tons. The Soviet Union has been a grain importer since the early 1970s as a result of decisions to increase livestock production.

(MAY 4) UPI - Five days after being freed by Moslem extremists, American Frank Reed is on his way back to the United States. The 57-year-old educator left Wiesbaden, West Germany, with his wife and nine-year-old son early today. U-S officials say Reed will arrive at Andrews Air Force Base and then go to a nearby medical center for additional tests.

South Africa's white-minority government and the African National Congress will hold a joint news conference later today to discuss the outcome of three days of historic talks. The two sides today wrapped up their meetings intended to pave the road for power-sharing negotiations to end the country's racial conflict. It was the first formal meeting between the two groups.

The United States accounts for less than half of the world's reported AIDS cases for the first time since a global count began in 1980. The World Health Organization says the number of cases of the deadly disease reached 254-thousand 78 during April. The W-H-O says the increase of nearly 17-thousand cases was a rise of a little more than seven percent.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - International Business Machines Corp. Friday said it signed a record $400 million contract to provide personal computers to Amadeus, Europe's largest electronic travel marketing system. IBM said it will supply Amadeus with up to 55,000 personal computer systems within the next three years.

The contract, which falls under IBM's West German division, gives a significant boost in the personal computer area to the world's largest manufacturer of mainframes.

"This agreement is one of the largest volume purchasing contracts ever undertaken by IBM," said Win Pierlo, assistant general manager for IBM Germany.

Investors quickly reacted to the announcement and boosted IBM's share price on the New York Stock Exchange where the blue-chip closed up $2.50 to $110.50.

The computer systems will be installed at all Amadeus travel bureaus and partners throughout Europe. The deal also covers Amadeus affiliates in 20 countries in Africa, Asia, and South America.

The computers, belonging to IBM's PS/2 line, will be linked with both Unix and OS/2 networks, and meet all specifications of Amadeus Pro, the software specially developed by the travel agency for its operations. The network's maintenance will be jointly provided by Amadeus and IBM technicians.

"This agreement will provide major cost benefits to all our partners in the travel industry," said Hans-Dieter Farber, Amadeus senior vice president. "Our partners will be able to purchase state-of-the-art equipment at an economical cost as a result of Amadeus' volume purchase." The companies did not disclose the amount of discount Amadeus received from IBM under the contract.

Amadeus has a partnership agreement with 24 airlines and travel companies, including Air France, Lufthansa, Thai International, the French and the German railways systems, and TUI, the largest tour operator in West Germany.

Amadeus, which covers more than 60 percent of European automated travel agencies, was founded in 1987 by four European airlines: Air France, Lufthansa, Iberia of Spain and Scandinavia's SAS.

The computerized travel system also as an agreement with Abacus Group, which represents six Asian airlines, as well as with several international hotel chains and car rental companies.

KENT, OH (MAY 4) UPI - The mother of one of four students killed at Kent State University 20 years ago welcomed Friday's dedication of a memorial but said the slain students are not resting in peace.

''Considering the circumstances, I do not believe they can rest in peace '' said Florence Schroeder, mother of William Schroeder. ''But I do believe they can revel in the glory which is heaven.''

About 4,000 people attended the ceremony despite steady rain and cool temperatures, a marked contrast to the warm sunny day on May 4, 1970, when four days of protests at Kent State against the invasion of Cambodia ended with the shootings.

The protests began on May 1, 1970, the day after President Nixon announced the invasion.

''They were here for two reasons,'' Schroeder said of the protesters. ''They objected to the escalation of the war in Vietnam and the bombing of Cambodia. They also could not tolerate the police-state atmosphere presented by the Ohio National Guard and the political actions of Gov. James A. Rhodes.''

It was Rhodes who sent the guard to the campus and it was Rhodes who visited the school the day before the shootings, calling the students ''brownshirts'' and ''vigilantes'' and threatening to ''employ every weapon possible'' to end the violence.

Rhodes was reported several years ago to have felt ''personal remorse'' over the incident but never said so publicly.

Former Sen. George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, was also asked to helped dedicate the memorial.

''I came without any sense of pleasure, but as a duty, an honor, to recognize all of the people who died in the Vietnam struggle, both Americans and Vietnamese,'' McGovern said. ''I think this was the most tragic episode in American foreign policy history.

''The shootings at Kent State and the shootings at Jackson State did give a new and passionate effort to attempts to stop the war,'' McGovern said. ''There was a common humanity that was touched when, here in our country, people died as a result of the war.''

It was those beliefs that made Schroeder believe her son '' absolutely did not die in vain.''

''I do believe the killings here helped to bring an earlier end to the war than otherwise would have occurred,'' she said.

Brig. Gen. Charles Fassinger, 59, who as a lieutenant colonel was the senior uniformed officer at Kent State on May 4, 1970, said he came ''because I was asked to speak for the guard.''

''The guard's side has never been told, except in a court of law,'' Fassinger said. ''I was responsible for the troops that day and I guess I'm still responsible 20 years later.

''They (the guardsmen) felt their lives were in danger. That's why they fired. I had 20 years' experience and I certainly was not very comfortable. The guard was not some monolithic thing. They were people and they had families to go home to.''

Gov. Richard Celeste took part in Friday's memorial dedication ceremonies and, on behalf of the state, said, ''I am sorry.'' He recalled his campaign for a seat in the state house of representatives being interrupted by the news in 1970.

''I felt disbelief that we had turned our weapons on our own children,'' Celeste said. ''I felt angered that a distant war in the name of democracy had invaded so close to home to threaten democracy. I felt pain.''

About 3,000 people participated in a candelight march at 11 p.m. Thursday and some stayed the rest of the night for a vigil. The crowd grew again Friday morning, estimated by campus police at 4,000.

On that fateful day 20 years ago, about 75 guardsmen were atop Blanket Hill shortly after noon and appeared to be retreating from a large group of students who were taunting them and throwing rocks. Suddenly, 28 guardsmen turned and fired, killing four students and wounding nine.

Also in the crowd Friday were 50 to 75 members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, hoping to remind people of the cause of the protest that ended with the shootings.

''We say never forget, never again,'' said Dave Cline of Jersey City, N.J. ''You're not going to get kids to fight in Central America if they know about Vietnam.''

The memorial consists of a granite plaza with four black granite disks leading from the plaza into a wooded area where four pylons are aligned. Nearby, the school planted 58,175 daffodils in memory of those killed in the Vietnam War.

The memorial does not include the names of the students shot to death but the school, under pressure, placed a plaque near the memorial with the names Allison Krause, Jeffrey Miller, William Schroeder and Sandra Scheuer.

ST. REGIS INDIAN RESERVATION, NY (MAY 4) UPI - Michael Laughing earns $12 an hour tax free as pit boss at the blackjack tables of the largest casino on the war-torn Mohawk Indian reservation. The alternative, he said

Friday, is welfare.

The question of casino gambling on the 28,000-acre reservation on the U.S.-Canadian border comes down to money, Mohawk leaders and businessmen in the nearby city of Massena said.

''They make a good salary, $400 to $600 a week,'' said New York Tribal Council Chief L. David Jacobs of the some 800 Mohawks who work at the reservation's six casinos. ''They all drive nice cars. They dress well.''

The closing of the casinos - little more than honky-tonk warehouses compared to the glitz of Las Vegas - would force Indians to ''stay home and draw welfare checks,'' Jacobs said.

A few gift shops, such as the Bear's Den, employ Mohawks to sell Indian wares to gamblers on a lucky streak.

Some work at Reynolds Metals, Alcoa or General Motors plants in Massena. The more nimble toil as ironworkers high atop the skyscrapers in New York and Boston. But largely there is nothing but casino gambling and high-stakes bingo to support the 9,000 Mohawks who live on the land they call Akwesasne.

As hundreds of heavily armed New York and Canadian police manned roadblocks and checkpoints for a third day, Laughing, 24, said gambling opponents would ''rather see all the Indians go on welfare.''

Gil White, owner of the Mohawk Bingo Palace where on a weekend night 1,800 players often compete for a single game for a $150,000 jackpot, said the casinos are a salvation for his people.

''For many of these people, the women in particular, it was their first job. For many of them it was their first job at a decent wage,'' White said.

The casino employment enables Mohawks to hire babysitters, carpenters and plumbers, he said, and to shop in Massena and Malone for appliances and televisions.

Laughing, whose uncle owns Tony's Vegas International Casino, rejected arguments by traditional Mohawks that casino gambling is a corruption of their culture and heritage.

There is no disagreement among local businessmen that gambling is the fuel that drives the local economy. A new $55 million shopping mall in Massena, expected to be a popular draw for Canadian gamblers seeking to benefit from the Free Trade Agreement between the two nations, will open in August.

It will be a ''tremendous white elephant'' if the casinos closed, said Peter Renes, owner of the Flanders Inn just off the reserve.

''If the gambling would be eliminated or prohibited I would consider it a regional disaster. In general terms, the bingo and casinos for the last couple of years has been our bread and butter over the weekends,'' he said.

The reservation remained quiet Friday, despite fears the funeral of Matthew Pyke, 22, would renew violence between gambling opponents and the militant Warrior Society, who are funded by the reservation's casino owners and are staunch defenders of Mohawk sovereignty.

Mohawks in traditional dress led the funeral procession to a small church, where Pyke's casket was borne from a green hearse.

Pyke was killed in a fierce gun battle Tuesday. The body of J.R. Edwards, 30, was discovered later on the battleground.

The casualties - the first despite nine months of almost nightly violence - forced the New York and Canadian governments to flood the reservation with police, and the Canadian Armed Forces and the New York National Guard were put on alert.

#90124u1990 05/04/1990 ~United Press International
NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - The dollar mostly plunged in New York trading Friday on word that U.S. employment grew in April by far less than most economists had been anticipating, while European news also undercut the unit.

The dollar lost nearly two pfennigs against Germany's mark after the Labor Department said 64,000 nonfarm jobs were added to national payrolls last month - far short of the 350,000 to 400,000 jobs economists expected. The news shot holes in predictions the Federal Reserve was about to hike short-term U.S. interest rates to choke off inflation.

The figure "points to soft rates, and that isn't positive for the dollar at this point," said foreign exchange manager Earl Johnson of the Harris Trust & Savings Bank in Chicago. Higher interest rates draw capital into investments priced in dollars, boosting demand for the unit.

When players saw the 64,000 jobs figure, "their first reaction was to dump" the dollar, said Stephen Burnett, a trader for the Bank fur Gemeinwirtschaft. "There was a great expectation that the numbers were going to be a lot better than what came out," he explained.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.6660 West German marks, off sharply from 1.6830 marks Thursday. Against the Japanese unit, the dollar changed hands at 158.25 yen, up slightly from 158.10.

The mark's climb was supercharged by reports that an agreement on paywas reached with West German metalworkers. The agreement alleviated financial market concerns about the inflationary effects of German monetary union.

The British pound, similarly, was helped by a satisfactory showing of the governing Conservative party in regional elections. Advances by the opposition Labor party did not match predictions of massive gains.

Other dollar rates: 1.4430 Swiss francs, down from 1.4550; 5.5930 French francs, off from 5.6465; and 1,221.50 Italian lire, down from 1,233.50. The British pound soared to $1.6640 from $1.6380.

In Europe, the dollar mostly slid on the U.S. data. "It's not having a great day, but it's not having a disastrous day," said Kit Juckes, an international economist with Warburg Securities in London.

The pound surged nearly two cents higher against the dollar after markets took encouragement from the Conservatives' election showing. The pound closed at $1.6610, up from Thursday's $1.6425.

The dollar declined in Frankfurt as the mark was bolstered by news that metalworkers signed a regional wage pact. The U.S. unit ended at 1.6720 deutsche marks, compared with 1.6820 at Thursday's close.

The dollar advanced in Zurich to 1.4540 Swiss francs against 1.4525 but fell back in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.6400 French francs against 5.6480, 34.67 Belgian francs against 34.70 and 1,231.20 lire against 1,233.90. Markets in Japan were closed for a national holiday.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $371 an ounce, down from $371.75 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled spot gold at $370.90 an ounce, off from $371.40. In Zurich, gold rose to $371.50 an ounce from $370.50. London gold climbed to $371.25 an ounce from $370.50.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.025 an ounce, unchanged. Comex spot silver ended at $5.00 an ounce, up from $4.998. Zurich closed silver at $5.05 an ounce, up from $5.00. London silver rose to $5.06 an ounce from $5.02.

SYRACUSE, NY (MAY 4) UPI - A federal judge sentenced a convicted computer hacker to three years' probation and 400 hours of community service Friday for releasing a ''worm'' that paralyzed thousands of computers nationwide.

U.S. District Judge Howard Munson also ordered Robert Tappan Morris, 24, to pay a $10,000 fine plus court and probation costs.

The sentence was a relief to Morris, who could have faced five years in prison and $250,000 in fines. His lawyer, Thomas Guidoboni, said, however, the suspended Cornell University graduate student will appeal the conviction.

''The sentence was reasonable,'' said Guidoboni. ''We're appealing for legal reasons. We are concerned that he is now a convicted felon.''

U.S. Attorney Frederick Scullin Jr. said the sentence was fair considering the ''unique circumstances'' of the case, but added the conviction should warn computer hackers the government will prosecute similar cases.

''Legally, I think we have a solid conviction here,'' Scullin said. ''I don't believe there is going to be a reversal of the conviction.''

Morris was the first person prosecuted under the 1986 Computer Fraud and Abuse Act that makes it a felony to intentionally access, without authorization, certain federal computers and cause more than $1,000 in damage.

Morris was indicted in July 1989 on charges he introduced a computer ''worm'' into a military and research network. He was found guilty by a jury Jan. 22.

The program Morris released Nov. 2, 1988, replicated out of control and froze an estimated 6,000 computers linked to major military and research networks, including Internet, Arpanet and Milnet.

Among the victims were computers at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility at Moffett Field, Calif., and the U.S. Air Force Logistics Command at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

David O'Brien, a lawyer representing Morris, argued for a lenient sentence and said the convicted hacker accepted responsibility for his actions.

''The most fundamental thing that struck me about Mr. Morris is his basic decency, his basic honesty,'' O'Brien said. ''Robert is too decent of a person to try to hoodwink people out of their money. There is a world of difference between Robert and what other people who have abused this equipment have done.''

Rasch argued during the trial that Morris launched a ''full-scale assault'' on the computer networks with a program designed to be ''hard to defeat.''

Morris, who is the son of Robert Morris, of Arnold Md., a chief scientist for the National Computer Security Center, received his bachelor's degree from Harvard in 1988, and entered Cornell as a graduate student that fall.

He remains suspended from Cornell until September, and has been living in Cambridge, Mass., and working as a programmer at Harvard.

(MAY 4) UPI - A spokesman for Chancellor Helmut Kohl says the West German leader met with U-S Secretary of State Baker today in Bonn and expressed support for a greater political role for NATO. Baker also met with West Germany's foreign minister in the first of a series of bilateral talks preceding tomorrow's discussions on German reunification. A half-dozen countries are taking part in those talks, including the United States, the Soviet Union and both Germanys.

Results tallied today from local elections in Great Britain did NOT present the massacre expected for Prime Minister Thatcher's ruling Conservative Party. It was believed the Conservatives would be trounced at the polls in a reflection of the violent opposition to a controversial poll tax. But the balloting did NOT severely punish Thatcher's party, even though the opposition Labor Party made substantial gains.

Authorities in Hanover, West Germany, believe three gunmen detected while apparently preparing to bomb a British military barracks were members of the Irish Republican Army. Officials say the men fired three shots at a civilian guard who spotted them near the barracks. The guard was NOT hit, and the men fled... leaving behind three bags containing timing devices and about 100 pounds of the highly explosive substance Semtex.

Rescue workers in Texas have recovered the body of a 77-year-old woman who was swept away last night by raging flood waters. A state public safety spokesman says Bernice Allen is the 10th victim of flooding in two weeks. The northern half of Texas... including the Dallas-Forth Worth area... has been hit with torrential rains. And residents in central and southeast Texas are preparing for floodwaters to move down stream.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Federal prosecutors Friday sought to dismiss a 3-year-old civil suit filed by Mayor Marion Barry claiming the U.S. attorney illegally leaked details of a grand jury probe involving local government corruption.

Prosecutors argued that a lawsuit filed in June 1987 charging then-U.S. Attorney Joseph diGenova with leaking details of the probe was without basis and should be thrown out.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson dismissed the suit in July 1987, a month after it was filed, for lack of evidence. An appeals court remanded the case back to district court and ordered the federal government to submit additional proof it was not involved in any leaks.

The suit at the time sought to ban the release of further information from the 17-month-old grand jury probe.

On Friday, D.C. Corporation Counsel Herbert O. Reid said Barry is pursuing the suit now to prove a point - that he was a political target of the U.S. attorney.

''There were leaks, and leaks in which the government was responsible,'' Reid argued Friday.

During diGenova's four-year tenure, which ended in March 1988, a dozen top Barry administration officials were convicted of crimes in office that ranged from fraud to tax evasion. Barry was never charged with a crime under diGenova.

Barry was indicted last Feb. 15 on cocaine possession charges after a separate grand jury investigation headed by diGenova's successor, U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens. Barry faces trial June 4.

The two cases are not related.

The civil suit cited articles published in 1984 involving the corruption probe that detailed secret grand jury information, according to court documents.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - In an effort to calm concerns in the agricultural community, the government said Friday that farmers do not need special permits for most farming operations on converted wetlands.

Some farmers, particularly in the South, have become concerned they would need the so-called Section 404 permits to run their farms or plant spring crops. Two senators threatened early this week to block federal spending under Section 404, a part of the Clean Water Act, unless the problem was cleared up.

In a memorandum to field personnel, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency said normal farming practices, ''such as plowing, cultivating, minor drainage and harvesting,'' are exempt from the requirement to obtain a permit.

A spokeswoman for the National Wildlife Federation said the memorandum restated the law. She said the ''tempest was the result of poor (government) communications, rather than onerous effects of the law.''

The American Farm Bureau said poor communications were partly to blame but pointed also to complaints of inconsistent rulings.

''It (the memorandum) is a good interim step,'' said spokesman Don Lipton. ''We're still supportive of a permanent legislative solution so it would be in statute, rather than depending on the good intentions of the two agencies.''

Congress created the exemption in 1977 for normal farming practices.

The EPA and the Corps said farming practices that accompanied crop rotations also were exempt, even if they were not used every year.

Construction of rice levees is exempt from regulation if the levees generally are not more than two feet high.

''Activities which convert a wetland which has not been used for farming or forestry into such uses are not considered a part of an established operation and are not exempt,'' the memorandum said.

KALAPANA, HAWAII (MAY 4) UPI - A historic church was lifted onto a truck Friday and driven out of the path of a boiling river of volcanic lava that has devastated a small corner of Hawaii and turned one community into a ghost town.

The fragile Star of the Sea Painted church was hoisted onto the flatbed truck with a forklift and gingerly moved a half-mile shortly after dawn to a spot near the Harry K. Brown park on the western edge of the town of Kalapana.

Officials feared the molten rock from Kilauea Volcano would reach the church and destroy the small building that has hand-painted religious scenes on its walls and stained-glass windows. It has been a fixture in Kalapana for 60 years.

Kilauea began erupting Jan. 3, 1983, and has been spewing regularly the past seven years. The molten rock has destroyed 131 structures and caused an estimated $25 million in damage to homes, other property, and roadways.

The volcano in southeast Hawaii island has been especially destructive this year. Gov. John Waihee has declared the devastated areas state disaster areas and is seeking federal disaster aid.

Most of the residents of Kalapana are gone from the tiny town, first hit by the volcanic lava in 1986 in the latest eruption. The remaining dwellers have been evacuated home by home in recent weeks. Some 24 homes are still standing but the lava threatens to burn them down.

Electricity to the town was cut shortly before dark Thursday so crews could take down electric wires around the Painted Church. Workers also cut trees in preparation for the move.

A fast-moving lava flow Thursday broke out from the glacier of molten rock that has all but inundated the area's Kalapana Gardens housing area, and it headed for a store and drive in and the Kalapana Congregational Church in the heart of town.

But the unpredictable flow bypassed both buildings - missing them by a margin of some 20 yards - and rolled on, eventually destroying the Beach Road home of James Pa at 4:30 p.m. - the 131st structure demolished by the volcano.

By Friday morning, the flow was heading toward the park, where the local civil defense command post as well as two brackish ponds are located.

Civil defense officials told reporters and other people to move out of the park, afraid the lava would hit the salty water and release steam clouds containing harmful chemicals, such as hydrochloric acid.

The Painted Church was relocated to a spot along a highway near the park, and a contractor handling the move hoped to have the church ready for Sunday services.

No permanent site for the church has been announced, although Catholic officials have reportedly asked about the cost of moving it to Pahoa, about 10 miles away. Church members want the building to stay in the Kalapana area.

Authorities said the flow moved as much as 200 feet in one hour overnight Thursday.

Civil defense authorities had ordered all remaining residents in Kalapana evacuated by Thursday night.

A Red Cross shelter has been set up in Pahoa to house the people left homeless by the devastation, but most have apparently stayed with friends or relatives.

Officials said about six people have slept in the shelter and volunteers have served about 60 dinners.

(MAY 4) UPI - The crude oil market turned cautious Friday in reaction to prices plunging the previous day when an OPEC cartel production cutback failed to meet expectations. But gasoline surged more than a penny a gallon on rumors of U.S. refinery problems.

In very light trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for June delivery settled down only one cent to $17.98 a barrel after losing 69 cents Thursday.

Unleaded gasoline for June delivery shot up 1.44 cents to 61.12 cents a gallon on the Merc, while prompt delivery gasoline gained 0.70 cent to 61.65 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor cash market.

Bob Jonke, trader with New York's Cargill Investor Services said "caution" ruled the crude market after Thursday's sharp selloff. There were some large buy orders early in the day taking advantage of the lower prices, he said.

"Friday's market reacted reasonably and logically after an awful lot of OPEC bashing" Thursday, said Robert Baker, senior energy analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York.

Baker said gasoline prices rose on rumors of problems at refineries owned by Amoco, Exxon and Shell. "This market loves rumors about gasoline," he said. Exxon and Shell denied any problems and said operations were normal.

A spokesman said Amoco's policy was not to comment on reports of refinery problems. But he said, "We're not having any problems with meeting customer requirements.

Earlier, members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Geneva said Thursday's agreement to cut cartel output 1.5 million barrels daily should begin to bolster prices in six to eight weeks. Jonke said this had no effect on Friday's market.

Prices nose-dived Thursday because traders felt the cut was insufficient to quickly slash the world oil glut created by OPEC producing up to two million barrels over its self-imposed daily limit of 22 million barrels. Production over quotas by Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, and the United Arab Emirates was blamed.

Baker said the market was skeptical of the UAE's 200,000 barrel-a-day cutback Thursday because the oil glut on the market has already forced the emirates to reduce its output by this amount.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market Friday, prompt delivery WTI crude remained unchanged at $18 a barrel. On the European spot market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent slipped 35 cents to $15.65 a barrel.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - traded at $14.20 a barrel, a five cent gain.

Home heating oil for June delivery eased down 0.05 cent on the Merc to 49.95 cents a gallon. It lost 0.6 cent to 55.20 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor cash market.

(MAY 4) UPI - The retiring captain of the U-S-S Iowa, Fred Moosally, spoke out today for the first time about the investigation into the blast that killed 47 of his sailors more than one year ago. 45-year-old Moosally said the Navy's probe was- quote- ''based on unsubstantiated third-party information.'' The skipper, often appearing emotional, made the comments during a change-of-command ceremony on the deck of the World War Two battleship in Norfolk, Virginia.

Officials at Oklahoma State University say seven Army R-O-T-C students accused of cheating on a military ethics exam will be punished. But the head of the university's Military Department says they still will be commissioned as officers today at a graduation ceremony attended by President Bush. Lieutenant Colonel Conrad McHugh says letters of reprimand will be placed in the cadets' permanent files.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 4) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze repeated objections Friday to plans for a united Germany to be a member of NATO but praised U.S. proposals to shape the future of the Western military alliance.

Shevardnadze made the remarks before meeting with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker in Bonn on the eve of a crucial six-nation conference on German unification, dubbed two-plus-four.

''Obviously we talked about the two-plus-four mechanism, we talked about unification of Germany, we talked about Lithuania, we talked about a number of arms control issues,'' Baker said after the three-hour and 20 minute meeting at a riverside hotel just outside of Bonn.

Asked before the talks what he would like to hear from his Soviet colleague on arms control, he said: ''We've made some suggestions in the aftermath of the (April 4-6) Washington ministerial and we hope that we'll be in a position to get some answers.''

''I think it was a very constructive meeting, particularly since we are on the eve of the secretary's visit to Moscow,'' a smiling Shevardnadze said through an interpreter, in reference to Baker's scheduled visit to the Soviet Union next week.

The talks were part of a series of bilateral meetings by the foreign ministers who will attend Saturday's two-plus-four conference in Bonn.

The Bonn conference follows a meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels Thursday, at which Baker outlined U.S. policy proposals for the Western military alliance.

Announcing the proposals the same day, Bush said the planned modernization of NATO'S short-range nuclear weapons will be scrapped, called for swifter arms-control talks with the Soviet Union and suggested that a NATO summit be held this summer.

Observers believe the question of a possible NATO membership of a united Germany and the NATO policy proposals are largely interrelated.

Western delegations at Saturday's conference are likely to promote the U.S. plan in a bid to sway Soviet and, to a lesser extent, East German reservations about a German NATO affiliation.

A senior state department official said the Baker-Shevardnadze talks were ''serious but not definitive.''

''The Soviets have not thoroghly thought through the two-plus-four process '' he said. But he added that the Soviet Union did not want the German unification process to drag on.

He said Shevardnadze was ''intrigued'' by the NATO policy proposals.

Shevardnadze, speaking on arrival in Bonn, said the U.S. plan for NATO policy was ''a good proposal'' but reiterated the Soviet view that ''the membership of a unified Germany ...in a military alliance would mean a threat to the stability of Europe.''

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl who met with Baker Friday welcomed the U.S. proposals, which a government spokesman said Kohl had discussed with Bush before they were announced.

''Like President Bush, Federal Chancellor Helmut Kohl considers the reinforcement of (NATO's) political role ... and the re-examination of the structure of its armed forces a crucial issue for the North Atlantic alliance,'' the spokesman said.

Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union considered that the German unification process must be linked with the process of revamping European security structures.

He said he did not expect any final decisions to be made at Saturday's conference - the first of its kind since the four victorious World War II powers and the two Germanys met in Geneva in 1959.

Unlike the 1959 meeting, the East and the West Germans will sit at the same table as the ministers from Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - President Bush, moving to block a strike by 11 railroad unions against most of the nation's major rail lines, named a three-member emergency board Friday to investigate the contract dispute.

The creation of the board, effective Saturday, ''is necessary to forestall the possibility of a crippling nationwide rail strike,'' according to an announcement by White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

The move prevents an potentially devastating walkout for at least 60 days. The railroads involved include Conrail and numerous lines serving the industrial Midwest, East Coast and South, as well as major terminals in the Southwest and West.

''The National Mediation Board has concluded that the situation is extremely critical and that it threatens substantially to interrupt interstate commerce (and) deprive various sections of the country of essential transportation service,'' Fitzwater said.

The disputes, dating back to 1988, center on health care, wages and rules.

Under the law, the unions are barred from a walkout for 60 days - 30 days for the board to prepare its report and another 30 days for the president to review it.

There were indications the unions would agree to extend the preparation time to give the panel more time to consider the issues.

The Transportation Department says the railroads involved move more than one-third of all intercity freight traffic, goods valued at more than $1 billion each day, Fitzwater said.

He said interruption of rail service could idle nearly 200,000 railroad employees, cause more than 500,000 layoffs in affected industries within two weeks, and lead to direct ecomonic losses of at least $116 million a day.

Fitzwater said a strike could also affect 100,000 commuters and 30,000 intercity passengers each day.

''In the light of the immediate and devastating effects that a nationwide strike in this industry would have on the public, the president concluded that creation of a Presidential Emergency Board offers the best means of protecting the public interest while the parties continue their efforts to resolve their disputes,'' said Fitzwater.

The 11 unions involved cover dispatchers, engineers, maintainence of way workers, signalmen, boilermakers, electrical workers, firemen and oilers, sheet metal workers, communications workers and others.

The railroads involved include:

Akron and Barberton Belt; Alameda Belt Line; Alton and Southern; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe; Bessemer and Lake Erie; and Burlington Northern-Western Fruit Express Co.

Also, Canadian National Railways' Great Lakes Region Lines and St. Lawrence Region Lines in the United States; Canadian Pacific Limited; CSX Transportation, including Atlanta and West Point Rail Road; Western Railway of Alabama; Baltimore and Ohio; Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal; Chesapeake and Ohio; Hocking Valley; Pere Marquette; Clinchfield; Seaboard System; Georgia, and Louisville and Nashville, including C&EI and Monon Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis.

BOSTON (MAY 4) UPI - Boston Red Sox' unhappy reliever Lee Smith was traded Friday to the St. Louis Cardinals for power-hitting outfielder Tom Brunansky.

Smith, whose contract runs out this year, said he would not sign again with the Red Sox. The hard-throwing righthander, whose strength is short relief at the end of games, was displeased by Boston's off-season signing of free-agent short reliever Jeff Reardon to a three-year $6.8 million contract.

This season, the 32-year-old Smith has collected four saves in five opportunities, posted a 2-1 record with a 1.88 ERA. He was acquired from the Chicago Cubs prior to the 1988 season and in slightly more thans two seasons with Boston totaled 58 saves with a 12-7 record.

Brunansky, 28, is hitting just .158 this year but is expected to provide some of the power needed in Boston's lineup. The outfielder, who played on Minnesota's World Series championship team of 1987, has hit at least 20 home runs in each of the last eight seasons.

Brunansky, who entered this season with a .247 batting average, was traded from the Twins to the Cardinals early in the 1988 season. His best season was 1987, when he hit .259 with 32 home runs and 85 RBI. In 19 games this season, the righthanded-hitting Brunansky has only three doubles, one home run and two RBI.

In 32 games at Fenway Park, Brunansky has a .302 batting average with 10 home runs and 21 RBI. An All-Star in 1985, Brunansky was the California Angels' first-round draft pick in the 1978 June draft.

The trade is the first since 1975 between Boston and St. Louis, when the Red Sox acquired shortstop Mario Guerrero and pitcher Jim Willoughby was sent to the Cardinals.

NEW YORK (MAY 4) UPI - Stocks rebounded this week after posting two straight weekly losses, thanks to some some strong economic news and a break in the upward spiral in interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 14.19 Friday to close at 2710.36 for a gain of 65.31 points, or about 2.5 percent, on the week. The gain was the Dow's second-best weekly showing this year, surpassed only by the 96.17-point gain in the week ended March 2.

Among the broader market averages, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 4.64 points to close the week at 185.37. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 9.78 to 338.39.

Advances led declines 1,183-687 among the 2,155 issues traded this week. Big Board volume totaled 699,525,060 shares, compared with 679,044,060 a week earlier and 816,402,690 a year ago.

After two down weeks, the market posted gains each day this week after a mixed close Monday, when advancing and declining issues were virtually even.

The catalysts were several strong economic reports and one weak one, which temporarily depressed stocks Friday before prices rebounded.

On Tuesday stocks closed higher after the National Association of Purchasing Management's survey showed that the nation's manufacturing economy strengthened slightly in April after declining for 11 straight months.

The government reported Wednesday that the index of leading economic indicators for March advanced by a strong 0.9 percent, reflecting gains in the industrial sector, after a sharp 1 percent decline in February. The index was expected to rise 0.7 percent.

Separately, factory orders, reflecting a continuation of strong aircraft demand, increased 3.8 percent in March to $240.4 billion in the best showing since December 1988.

Also boosting prices Wednesday was a report from the Federal Reserve that the U.S. economy expanded slowly in April with little evidence of a ''credit crunch'' by banks and other lenders. The findings were released in the ''beige book'' report compiled every six weeks by the Fed and its 12 regional banks.

On Friday the market was shocked by a weak set of April employment statistics, however. Layoffs in heavy industry pushed the nation's jobless rate up to 5.4 percent in April from 5.2 percent in March, the highest since January 1989, the Labor Department said Friday. The rate was expected to stay at 5.2 percent.

The number of new jobs created rose by 64,000 as the Census Bureau added 80,000 temporary workers to the federal payroll. Economists had expected about 384,000 new jobs and the hiring of about 211,000 census workers.

Analysts said the report virtually ended speculation that the Federal Reserve might look to raise interest rates. Such talk began to surface after the strong economic data earlier in the week.

Stocks ended higher, but not before some recessionary fears took hold of the market and sent the Dow industrials into negative territory around midday.

Bonds staged a day-long rally on the news, ending up about 1 1/2 points with the yield down to 8.82 percent.

''The question had been whether the Fed would raise interest rates, but that's irrelevant now,'' said Gene Seagle, technical research director at Gruntal & Co. ''The fact that rates may have peaked was a stimulant to the upswing in the market.

''Weakness in the manufacturing sector is persisting,'' he said. ''Now the question is 'Will the Fed have to move the other way and ease rates?'''

Seagle said that if the Fed did act to lower short-term rates at this point ''with the amount of cash on the sidelines, we would have the making of a strong market once the refunding is out of the way.''

Analysts agree the the market's next major hurdle will be the Treasury's auction of $30.5 billion in securities at its quarterly refunding next week to raise cash to run the government, bail out the thrift industry and settle maturing notes.

As usual, there are questions about the degree of Japanese participation. Japanese investors normally buy 30 to 40 percent of the bonds auctioned in refundings but during the bond market's recent slide there was talk that the Japanese had pulled back from the U.S. Treasury securities market in favor of yen-denominated issues to try and shore up the yen.

''The key is whether the refunding can be sold next week,'' said Brad Weekes, senior vice president in charge of sales and trading at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. ''My gut says we're gonna have trouble, but who knows?''

On the trading floor this week, American General was the most active issue surging 8 5/8 to 48 1/4 after putting itself on the auction block.

Ames Department Stores followed, jumping 1 1/4 to 3 after getting interim approval on a new chief executive.

Chase Manhattan was third, off 3/4 to 24 1/2.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T rose 1/2 to 40 3/8, IBM gained 3 1/8 to 110 1/2 after winning a big personal computer contract Friday, and Philip Morris was up 1 5/8 to 43 1/8.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index rose 3.09 to close Friday at 345.73. Advances led declines 417-386 among the 998 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 55,199,035 shares, compared with 67,825,330 traded a week earlier and 53,294,675 traded in the same week a year ago.

Echo Bay Mines led the Amex actives, off 2 3/4 to 11 3/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers index rose 10.62 to end the week at 428.61.

SAN SALVADOR, EL SALVADOR (MAY 4) UPI - Gunfire from leftist rebels hit two government helicopters but a three-day surge in guerrilla attacks appeared to slacken, military sources said Friday.

''They damaged two helicopters that were passing overhead on a reconnassaince mission,'' a military spokesman said, adding that one of the pilots was wounded in the incident.

The shooting occurred Thursday near San Miguel, about 70 miles miles east of San Salvador.

But fighting in the country appeared to have eased after three days of widespread small guerrilla attacks that began overnight Tuesday with several raids in the capital.

President Alfredo Cristiani denied reports his residence had come under attack by rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, known by its Spanish acronym FMLN, in pre-dawn fighting Wednesday.

''I don't know where these news reports came from,'' Cristiani said at a news conference Thursday. ''The attack never happened.''

Official figures indicated that at least 30 soldiers and guerrillas died in the fighting. Most of the casualties were reportedly rebels, but the figures could not be independently verified.

Both sides in El Salvador's decade-old civil war tend to inflate the enemy's losses.

FMLN commanders have said the upswing in offensive operations was aimed at damping the ''triumphal attitude'' of the government and armed forces.

In a communique released Wednesday, the FMLN said assertions that its guerrilla army has been seriously affected by the electoral loss of their only ally in the region, Nicaragua's Sandinistas, could obstruct peace talks expected to begin later this month.

Both the government and the FMLN are under intense national and international pressure to negotiate a settlement to El Salvador's civil war. More than 72,000 people have died in the conflict and related political violence.

MIAMI (MAY 4) UPI - Rain showers, high humidity and aerial water drops helped firefighters Friday get control of a 25,000-acre saw-grass fire and thwart any threat to the Big Cypress National Preserve.

''The threat to the Big Cypress is gone unless there is some drastic change of weather,'' forestry spokesman Gene Dempsey said. ''This morning's rains, which certainly weren't expected, came at just the right time and in just the right place.''

The humidity was high in the area, too - helping firefighters get control of the huge blaze but, at the same time, hindering their efforts. Dempsey said flaming ping-pong balls dropped from helicopters to start a backfire failed to ignite on impact with the ground. Backfires are set to burn vegetation and thus destroy potential fuel a fire can absorb to grow larger.

Firefighters used four helicopters to drop 75-gallon buckets of water on the flames. Ground crews then moved into the drenched areas to make sure the fire was out.

''The fire is real spotty right now. It will probably take us most of the morning tomorrow to put it completely out, so it won't be officially under control until then,'' Dempsey said.

Dempsey said the fire burned saw grass and did not threaten the sensitive ecosystem.

Forestry officials believe the fire was started by man, but do not know if it was arson or an accident. The blaze cut a 16-mile path across the saw grass, but did not threaten inhabited areas.

Firefighters from the preserve joined state forestry officials in the battle against the fire Thursday after the flames jumped a key levee, called the L-67, that separated the blaze from Big Cypress.

''This morning about 10 a.m. an unexpected storm came through and put out the south end of the fire that had jumped the canal so that portion is cold,'' said Fred Fagergren, superintendent of the preserve.

The blaze stretched from north of U.S. 41, also known as the Tamiami Trail and west of Krome Avenue, to 12 miles from the preserve's eastern boundary.

Meanwhile, a spokeswoman for Everglades National Park to the south said firefighters there had 85 percent of a 10,450-acre blaze under control.

''We had crews working on the line this morning,'' said park spokeswoman Pat Tolle. ''They're mopping up, getting in anywhere they see smoke.''

Ninety-five firefighters, including a 20-member park service ''Hotshot'' crew from Ashville, N.C., fought to contain that blaze, which started Monday. Only the Hotshot crew returned to the firelines Friday.

About half of the 10,450 acres consumed by that blaze was inside the park boundaries.

A 25-year-old Italian soccer player apparently was infected with the AIDS virus in a bloody clash of heads with another player who was infected with the deadly virus, Italian doctors reported Friday from the Division of Infections Diseases Regional Hospital in Verese, Italy, in a letter in the British medical journal The Lancet. ... Carlos Aguilera, the Uruguayan soccer star charged with abetting a prostitution ring, was freed in Genoa, Italy, from house arrest pending eventual trial. The ruling meant the 25-year-old striker was free to go where he wanted and to join the Uruguayan national team at its training headquarters in Maiano, Italy.

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - Creditors of the parent company of Charles Keating's failed Lincoln Savings and Loan reached a tentative agreement with the government Friday to replace Keating and make a partial repayment of worthless bonds sold by the thrift.

The pact also calls for ''reorganization and liquidation'' of Lincoln parent American Continental Corp., of Phoenix, in the fifth largest bankruptcy case in U.S. history, according the Resolution Trust Corp.

But the settlement does not affect the government's prosecution of its $1.1 billion racketeering and fraud suit against Keating and others in the Lincoln case, said the RTC, which is overseeing the bailout of the savings industry.

''The agreement will result in partial payment of claims made by purchasers of ... subordinated debentures'' issued by American Continental and sold to depositors at Lincoln, the RTC said.

The agreement also calls for ''replacement of ACC's senior management and other insiders, including Charles Keating Jr., who controlled Lincoln Savings and Loan'' until its government takeover April 14, 1989, the RTC said.

''As part of the settlement, Lincoln will pay $21 million for the benefit of ACC's unsecured creditors, the majority of whom are holders of subordinated debentures that have been dramatically affected by ACC's Chapter 11 bankruptcy,'' the RTC said.

The agreement was presented by attorneys for the RTC and the creditors to federal Judge Richard Bilby in Phoenix, who has been overseeing the Chapter 11 reorganization of American Continental and its subsidiaries.

Rex Veal, the RTC's special counsel, said the deal ''will allow the RTC, as Lincoln's conservator, to manage the assets of the S&L's subsidiaries in a way that maximizes their value.''

Donald Gaffney, an attorney for the creditors committee, said, ''The proposed agreement facilitates a resolution of the American Continental case in a way that provides some benefit for its unsecured creditors.''

MIAMI (MAY 7) UPI - Negotiations on a back-to-work agreement for Eastern Airlines pilots who walked off the job in March 1989 in sympathy with striking machinists are expected to begin in 10 days, a union spokesman said Friday.

E.J. Breen, a spokesman for the Air Line Pilots Association, said Martin Shugrue, Eastern's bankruptcy court-appointed trustee, met with union leaders for more than three hours Thursday. It was his first meeting with ALPA representatives since his appointment as trustee last month.

Shugrue told the leaders a back-to-work agreement needs to be worked out soon if pilots are to participate in the carrier's rebuilding efforts.

''We've got to have something within a short period of time because we see clearly the window of opportunity here,'' Breen said.

Shugrue ''pledged to treat pilots as meaningful members of the Eastern team, and we pledged to do whatever is necessary to get Eastern healthy again,'' said Capt. C.H. Copeland, chairman of the Eastern chapter of the ALPA's Master Executive Council.

''We are confident that we will be able to negotiate a realistic back-to-work agreement that will protect the interests of all Eastern pilots.''

Eastern was forced to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors in March 1989 after the International Association of Machinists struck the carrier.

ALPA and the carrier's flight attendants stayed off the job in conjunction with the machinists' strike but voted to take down their picket lines last November, leaving the machinists alone in the strike.

In addition to representing the pilots who struck the carrier, ALPA is the chief bargaining agent for those who either did not strike or crossed the picket line. ALPA also represents those hired after the strike.

Shugrue has said his first task in managing the financially troubled carrier is to improve relations with the airline's unions.

U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Burton Lifland in New York appointed Shugrue to head the airline last month, effectively stripping control of the carrier from parent Texas Air Corp. and its chairman, Frank Lorenzo.

''As of today, not a single pilot who left the cockpit because of Lorenzo's gross mismanagement of this airline has been able to return to Eastern since the end of the strike,'' Copeland said.

''Mr. Shugrue assured us that a resolution to this situation is feasible and, in fact, desirable.''

There are 3,000 Eastern pilots, including about 1,800 working pilots.

Eastern said Thursday it flew 1.58 billion revenue passenger miles in April.

(MAY 4) UPI - Jerusalem's District Court today rejected a request by Jewish settlers to move back into a disputed church-owned building in the Old City's Christian Quarter. Israel's High Court earlier ordered 130 settlers out of the 72-room building by May 1st following a storm of protests from Christian leaders. The settlers and church leaders still are fighting about the validity of the lease.

A published report says American forces were involved in a December air assault in Colombia that led to the death of a fugitive druglord. The publication says the goal of the strike was to capture the drug trafficker. President Bush yesterday denied that U-S forces were involved

OAKLAND, CA (MAY 4) UPI - Striking students shut down the Mills College campus Friday after the trustees decided to break a 138-year-old tradition by admitting men beginning with the class of 1991.

The angry students blockaded buildings, set off car alarms, and attended rallies instead of classes chanting ''better dead than coed.''

''There are no words strong enough to express our hatred of the board's decision to go coed,'' the campus newspaper said in an editorial. ''We will not accept this... Mills is not co-educational until the first male student registers for classes.''

The decision Thursday to admit men was based on an effort by the trustees to attract a large enough student body to support the college's program and high academic standards.

For 20 years Mills has failed in efforts to reach that goal. Research has found the number of female high school graduates shrinking. The percentage of such graduates interested in single-sex education is shrinking as well.

Student leaders, however, said the trustees were dominated by men and had not pursued other options to attract more women.

Student body president Robyn Fisher said students would stop payments to the college, transfer to other institutions and withhold contributions as alumnae if the decision to admit men is not reversed.

College president Mary Metz said student retribution was contrary to Mills tradition, which ''is to work positively and not destructively.''

Metz, who reluctantly agreed with the board's decision, said from the time 138 years ago when Mills was a seminary, the college underwent many changes before becoming a nationally ranked liberal arts school.

Now, with Mills counting 777 undergraduates, students must accept reality and ''enter the uncharted waters of trying to be different as a coed college,'' Metz said.

Meanwhile, the senior class abruptly voted to give its traditional class gift of $1,500 to another women's college and said trustees would not be invited to graduation.

STARKE, FL (MAY 4) UPI - A faulty electric chair component shot out flames around convicted killer Jesse Tafero's head as he was executed early Friday for the 1976 slayings of two police officers at a highway rest stop.

Three surges of electricity were sent through Tafero's body, the first at 7:07 a.m. and the last at about 7:10 a.m. Each time, flame erupted from a headpiece and a cloud of smoke rose to the ceiling.

Ashes fell to the prisoner's shirt as he was prounounced dead at 7:13 a.m.

A replacement sponge in the headpiece caused the flames, said Florida State Prison spokesman Bob Macmaster, who added he had never before seen flames during an electrocution.

''It appears unusual. That amount of smoke is unusual,'' Macmaster said.

Gov. Bob Martinez ordered the Department of Corrections to provide him with a full report of the incident, saying he wants to ensure that similar problems do not occur in the future.

''It is unfortunate that this incident affected the execution, but it is far more unfortunate that it took 14 years to bring to justice a man who killed two police officers,'' Martinez said.

After the first two jolts, Tafero's chest moved, and he appeared to continue breathing. But Macmaster said that prison physician Dr. Frank Kilgo believed Tafero was dead within seconds of the first jolt and said there was no indication he felt pain.

''It was not (human) tissue that was burning. It was the headpiece,'' Macmaster said. ''There was some arcing in the headpiece itself. We believe he was dead after the first few seconds. I believe he was unconscious from the moment (electricity) hit him.''

Attorney Mark Olive of Atlanta, who unsuccessfully fought to save Tafero from the chair, arrived in Tallahassee after the execution and asked Martinez to suspend further death sentences.

''Death warrants in this state tend to come out of the governor's office like junk mail,'' Olive said. ''If they cannot execute correctly, they can't execute at all.''

Olive called for an inquiry by an outside panel to determine if defects in the chair inflicted pain on Tefero. Until such an inquiry is concluded, Olive said, Martinez should suspend all executions.

In Florida executions, electricity passes from a wire into a sponge filled with saline solution that is placed directly on the head, Macmaster said. The old sponge had been used in 21 executions before it was replaced for the Tafero execution.

''It was the sponge. They had put the first new sponge in there since 1979. It was not an appropriate sponge,'' he said. ''It was the sponge causing the fire.''

Tafero, 43, with his head shaven and his eyes covered by a black mask, smiled briefly as he was strapped into the electric chair at Florida State Prison and had electrodes attached to his head and lower right leg.

Tafero, whose final request for a stay late Thursday was denied by the U.S. Supreme Court, devoted his last words to criticizing the system that led to his death.

''Well, I'd like to say that the death penalty as applied in the state is very arbitrary and capricious,'' Tafero said. ''For instance, this morning I filed two motions in court. It seems the federal court judge and circuit court judge have just ignored my petitions. They were not heard by any court in the state of Florida.

''I think it's very unfair. I think it's time that everyone woke up to see that the same laws that can go against crime can go against you tomorrow.''

Tafero was the 22nd person executed in Florida and the nation's 124th since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment in 1976. His execution came exactly one year after Florida's last execution, when Aubrey Adams was put to death.

Some 39 witnesses, including nine journalists and several law enforcement officers, were present when Tafero died. No relatives were present.

About a dozen anti-death penalty protesters held a candle-light vigil at the prison gates. A handful of capital punishment supporters also were at the prison.

Tafero ate about half of his last meal of scrambled eggs, fried pepperoni, toasted Italian bread, two tomatoes, steamed broccoli, asparagus tips, fresh strawberry shortcake with real whipped cream, whole milk and hot tea Macmaster said.

At about 3 a.m. EDT Friday, he spoke by telephone to his girlfriend, Sonia Jacobs, one of his co-defendants, who is serving a life term at a women's prison in Broward County for the same crime. He also spoke by telephone to his and Jacobs' daughter, Christina Tafero, 15, who lives with guardians in New York.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta and U.S. District Judge Lenore Nesbitt refused earlier Thursday to grant Tafero a stay, rejecting claims that mitigating circumstances were not considered by the trial jury that recommended the death penalty.

Tafero, one of three murder defendants, was convicted of two counts of first-degree murder, robbery and kidnapping in the Feb. 20, 1976, shooting deaths of Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Philip Black and Canadian Constable Donald Irwin, who were killed at an Interstate 95 rest stop in south Florida.

Irwin, a friend of Black's, was riding with the Florida officer to observe American law enforcement procedures.

Tafero had been scheduled for execution Wednesday, but Nesbitt delayed it to consider his lastest appeal.

Tafero, Jacobs, her two children and Rhodes were asleep in a car at the rest stop when Black and Irwin approached to investigate.

Black spotted a semi-automatic handgun, confiscated it and prepared to arrest Rhodes for a weapons violation, but a fight broke out, and

WASHINGTON (MAY 4) UPI - The U.S. Export-Import Bank Friday said it will help a New York company finance the sale of $28.5 million in U.S. pipeline equipment and services to Colombia.

New York-based Ramseyer and Miller, a wholly owned Techint Inc., will provide procurement, financing and consulting services to Oleoducto de Colombia S.A., of Bogota, Colombia.

The U.S. products procured by R&M from various suppliers will include pressure flow switches and meters, control valves, pumps, tanks and mobile communication equipment.

The Eximbank said it will guarantee financing for 85 percent of the U.S. cost, or $24.2 million.

WASHINGTON (MAY 7) UPI - Two of Leslie Fay Cos. largest shareholders said they plan to sell their stakes in the company, but neither is doing so because of dissatisfaction with the sportswear manufacturer's performance.

In a registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Leslie Fay said its largest shareholder, Goldome of Buffalo, N.Y., will sell 3.5 million of its 3.96 million shares, and its fourth largest stockholder, Merrill Lynch Interfunding Inc., will sell over 655,000 of its 1.44 million shares.

In sum, the two companies will sell 21 percent of Leslie Fay's 19.09 million outstanding shares worth a total of about $45.9 million.

Industry sources suggested that government regulators may have told Goldome, which owns a bank with branches in Florida and New York, to sell the stock to bolster its poor financial position.

Goldome, however, said the decision to sell its Leslie Fay holdings was part of its strategy to pare down noncore assets and was not prompted by regulatory pressure or a lack of confidence in the sportswear maker.

''Last year we put together a strategy which was approved by the regulators that spoke to how we were to internally restructure, and we have been following that stragety ever since,'' says Mary Stachura, senior vice president of marketing at Goldome.

Merrill Lynch, on the other hand, said its decision to sell was spurred by profit-taking. The sale ''has a lot more to do with Merrill Lynch recognition of revenue'' than Leslie Fay's value, said Harvey Appelle, an Interfunding senior vice president. ''If anything, I think Leslie Fay is one of the more undervalued companies in that industry sector.''

Both Goldome and Merrill Lynch, which were limited partners in a 1984 leveraged buy out that took Leslie Faye private, will earn a hefty profit through the stock sales.

The two companies acquired the stock for 9 cents a share when Leslie Fay was again taken public in a 1986 initial public offering. On Thursday, Leslie Fay stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange at $11.125.

(MAY 4) UPI - Latvian parliament approves declaration of independence from the Soviet Union... Secretary of State Baker meets German leaders on the eve of reunification talks... freed American hostage Frank Reed returns to the United States.

The day's top news... from U-P-I.

Latvia declared its independence from the Soviet Union today.

It became the third Baltic republic to take the initial step toward separation from Moscow. Lithuania and Estonia voted to break with Moscow earlier.

Latvia's Supreme Soviet voted 138-1 in favor of the independence declaration. 57 ethnic Russian deputies who oppose the move boycotted the vote.

The republic has a Russian population of 32 percent, while Latvians comprise only about 52 percent of the population.

The nationalist Popular Front party has said it will avoid confrontational tactics and provide for a transitional period to avoid a showdown with the Soviet Union. Neighboring Lithuania followed a different course, and Moscow cut off vital goods.

A draft of today's declaration contained a reference to the Soviet Union's takeover of the Baltic states in June 1940. It termed the action- quote- ''an international crime that resulted in the occupation of Latvia and the liquidation of the soverign state power of the Latvian republic.''

Diplomats and political leaders were on the move in Bonn, West Germany, today as they prepared for talks on German reunification that get under way tomorrow.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl followed up a talk with Secretary of State Baker by endorsing a greater political role for NATO. The two men also discussed proposals on Europe's future detailed by President Bush at a news conference yesterday.

Baker also met with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze . On his way to meet with Baker, the Soviet diplomat described a U-S plan NOT to modernize short-range NATO missiles as ''a good proposal.''

Tomorrow's meeting will involve diplomats from the United States, Soviet Union, France and Britain... allies during World War Two. They will be joined by East and West German officials.

(MAY 4) UPI - After 44 months in captivity, Frank Reed is back in the United States. Reed, his wife and son arrived at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D-C.

The former American hostage left the U-S air base in Wiesbaden , West Germany, earlier today after undergoing a series of medical tests.

Encouraged State Department officials say the release of Reed, and of Robert Polhill two weeks ago, signals a new mood in Iran.

Iran and its allies in Lebanon have been trying to trade the remaining Western hostages for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel.

Six Americans and 10 other Westerners still are believed to be held. Among those are Britons John McCarthy and Brian Keenan, with whom Reed shared a room in recent months. Before leaving Wiesbaden, Reed told the families of the British hostages that the two men are ''alive and well''.

The New England native also scolded British officials for NOT working hard enough to secure McCarthy's and Keenan's release.

Nelson Mandela and Frederick de Klerk issued a joint statement today at the conclusion of three days of talks in Cape Townm.

The African National Congress leader and South African president announced a compromise on two issues long considered major stumbling blocks in attempts to end apartheid.

Mandela says he will re-think the African National Congress backing of a guerrilla war against the government. And De Klerk says he will work toward lifting the state of emergency.

Their joint decision follows three days of crucial talks between delegations led by de Klerk and A-N-C leader Mandela.

It was the first formal meeting between South Africa's largest black political movement and the white government...and paves the way for formal power-sharing negotiations to end the country's racial conflict.

TYLER, TX (MAY 4) UPI - Three former lawmen convicted in the 1987 beating death of a black jail inmate were sentenced Friday to prison by an all-white jury that meted out terms ranging from 10 to 28 years.

Jurors deliberated about four hours before sentencing former Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner, 43, to 28 years in prison. The jury sentenced former Sabine County sheriff's deputy James Hyden, 36, to 14 years and former deputy Bill R. Horton, 60, to 10 years.

The defendants were convicted Thursday on murder charges in the death of truck driver Loyal Garner, Jr., of Florien, La. They are planning to appeal.

The sentences they faced had ranged from life in prison to probation.

''I had to shed some tears. It was joyful tears,'' Sarah Garner, the victim's mother, said after hearing the sentencing verdict. ''I felt we had never had justice in this case.''

The case increased racial tension in the Sabine County area and sparked a 1960s style protest rally not longer after the death.

Garner, who had never been in trouble with the law before, was arrested on Christmas Day 1987 for drunken driving and placed in the Sabine County Jail in Hemphill.

Prosecutors said he was beaten in the jail by Ladner while the two deputies watched. Garner died of massive head injuries in a Tyler hospital two days after the beating.

Under Texas law, the deputies were tried on murder charges for not trying to stop the beating.

In closing arguments, prosecutor Jack Skeen Jr. said Garner had beaten on his cell door demanding to call his wife and Ladner was overzealous in his efforts to quiet him.

''He went in there and put an end to it (the beating on the jail cell door) and in the process put an end to the life of Loyal Garner Jr.,''

Skeen said, ''and his six children are going to grow up without a daddy because their father banged on the door in the Sabine County Jail.''

The defense claimed Ladner hit Garner in self-defense just one time. Then, in the booking room, where the defendants had taken Garner so he could make a phone call, the inmate grabbed for a flashlight and stumbled, smacking his head on a wall.

The punishment phase of the trial began Friday morning and defense attorneys called character witnesses - including some who testified the ex-lawmen would be safe candidates for probation.

Defense lawyers claimed any prison time for the former cops would endanger their lives.

Skeen had said earlier he presumed the defense would make such an argument.

''I think that's something they (the defendants) should have thought about before beating Loyal Garner Jr. to death,'' Skeen said.

The three former officers were acquitted of civil rights charges in a trial in Hemphill in 1988. Ladner's attorney, John Seale, said the defendants will appeal their convictions based on the contention that the murder trial constituted double jeopardy.

''You don't have to be a judge or anything else to know that,'' Seale said. ''You learn that in junior high school civics. The witnesses were the same. The testimony was the same exactly.''

A state district judge ruled before the trial began that the murder case did not constitute double jeopardy because of the different standards and facts required for a conviction in a civil rights case.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 4) UPI - A pair of 150-pound St. Bernards lunged at an elderly couple strolling in their neighborhood Friday, knocking both to the ground and seriously injuring the man, who apparently suffered a skull fracture, authorities said.

The dogs were owned by a neighbor of the couple. Officials said that in an attack 17 years ago, the man's wife was nearly killed by two similar dogs owned by the same neighbor.

Friday's attack occurred about noon as the couple walked along a street in suburban Encino. The dogs, on a leash and being walked by their owner, attacked the couple from behind, said Lt. Richard Felosky of the city's Animal Care and Control Department.

Both the man and his wife were knocked to the ground. The man, who was believed to be about 85 years old, suffered severe head injuries. It was not immediately clear whether he had been bitten, had his head knocked on the ground, or both, Felosky said.

''His head was fractured in several places,'' he said. ''He was injured for a fact, but I don't known if he was bitten. However, his daughter (told investigators) that plastic surgery was being sought. That indicates to me he could have been bitten.''

The man's wife, whom Felosky described as close in age to her husband, suffered minor injuries. Their names were not immediately available.

Felosky said the woman was the victim of a near-fatal attack by two other St. Bernards owned by the same neighbor in 1973.

''Those dogs almost killed her (in the earlier attack). They scalped her but she survived,'' he said. ''Coincidentally, I was the investigating officer at the time and I can only imagine what went through her mind, when, to her horror, she turned around and saw the dogs (involved in Friday's attack).''

''At first I didn't realize it was the same lady, but when I did, it made my hair stand on end,'' Felosky said.

It was not immediately known where the couple was taken for treatment.

The dogs, which were 3 years old and 1 year old respectively and weighed 150 pounds each, were impounded at the West Valley Animal Control Shelter pending the outcome of an investigation.

Felosky said he would seek criminal charges against the dogs' owner, whose name was not released, and possibly seek to have the dogs destroyed.

''I think what we will find is a person unable to control a couple of huge animals and he didn't use common sense,'' he said.

A rash of attacks by pit bull and Rockweiller dogs within the past three years prompted local officials to enact stricter regulations for animal control.

But the St. Bernard breed - a large, reddish-brown and white dog - is not generally regarded as a vicious animal, having a reputation of providing assistance to people in time of need. Centuries ago, the dogs were kept by the monks of the Hospice of Great St. Bernard Pass in the Swiss Alps and were trained to rescue travelers in the snow.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 4) UPI - Two competing factions among 25 law firms vying for the lucrative position as leader of the 20 shareholder suits against Oracle Systems Corp. must submit what amounts to bids for the top spot, a federal judge said Friday.

Oracle, the Belmont-based maker of database software, has been hit by 18 shareholder suits and two derivative actions since March over the plummeting price of its stock after a report of flat third-quarter earnings took Wall Street by surprise.

Oracle's stock dropped 31 percent in record over-the-counter trading March 28, falling to $17 a share from $24 .

Twenty-five securities law firms representing shareholders raced to the courthouse claiming Oracle violated securities law by allegedly misleading the public and shareholders about the firm's financial outlook.

Two factions surfaced Friday among the law firms representing the shareholders in the class action cases competing for the assignment of lead counsel for the entire case.

The position as lead counsel provides a potentially larger share of proceeds from any final costs and damages awarded in the case.

U.S. District Judge Vaughn Walker Friday expressed concern over which side would be most cost effective in representing shareholders and keeping down the cost of the litigation.

He ordered each faction to submit by May 15 an outline of the estimated cost of the litigation and possible recovery of damages.

Some 20 law firms representing the majority of the suits have thrown their support behind Sherrie Savett and William Lerach of San Diego.

The remaining five firms, representing four suits, backed David Gold of San Francisco.

Walker said, ''What if the court set a flat amount (of costs) and said the cost was not to exceed that flat amount... in an effort to get you to come in under budget?''

He indicated he would select lead counsel after the May 15 filings.

Oracle's attorneys preferred to remain out of the crossfire between the competing shareholder lawyers.

(MAY 4) UPI - Voters failed to follow through on predictions that Prime Minister Thatcher would suffer a major setback in local British elections.

The opposition Labor Party posted substantial gains in yesterday's balloting. But the voters did NOT overwhelm Thatcher's Conservative Party for her support of a controversial poll tax.

Voters cast ballots for five-thousand 62 seats in 183 councils around the country. The Labor Party gained more than 300 seats overall.

With final results still pending, the Conservatives appeared to lose 200 seats and eight councils across England, Scotland and Wales. Voting in London went against the national trend, with Conservatives making substantial gains in a large number of Labor councils.

The advance by Labor did NOT match pollsters' predictions of a massive gain for the party of possibly up to 600 seats.

Four students who were killed at Kent State University 20 years ago were remembered today.

Thousands turned out at the Ohio campus for a memorial service. About three-thousand people were on hand for a candlight march last night.

Honored were four students who were killed by National Guardsmen during a protest on May 4th, 1970.

Brigadier General Charles Fassinger... a lieutenant colonel and the senior uniformed officer at Kent State on the day of the shooting... was among those attending a service this morning.

Of the events of 20 years ago, Fassinger said the guardsmen fired at the youths because they felt their lives were in danger. He said about 75 guardsmen were atop Blanket Hill shortly after noon in 1970 and appeared to be retreating from a large group of students who were taunting them and throwing rocks.

All of a sudden, Fasssinger said, 28 guardsmen turned and fired, killing four students and wounding nine. Added Fassinger- quote- ''I think I understood what happened then. I don't think I've changed my mind since then.''

(MAY 4) UPI - Rescue workers in Texas have found the body of a fourth person who drowned this week in raging flood waters. 77-year-old Bernie Allen died when her pick-up truck was swept into a rain-swollen creek north of Dallas. She was the 10th fatality in two weeks of heavy rain.

But today's sunny skies are giving residents a desperately needed chance to dry out.

The National Weather Service says almost 26 inches of rain fell on north Texas this year. That's twice the normal amount of rain...and much of it has fallen in the past week.

The most recent storm front quietly left Texas this morning, but floodwaters still are coursing through many of northern city streets. Residents in the central and southern parts of the state are preparing for the waters to start moving downstream.

Washington state fishermen might be humming the theme to ''Jaws.'' That's because... he's back.

At least one of the sea lions captured at the Ballard Locks in March and trucked to southern California has found his way back to Seattle.

The male sea lion, officially known as sea lion Number 22, was detected on Wednesday in the Puget Sound area and sighted yesterday on a buoy off Alki Point in West Seattle.

The sea lion was one of six voracious eaters captured in a floating trap on Shilshole Bay two months ago in an effort to spare a fragile steelhead trout fishery. The sea lions were trucked to California, outfitted with radio transmitters and released in the Channel Islands off Santa Barbara.

Experts don't know what to do about the stubborn over-eater now.

They already tried underwater firecrackers, tapes playing scary whale sounds, lining the locks with bad-tasting dead fish, and construction of a steel net-barrier and the firing of rubber-tipped arrows.

SAN JOSE, CA (MAY 4) UPI - A 9th grade student was shot by a gang of outsiders Friday, possibly in a case of mistaken identity, and was later declared ''brain dead'' by physicians at San Jose Medical Center.

''He is brain dead. He has no hope for survival,'' said Dr. Jeffrey Guttman, trauma center surgeon at the hospital. ''We will stop the life support system within the next 12 hours.''

The victim, Larry Brown, suffered a single gunshot wound to the head after he was shot by four or five youths at Mount Pleasant High School, police said.

Three suspects were taken into custody for questioning, a police spokeswoman said.

''During the break today, some outsiders came onto the campus .. walked up to a student and said, 'You're the one.' Then they pulled out a gun and shot him,'' said Manual Morales, the school principal.

Several shots were fired, one of which creased the head of a girl but apparently did not injure her, Morales said.

A student who saw the shooting on the edge of the campus said Brown was not the target of the attack.

''They weren't after Larry. They were after someone else,'' sophomore Fred Beltran said. ''He just stepped in.''

Paul Sanches, a friend of Brown, called him ''a pretty quiet kid.''

''He don't say nothing to nobody. They shot the wrong person, that's what makes me mad,'' Sanches said.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (MAY 5) UPI - Nicaragua's monetary unit, the cordoba, suffered a further devaluation Friday, dropping from 140,000 to 170,000 cordobas to the dollar on the so-called parallel rate.

It was the second devaluation since the government of President Violeta Chamorro took office April 25. The move was a forecast for harder times ahead for the Nicaraguan people, who have seen prices on many consumer items double in the past week.

Labor groups have staged mass protests this week in Managua and throughout the country, asking for wage increases to match the skyrocketing prices on everything from gasoline to toilet paper.

On Thursday, the United States signed an agreement with the Chamorro government to provide Nicaragua $12.3 million in immediate food aid to help tie the country over until domestic production rises and until arrival of the $300 million aid package proposed by President Bush.

Soviet Ambassador Valeri Nikolaenko said Friday the Soviet Union would also continue pumping food aid to Nicaragua and promised to fulfill an agreement to supply Nicaragua with 300,000 tons of crude oil in 1990.

''This year we will comply with the agreements we have signed,'' Nikolaenko said. ''For next year, we are waiting for the results of our discussions with the new government.''

''Food aid will continue,'' Nikolaenko said, adding that the Soviets are also talking with the Chamorro governmvent about mineral and fishing agreements.

''We also want to promote an interchange of trade within the private sector,'' he said.

The Soviet Union was one of the biggest foreign supporters of the previous Sandinista government, and Chamorro, who defeated Sandinista President Daniel Ortega in Feb. 25 elections, has vowed to pursue continued strong ties with the Soviets.

The Central Bank of Nicaragua said Friday the parallel rate of exchange with the dollar had been adjusted to 170,000 cordobas to buy and 175,000 cordobas to sell. Just a week earlier, the exchange rate jumped from 68,700 to 140,000 cordobas to the dollar.

The official rate was adjusted Friday from 70,000 cordobas to 90,000 cordobas to the dollar.

There was also speculation the cordoba would devalue further. Black market vendors were selling cordobas Friday at rates of more than 225,000 cordobas to the dollar.

(MAY 4) UPI - Frank Reed is back on American soil. The former hostage today arrived at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, where he was greeted by a party of well-wishers, including another former hostage, Robert Polhill. An emotional Reed told reporters that it felt great to be home and urged that more be done to free the remaining Western hostages held in the Middle East.

Latvian leaders today passed a declaration of independence aimed at ending 50 years of Soviet annexation. Parliament members of the tiny Baltic republic defied Kremlin warnings when they voted 138-1 to follow the lead of independence-driven Lithuania and Estonia. Latvia's motion, however, calls for a slow transition to sovereignty while it negotiates secession with Moscow.

Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene urged American action today to protest Moscow's crackdown on her homeland. Speaking in Washington, D-C Prunskiene said more is needed to counter the Soviets than appeals that both sides negotiate. She coupled this with a call for formal recognition of Lithuania independence by the Western world.

(MAY 4) UPI - President Bush looked ahead to next month's NATO summit today, saying western Europe must work to help Warsaw Pact countries ''secure their revolution'' of democracy. Speaking to graduating seniors at Oklahoma State University, Bush made the first of what is planned as a series of foreign policy addresses on- quote- ''America's place in the new Europe.''

Freed hostage Frank Reed returned to the United States today after 44 months of captivity in Lebanon and a battery of medical tests and debriefing this week in West Germany. He was welcomed on the tarmac at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington by Robert Polhill, who also was freed last month. Reed was cheered by his son, waving a lobster. The Massachusetts educator had said the first thing he wanted on returning home was a Maine lobster.

The Soviet republic of Latvia joined its Baltic neighbors today in issuing a declaration of independence. The Latvian Supreme Soviet affirmed the declaration by a vote of 138-1. (MAY 4) UPI - President Bush hails new age of freedom... Latvia declares independence from the Soviet Union... A freed hostage returns... and successful South African talks. U-P-I has the top world and national stories, next:

President Bush made the first in a series of foreign policy addresses today on the topic ''America's place in the new Europe.''

Speaking to the graduating seniors at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Bush charted a course away from isolationism. Bush said the NATO allies want the United States ''to be a part of Europe's future.'' Said Bush... ''I believe they are right.''

Bush also said isolationism would NOT do for western Europe. He urged the NATO allies to help the nations of eastern Europe ''secure their revolution'' of democracy.

Bush suggested that the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe be used to foster a peaceful, more united Europe.

Bush is clarifying his positions on several key European issues before the upcoming NATO summit, tentatively set for London late next month.

The Soviet republic of Latvia ignored warnings from Moscow today, joining its Baltic neighbors in declaring independence. But the harsh Soviet threats did NOT go completely UNheard.

Latvia's Supreme Soviet approved the independence declaration by a vote of 138-1. 57 ethnic Russian deputies abstained.

The Latvian declaration was drafted to minimize problems with Moscow. It allows for a transitional period in which the actual process of secession will be negotiated with the Soviet government.

Latvian President Anatolijs Gorbunovs, leader of the nationalist Latvian Popular Front, did NOT gloss over the meaning or the implications of the move. In his words- ''There will be a conflict with Moscow.'' But he was quick to add... ''We think we left the door open for talks.''

Soviet television described the declaration as less radical than Lithuania's, but more radical than Estonia's- meaning the opening for talks may NOT be as wide as the Latvians hope.

(MAY 4) UPI - Secretary of State Baker and his Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze are in Bonn, West Germany, for tomorrow's conference on German re-unification.

The so-called ''two-plus-four'' talks involve the United States and the Soviets, along with Britain, France and both East and West Germany.

Baker and Shevardnadze met for more than three hours today. Talks focused on Germany, but also touched on arms control and the events in Lithuania.

Shevardnadze raised continued objections to Western hopes that a united Germany would become part of the NATO alliance. But he praised U-S proposals that NATO scrap plans for modernization of its short-range nuclear arsenal.

International political insiders speculate that a deal on German NATO membership could involve Western arms concessions.

Baker continues on to the Soviet Union next week for additional discussions.

Freed American hostage Frank Reed is back in the United States.

The 57-year-old Massachusetts educator arrived at Andrews Air Force Base outside the nation's capital today, fresh from medical tests and debriefing in West Germany following 44 months of captivity in Lebanon.

Reed was greeted on the tarmac by former hostage Robert Polhill, who was released last month.

Reed used the attention generated by his homecoming to focus on the six U-S citizens still held in Lebanon.

Reed said... ''Of course, it feels wonderful'' to be back. But he urged everyone to exert all manner of political pressure so that- in his words- ''this tragic affair will end soon.''

Reed greeted by Senator Edward Kennedy and by his own son, who waved a live lobster at him. Reed had said that the first thing he wanted on his return home was a big Maine lobster.

(MAY 4) UPI - South Africa may be on the road to finding a solution to end apartheid.

President Frederick de Klerk and African Nationalist Congress leader Nelson Mandela say they've made a breakthrough. The leaders apparently are willing to compromise on key issues that have always been major stumbling blocks to formal power-sharing discussions.

Emerging from three days of UNprecedented talks, Mandela said he'll seriously rethink armed resistance against the government. De Klerk has insisted that further talks canNOT take place until the A-N-C suspends its nearly 30-year-old guerrilla war.

De Klerk says he'll move on A-N-C demands, which include lifting a four-year-old state of emergency and releasing all political prisoners.

De Klerk has also agreed to consider temporary immunity for members of the A-N-C's policy-making body and for other members now in exile.

The two men promised each other a progress report by May 21st.

(MAY 4) UPI - Showers and thunderstorms battered much of the nation today filling swollen rivers and lakes in Oklahoma and Arkansas, while tornadoes threatened parts of the South and Midwest.

Heavy rain and hail also pelted the nation's midsection reaching as far east as Virginia and as far west as Texas.

Texans, however, welcomed mostly sunny skies, using the time to dry out from weeks of heavy rain.

Residents are still fighting high waters... trying to clean up from two weeks of torrential rains. (MAY 4) UPI - A former aide in the Reagan administration's housing department today told Congress that former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce lied when he denied making grants on the basis of political favoritism.

DuBois Gilliam, who testified under a grant of immunity, is currently serving an 18-month sentence for conspiracy and accepting illegal gratuities while a deputy assistant secretary for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Gilliam told a house subcommittee that he knew of NO illegal activities by Pierce during his eight-year tenure at HUD. But he did say that Pierce was intimately involved in directing some politically-motivated projects.

Gilliam's is the latest shot at scandal-scarred HUD. The storm revolves around allegations that Millions of scarce housing dollars for the poor were passed along to political cronies and business associates of Pierce and other Reagan administration officials.

The Labor Department today reported layoffs in heavy industry pushed the nation's unemployment rate up two-tenths of one percent in the last month, to five-point-four percent.

Spokeswoman Janet Norwood says the decline is concentrated in the durable goods and machine industries. She also says there are 280-thousand fewer jobs in factories this year than last.

The April jobless rate ties this year's highest unemployment recorded in January.

The Labor Department says that employment held steady in retail trade, transportation and public utilities. In the finance industry, a small gain in the insurance business was offset by a decline in the hard hit real estate sector.

BUCHAREST, (MAY 5) - Romanian Deputy Prime Minister Mihai Draganescu announced Saturday that the interim government expects "500 to 1,000 foreign observers" to monitor presidential and parliamentary elections on May 20.

Among "international figures" the government has invited to attend are former U.S. president Jimmy Carter and former West German chancellor Willy Brandt, Mr. Draganescu added.

The minister, who heads a commission responsible for technical organization of the election, added that a West German public opinion institute, INFAS, will organize an opinion poll in cooperation with a Romanian institute.

The first opinion poll forecast will be released one minute after all the polling stations close, Mr. Draganescu said. Proper election results are due on May 22 for the presidency and May 23 for parliament, he added.

INFAS, the minister stressed at a press conference here, took part in the East German elections with a margin of error of just 0.1 per cent.

Mr. Dragenescu also stated that the electoral commission had responded favourably to requests from leaders of the political parties " to protect their headquarters and voting posters" and to "support" the transmission of their electoral messages through independent newspapers where they did not have a press of their own.

On security at the 13,000-odd polling stations, Deputy Interior Minister Corneliu Diamandescu said "police and defence ministry forces will be posted outside - and only outside - the polling stations within a radius of 500 metres" (about a third of a mile).

SAN LUIS OBISPO, CA (MAY 5) UPI - Charles ''Tex'' Watson, a former member of Charles Manson's murderous cult, was denied parole Friday for the 10th time for his role in the 1969 murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

A three-member Board of Prison Terms panel voted unanimously to reject Watson's bid for parole and concluded he had an ''unstable social history'' and a record of using dangerous drugs, including LSD.

Watson, 44, is serving a life sentence at the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo. He will not be eligible for parole until 1993, said Phyllis Scott, spokeswoman for the Board of Prison Terms.

Watson, convicted in 1971 along with Manson and four ''family'' members, was originally sentenced to die for his role in the murder of Tate and four others in her Benedict Canyon mansion, as well as the murders of grocer Leo LaBianca and his wife Rosemary. But that sentence was reduced to life when the state Supreme Court declared the death penalty unconstitutional in 1972.

The board agreed with a February psychological report on Watson that found he was ''unfavorable for parole readiness at this time.''

''Mr. Watson admits to being in the denial stage during the late 70s and early 80s and had not felt true remorse for the crimes until three years ago. He needs therapy in order to face, discuss and understand and cope with stress in non-destructive manner,'' Scott said.

''Until progress is made, the prisoner continues to be unpredictable and a threat to others. Gains are short-term and he must demonstrate an ability to maintain gains over an extended period of time,'' she said.

TWENTYNINE PALMS, CA (MAY 5) UPI - A Marine helicopter crash-landed

Friday, injuring all 17 Marines aboard, military officials said.

The CH-46E Sea Knight helicopter went down at 2:15 p.m. at the Camp Wilson landing zone in the Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center, Staff Sgt. C.A. Demar said.

Three of the injured Marines were flown to the Naval Hospital at Marine Corps Base Camp Pendleton.

Although they were not in serious condition, ''they had potentially serious injuries and were transported to the appropriate hospital to receive treatment if those injuries manifested themselves,'' Demar said in a statement.

Two of the Marines in the crash were treated and released to return to duty. The others were being checked to determine the extent of their injuries, Demar said.

The 17 Marines - pilot, co-pilot, crew chief and 14 passengers - were members of Company E, 2nd Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division, based at Camp Pendleton, Calif. They were participating in helicopter-borne assault training, Demar said.

The helicopter was assigned to the Marine Helicopter Squadron 163, based at the Marine Corps Air Station, Tustin, Calif., and was participating in a combined arms training exercise.

Demar described the CH-46 Sea Knight as a fully-instrumented, all-weather, twin-engine tandem rotor helicopter.

The aircraft is designed to transport Marines ashore in amphibious assaults and is also used during search and rescue operations and to move equipment.

The cause of the accident was under investigation, the spokesman said.

(MAY 5) UPI - The leader of a group promoting the political unification of Europe says Soviet authorities have allowed the first shipment of foreign aid into Lithuania from Poland. The official says a truckload of about 10 tons of foodstuffs and medical supplies specifically for children was permitted to cross the border Friday. However, he says Soviet guards demanded the goods be placed on a Lithuanian Red Cross truck. In an effort to force Lithuania to abandon its declaration of independence, Moscow has imposed an economic blockade.

Philippine police say a town mayor and two aides were killed and at least 10 other people wounded early Saturday in a grenade attack at a crowded fiesta dance. The incident occurred 200 miles south of Manila. One radio report says the attack was sparked by a dispute over a gold bar a tourist carried.

(MAY 5) UPI - New York proved it can win at home. Now the Knicks most conquer the Celtics at Boston Garden - something they have not done since 1984.

Patrick Ewing scored a career-playoff high 44 points Friday to power the Knicks to their second consecutive victory over the Celtics at Madison Square Garden, a 135-108 triumph. The victory sets up a deciding fifth game in Boston Sunday in their best-of-five Eastern Conference playoff series.

The Knicks, who Friday set a team playoff scoring record and playoff assist record (43), have lost 26 consecutive games at Boston Garden. The winner advances to face the Detroit Pistons in the second round.

''I really believe the pressure is on them'' said Ewing, who scored 33 points in the Knicks' 102-99 victory in Game 3. ''We just have to maintain our intensity and continue to play like the last two games.''

If the Knicks win Sunday, they would become only the third team to erase an 0-2 deficit in a five-game playoff series, with only the 1956 Fort Wayne Pistons and the 1987 Golden State Warriors accomplishing the feat.

The Celtics humiliated the Knicks 157-128 in Game 2, setting an NBA playoff scoring record and bringing New York's character under question.

''We've had our turn at being embarrassed,'' Boston Coach Jimmy Rodgers said. ''We've played great in Boston, now they rose to the challenge at New York. Now we have to counter punch at home.''

Aside from his 18 of 24 shooting, Ewing added 13 rebounds, and tied a team playoff record for steals with 7.

Johnny Newman added 24 points off the bench and Gerald Wilkins added 20. New York's point total established a team playoff high, breaking the previous record of 132 points, set three times.

Kevin McHale led the Celtics with 24 points, Reggie Lewis added 23 and Larry Bird 21.

New York had 43 assists compared to 21 for Boston and committed just 13 turnovers compared to 23 for the Celtics.

''We turned it over and got frustrated,'' Larry Bird of Boston said. ''They had confidence and we didn't get it going at all.''

''We put a lot of pressure on them in hopes of getting them away from what they do best - offensive execution,'' Knicks Coach Stu Jackson said. ''We were a success at that. We played about as intelligently offensively as we have all year.''

In the only other playoff game Friday, Utah defeated Phoenix 105-94.

Jazz 105, Suns 94

At Phoenix, Karl Malone scored 33 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to help Utah force a deciding Game 5 in its Western Conference series with Phoenix. Eddie Johnson led the Suns with 33 points. Game 5 is scheduled for Sunday in Salt Lake City, with the winner to face the Los Angeles Lakers in the conference semifinals.

WASHINGTON (MAY 5) UPI - The Army disclosed it has filed murder charges against two more U.S. soldiers who participated in the United States invasion of Panama last December, a published report said Saturday.

Sgt. Paul Finsel Jr., 25, of Arkoma, Okla., and Pfc. Mark McMonagle, 20, of Philadelphia, were charged with murder stemming from the Jan. 25 shooting of a Panamanian woman in a brothel, The Washington Post reported.

The dead woman was identified as Leila Diaz de Panay, 50, said Maj. L.D. Walker, an Army spokesman at Fort Ord, Calif., where the two soliders were attached to the 7th Light Infantry Division.

The soldiers also were accused of mishandling their firearms and of disobeying orders prohibiting ''sexual contact'' with Panamanian women and prohibiting the use of alcohol during the deployment, the report said.

The Army spokesman did not elaborate on the case, but said the two would be tried this summer.

The Army last month brought its first case against a U.S. soldier in connection with the Panama invasion. 1st Sgt. Roberto Enrique Bryan, 42, was charged with killing a Panamanian man following a Dec. 23. grenade attack on a U.S. checkpoint that wounded two American soldiers, the report said.

Bryan's case is being reviewed by Army officials at Fort Bragg, N.C. The Army is trying to determine if Bryan, a 19-year Army veteran, should be court martialed.

The Post reported Bryan's lawyer, Mark Waple, did not believe his client would be recommended for court martial.

Waple said Bryan acted within the rules of of engagement for the Panama invasion, which allowed U.S. soldiers to fire when fired upon or when they believed their lives were endangered.

The Dec. 20 invasion of Panama by 24,000 U.S. troops, dubbed ''Operation Just Cause,'' succeeded in rooting out dictator Manuel Noriega.

(MAY 5) UPI - U-S military officials in the Philippines have confined most American military personnel to base after an unidentified gunman shot and killed a U-S Marine Friday night outside the Subic Bay Naval Base, 50 miles northwest of Manila. Philippine and U-S authorities are investigating the shooting. It's NOT known if communist guerrillas were involved. The rebels, which oppose renewing the leases of U-S military bases in the Philippines, had threatened to kill an American.

The so-called ''two-plus-four'' talks on the unification of Germany open Saturday in Bonn, West Germany. Two of the conference participants... U-S Secretary of State Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze... met for more than three hours Friday. Baker says they discussed the upcoming conference, as well as the situation in Lithuania and various arms control issues.

President Bush hailed the collapse of communism and the rise of democracy in Europe in a commencement address at the Oklahoma State University Friday. Bush told graduates in a wind-blown stadium that they are leaving school at a time when- quote- ''Europe, and the world, have entered a new era- the age of freedom.''

A federal judge in Miami says every effort should be made to determine which assets of Manuel Noriega were earned legitimately and which are allegedly drug-related. That way, says U-S District Judge William Hoeveler the former Panamanian dictator can pay for his defense. Lawyers for Noriega have asked to withdraw from the case... claiming they haveN'T been paid because the government has frozen their client's assets. Noriega, who faces drug trafficking charges, was arrested following December's U-S invasion of Panama.

(MAY 5) UPI - Lloyd Moseby demonstrated a knack for silencing a hostile crowd when he slammed a solo homer Friday night against his former teammates, leading the Tigers to a 3-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Moseby, who is playing his first season with Detroit after ten years at Toronto, inspired a chorus of boos from Toronto fans after he said he was glad to go to Detroit because he felt he was playing in front of ''cardboard fans'' at the SkyDome.

''To tell you the truth, it wasn't a very good homecoming,'' said Moseby, who also made the defensive play of the game when he robbed Junior Felix of an extra base hit in the eighth. ''I didn't come here to be booed by the fans and I'm not apologizing. I've got nothing to apologize for. I came up to the plate and I heard the boos. The home run was just a blessing.''

Toronto Manager Cito Gaston was not surprised by Moseby's showing.

''I expected Lloyd to put on a strong performance,'' said Gaston. ''Whenever a player leaves a club he wants to comeback and do well against his old team.''

Dan Petry, 2-1, retired the first 10 batters he faced and collected a season-high six strikeouts while allowing no walks. Edwin Nunez pitched the eighth inning and Mike Henneman finished for his sixth save of the year.

''I set the tempo early, I was able to throw my fastball over for strikes and that set the tone,'' said Petry. ''But I could feel myself getting tired in the fifth and by the seventh I knew I was done.''

Mike Flanagan, 2-2, allowed three runs and nine hits over 4 1-3 innings.

In other American League action, Chicago nipped Kansas City 5-4 in 11 innings, New York beat California 5-2, Oakland trounced Boston 8-3, Baltimore defeated Seattle 9-8, and Texas at Cleveland and Minnesota at Milwaukee were both rained out.

In the National League it was Philadelphia 8, Los Angeles 3; Montreal 5, San Francisco 4; Cincinnati 8, St. Louis 3; and San Diego at Chicago, Houston at New York and Atlanta at Pittsburgh were all rained out.

White Sox 5, Royals 4, 11 innings

At Kansas City, Lance Johnson singled home Steve Lyons with two outs in the 11th inning lifting Chicago. Barry Jones, 3-0, pitched the 10th for the victory. Bobby Thigpen picked up his sixth save after pitching a hitless 11th. Steve Farr, 1-1, took the loss in his one inning of work.

Yankees 5, Angels 2

At Anaheim, Calif., Jesse Barfield smacked a three-run homer and Dave LaPoint combined with three relievers on a five-hitter guiding New York. LaPoint, 2-2, scattered three hits over five innings. Mark Langston, 2-2, allowed five runs and five hits over eight innings. He struck out five and walked four.

Oakland 8, Boston 3

At Oakland, Calif., Felix Jose, Jose Canseco and Terry Steinbach homered and Dave Stewart recorded his major league-leading sixth victory, pacing Oakland.Stewart, 6-0, worked seven innings and allowed two runs and six hits, outdueling Boston ace Roger Clemens, 4-2, who worked six innigs, allowing six runs and seven hits.

Orioles 9, Mariners 8

At Seattle, Brad Komminsk capped a three-run rally in the eighth inning with an RBI groundout, helping Baltimore. Kevin Hickey, 1-2, got the last out in the seventh after Seattle had scored five runs to take an 8-6 lead. Gregg Olson finished for his fifth save. Mike Jackson, 1-2, started the eighth for the Mariners.

(MAY 5) UPI - Although they're not feared like the famed Big Red Machine, this year's edition of the Cincinnati Reds are quickly becoming as threatening a bunch as their cousins of the 1970's.

Some of the Reds felt that luck played a part in their 8-3 victory over the Cardinals Friday night, but there is no denying that their 15-hit attack was pretty difficult for St. Louis to contend with.

The Reds, who banged out a dozen singles, got three hits from Todd Benzinger to improve their road record to 9-2 and to 15-5 overall.

''We got kind of lucky tonight,'' said Benzinger, who has reached base safely in 18 of Cincinnati's 20 games. ''We didn't hit the ball particularly hard. I was the beneficiary of having guys on third and the infield in when I was at the plate.''

Ron Robinson, 1-1, gave up three runs and six hits over five innings to pick up the win in his first start of the season. He struck out four and walked three. Rob Dibble pitched the final two innings for his fourth save.

''I was around the plate all night, but I was battling,'' said Robinson, who made his first appearance of the year Sunday against the Montreal Expos, relieving starter Danny Jackson who had to leave the game in the first inning after being struck on the forearm with a line drive.

Robinson has been with the Reds all season and said he could not comment on why he has appeared in only two games.

''I can't answer that, you'll have to ask (Manager) Lou (Piniella),'' Robinson said.

Piniella was not overly impressed with Robinson's performance Friday.

''He wasn't sharp; he just didn't have the good control he usually has,'' Piniella said. ''But he kept us in the ballgame and he won it for doing that.''

John Tudor, 4-1, suffered his first loss of the season, allowing five runs four earned, and nine hits in 5 1-3 innings. He struck out one and walked one. Tudor, named National League Pitcher of the Month for April, entered the game with an 0.96 ERA.

''His best days with his fastball are behind him,'' Benzinger said of Tudor. ''He reminds me of Tommy John. He has to be crafty out there.''

With the score tied 2-2 in the fifth, an error by Tudor enabled Cincinnati to take the lead. After Chris Sabo led off with a double, Marino Duncan rolled a bunt down the third-base line. Tudor fielded the ball but threw wildly into the stands behind first base, allowing Sabo to score and Duncan to take second.

''They're (the Reds) hot and they're good,'' said Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog.

In other National League action, Philadelphia slugged Los Angeles 8-3, Montreal edged San Francisco 5-4, and Houston at New York, San Diego at Chicago and Atlanta at Pittsburgh were postponed by rain.

In the AL it was: Detroit 3, Toronto 1; Chicago 5, Kansas City 4 in 11 innings; New York 5, California 2; Oakland 8, Boston 3; Baltimore 9, Seattle 8 and Texas at Cleveland and Minnesota at Milwaukee were rained out.

Phillies 8, Dodgers 3

At Philadelphia, Dickie Thon collected three RBI, Ricky Jordan added two RBI and Von Hayes hit a solo homer to pace Philadelphia. Don Carman, 1-0, pitched the final four innings, retiring all 12 batters. Ramon Martinez, 2-1, lasted only three innings, giving up five runs and four hits.

Expos 5, Giants 4

At Montreal, Tim Raines belted a two-run home run and rookie Delino DeShields singled home two more runs to power the Expos, snapping their two-game losing streak. Kevin Gross, 3-1, earned the win and Tim Burke worked the ninth for his seventh save. Rick Reuschel, 2-2, took the loss as the Giants dropped their third straight.

SEATTLE (MAY 5) UPI - After a meeting with Nordstrom Inc. Co-chairman John Nordstrom, Gov. Booth Gardner asked the director of the Department of Labor and Industries to intervene in negotiations on the agency's findings that the Seattle retailer underpaid some of its employees.

Nordstrom spokesman Tim Doke said John Nordstrom initiated the meeting with Gardner last month to express his interest in ''getting the issue settled and behind the company.''

''He sat down with the governor to find out more about the process,'' Doke said, ''and basically to give the message we at Nordstrom want to do what we can to get a quick resolution of the issues that the department has raised.''

Gardner and Nordstrom are ''close personal friends'' and were classmates at the University of Washington, Doke said.

Nordstrom and the state since February have been at odds over the department findings that Nordstrom engaged in a ''pattern'' of illegal employment practices that resulted in underpayment to some of its Washington employees.

While trying to reach a settlement that would bring Nordstrom into compliance with state law and establish a way to repay workers for lost wages, Nordstrom and the state also have entered into a potentially costly legal battle - a battle that one Labor official said the state would rather avoid.

Joe Dear, director of the Department of Labor and Industries, said he was asked by Gardner - following his meeting with John Nordstrom - to become more involved in settlement negotiations, a task that previously had been handled by Mark McDermott, the agency's assistant director for employment standards.

Dear cited two reasons why he took over the case.

''One, my boss (Gardner) asked me to take a look...secondly, I'm trying to see if some more direct involvement on my part can hasten a resolution to this issue,'' Dear said.

He added that even without the prodding from the governor's office he would have become more involved.

''Sooner or later, an issue of this magnitude gets to the director's desk '' Dear said.

Joe Peterson, president of the Seattle union local that sparked the Labor and Industries investigation, accused Nordstrom of trying to pressure the department into a favorable settlement.

About 1,800 Nordstrom employees, members of United Food and Commercial Workers Locals 1001 and 367, will be affected by the settlement reached between the state and the retailer.

''I find it very odd that John Nordstrom met with the governor to complain about the findings of the state,'' Peterson said. ''and highly irregular for them to try to bring behind-the-scenes presssure on the governor and the state to relax their aggressive enforcement positions.''

Dear and Denny Heck, Gardner's deputy chief of staff, said Nordstrom was receiving no special treatement.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 5) UPI - German foreign ministers and the four powers that defeated their country in World War II started historic talks on German unification Saturday that are likely to be dominated by controversy over the proposed NATO membership of a united Germany.

Asked whether the ministerial conference marked ''the beginning of the end of the post-war era,'' a smiling British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said ''I think we've come a long way already.''

Hurd and his counterparts from France, the Soviet Union, the United States and East Germany were met by West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher as they arrived at the Bonn Foreign Ministry for the one-day conference.

The conference is part of a series of unification meetings, called two-plus-four because they include East and West Germany and the four powers that defeated Germany in World War II.

The six ministers who arrived at the foreign ministry Saturday morning, including U.S. Secretary of State James Baker, had already held a series of bilateral talks in Bonn Friday, on the eve of the conference.

The meetings focused largely on the Western conception that a united Germany should be a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze repeated Soviet objections to the concept, but a senior U.S. state department official indicated that the Soviet Union had not suggested any concrete alternatives.

Western delegations at Saturday's conference are likely to promote a newly unveiled U.S. plans for NATO in a bid to sway Soviet and, to a lesser extent, East German reservations about a German NATO affiliation.

President Bush on Thursday said the planned modernization of NATO'S short-range nuclear weapons will be scrapped, called for swifter arms-control talks with the Soviet Union and suggested that a NATO summit be held this summer.

Observers believe the question of a possible NATO membership of a united Germany and the NATO policy proposals are largely interrelated.

A senior state department official said Shevardnadze was ''intrigued'' by the NATO policy proposals.

''The Soviets have not thoroghly thought through the two-plus-four process '' he said. But he added that the Soviet Union did not want the German unification process to drag on.

Shevardnadze, speaking on arrival in Bonn, said the U.S. plan for NATO policy was ''a good proposal'' but reiterated the Soviet view that ''the membership of a unified Germany ...in a military alliance would mean a threat to the stability of Europe.''

Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union considered that the German unification process must be linked with the process of revamping European security structures.

He said he did not expect any final decisions to be made at Saturday's conference - the first of its kind since the four victorious World War II powers and the two Germanys met in Geneva in 1959.

Unlike the 1959 meeting, the East and the West Germans will sit at the same table as the ministers from Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Baker said he and Shevardnadze discussed Saturday's two-plus-four talks but did not give details.

''Obviously we talked about the two-plus-four mechanism, we talked about unification of Germany, we talked about Lithuania, we talked about a number of arms control issues,'' Baker said after the three-hour and 20 minute meeting at a riverside hotel just outside of Bonn.

''I think it was a very constructive meeting, particularly since we are on the eve of the secretary's visit to Moscow,'' a smiling Shevardnadze said through an interpreter, in reference to Baker's scheduled visit to the Soviet Union next week.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl who met with Baker Friday welcomed the U.S. proposals, which a government spokesman said Kohl had discussed with Bush before they were announced.

''Like President Bush, Federal Chancellor Helmut Kohl considers the reinforcement of (NATO's) political role ... and the re-examination of the structure of its armed forces a crucial issue for the North Atlantic alliance,'' the spokesman said.

(MAY 5) UPI - Heavy rains subsided in Texas Saturday where flood waters have inundated more than 2,300 homes, and crews cleaned up from high winds and tornadoes that killed three people and injured a dozen more in Virginia and Ohio.

Two people were killed by flying debris at a trailer park in northern Virginia Friday night and a third person was killed when a tornado ripped through a trailer park in western Ohio, authorities said.

High winds hammered Augusta County in northern Virginia, hurling debris that struck and killed two men at a mobile home in the town of Swoope, authorities said. Ten other people in the county were injured and property damage was extensive, authorities said.

In nearby Craigsville, high winds leveled the town fire station and severely damaged the Augusta Springs Baptist Church, moving it about 5 to 15 feet from its foundation, said William Martin, a firefighter with the Craigsville Volunteer Fire Department.

''It was kind of picked up off its foundation and laid over on its side,'' he said.

Roofs also were torn off several businesses, utility poles were toppled, windows were blown out and trees were uprooted, he said.

A 24-year-old woman was killed in Middletown, Ohio, when a tornado struck her mobile home. Police said other mobile homes were damaged and several people were injured.

Skies cleared over the southern Plains, where heavy rains have pushed rivers over their banks in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

In northern Texas, a levee along the Trinity River broke in several places Friday night, forcing the evacuation of some rural areas in Ellis County. Two weeks of heavy rains have left thousands of acres underwater across the state and flooding has been blamed for 10 deaths, authorities said.

A dispatcher for the Ellis County Sheriff's Department said officers were trying to evacuate residents along at least three roads in a rural area of the county's northeast corner.

''There are about six families involved. Two of them have gone ahead and left their houses,'' said Wayne Gaddis, chief of the Bristol Volunteer Fire Department. ''It's mostly farms and cattle country.''

''I've been living here 26 years and it's the worst I've ever seen,'' Gaddis said.

Earlier Friday, rescue workers searching flood-swollen Rowlett Creek north of Dallas found the body of a 77-year-old woman swept away by raging waters, the 10th victim of two weeks of heavy rain across North Texas.

Throughout the northern half of Texas, from Abilene in the west to communities throughout east Texas, rivers and creeks rose toward flood crests following torrential rains earlier in the week.

The Trinity River at Dallas crested 20 feet above flood stage at 47 feet late Thursday, its highest point since a 50.2 foot total in 1908.

The city's levee system kept the stream under control through north Dallas and the downtown area, but extensive flooding continued to plague neighborhoods in south Dallas.

The American Red Cross Friday in a preliminary survey of the 30 hardest hit northern Texas counties said 717 homes were destroyed and 1,600 others were heavily damaged by flood waters or winds.

Oklahoma and Arkansas struggled with flooded rivers and lakes socked by a two-week stormy weather front. The Army Corps of Engineers in Oklahoma said six reservoirs reached or exceeded their capacity and 50 highways were closed at one point.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (MAY 5) UPI - More than 40 former world leaders will gather in Seoul on May 23 for a meeting of the Inter Action Council, a group seeking to help solve international problems, government officals said Saturday.

Attendants will include former West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, former French President Giscard d'Estaing, former Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuta and other dignitaries from some 30 countries, the officials said.

The agenda for the four-day Seoul conference will be political developments in Asia in the 1990s, sweeping reforms in Europe and their impacts on the rest of the world, ecological and environmental problems and population growth, according to the officials.

Winding up the conference the Council will issue a communique based on their discussions and send it to the heads of states of the world, the officials added.

EAST BERLIN (MAY 5) UPI - A chief aide to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, speaking on the eve of local elections in East Germany, urged residents Saturday to oust the communists from town and city councils, their last remaining power base.

Rudolf Seiters, who is Kohl's chief of staff and runs the Bonn Chancellery said in an interview with the West German newsspaper Welt am Sonntag that voters should ''reject those forces which brought ruin to the country and its citizens.''

In their first free parliamentary election March 18, East Germans inflicted a crushing defeat on the Communist Party candidates. But the Communist Party still has great power on city, town and country councils.

The first free local elections Sunday will allow voters to decide whether to retain the Communist regional office holders.

The elections are considered a test of the popularity of East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere and his policy of swift economic and political union with West Germany.

About 12 million East Germans will elect 19,652 city, county and town council members to replace those who took office in rigged elections May 7 1989.

Indignation over those elections, in which candidates of the Communist-run National Front ran unopposed, was one of the causes of the demonstrations last fall that led to the overthrow of East Germany's hardline Communist regime.

Seiters, in support of de Maiziere's coalition government, praised the steps toward unification taken by East and West Germany, especially the agreement to replace the weak East German mark with the strong West German mark by July 2.

''Now, on a local level, the responsibility for a new beginning should be taken over by the same democratic forces who run the present government of the German Democratic Republic,'' Seiters said.

The Communists, who now call themselves the Party of Democratic Socialism, are trying to capitalize on the fears of some East Germans that unity with West Germany would cause unemployment and economic hardship.

But de Maiziere's Christian Democrats pointed out the government won an exchange rate of one West mark for one East mark for wages, pensions and a considerable amount of personal savings.

The powerful West German Bundesbank, the central bank, had recommended an exchange rate of two East marks for one West mark, but Kohl overruled it.

In the March parliamentary election, de Maiziere's Christian Democrats won 40.9 percent of the vote and the party's two conservative allies captured a total of 7.2 percent.

The Social Democrats, who won 21.8 percent, and the liberals, with 5.3 percent, joined a coalition with the three conservative parties.

The Communists, who got 16.3 percent, lost the control they had over the central government since the East German state was formed in 1949.

POTENZA, ITALY (MAY 5) UPI - A strong earthquake followed by smaller aftershocks Saturday jarred a large area of southern Italy but caused only minor damage to buildings and scattered injuries, officials said.

The main shock was registered at 9:21 a.m. and measured 4.7 on the Richter scale. A 6.8 earthquake in the same southern Italy area killed nearly 3,000 people and rendered 200,000 homeless Nov. 23, 1980 - Italy's last major earthquake.

The National Geophysics Institute said the main shock lasted 20 seconds and was followed by nine lesser tremors in the space of an hour and 20 minutes.

In Potenza, near the epicenter 190 miles southeast of Rome, Nicola Sterlicchio, 68, died of a heart attack and Carmela Galotta, 32, was in serious condition after being hit on the head by falling masonry as she fled from her home, hospital officials said.

The state-run television said 11 people were treated in the Potenza hospital for injuries. Several others were treated for minor injuries, mostly sustained as they fled from their homes.

Investigators for the Civil Protection Ministry reported minor damage to buildings in Potenza and eight nearby villages.

The shock was felt to a lesser degree in five southern regions - Basilicata, Calabria, Campania, Apulia and Molise - over an area measuring some 220 miles from north to south and some 90 miles across the peninsula.

It was felt from Naples on the western coast to Bari on the Adriatic shore.

All over the area, especially in Potenza and mountain villages near the epicenter, there were scenes of panic as hundreds of thousands of people fled from their homes into the open. Traffic snarled in Potenza as people scrambled to drive away from the city into the countryside.

Regional officials set up a first aid center in a Potenza sports field in anticipation of greater casualties, but only a few people needed treatment.

''The shocks occurred in a seismic area where earthquakes are to be expected statistically,'' said Giovanni Ricciardi, of the Mount Vesuvius observatory near Naples. ''Since April 22 there have been some 700 low intensity shocks in the region.''

KAMPALA, UGANDA (MAY 5) UPI - Suspected anti-government rebels in northern Uganda killed at least 15 people in an attack on three buses, survivors returning to the capital said Saturday. The driver of one of the buses said he feared as many as 20 died.

The machine-gun toting assailants jumped the three buses Thursday morning 12 miles south of the regional capital of Gulu and 210 miles up the road from Kampala, said driver Abdu Senyonjo.

Senyonjo said the buses were traveling in convoy when they were raked with machine-gun fire from the bush. Only one person was wounded in the first bus, he said.

''However, three people including the driver, were shot dead on the spot when the armed men sprayed the second bus with bullets, and the bus lost control and overturned into a ditch killing several other people,'' Senyonjo said. He was at the wheel of the third bus, escaping unhurt from the ambush.

Survivors returning to the capital said 15 people were killed in the attack with the driver placing the toll at up to 20. There was no official comment on the attack by the government.

Ugandan Transport Co. manager David Ssonko, one of whose buses was involved in the attack, said his company was suspending operations on the Kampala-Gulu road for the time being.

Three rebel groups operate in northeastern Uganda in a 3 1/2-year-old guerrila war against the government of President Yoweri Museveni.

None of the three groups - the Uganda People's Army, the Uganda People's Democratic Army and the religious Holy Spirit Movement - claimed responsibility for the attack.

Fighters of the Holy Spirit Movement, whose witchcraft-practicing followers believe themselves invulnerable to bullets, have killed at least 50 people in the area in the past three weeks, local newspapers said.

Founded by self-proclaimed visionary Alice Lakwena, now in exile, the Holy Spirit Movement has vowed to march with God's assistance on Kampala. Thousands of followers have been mown down by government forces in recent years because of their belief that magically prepared vegetable oil rubbed on the body makes them bulletproof.

SEATTLE (MAY 5) UPI - The Federal Aviation Administration, to safeguard against the kind of accident that swept nine people to their deaths last year, has ordered airlines to install an enhanced cockpit warning system to ensure cargo doors are properly shut on older Boeing 747 jumbo jets.

The FAA order, issued in Washington, requires that a cockpit warning device be moved so it can be seen by both the pilot and the co-pilot and that if monitor more parts of the doors' locking mechanisms.

The directive is the last in a series of measures taken after the cargo door of a United 747 ripped open in flight near Hawaii last year, sweeping nine people to their deaths over the Pacific Ocean.

The accident is believed to have been caused by locks that had been damaged unnoticeably by improper locking procedures. The FAA already has required U.S. airlines to reinforce the locks.

The most recent directive, which will take effect May 29, will require warning lights to be hooked directly to the part of the lock believed to have been damaged. Currently, the warning lights are hooked to pressure relief windows on the cargo door, which are not supposed to close if the door is not properly locked.

''We felt the way it was set up was adequate,'' said Boeing spokeswoman Elizabeth Reese. ''But we have worked with the FAA to make this change. We want to make sure that his never happens again.''

According to FAA estimates, it will cost U.S. airlines about $774,000 to make the fix on 140 airplanes. The agency has no jurisdiction over the remaining 640 affected 747s throughout the world, but foreign carriers often follow the lead of the FAA.

During the accident investigation, the Seattle headquartered Boeing resisted making the design change because it wanted to see the door first, Reese said.

United, Boeing and the government have said they will all pitch in to pay for the retrival of the door. The Navy is expected to send a new unmanned underwater vehicle to look for it on June 18, Reese said.

(MAY 5) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

At least three people died last night as violent storms hit much of the eastern half of the nation. Tornado-like winds in Swope, Virginia, pounded two people with flying debris at a trailer park, killing them. A tornado in a trailer park in Middletown, Ohio, killed a third person. In northern Texas, a week of flooding is blamed for 10 deaths.

Rain that was NOT even forecast came at just the right time and in just the right place in Florida. The showers helped firefighters control a 25-thousand-acre saw-grass fire that threatened the Big Cypress National Preserve. Firefighters are nearly in full control of a blaze in the Everglades.

Representatives of six countries are in Bonn for the start of negotiations that are likely to determine the future of the two Germanys. Secretary of State Baker will represent the United States at the talks... and will push for a united Germany belonging to NATO. The Soviets and East Germany object. Baker and his Soviet counterpart, Eduard Shevardnadze, met for about three-and-a-half hours yesterday.

More aid to developing nations may become available. Sources say World Bank President Barber Conable will ask member countries to increase by one-and-an-thifd-BILLION dollars the capital of the affiliate that helps businesses. Conable also is expected to ask for creation of a one-BILLION 200-Million-dollar environmental fund.

A tentative agreement has been reached between the federal government and creditors of the parent company of Charles Keating's Lincoln Savings and Loan. The pact would oust Keating and would partly re-pay worthless bonds Lincoln sold. Lincoln's parent firm, American Continental, would be reorganized and liquidated.

(MAY 5) UPI - The lawyer for a convict executed in Florida yesterday says his client was tortured. Attorney Mark Olive says his client, Jesse Tafero , received three jolts before he died. Olive says Governor Bob Martinez should call off future executions until an independent inspection makes sure the electric chair works properly.

The coroner for the Chicago area says six children born to one woman all died under the age of two. He says all six children died of suffocation. Cook County Medical Examiner Robert Stein says the results of his renewed investigation have been turned over to prosecutors.

A 12-year-old boy who turned in his parents for using marijuana was returned to their custody in Providence, Rhode Island. Investigators say the state Department for Children and Their Families determined the couple are good parents able to raise their children in a proper setting.

American doctors have removed a pituitary gland tumor from a seven-year-old Russian boy who has grown to over six feet tall. Doctors at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, did the surgery on the boy from Kiev. It took two operations to remove all of the tumor.

Ex-hostage Frank Reed is back at home in the United States after 44 months in captivity in Lebanon. And he got the first thing he said he wanted... a Maine lobster. His nine-year-old son pulled a live one from a box at a welcoming party on the tarmac at Andrews Air Force Base.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 5) UPI - Actor Todd Bridges, on bail awaiting retrial on a drug-related shooting, was arrested with a companion before dawn Saturday on suspicion of possessing cocaine for sale, authorities said.

Officers stopped to investigate ''two suspicious men who were seated in a parked vehicle in front of a closed business,'' in North Hollywood about 3:50 a.m., Sgt. Ray Davies said.

''Subsequent investigation disclosed that the men were actor Todd Bridges and his companion, Steve Mallen,'' he said. ''They were found to be in possession of a quantity of narcotics and were booked on (suspicion of) possession of cocaine for sale.''

The two men were booked at the Van Nuys jail.

Bridges, 24, a former child star of NBC's ''Diff'rent Strokes,'' was acquitted last November of attempted murder in the shooting of a drug dealer inside a cocaine rock house in South Central Los Angeles rock cocaine house 15 months ago.

The same jury deadlocked on another charge of assault with a deadly weapon and Bridges is awaiting a new trial on that charge.

He spent nine months in jail until released on $25,000 bail following the trial.

During the trial he tearfully admitted he was a cocaine addict at the time of the shooting and was so heavily intoxicated from smoking free-base cocaine that he did not remember the shooting.

He said after ''Diff'rent Strokes'' went off the air in 1986 his life went into a downward spiral. He said he could not find work, lost $1.5 million to embezzlers, was ordered to pay $800,000 in back taxes and considered suicide.

His attorney said at the trial that Bridges was now drug-free and wanted to speak out against drug abuse.

Bridges missed a court appearance April 6. Facing arrest, he showed up the next court day, and blamed his tardiness on a traffic accident. Prosecutors doubted him and scheduled a hearing May 11 to demand he substantiate the story or risk having his bail revoked.

(MAY 5) UPI - TODAY'S PEOPLE

GLORIA REDUX?: Her former ''All in the Family'' co-stars (Carroll ''Archie'' O'Connor, Jean ''Edith'' Stapleton, and Rob ''Meathead'' Reiner) all have kept plenty busy. But post-Gloria acting roles have been few and far for Sally Struthers. But Sally, now 41, hasn't given up and says she might turn out to be another Don Ameche, who dropped out of sight at one point only to be rediscovered years later. ''I'll wait until I'm in my 60s and make a comeback and say, 'I didn't go anywhere. You just didn't give me a job,''' Struthers says. She says very few entertainers have enough clout to control their own destiny: ''We're adrift on the sea and wait for people to give us a part.''

CELEBRITY SEX, PART I: Mick Jagger, through a spokeswoman, dismisses as ''complete rubbish'' a claim by David Bowie's ex-wife that she once caught the two rock superstars in bed together, naked. Angela Bowie, who was prevented by the terms of their divorce from speaking publicly about her ex-husband for more than a decade, broke her silence in an interview with Joan Rivers during which she claimed to have ''caught (Bowie) in bed with men several times.'' She added: ''In fact, one of the best times (was when) I caught him in bed with Mick Jagger.'' Did Bowie and Jagger have their clothes off? ''They certainly did.'' Bowie, an acknowledged bisexual has, in recent years, declined to discuss the subject. But the Daily Star in London quoted Bowie spokesman Alan Edwards as saying: ''It's not worth denying. David has heard about the story, but we are treating it as a joke.''

CELEBRITY SEX, PART II: Mickey Rourke's girlfriend Carre Otis - who made her acting debut as his costar in ''Wild Orchids'' - has sued Playboy magazine for publishing still photographs from the film's climactic sex scene. The New York Post says Rourke sent the magazine a threatening letter when he learned it had obtained the steamy photos. On Friday, Otis, a former fashion model, filed suit in Los Angeles seeking an undisclosed amount of damages against Playboy and the German magazine Kino, which also published the erotic pictures.

BRESLIN RAGE: Jimmy Breslin, the Pulitzer Prize-winning newspaper columnist now writing for New York Newsday, reportedly has been chastized for calling a critical Korean-American colleague ''a yellow cur.'' The rival New York Daily News - Breslin's former paper - reports that Breslin, 61, also called New York Newsday metro reporter Ji-Yeon Yuh ''slant-eyed'' after she criticized a column in which he bemoaned his wife's decision to go to work as a city councilwoman. The News reports that Newsday city editor Don Forst called Breslin's remarks ''offensive and inexusable.'' Breslin sent the newspaper's staff an apology via Newsday's computer system. ''To the people I work with,'' he said. ''I am no good and once again I can prove it.''

PRINCELY GESTURE: Home-grown rock star Prince is giving St. Paul, Minn., fans a preview of his European ''Nude'' tour, which begins June 2 in Rotterdam. At almost the last minute, Prince scheduled an appearance Sunday night at the St. Paul Civic Center. A spokeswoman calls the concert Prince's response to the ''phenomenal'' support for his $100-a-ticket benefit at a suburban nightclub for the family of a former bodyguard and friend who died last month. Tickets for Sunday night's concert are $10, but patrons are being asked to bring a donation for a food bank for the poor as well. ''We've gotten so many calls from kids upset that, even if they had raised the money, they would not have been allowed at the (nightclub) show because no one under 21 was allowed in,'' the spokeswoman said. ''Prince really felt like he was offending a lot of kids, and it certainly wasn't intentional.''

GLIMPSES: Actor Todd Bridges, on bail awaiting retrial on an allegedly drug-related shooting, was arrested in Los Angeles before dawn Saturday on suspicion of possessing cocaine for sale. ... Actor John Cusack, veteran of such films as ''Eight Men Out,'' ''Say Anything'' and ''16 Candles,'' has pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor charge of driving under the influence of alcohol. Cusack, 23, entered his plea in Beverly Hills Municipal Court through a lawyer and did not appear in court. Under a plea bargain agreement with prosecutors, Cusack will be sentenced to three years' informal probation and ordered to pay a fine.

LOUISVILLE, KY (MAY 5) UPI - Gray skies, cool temperatures and light drizzle greeted early arrivals at Churchill Downs Saturday, but track officials were optimistic the weather would clear in time to provide a fast and fair track for the 116th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Weather forecasters predicted the precipitation would stop completely by early afternoon, and ''if it does, I think we'll have a fast track,'' track superintendent Butch Lehr said.

The trainers of the 15 horses poised to run for the roses and the $581,000 winner's share of the $756,000 Derby purse hoped Lehr was right.

Some of the horses, including early co-favorites Mister Frisky and Summer Squall are proven ''mudders'' but their trainers said they would prefer the safety and fairness of a dry, fast track over the slight advantage an off-track might give their horses.

Louisville experienced downpours both Thursday and Friday, and, as a result, the official track rating was ''muddy'' for the first race on the Derby card, a $16,500 allowance won wire-to-wire by D. Wayne Lukas-trainee Kentucky Jazz.

Lehr said the track already was showing signs of drying to ''good,'' and, he added, ''even if the drizzle doesn't stop, I don't think it would get any slower.''

The anticipated crowd of more than 100,000, however, probably wasn't going to get as lucky as the horses. The forecast called for mid-day temperatures of 46 to climb no higher than 62.

Still, that forecast was much better than that for the 1989 Derby, when fans braved rain, rapidly dropping temperatures and occasional snow flurries to see Sunday Silence upset Easy Goer.

The early money wagered on the Derby Saturday produced interesting odds that differed significantly from the morning-line produced by track oddsmaker Mike Battaglia.

With $1,251,666 wagered, Mister Frisky, the 16-0 Puerto Rican champion, and 7-for-8 Summer Squall, the hometown favorite, were virtual co-favorites at 2-1. On the morning line, Summer Squall was the slight favorite at 7-5, to Mister Frisky at 8-5.

The bettors ignored the 3-for-1 bargain of the three Lukas-trained horses coupled for betting and posted as the 8-1 choice in the program. Instead, Land Rush, Real Cash and Power Lunch were 17-1.

The third choice was Gotham-Wood winner Thirty Six Red at 4-1, down from 10-1 in the program. Arkansas Derby winner Silver Ending dropped from 12-1 on the line to 6-1, and Florida Derby winner Unbridled was 10-1, down from 12-1.

At 12:30 p.m., the odds on the remaining horses were Lexington Stakes runner-up Pleasant Tap, 10-1; Pendleton Ridge and Burnt Hills, coupled for betting as a Bobby Frankel training entry, 30-1; Santa Anita Derby runner-up Video Ranger, 50-1; Cherry Hill Mile winner Dr. Bobby A., 60-1; Garden State Stakes winner Killer Diller, 60-1; Fighting Fantasy, 80-1.

The 1 1-4-mile race, first leg of the American Triple Crown, was scheduled to go to post at 5:32 p.m. EDT. ABC was televising the event between 4:30 and 6 p.m.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 5) UPI - Police were trying to determine Saturday if a suspect in a fatal back-alley stabbing is a serial killer responsible for the slayings of as many as seven other women, some of whom were mutilated.

Leonard Christopher, 38, of Philadelphia's Frankford section, was arrested Friday and charged with murder in the death of a woman whose body was found April 28 behind the seafood market where Christopher worked.

Police said Carol Dowd, 46, had been beaten and stabbed repeatedly, and her stomach ripped open with a knife.

Christopher, who lives above a pizza parlor across the street from Newman's Seafood Store, has not been charged in the deaths of any of the seven other women found dead in Frankford since 1985.

But police say there are similarities in all eight killings. All the victims were women, most had been stabbed and several had been mutilated with a sharp instrument. Most of the victims frequented bars along Frankford Avenue.

Dowd was the first victim found since January 1989, when the body of Theresa Sciortino, 30, was discovered in her Frankford apartment. She had been stabbed 25 times.

Investigators continued Saturday to question Christopher about those unsolved slayings, a detective said.

Dowd lived a few blocks from the alley where her body was found. Police said she had been stabbed in the face, neck, chest and back.

On the day her body was found, it was Christopher who cleaned her blood from the alley behind Newman's, according to his boss.

''We told him to clean up the mess in the alley,'' said the woman who owns the market with her husband. She asked that her name not be used.

The woman said Christopher has worked at the store for about a year, cleaning fish and waiting on tables. She described him as a polite and nonviolent man whose wife had left him several years ago and moved to North Carolina.

She said Christopher did not have a girlfriend, but was often seen with prostitutes in the area.

''He was very nice, especially to the ladies. He hung out with street girls,'' she said.

Christopher was also charged with robbery, possession of an instrument of a crime and abuse of a corpse. He was held without bail pending a preliminary hearing on May 9.

WASHINGTON (MAY 5) UPI - Former hostage Frank Reed, released last week from 44 months of captivity in Lebanon, is weak and suffering from poor nutrition and loss of weight, his doctors said Saturday.

''It's a little early to give any information with certitude,'' said Brig. Gen. Robert Poel. ''Mr. Reed has all the kinds of things you would expect of someone who has gone through what he has gone through.''

Poel, head of the Malcolm Grow Air Force Medical Center at Andrews Air Force Base, said Reed lost about 50 pounds while in captivity and he remains weak and suffering from poor nutrition.

Reed, 57, of Malden, Mass., arrived at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington Friday following a flight from a U.S. air base in Wiesbaden, West Germany. He was taken to the hospital for medical evaluation.

Poel said he did not know how long Reed would stay at the hospital, adding only that he would remain at the Air Force facility ''for the next several days.''

''He is weak, he has lost a great deal of weight, about 50 pounds. His nutrition is not as excellent as you would expect. A number of our staff are working with him to return him to good health,'' Poel said.

Poel noted that the hospital had created a schedule for the Massachusetts educator ''that gives him the opportunity to express freedom.''

''His time isn't organized,'' Poel said. ''During a standard day, there is time set aside for medical evaluation, time for rest and time for meeting with visitors. A large number of visitors have expressed the desire to see Mr. Reed and he has expressed the desire to have a large number of visitors.''

Reed's first non-family visitor was Peggy Say, sister of Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press and the longest-held American hostage in Lebanon. Anderson was kidnapped on March 16, 1985.

Reed was kidnapped in Beirut Sept. 9, 1986, and was released Monday by Moslem extremists in Lebanon. He arrived Tuesday at a hostage reception center in Wiesbaden, West Germany, before flying Friday to Andrews Air Force Base.

In Wiesbaden, Reed underwent a series of medical tests as well as intensive intelligence debriefing aimed at establishing the pattern of kidnappings in Beirut, Lebanon.

Reed and Robert Polhill, 55, released April 22, were the first American hostages freed since three others were released in the fall of 1986 as part of the secret Iran-Contra arms-for-hostages deal between the United States and Iran.

Six Americans and 10 other Westerners are believed to remain captive in Lebanon.

Iran and its allies in Lebanon have been trying to trade the remaining Western hostages for the release of 400 Shiite Moslems held by Israel, 16 Shiites convicted of terrorist bombings in Kuwait and Moslem fundamentalist cleric Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, who was abducted by Israeli commandos in July.

Iran also wants the United States to release the $8 billion to $9 billion in Iranian assets it froze after Iranians seized hostages from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (MAY 5) UPI - Thousands of Romanians plan to form a human chain Sunday across the border between Romania and Soviet Moldavia as part of a campaign to reunite with the neighboring region.

The area of most concern is Bessarabia, between the Prut and Dnestr Rivers which was annexed to Romania in 1918 after being under Russian control. In 1940 Romania was forced to cede Bessarabia back to the Soviet Union.

The dramatic protest concides with the anniversary of the 1918 annexation and is expected to add to pressure in the Kremlin over demands for independence by other republics, such as the Baltics.

Last month, the Moldavian Supreme Soviet voted to adopt a new official flag of red, blue and yellow - the same colors as the Romanian flag.

A region of 4.2 million people, Moldavia has passed from Turkish to Russian to Romanian to Soviet control in the last century. The population of the Soviet republic is 63.9 percent Moldavian, 14.2 percent Ukranian and 12.8 percent Russian.

It's thought Romanian and Soviet authorities will turn a blind eye when the border is opened at eight towns from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. Demonstrators plan to throw blessed flowers into the river Prut from both sides and form a ''flower bridge'' to the sounds of bells and brass bands.

Organizers of the Romanian Popular Front, who said they would have been imprisoned for trying to make contact with their Soviet counterparts under the rule of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, plan to form two chains - one at Ungheni, a town split in two by the border, and at Prutna.

The Popular Front claims 80 percent of Southern Moldavians are of Romanian origin and do not want to be tied to the Soviet Union. Permission was given for the Romanian language to be officially spoken in Bessarabia only six weeks ago.

''This is just an awareness campaign,'' insisted Bucharest spokesman Andrei Finti. ''Gorbachev faces three other problems and after he has solved those, then Bessarabia will have its turn.''

Agreeing that the demonstration will take place at a sensitive time, Finti said, ''For now there's no chance for a reunification and we realize the consequences might be grave.''

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (MAY 5) UPI - The U.S.-backed Contra rebels agreed Saturday to begin turning in their weapons on Tuesday in exchange for a promise by President Violeta Chamorro to begin reducing the size of the Sandinista army.

The agreement was the third signed by the Contras in the past six weeks promising to disarm. The new pact confirms an April 19 agreement in which the Contras pledged to completely disarm and demobilize by June 10, but it also sets Tuesday as the date they will actually begin to hand over arms.

After eight years of civil war, the Contras have been reluctant to begin the disarmament process despite the accords. Contra leader Israel Galeano, known also as ''Commander Franklin,'' indicated Saturday's agreement will likely do little to increase the pace of the disarmament process.

''It will possibly be done zone by zone,'' he told United Press International in an interiew before leaving Managua. ''It depends in part on how people are viewing the change of government, and on the characteristics of various parts of the country.''

The Contras have within the past two weeks moved into designated security zones to ease the disarmament process, which is being monitored by teams from the United Nations and Organization of American States.

Saturday's pact was signed shortly before 1 a.m. after about 16 hours of negotiations between Chamorro, Galeano and delegations from both sides.

The chief concession of the government appeared to be an agreement by Chamorro that she will immediately begin reviewing ways to reduce the size of the Nicaraguan army.

The army was formed during more than a decade of Sandinista rule and most of its troops are loyal to the previous regime of President Daniel Ortega, defeated by Chamorro in Feb. 25 elections.

Chamorro also agreed to announce her plans for the reduction of the army by June 10. She spoke of the reductions in her inauguration speech April 25, but has not detailed how many troops would be cut, except to say that military service would no longer be mandatory.

''We want a complete reorganization of the Sandinista army,'' Galeano said. ''This process of demilitarization is necessary in the country.''

Saturday's agreement also reaffirmed guarantees for the security of the Contras once they disarm, including a government promise to provide the rebels with provisions and help them get jobs to ease their transition to civilian life.

It was the first time Galeano had been permitted to enter the capital since the Contras began fighting the Sandinista government eight years ago. He and most of the members of his delegation were dressed in camouflage uniforms. Among them was Benito Bravo, a former high-ranking officer of former dictator Anastasio Somoza's National Guard.

DALLAS (MAY 5) UPI - Faced with huge losses resulting from a 2-month-old strike, Greyhound Lines is facing bankruptcy reorganization if it does not get extensions on its debt payments and other bills from creditors, a company official said Saturday.

Greyhound Vice President and Treasurer Don Seaquist said Greyhound officials were in San Diego Friday to discuss debt restructuring with Security Pacific Business Credit, the company's senior secured lender.

Company officials also are talking with suppliers and representatives of bondholders about extensions on payments.

''We would prefer to negotiate with them rather than slam the door and go into bankruptcy court,'' Seaquist said. ''We need some breathing space to get our cash flow up.''

Greyhound is cutting costs through layoffs in Dallas and elsewhere and trying to build ridership, he said.

Greyhound, the only nationwide bus company, has been pounded by losses during the strike, exacerbating its already extended finances.

Although executives have not disclosed total losses during the strike, the company said Friday it lost $55.76 million in the first quarter ended March 31. That's about triple what it lost during the previous three years combined.

As a result, the company said it was unable to make $5 million in lease payments due April 30. Greyhound also said it will have to default May 15 on about $9.7 million in interest payments on long-term notes, part of its $340 million in long-term debt stemming from a 1987 leveraged buyout of the company.

''It's extremely serious,'' Phil Baggaley, an analyst and senior vice president with Standard & Poor's Corp., told The Dallas Times Herald. ''Fifty-five million dollars in losses is a huge amount for a company this size, especially since they are highly leveraged.''

Compounding the situation is the possibility that some creditors could call in payments faster because losses forced Greyhound to violate certain agreements.

''As a result, the company's creditors will be in a position to accelerate payments due,'' Greyhound said in papers filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Dallas-based company's stretched finances have precipitated rapid action to cut costs, including layoffs and the closure of 15 of its 34 field offices for charter bus service. On Friday, Greyhound notified about 170 administrative and headquarters staff, many in Dallas, that they would be laid off immediately.

Meanwhile, Seaquist said the company is eager to reach a settlement with its union because that would be a positive sign to creditors. But, he added, ''We can afford even less now than we could eight weeks ago.''

Contract negotiations resumed Saturday for the first time since mid-March and about nine weeks since more than 9,000 union employees, about 6,300 of them drivers, walked off the job.

Negotiations for a new contract broke down over wage and job security issues, with the company maintaining it could not afford the requests made by the Amalgamated Council for Greyhound Local Unions.

Greyhound put into effect its first and only contract proposal and hired replacement drivers.

ince the strike began, the company claims it has restored about 87 percent of its system using more than 3,200 replacement drivers and union drivers who crossed the picket lines. It said it reached 68 percent-70 percent of its pre-strike revenues April 30.

But bus ridership did not increase rapidly enough following the strike to offset high expenses and that was reflected in the first-quarter results, industry analysts said.

In its first-quarter earnings report, Greyhound said the $55 million in losses came on significantly lower revenues - $172.46 million for the three months ended March 31. That compares with $14.39 million in losses on revenues of $223.53 million during the first quarter last year. It made a modest $727,000 for all of 1989 on revenues of about $1.04 billion.

The company said recent losses primarily stemmed from the strike. Although it prepared for a strike with a war chest of more than $50 million in cash Greyhound said it did not anticipate the excessive violence directed at its buses and operations, which caused it to lose more money.

Greyhound said the company needed to spend more than $20 million for additional security, legal fees and driver training.

''This extra expense to combat terrorist attacks is greater than the combined total of deferred lease and interest payments,'' a release from Greyhound said.

J. Michael Doyle, senior vice president and chief financial officer, said Greyhound plans to begin a heavy national advertising program Monday.

(MAY 5) UPI - News from around the world and across the nation... details and developments from the 'round-the-clock wires of United Press International.

Fierce spring weather caused two deaths in Virginia and one in Ohio yesterday while driving up the death toll in Texas to 10 in two weeks.

Thunderstorms spawned violent weather across much of the eastern half of the nation yesterday.

Two men were killed last night by flying debris at a trailer park in Swope in northern Virginia. 10 other people in Virginia's Augusta County were hurt. Officials say property damage is extensive. In Craigsville, high winds leveled the town fire station and moved the Augusta Springs Baptist Church about five to 15 feet from its foundation.

A woman was killed when a tornado ripped through a trailer park in Middletown in western Ohio. Police say several other people in the mobile home park were hurt.

In Texas, the Trinity River southeast of Dallas continues to rise. The Trinity River flood is greater than any since 1908.

The Trinity's levees failed near Bristol, forcing the evacuation of several families. Several other levees have either failed or may be ready to fail.

South Dallas has extensive flooding. About 200 homes and businesses have ceiling-high water.

Rescue workers searching flood-swollen Rowlett Creek north of Dallas yesterday found the body of a woman swept away by raging waters... the 10th victim of two weeks of heavy rain across North Texas.

Residents in North Carolina's Macon County are assessing damage from yesterday morning's flash flood of the Tennessee River. Officials say water up to 18 inches deep flooded the streets of Franklin.

(MAY 5) UPI - All three Baltic republics are lined up in defiance of the Soviet Union.

Latvia became the third and final Baltic republic to declare its independence yesterday.

Latvia's declaration contains some cautiousness following threats from the Kremlin and the economic blockade it imposed on Lithuania.

Unlike Lithuania's declaration March 11th, Latvia declared a transitional period to sovereignty while negotiations with Moscow determine the details of secession.

And unlike Estonia, which in its March 30th sovereignty statement declared Soviet laws invalid on Estonian soil... the Latvian proclamation concedes that Soviet law will remain in effect during a transitional period in which negotiations with Moscow will be held.

But the Latvian declaration recognizes the validity of the former free state's 1922 constitution, which began an 18-year period of independence that was ended by Moscow's annexation in 1940.

Soviet television described the Latvian declaration as less radical than Lithuania's but more radical than Estonia's... indicating Latvia could have trouble getting talks with Moscow started.

The slaying of a U-S Marine sergeant outside the Subic Bay Naval Base has prompted American armed forces officials in the Philippines to confine most military personnel to their bases.

Philippine police identified the slain American as Gunnery Sergeant John Fredette. He was was shot once in the back of the head as he walked down a street in the town of Olongapo, 50 miles north of Manila.

A spokesman at Subic says Fredette was killed by ''an unknown assailant.'' He added that the murder is being investigated by U-S and Philippine authorities.

A police spokesman says investigators will try to determine if the slaying was arranged by the communist-led New People's Army. The spokesman says a captured N-P-A hit man revealed last month that the rebels had sent an assassination team to kill an American prior to the start of May 14th talks between U-S and Philippine officials.

The upcoming talks are aimed at discussing the future of U-S facilities in the Philippines. The N-P-A is violently opposed to re-upping leases to six U-S military bases in the Philippines that are due to expire next year.

SANTA CRUZ, CA (MAY 5) UPI - A 35-mile fault stretching from Santa Rosa to San Pablo Bay in Northern California's wine country appears to be under extreme pressure and could rupture with a major shake, scientists report.

U.S. Geological Survey scientist David Schwartz said he would lead a scientific team into the area within a few weeks to study the little-known Rodgers Creek Fault in Sonoma County.

The warning came Friday at a Seismological Society of America meeting in Santa Cruz, near the epicenter of last October's 7.1 magnitude earthquake that killed 62 people and caused some $5 billion in damage in Northern California.

Seismologist Ivan Wong, a geological consultant reviewing quake risks to landfills in Sonoma County, said the Rodgers Creek Fault has been ominously free of tiny quakes that relieve locked-up ground pressures in active fault lines.

This lack of activity creates a ''seismic gap'' - or recognized point of extreme pressure buildup that could lead to a rupture - said Wong.

Scientists identified the Loma Prieta area of the Santa Cruz mountains as a seismic gap along the San Andreas Fault before the Oct. 17 quake centered in the region.

Schwartz, who previously sounded an alarm over the the Rodgers Creek Fault said studies also indicate the fault could stretch 5 or 10 miles further north than previously believed, adding greater potential for a large quake.

Schwartz said he will lead a team to increase the number of trenches in the rolling ranchland between Sonoma and Petaluma. Similar 12-foot deep trenches dug across the fault last year, he said, showed three to four major earthquakes there in the past 1,300 years.

Records going back to 1808, however, said Schwartz, make no mention of a big quake in the area. The new trenches, he said, may yield evidence as to when the last major shake took place.

A 7.0 magnitude quake on the fault, said Schwartz, ''would undoubtedly cause more damage than we saw October 17'' with the nearby towns of Santa Rosa, San Rafael, Richmond, Vallejo and other north bay cities being severely shaken.

Wong said another seismic gap exists along the even bigger Mayacamas Fault that stretches northeast of Santa Rosa to Ukiah, a distance of about 50 miles.

''The Mayacamas is big,'' said Wong. ''It could do all kinds of damage.''

University of Nevada, Reno, scientist Peggy Johnson said another dangerous area because of lack of activity is on the California-Nevada border in the White Mountains east of Mono Lake. She said a locked fault in that area was capable of rupturing with a magnitude 7.3 quake in the next few decades.

A Mexican seismologist told the meeting that he expects a tremendous quake to occur on Mexico's west coast north of Acapulco by the end of 1991.

Lautaro Ponce of the National Autonomous University of Mexico said the well-known 100-mile-long Guerrero Gap recently showed a change in the way earthquake waves go through it.

He said the change, which causes seismic waves to be absorbed more readily by underground rock, has been observed in other ''seismic gaps'' one to three years prior to a major quake.

(MAY 5) UPI - A three-member emergency board becoming effective today will prevent the possibility of a nation-wide railroad strike for 60 days.

President Bush named the board yesterday as he blocked a strike by 11 railroad unions against most of the nation's major rail lines.

The railroads involved include Conrail and numerous lines serving the industrial Midwest, East Coast and South... as well as major terminals in the Southwest and West.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says the National Mediation Board concluded that the situation is extremely critical. He says a strike would interrupt interstate commerce and deprive various sections of the country of essential transportation service.

The disputes between the unions and the railroads date back two years. They center on health care, wages and rules.

Under the law, the unions are barred from a walkout for 60 days- 30 days for the board to prepare its report and another 30 days for the president to review it.

A federal judge in Miami says he finds it hard to believe that ousted Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega does NOT have any legitimately derived assets to his name.

U-S District Judge William Hoeveler told lawyers during a 30-minute conference yesterday that every effort should be made to determine what funds Noriega earned fair and square.

Noriega's lawyers say their client made somewhere in the neighborhood of 11-Million dollars from American government agencies in the war on drugs.

Defense lawyer Frank Rubino has filed subpoenas asking the C-I-A and other agencies to disclose what payments, if any, were made to Noriega for intelligence gathering and anti-drug activities.

Noriega's lawyers have asked to withdraw from the case because they have NOT been paid. The defense team claims the government has frozen nearly 20-Million dollars of Noriega's assets.

DELAND, FL (MAY 5) UPI - More than 1,000 demonstrators peacefully marched at the Volusia County courthouse Saturday to protest what they called censorship by a state attorney, who recently cracked down on the distribution of obscenity.

The protesters carried a coffin they said represented the death of the First Amendment right to free speech and vowed to oust State Attorney John Tanner in the next election.

''We've got enough people here to change an election,'' said rally organizer Barry Freilich of the Friends of the First Admendment. ''And come Nov. 8, we will change an election.''

The demonstration was prompted by the April 25 arrests of two Volusia County video store owners and Tanner's declaration of war against smut in north-central Florida. Glenn Rose, owner of Mega-Movies of Daytona Beach and Danny Milstead, owner of Stardust Video of South Daytona, both face obscenity charges for the distribution of videos.

''We are not going to allow this country to become a theocracy,'' said Celicia Height, vice president of Central Floridians Against Censorship. ''I don't want the state telling me what I can and can't do.''

John Evans of Winter Park dressed as a Nazi storm trooper and carried a sign identifying him as one of ''Tanner's Troops.''

''The point I am making is that the tactics Tanner is using are the same tactics Hitler used in 1934,'' Evans said. ''The only difference is that Tanner is not wearing the uniform.''

Freilich, who owns a video store in Ormand Beach, said the number of protesters showed that opposition to Tanner's tactics is widespread. ''If this is only a group of video store owners, we just covered about 10 states,'' he said.

''We showed Tanner there are a lot of people opposed to what he is doing '' said protester Joe Kolwicz. ''If we don't stop him here, he'll just keep going on.''

Demonstators carried signs saying ''How's the Witch hunt going, Tanner?'' and ''John Tanner is wasting our tax money,'' and vowed to ''dump Tanner.''

Protester Joe Keilholtz said people should be free to decide which material they listen to, read, watch or read - not the government.

''There are always losses when you allow people to choose, but the biggest losses happen when we try to start brain washing people,'' he said.

About 70 Tanner supporters also gathered at the courthouse, and a handful of police officers stood by.

The only incident occurred when a banner held by a Tanner supporter was ripped in two by an opponent, police said. The banner holder said he would file a complaint against the offender, officials said.

Herb Sever said he supported Tanner's attempts to ''make a dent in the garbage that rules so much of our society.''

''Keep it up, John,'' Sever said. ''The majority of the people are behind you, no matter what you read in the papers.''

TOLEDO, OH (MAY 5) UPI - The United Way of Greater Toledo believes it has a novel way of offseting cuts from the city's budget. It wants to help Toledo collect more than $2.4 million in unpaid parking fines.

Robert Alexander, general director of the YMCA, said the umbrella organzation wants to use its volunteers to collect unpaid fines and give the city a 50 percent cut of the money it gets.

In effect, United Way would act as a collection agency in trying to get the fines.

The city eliminated $91,920 from eight agencies that belong to the United Way because of its fiscal problems.

Alexander said Friday the city and the agencies would come out ahead under its plan.

But Melissa Spencer, a marketing representative for the Credit Bureau of Toledo, said the United Way may be getting into more work than it bargains for. She said collecting unpaid fines is different from raising money.

More than 184,300 parking tickets have gone unpaid between 1983 and 1989.

Toledo Mayor John McHugh said he was skeptical about the proposal. A committee is expected to propose a solution for the city's problem within the next 10 days.

NEW YORK (MAY 5) UPI - Jimmy Breslin, New York Newsday's Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist, called a Korean-American journalist on his newspaper who criticized one of his columns ''a yellow cur'' and was subsequently reprimanded by his editor, a Newsday spokeswoman said Saturday.

Breslin lashed out at New York Newsday metro reporter Ji-Yeon Yuh, calling her ''slant-eyed'' and a ''yellow cur,'' Friday after she criticized a column in which he bemoaned his wife's decision to go to work as a city councilwoman, reporters who overheard the outburst said.

More than 46 Newsday reporters signed an open letter to Newsday executive editor and senior vice president Anthony Marro about the incident, said Newsday spokeswoman Chiara Coletti. The letter was written by reporter Jesse Mangaliman.

Yuh sent messages Friday through the paper's computer system to Breslin and New York City editor Don Forst, who edits Breslin, complaining about his Thursday column.

In the column, headlined ''Officially, the Spouse is Out of the House,'' Breslin expressed annoyance that as an official his wife Ronnie Eldridge no longer has time to take care of his clothes.

Breslin wrote: ''Cop, copette, whatever you call them. I hate official women!''

When Breslin found the message from Yuh, he stormed out of his office, screaming, ''She's a little dog, just a little cur, a cur running along the street. She's a yellow cur. Let's make it racial.''

Breslin also called Yuh ''slant-eyed,'' according to a number of reporters who overheard the outburst, Coletti said.

Breslin then sent a private electronic message to Forst saying ''I will absolutely not tolerate being bothered ... I never have encountered such juveneile arrogance.''

However, Friday afternoon the staff received an apology from Breslin in the computer system. ''To the people I work with: I am no good and once again I can prove it,'' Breslin said.

Forst also sent a computer message to the staff, calling the remarks ''offensive and inexusable.''

''It's a closed issue as far as we're concerned,'' Coletti said. ''Jimmy was spoken to very, very strongly immediately after this occurred.''

No disciplinary action was being contemplated against Breslin, who went home after the incident and was headed to Lexington, Kentucky, to cover the Kentucky Derby, she said.

Breslin, 61, worked 12 years as a Daily News columnist, earning a Pulitzer Prize in 1986 for his observations on New York life.

He switched in 1988 to New York Newsday, where he reportedly now earns $500,000 a year as a columnist. Coletti called the salary estimate ''speculative.''

Newsday reassigned two other columnists last week in what Coletti said were unrelated moves.

Columnist James Revson, who wrote a twice-weekly society column, asked to be relieved of the column, Coletti said. He will now write feature stories.

''The paper and Jim decided that for this particular newspaper a twice-a-week column was not the best way to cover society,'' Coletti said.

Also last week, Forst reassigned columnist Denis Hamill to the newspaper's city desk. Coletti declined to comment on the reason for Hamill's move, saying only that it had been Forst's decision.

WASHINGTON (MAY 5) UPI - The International Monetary Fund expects its member nations to increase by 50 percent to 70 percent the institution's current $120 billion capital, the IMF's managing director said Saturday.

Michel Camdessus told a news conference that he expects agreement on an increase ''within a narrow band, between significant and rather substantial,'' meaning between 50 percent and 70 percent, in the IMF's capital.

The IMF's capital consists of contributions and pledges from nation members. In return, those members get a proportional voice in the fund's policy making.

''I am reasonably certain that the IMF will be consolidated and significantly reinforced in its role as the central pillar of international financial cooperation'' after a series of meetings Sunday and Monday, Camdessus said.

Camdessus voiced confidence that a dispute between Britain and France about their respective quotas in the IMF capital would soon be solved.

The dispute threatened to delay an overall agreement on the IMF's resources.

A Treasury official recently said he expects the Group of Seven industrial powers to support a 50 percent increase in the IMF's $120 billion capital.

Finance ministers and central bankers of the G-7 nations - the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy - will convene Sunday in Washington, prior to the spring meetings Monday and Tuesday of the IMF and the World Bank.

The G-7 will discuss the IMF's capital, progress on developing countries' debt, and the exchange rates for the dollar and the Japanese yen.

The IMF's Interim Committee, a policy advisory body, will debate Monday the G-7's proposals on debt and the IMF, as well as those of the developing countries.

Camdessus noted that after protracted negotiations, 19 out of the IMF's 22 executive directors still want a capital boost larger than 50 percent.

In its Saturday meeting, the Group of 24 that represents the IMF's developing nations voiced its concern that the IMF's capital increase would not be sufficient to meet their needs.

The G-24 also wants relief on debt to official creditors extended to middle-income countries. Currently, the industrial nations are granting such relief only to the poorest countries, especially in Africa.

A decision on the IMF capital could be announced Monday or Tuesday, Camdessus said. The decision would then submitted to the national governments for approval, a process that can take from nine months to two years, he added.

Two years ago, Camdessus asked for a 100 percent increase in the IMF capital to strengthen its help to developing countries, support economic reforms in East Europe, and maintain its role as the ''central bank of the world's central banks - the lender of last resort'' even for the industrialized nations.

According to the U.S. Treasury, ''there is consensus'' that Japan should move from being the fifth-largest IMF shareholder, perhaps sharing the No. 2 position with West Germany, now the No. 3 shareholder.

The United States is the largest shareholder in the IMF. Voting rights are based on the size of a nation's ranking as a shareholder.

But, No.2 Britain and No.4 France were at loggerheads about which nation should occupy to the No. 4 and 5 shareholder slots if Japan were to move up, or about whether the two countries should jointly hold the No. 4 position.

Camdessus expressed confidence that the disagreement between the French and the British would soon be solved, ''if it has not been solved already.''

British and French officials at the IMF could not be reached for comment.

The increase in the IMF capital will be linked to a ''strengthening'' of the strategy to deal with the 11 countries with $4 billion in arrears on loan repayments to the fund, Camdessus said.

Nations with arrears would be supported with resources from special IMF facilities and donor countries under IMF monitored economic programs.

In case of failure to comply, the IMF could sell the gold portion of the countries' contribution to the IMF's capital to cover part of the arrears.

Countries ''recalcitrant'' to cooperate with the IMF would lose their representation and voting rights for a time, Camdessus said.

''There is only one country - Cambodia - which has not manifested interest in cooperating,'' the IMF managing director said.

CHICAGO (MAY 5) UPI - Rep. Gus Savage, D-Ill., has again made controversial statements, this time blasting what he calls ''crossover blacks'' like New York Mayor David Dinkins and Virginia Gov. Douglas Wilder.

In remarks made Friday night, Savage, who was investigated earlier this year by a House ethics committee panel for allegedly making advances on a Peace Corps worker, accused several mainstream black politicians for being elected to lead whites but not blacks.

''I would vote for Dinkins to lead whites in New York, but not to lead blacks anywhere,'' Savage said, adding he felt the same way about Wilder.

Savage also outlined his strategic plan to gain black power in the 1990s, including running a black candidate against Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley.

The plan calls for blacks to do more volunteer work, to knock down obstacles to power by not supporting ''crossover blacks'' and to boycott what he called the ''white racist media.''

Savage said he thinks all black progressive leaders should get together and slate a candidate to oppose Daley, the son of legendary Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The controversial congressman also attacked his foes.

''First we'll deal with white-backed candidates against black power advocates and we'll start with one of my own recent experiences with a young man named Mel Reynolds,'' he said, referring to the black educator who challenged him in the March Democratic primary.

Speaking of Reynolds, Savage said: ''I told you Toms come in all sizes and ages. There are uneducated Toms and educated Toms.''

Reynolds, an educator, gave Savage a scare in the March primary but lost by a small margin.

The House ethics committee report issued in February found that Savage had made sexual advances to a female Peace Corps worker in Zaire last March. He was not censured after apologizing to the woman.

During the campaign against Reynolds, Savage blamed the ''white racist media'' for its coverage of race. The congressman also was criticized by other black leaders for saying Jewish groups contributed heavily to the Reynolds campaign.

(MAY 5) UPI - Philippine police have ruled out robbery as the possible motive in the shooting death of a U-S Marine sergeant last night near the Subic Naval Base. Philippine authorities say NO personal belongings were removed from the American. The slaying has caused U-S military officials to restrict most armed forces personnel to their bases. There's speculation that the sergeant's assailants are anti-American communist rebels.

The four allied World War Two powers and East and West Germany opened their talks in Bonn today. The purpose of the talks is to design a mutually acceptable process whereby the two German states can re-unite. Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze says Moscow does NOT want to impede German re-unification, but he adds that the Kremlin is hesitant to accept a single German state's affiliation with a military alliance.

Salvadoran military sources say a recent surge in leftist rebel activity seems to be dying down. F-M-L-N guerrillas yesterday damaged two helicopters that a military spokesman says were flying a reconnassaince mission. Leaders of the F-M-L-N rebels say they've stepped up attacks to dampen the ''triumphl attitude'' they say government and armed forces leaders are displaying.

Capitol Hill lawmakers are aiming their sights at how to protect the U-S economy from negative effects associated with rapidly declining defense spending. Yesterday, the Senate Armed Services Committee heard arguments for and against extending entitlement programs for displaced defense industry workers. The panel also was asked to identify future defense programs and to maintain an adequate defense industry to provide such programs.

(MAY 5) UPI - People from both sides of the smoking debate squared off on Capitol Hill yesterday before the Senate Labor and Human Relations Committee. Anti-smoking advocates told the Senate panel that the U-S tobacco industry has entered foreign nation's markets either by ignoring standing ad restrictions or by threatening trade sanctions unless American cigarettes can be marketed. Tobacco lobbyists say they merely want a fair shot for their legal product.

A lawyer for convicted computer hacker Robert Tappan Morris says that, despite his client's getting a ''reasonable'' sentence, he plans to appeal the conviction out of concern that Morris is now a convicted felon. Yesterday, a federal judge in Syracuse, New York, sentenced Morris to three years' probation and 400 hours of community service. Morris also must pay a 10-thousand-dollar fine and court costs for releasing a so-called computer ''worm'' in 1988.

Two Pennsylvania men have pleaded innocent to charges that they robbed Baseball Hall-of-Famer James ''Cool Papa'' Bell of baseball memorabilia valued at more than 300-thousand dollars. Robert Retort and Edward Grybowski are accused of paying several visits to the St. Louis home of the former Negro League outfielder and removing valuable baseball items from Bell's basement. An F-B-I agent in the case says 86-year-old Bell could NOT fend off the theft.

Tempers are running high at Mills College in Oakland, California, following a decision by the all-female school's trustees to admit men starting next year. The striking students say they'll transfer from Mills unless the decision is reversed.

(MAY 4) UPI - The high-running Arkansas River, fed by hard rains and overflowing lakes and reservoirs in Oklahoma, continued its swollen flow Saturday through Arkansas, inundating homes in its path toward the Mississippi River.

Gary Talley, spokesman for the Arkansas Emergency Services in Little Rock, said the river was expected to cause serious flooding through Tuesday as flood crests move downstream from the Fort Smith-Van Buren area on the Oklahoma border.

''We are preparing for the worst flooding in 17 years, since 1973,'' Talley said.

Elsewhere, heavy rains subsided in Texas, where floodwaters inundated more than 2,300 homes. Crews cleaned up from high winds and tornadoes that killed three people and injured a dozen more in Virginia and Ohio and needed rain helped douse fires in the Florida Everglades.

Two weeks of hard rains and thunderstorms in Oklahoma and Texas took their toll in deaths and destruction in those states and Oklahoma began opening its swelling lakes and reservoirs along the Arkansas and Red rivers earlier this week.

Talley said the Arkansas River crested Saturday in Fort Smith at 14 feet above flood stage and 52 homes were under water there. He said the river was rising 2 inches per hour as it moved downstream toward Pine Bluff, 35 miles south of Little Rock, and will flood at each point along its route.

Many people in Fort Smith, Ark., were quoted as accusing Oklahoma of ''stupidity'' by releasing too much water, but Talley disagreed.

''Those people who were complaining were citizens, not state officials. They, frankly, are misinformed or don't really understand what the problem is. There is no question in my mind but that Oklahoma held as much back for as long as they could. Oklahoma and Texas had record rains. If anybody was hit harder than us, it was Oklahoma and Texas.''

Searchers were looking for a ranch hand swept away with his horse, later found drowned, when the Red and Blue rivers inundated a ranch in southeastern Oklahoma. Highway Patrol Sgt. M.L. Belashaw said the rancher, his son and one other employee were rescued by a helicopter and a boat but the other man elected to ride out on horseback.

Two weeks of heavy rains have left thousands of acres of north Texas underwater and flooding has been blamed for 11 deaths, authorities said. The Red Cross in a preliminary survey said 717 homes were destroyed and 1,600 others were heavily damaged, and 16 counties have been designated federal disaster areas.

Though a slow fall of the floodwaters began in north Texas Saturday, the NWS at midday issued a flash flood warning for parts of four counties located south of Dallas on the Trinity River. Levees in those areas broke late Thursday and Friday due to strong currents and high water and the NWS said there could be more levee failures.

Preliminary estimates from the city of Dallas placed property damage and cleanup costs at more than $10 million, said Earnie Taft of the Dallas Office of Emergency Preparedness. An aerial survey of South Dallas - particularly the hard-hit Rochester Park neighborhood - revealed damage to 229 homes, 37 businesses, four schools and one multi-family dwelling, totaling about $1.9 million.

In the Dallas suburb of Grand Prairie, many victims were kept away from their homes Saturday by high water on Johnson Creek. The disruption has become an annual event for Charles Williams.

Last year, he and his pregnant wife - who was past her due date - fled their water-filled home by swimming through a window. Three days after the May 17 flood, Williams' wife gave birth to their son, Noah.

''I thought it was an appropriate name,'' Williams said Friday.

14th High winds hammered Augusta County in northern Virginia Friday night, hurling debris that struck and killed two men at a mobile home in the town of Swoope, authorities said. Ten other people were injured and property damage was extensive, authorities said.

In nearby Craigsville, high winds leveled the town fire station and severely damaged the Augusta Springs Baptist Church, moving it 5 to 15 feet from its foundation, said William Martin, a firefighter with the Craigsville Volunteer Fire Department.

''It was kind of picked up off its foundation and laid over on its side,'' he said.

A 24-year-old woman was killed in Middletown, Ohio, when a tornado struck her mobile home. Police said other mobile homes were damaged and several people were injured.

Firefighters helped by rain showers and helicopter air-drops of water doused wildfires that destroyed 25,000 acres of sawgrass in the Florida Everglades and threatened the Big Cypress National Preserve, the state forest service said.

Rain, high humidity and aerial water drops helped firefighters control the four-day fire and thwart the threat to the preserve, Division of Forestry duty officer John Wagner said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 6) UPI - The Army confirmed Saturday that it had filed murder charges against two more U.S. soldiers who participated in the U.S. invasion of Panama last December, charging them with later gunning down a Panamanian woman in a brothel.

Sgt. Paul Finsel Jr., 25, of Arkoma, Okla., and Pfc. Mark McMonagle, 20, of Philadelphia, were charged with murder stemming from the Jan. 25 shooting incident, said Maj. L.D. Walker in an interview from Fort Ord, Calif.

A third soldier, Pfc. Marc Gussen, 19, of Teaneck, N.J., pleaded guilty to firearms, alcohol, and obstruction of justice charges at a hearing April 23 at Fort Ord. He was sentenced to two years in prison, followed by a dishonorable discharge, Walker said.

The dead woman was identified as Leila Diaz de Panay, 50, said Walker, an Army spokesman at Fort Ord, where Finsel and McMonagle were attached to the 7th Light Infantry Division.

The two soldiers also were accused of mishandling their firearms and of disobeying orders prohibiting "sexual contact" with Panamanian women and prohibiting the use of alcohol during the deployment, Walker said.

The spokesman said the murder of the woman was discovered immediately after it happened and the army began an investigation shortly after. He identified the murder weapon as an M-16 rifle.

Walker said the two soldiers had been held in "pretrial confinement" for six days before being released back to their unit. They will be tried sometime during the summer at Fort Ord.

The Army last month brought its first case against a U.S. soldier in connection with the Panama invasion. 1st Sgt. Roberto Enrique Bryan, 42, was charged with killing a Panamanian man following a Dec. 23. grenade attack on a U.S. checkpoint that wounded two American soldiers.

Bryan's case is being reviewed by Army officials at Fort Bragg, N.C. The Army is trying to determine if Bryan, a 19-year Army veteran, should be court martialed.

The Washington Post reported Bryan's lawyer, Mark Waple, did not believe his client would be recommended for court martial. Waple said Bryan acted within the rules of of engagement for the Panama invasion, which allowed U.S. soldiers to fire when fired upon or when they believed their lives were endangered.

The Dec. 20 invasion of Panama by 24,000 U.S. troops, dubbed "Operation Just Cause," succeeded in rooting out dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega, who was later extradited to Florida to face drug charges.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 5) UPI - Foreign ministers at the ''two-plus-four'' talks on German reunification apparently failed to reach an agreement Saturday on whether a united Germany should be allowed to join the NATO military alliance.

The officials, representing the two Germanys and the four World War II Allies, gave no indication at a news conference after the one-day session whether they had made progress toward resolving the NATO question.

The United States and other Western allies have insisted that a unified Germany should be a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but the Soviet Union has said such a move would jeopardize the balance of power in the region and threaten its interests.

Despite the apparent failure to reach agreement on the NATO issue, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze declared following the meeting that ''the cold war is over.''

Secretary of State James Baker said that ultimately the Germans themselves would have to decide which military alliance to join. The conservative governments in both Germanys have said in the past that a united Germany would be part of NATO.

''On political-military issues, we believe that while the six can discuss many subjects, we should act primarily as a 'steering group,''' Baker said adding that broader issues should be dealt with in other forums, such as the ongoing arms control talks.

He said that the group should only make decisions relating to the powers and reponsibilities of the four World War II victors - Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Baker said one of the issues which the six had no mandate to decide was ''the question of forces'' - a reference to the NATO issue.

''Ultimately, the fundamental decision with respect to any nation's military forces is going to be up to that nation itself,'' he said. ''Decision with respect to those (forces) should, quite properly, be taken certainly in close consultation, with the allies.''

Shevardnadze, who earlier in the day reiterated Soviet opposition to a united Germany being in NATO, said that ''the (conference) agenda itself indicates that military and political aspects of the construction of German unification are to be involved in the framework (of the talks).''

''The machinery was created for resolving external aspects,'' he said.

Shevardnadze said he was hopeful a solution will be reached at later meetings. The ministers are due to meet again in Berlin in June, in Paris in July and in Moscow in September. Working groups are due to meet regularly between the meetings.

''I have no doubt that we will come to a mutually acceptable solution,'' he said.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said Poland will be invited to attend the Paris meeting, when he said the issue of Polish borders will be discussed. Both German states have in the past said they planned to sign a treaty formally renouncing former German territories ceded to Poland after World War II.

All six ministers noted the historic importance of the occasion and stressed their commitment to the reunification of the two states, divided since Germany lost World War II.

Recalling the Nov. 9 opening of the Berlin Wall, Baker said that ''in breaking down the wall, the people of Berlin helped to unify Germany .... Together here today, like the ordinary citizens of Berlin last November ninth, we take steps for Europe and for Germany.''

(MAY 5) UPI - German unification talks have opened in Bonn. The foreign ministers of West and East Germany- plus the four countries that defeated Germany in World War Two- started the talks this morning. The historic negotiations are likely to be dominated by the controversy over whether a united Germany should belong to NATO.

The talks in Bonn opened one day after President Bush called for an expanded role for nations in both NATO and the Warsaw Pact in making sure democracy prevails. Bush also said NATO must remain strong militarily.

MEMPHIS, TN (MAY 5) UPI - A Tennessee sheriff whose office has been under investigation for civil rights violations shot himself to death Saturday at a service station, police said.

Shelby County Sheriff Jack Owens, 56, was the third public official in the state to commit suicide in the past 17 months. Authorities said they did not know why the lawman pulled the trigger.

The controversial Owens, the sheriff of Tennessee's largest county, shot himself in the face with a sheriff's department shotgun, Lt. Carl Goolsby said.

''A preliminary investigation was that it was self-inflicted. He was sitting in his car at Hollywood and James. There was no speculation as to why he did it. He used a 20-gauge pump shotgun Shelby County issue with a folding stock. He shot himself in the face,'' Goolsby said of Owens, a controversial figure.

At a news conference Saturday afternoon, Memphis Police Director James Ivy said three employees of the service station witnessed the incident.

''We had three witnesses at the scene, all employees of the service station. They advised that Owens is a regular customer of the service station and that he bought gas by way of his credit card and asked for a rag and oil because he wanted to oil a shotgun on the seat beside him,'' Ivy said.

''The shotgun was lifted after the oil and rag had been used. The barrel was pointed upward toward the head and the rifle discharged, striking him in the face.''

Ivy said no note has been recovered.

''We are always at a loss when something like this occurs but we don't have any earthly idea of what might have prompted this action. The only thing we know at this point is that he conducted himself pretty much as he always has,'' Ivy said.

Goolsby said that Owens was a decorated Army veteran in both Korea and Vietnam, where he served two tours of duty. Owens had been sheriff since August 1986 and intended to run for re-election this year.

Police said they received a call that a man had shot himself at a Gulf gas station at 10:41 a.m. The man was later determined to be Owens.

Tennessee Secretary of State Gentry Crowell shot himself in the head Dec. 12, 1988, and died eight days later. At the time of Crowell's death his office was under an investigative cloud because of a statewide bingo corruption scandal.

On July 17, 1989, Ted Ray Miller, an influential member of the Tennessee House of Representatives, committed suicide with a shotgun blast to the head at his Knoxville home. At the time the Knoxville Democrat was the focus of an extortion investigation.

Owens' office was under investigation for civil rights violations. Authorities gave few details about the nature of the probe. Although federal officials had never said the sheriff himself was under investigation by a federal grand jury, two separate investigations have been under way.

A grand jury issued indictments two weeks ago against three of his deputies in the death of Michael Gates, 28, last June.

Gates was beaten to death during a ''jump and grab'' undercover sting operation in which officers posing as drug dealers would nab suspects after a transaction. Seventeen deputies were suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

The sting came under fire by civil rights advocates and black leaders in the community.

Several of Owens' top deputies had testified in recent months before the grand jury about financial matters involving the department in a probe unrelated to Gates' death.

At one point as sheriff, Owens wanted to require all deputies to be stunned with a stun gun as part of their training in using the weapon. The deputies' union filed suit and won an injunction against the practice and Owens eventually dropped the requirement.

He had also been criticized for the high number of black officers who had been fired under his administration against a relatively small number of whites.

(MAY 5) UPI - Foreign ministers from the four victorious World War Two allies have started talks in Bonn with their German counterparts aimed at creating a single German state. The chief sticking point that promises to loom above the so-called two-plus-four process is Western insistence that a new German nation ally itself with NATO. Moscow rejects such an arrangement.

The Red Cross says flood waters and winds have destroyed more than 700 homes and severely damaged some 16-hundred others in the most adversely affected 30 counties in north Texas. (MAY 5) UPI - Officials in Cape Town say both sides seemed genuinely pleased after the completion of the first-round of talks between South Africa's minority white government and the African National Congress. President Bush entered the nearly two-year-old labor fray yesterday when he named a three-member emergency board to investigate the contract dispute. By naming the panel, Bush has prevented the potentially devastating walkout for at least 60 days.

A former housing department aide wrapped up three days of congressional testimony yesterday by telling a House subcommittee that former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce lied to the panel last year. An electronic bracelet is off businessman Adnan Khashoggi's ankle. The Saudi Arabian, who once was one of the world's richest men, is on trial in New York City with former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos. Khashoggi wore the bracelet for more than nine months as part of his 10-Million-dollar bail requirement. A judge ruled yesterday that Khashoggi could take off the bracelet. Khashoggi says he feels half-liberated. He's waiting for the other half- the conclusion of the fraud trial.

A tiny Hawaiian church was hoisted onto a flatbed truck yesterday and moved away from the lava threatening it. Molten rock from the Kilauea Volcano threatened the 60-year-old church. The lava has turned a community the church served into a ghost town... wrecking three more homes yesterday in the Kalapana Gardens. A contractor handling the move of the church to a new location hopes to have it ready for services tomorrow.

The Chinese dissident radio ship Goddess of Democracy still needs a haven off the mainland. Organizers say they will ask Taiwan for permission to dock. Hong Kong turned down its request. Organizers say the Taiwan branch of an international shipping company agreed to serve as the boat's agent and will apply to the Ministry of Communications for permission to dock in northern Taiwan.

BASKETBALL

The New York Amateur Athletic Union team defeated the Soviet National Junior team 108-94 Friday in the first of 11 games of the 1990 AAU-Soviet Junior Boys Basketball tour.

Efrem Whitehead was the New York AAU team MVP, finishing with 14 points, six rebounds, six assists and three steals. The Soviets were led by Igor Grachev who had 26 points. The Soviet team traveled to Fort Wayne's Memorial Coliseum Saturday for a game against the Indiana AAU select team.

BOWLING

Chris Warren of Dallas became the top money winner on the PBA Tour by winning the $235,000 ABC-Bud Light Masters Tournament in Reno, Nev. Warren won $43,600 by defeating Dave Ozio, of Vidor, Texas, by a 225-203 score. Warren has won $129,395 this year.

Sanford Carvajal rallied with a 224 final game Friday to beat Tim Burgess of Illinois State by 35 pins, winning the overall championship in the 39th annual Association College Juniors International tournament in Reno. Brian Keister of Vincennes won the singles title with a 650 three-game score.

GOLF

Zimbabwe's Mark McNulty shot his second 68, taking a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the $577,500 Benson and Hedges European PGA Tour tournament at St. Mellion, England. McNulty's 8-under-par 136 put him one stroke ahead of Briton Richard Boxall and Jose-Maria Olazabal of Spain (137).

TENNIS

American Andre Agassi said there is a possibility that he will play in the Davis Cup semifinal later this year between the United States and Austria. Agassi met Friday with U.S. Davis Cup captain Tom Gorman and officials of the USTA, giving him a chance to discuss his disagreements with Gorman. Agassi lost a five-set match to Boris Becker last year after leading 2-0 in sets, and the United States lost 3-2 to West Germany.

LOUISVILLE, KY (MAY 5) UPI - Unbridled filled one of the few voids in Frances Genter's 53-year racing career Saturday when he bolted past the field in the homestretch to capture the 116th Kentucky Derby at Churchill

Downs.

Mrs. Genter, 92 years young, never had started a horse in the Derby until Saturday and Unbridled sent her home a winner, coming from sixth at the three-quarter pole to grab the lead at the head of the stretch and beat second favorite Summer Squall by 3 1/2 lengths in a time of 2:02.

"I wasn't concerned if he was eighth or 12th," jockey Craig Perret said. "I just wanted to be within eight or ten lengths and take one good shot."

It was Unbridled's second victory of the year following a victory in the Florida Derby. His last race, and second under Perret, was a third-place finish April 14 in the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland.

Unbridled, sired by Fappiano, was bred in Florida by Tartan Farms and trained by Carl Nafzger, a former pro bull rider who also picked up a victory with his first Derby horse.

The bay colt was caught in the pack of 15 horses at the start, running 11th after a quarter-mile and dropping back to 12th after a half-mile. "At the half-mile pole, I could see Craig still had some horse under him," Natzger said.

Unbridled started making his move near the end of the backstretch, getting behind Angel Cordero Jr. on Land Rush and then moving outside to overtake Pat Day and Summer Squall at the head of the stretch.

"When Pat hit his horse with his left hand and he didn't open up on me, I knew I had it," Perret said. "By the time I hit the quarter pole, it was just a question of how much I would win by."

Unbridled went off as the fifth pick at odds of $10.80 and paid 23.60, 7.80, and 5.80.

Unbridled has won four races in 11 career starts, along with two seconds and four thirds. He more than doubled his previous earnings with the $581,000 first-place purse, bringing his total to $1.1 million.

His other three-year-old races were a third in the Fountain of Youth at Gulfstream Park and a fifth-place finish in the Tropical Park Derby at Calder Race Course in January.

Unbridled broke his maiden last August at Arlington and his only other win came last December at Calder in the What A Pleasure. The Derby victory was Perret's first in four tries, while Day became the first jockey ever to finish second three consecutive years.

LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND (MAY 6) UPI - John Lennon's lyrics wafted over his hometown Saturday as an array of stars paid homage to the slain Beatles musician in a memorial concert that drew a small but enthusiastic crowd.

"It's a great day, isn't it," said Lennon's wife Yoko Ono to about 15,000 people assembled at a venue on Liverpool's once-thriving waterfront. "I think John is happy too."

Lennon's former colleagues in the Beatles declined invitations from Ono to attend the event, but Ringo Starr sent a song on video which was played during the three-hour event.

Organizers said profits from sales of the $32.80 tickets would go to the Spirit Foundation, a charity established by Lennon in 1978 which Ono said was "for the children of the world and the greening of the world."

The organizers had prepared for more than 45,000 people, but the crowd at the concert setting, flanked by grand buildings from Liverpool's days as a great port, was sparse.

But the audience responded warmly to the retinue of stars, singing along on tunes written by the Liverpool native, shot outside his New York City apartment in 1980.

Lennon's son Sean picked up a guitar and joined the performers on stage for a mass finale of "Give Peace a Chance." Ono, wearing wrap-around sunglasses, appeared on the verge of tears during a stirring version of "Imagine" backed by the Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra.

Earlier, Lou Reed delivered a doleful version of "Jealous Guy" and the Moody Blues crooned the enigmatic lyrics of "Across the Universe."

Natalie Cole proved the power of her vocal chords with "Ticket to Ride" and "Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds," and Al Green's treatment of "Power to the People" also set the crowd rolling.

Among the other artists performing at the $2.46 million show were Roberta Flack, Cyndi Lauper, Joe Cocker, Randy Travis, Hall and Oates, and Terrence Trent Darby.

All played or sang for free, and organizers said they planned to broadcast the concert internationally Oct. 9, which would have been Lennon's 50th birthday.

Many of the musicians said they had been personally influenced in their work by Lennon, who challenged many social and political mores during the 1960s and 1970s.

"One of the greatest tributes to an artist is for his work to live on and on, and that is what this is all about," Cole said during a news conference before the concert.

Ono fielded questions during the news conference about why the other three Beatles and Lennon's son Julian had decided not to come. The British press reported she had been snubbed.

Ono said she had tried to contact George Harrison but he had not answered her call. However, Ono said Lennon would have been happy about the event.

"I describe John as a 20th century man of peace because all the things he said made sense then and do now," said Flack, who knew Lennon. "He was more gutsy and ballsy than most musicians are and have been."

(MAY 5) UPI - German reunification talks are under way between the foreign ministers of East and West Germany and the four Allied powers from World War Two. The so-called ''two-plus-four'' conference opened today in Bonn, West Germany, with discussions centering on whether a united Germany should belong to NATO. At the start of the one-day session, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze repeated Moscow's opposition to plans for a unified Germany to be in NATO.

In Nicaragua, 16 hours of negotiations between President Violeta Chamorro and Contra leaders ended early today with the Contras saying they will turn in their weapons if the government reduces the Sandinista army. that accord, the rebels promised to gather in designated security zones and hand in their weapons under U-N supervision by June 10th.

The first of several ''two-plus-four'' meetings on German unification was held today in Bonn, West Germany, and the question of German membership in NATO was a prime focus.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze repeated Moscow's opposition to a unified Germany's membership in NATO. He said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is still a military alliance and said German membership would threaten the stability of Europe.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher says West Germany has NO plans to drop out of NATO.

U-S Secretary of State Baker tried to de-fuse the controversy by saying the six foreign ministers should act only as a ''steering group'' on military and political issues.

(MAY 5) UPI - Nicaragua's Contra rebels signed another disarmament agreement today- the third in six weeks- but this one says they will actually start turning over their weapons on Tuesday.

The agreement was signed early this morning after 16 hours of talks with Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro in Managua.

The new pact confirms an April 19th agreement in which the Contras agreed to disarm and demobilize by June 10th. On the government's side, Chamorro promised to begin reducing the size of the Sandinista army.

In the past two weeks, the Contras have been moving into designated security zones to ease the disarmament process.

The rebels have been reluctant to begin disarming following eight years of civil war. One leader said today's agreement probably will do little to speed up the process.

The stalled talks to end the Greyhound strike resumed today in Washington, D-C, marking the first time the two sides have sat down at the bargaining table since March.

Both sides last met on March 17th and 18th in Tucson, Arizona. Another session was set for April 2nd, but it was called off because of reports of sniper fire at a bus.

Since the strike began on March 2nd, there were several reports of sniper fire and other violence. Greyhound earlier said it would NOT resume talks with striking unions until the violence ended. On Wednesday, Greyhound officials said the violence had ''virtually ceased.''

The two-month-old strike has hit Greyhound hard. Company officials say the bus line faces bankruptcy re-organization if it does NOT get extensions on its debt payments.

Greyhound lost nearly 56-Million dollars in the quarter ended March 31st-three times the amount it lost in the previous three years combined.

(MAY 5) UPI - The U-S military has ordered all of its personnel and their dependents in the Philippines to stay on their bases following the shooting death of a U-S Marine sergeant.

A suspected communist gunman last night shot and killed 34-year-old John Fredette outside the American-run Subic Bay naval complex. Philippine police say Fredette, who was on temporary assignment at Subic, was killed by a single bullet in the back of his head while walking in Olongapo, some 50 miles southeast of Manila.

NO one has claimed responsibility for the attack, but police believe the communist New People's Army is behind the killing.

Fredette is the ninth U-S victim of suspected rebel terror since October 1987.

His murder comes nine days before the start of exploratory talks on the future of six U-S facilities in the Philippines, including the giant Clark Air Force Base and the Subic station.

The U-S lease expires next year, and there's considerable Communist-led opposition to renewing it.

A report says South Africa's former president Pieter Botha has quit the ruling National Party to protest the government's negotiations with the African National Congress.

Botha's apparent resignation comes as the white-minority government and the African National Congress successfully ended a three-day meeting. Both sides have promised to let ''bygones be bygones'' and to try to put years of bitterness behind them by seeking an end to apartheid.

Botha allegedly said he quit the party because he objected to the inclusion of the leader of the South African Communist Party in the A-N-C delegation.

State-run television reports that Botha refused to comment on the newspaper report and said that he would have NO further statements over the weekend.

President Frederick de Klerk says Botha's impressions of the negotiations are- quote- ''based on a false premise.''

Botha resigned last August after suffering a mild stroke earlier in the year and has since made few public comments on de Klerk's racial reform initiatives.

(MAY 5) UPI - The Arkansas River is 14 feet above flood stage in Fort Smith, Arkansas... 52 homes are under water... and residents downstream are bracing for similar flooding.

The river is swollen from heavy rains in Oklahoma. Also contributing to the problem was Oklahoma's opening of swelling lakes and reservoirs along the Arkansas River earlier this week.

Arkansas officials say the river is rising two inches an hour as it moves downstream, and they predict serious flooding along that route through Tuesday.

Spokesman Gary Talley says residents are getting ready for- quote- ''the worst flooding in 17 years.''

In Texas, rains subsided following serious flooding that destroyed more than 700 homes and heavily damaged 16-hundred others. Two weeks of heavy rains have left thousands of acres under water across the state. The floods are blamed for 10 deaths.

The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered airlines to install an enhanced cockpit warning system to ensure cargo doors are properly shut on older Boeing 747 jumbo jets.

The F-A-A move is the latest in a series of steps taken after the cargo door of a United 747 ripped open in flight near Hawaii last year, sweeping nine people to their deaths over the Pacific Ocean.

The order requires that a cockpit warning device be moved so it can be seen by both the pilot and co-pilot. The updated device also will monitor more parts of the door's locking mechanism.

The aviation authority estimates it will cost U-S airlines about 774-thousand dollars to make the alterations on 140 airplanes.

(MAY 5) UPI - The U-S government is ready to end more than two decades of neglect by conferring medals and official prisoner-of-war status upon the crew of the captured spy ship U-S-S Pueblo.

64 of the surviving 79 crew members today receive medals at a full-dress naval ceremony in San Diego. The event recognizes the crew's 1968 ordeal in North Korea, where they were captured and tortured for nearly one year.

The belated honor follows a national outcry over the crew's exclusion from a 1988 P-O-W ceremony because the Pentagon had classified them as ''detainees.''

That decision was criticized by Vietnam veterans across the country, some of whom sent their P-O-W medals back, or to Pueblo crew members.

Retired Pueblo Commander Lloyd Bucher sees the ceremony as more than just pomp and circumstance.

(MAY 5) UPI - Foreign ministers at the ''two-plus-four'' talks in Bonn have apparently failed to agree on whether a united Germany should be allowed to join NATO. The officials... representing both Germanys and the four victors of World War Two... didN'T say if they'd made any progress toward resolving the sticky issue. But Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze emerged from the meeting saying- quote- ''the cold war is over.''

Former South African President Pieter Botha is NOT pleased with the way the government is handling talks with the African National Congress. A report in an Afrikaans-language newspaper says Botha has left the ruling National Party, which he says is following ''a path of gradual abdication.'' Botha warns of a heavy communist influence over the A-N-C, and objects to the presence of a South African communist leader in the A-N-C delegation. Botha resigned as president last year after a power struggle.

In San Diego, the U-S government today conferred official prisoner-of-war status to the men of the spy ship U-S-S Pueblo. 64 of the 79 crew members showed up in full navy dress to accept the belated honors for their 1968 ordeal in North Korea. They were imprisoned and tortured for 11 months at the height of the Vietnam War. Until today, the Pentagon had classified the men as ''detainees.''

Negotiations to end the two-month-old Greyhound strike have recessed with NO apparent agreement on a new contract. The Federal Mediation and (MAY 5) UPI - American voters are turning their backs on the electoral process and seem to be mostly indifferent to issues and politics. That's the assessment from a private commission that's studying voter attitudes. The panel, sponsored by the Markle Foundation, says American voters act as if they believe presidential elections belong to somebody else- ''most notably presidential candidates and their handlers.'' The commission recommends an aggressive advertising campaign to ''rekindle pride in democracy.''

Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Jimmy Breslin has been sharply reprimanded for a name-calling incident. A spokeswoman for New York Newsday says Breslin called a Korean-American journalist on his newspaper ''a yellow cur,'' and was later reprimanded by his editor. The woman had criticized a column Breslin wrote. Breslin later apologized to the Newsday staff for the name-calling incident.

(MAY 5) UPI - So-called ''two-plus-four'' talks in Bonn end with NO apparent agreement on whether a unified Germany should join NATO...

Greyhound negotiations recess with NO agreement...

And tragedy at a Little League game in suburban Chicago...

These stories... and more... next, from United Press International:

Secretary of State Baker says ultimately it will be the Germans themselves who decide what military alliance to join.

Baker's comment came today in Bonn following the first session of the ''two-plus-four'' talks on German unification... talks that apparently did NOT resolve the issue of whether a united Germany should be in NATO. Participants in the talks are East and West Germany and the four World War Two Allies.

Baker attempted to defuse the controversy by saying the six foreign ministers should act as a ''steering group'' on political and military issues. He said the six have NO mandate to decide ''the question of forces''- a reference to the NATO issue.

Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze says he hopes a solution can be reached at later meetings. The ministers are to meet again in Berlin in June, in Paris in July and in Moscow in September.

Negotiators for Greyhound and its striking unions returned to the bargaining table today, but failed to reach agreement on a new contract.

Today's session at the offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington, D-C, marked the first time Greyhound and the unions have negotiated since March.

The mediation service says the two sides exchanged proposals and discussed them. Mediators are trying to schedule another meeting within the next few days.

The strike began March 2nd when 93-hundred Greyhound workers walked off the job. The strike has been marred by violence, but NO serious incidents were reported recently.

Earlier today, Greyhound said the bus line could face bankruptcy re-organization if it DOESN'T get extensions on debt payments. Company officials were in San Diego yesterday to discuss debt restructuring with a major lender.

Greyhound lost nearly 56-Million dollars in the first quarter this year.

(MAY 5) UPI - Heavy rains and overflowing lakes in Oklahoma pushed the Arkansas River 14 feet above flood stage in Fort Smith, Arkansas... and residents downstream are bracing for the worst.

Arkansas Emergency Services spokesman Gary Talley says the river is expected to cause serious flooding through Tuesday as high waters move downstream from the Fort Smith area.

52 homes are under water in Fort Smith, and the river is rising two inches an hour as it moves downstream. Weather officials say the river will crest at five feet above flood stage at Little Rock.

In Texas, heavy rains subsided following flooding that left thousands of acres under water and destroyed 717 homes. Flooding has been blamed for 11 deaths.

Elsewhere, crews in Virginia and Ohio cleaned up from high winds and tornadoes that killed three people. Two men were killed in Swoope, Virginia, last night when their mobile home was lifted up and blown about 30 feet.

In Middletown, Ohio, a woman was killed when a tornado struck her mobile home.

Scientists are warning that a 35-mile fault stretching from Santa Cruz to San Pablo Bay in Northern California's wine country appears to be under extreme pressure and could rupture at any time.

U-S Geological Survey scientist David Schwartz plans on leading a team of specialists into the area within a few weeks to study the little-known Rodgers Creek Fault in Sonoma County.

Seismologists says the fault has been ominously free of tiny quakes that relieve locked-up ground pressures in active fault lines. The inactivity, they say, creates a seismic gap which results in major shaking.

Schwartz says major movement along the Rodgers fault could cause more damage than the October 16th earthquake that killed 62 people and caused some five-BILLION dollars in damage in Northern California.

(MAY 5) UPI - Church bells in Pilson, Czechoslovakia, are peeling today to welcome back some of the American G-I's who liberated the city from the Nazis 45 years ago.

For nearly that many years, the ruling communist party had forbidden residents of the West Bohemian city to celebrate their liberation after World War Two. Those who lived through it were told to keep quiet. And their children were told the town was freed by Soviet soldiers wearing American uniforms.

But today, five months after the fall of communism in Czechoslovakia, about 50 American veterans have returned.

The men... all members of General George Patton's Third Army... came back to attend the unveiling of a black granite monument dedicated to the 2nd Infantry Division.

They were greeted by American and Czech flags on every lamp post and by thousands of strollers carrying American flags or wearing American T-shirts, buttons and caps.

The veterans watched under a banner that read, in English, ''Thank You Boys.''

TAIPEI (MAY 6) - Some 3,000 people staged an illegal march in downtown Taipei on Sunday to protest the planned nomination of Defense Minister General Hau Pei-tsun as Taiwan's new premier.

Shouting "we oppose the soldier forming a new cabinet" and "military intervention in government, collapse of democracy," the demonstrators ignored police warnings and walked through major streets, after a sit-in of several hours in the Chiang Kai-shek Memorial Hall.

A Taipei resident who attacked the march was beaten up by some demonstrators and rushed to hospital for bleeding, witnesses said. A military police officer near the headquarters of the ruling Kuomintang (KMT) was also punched to the ground by protestors, who spray-painted walls of several government buildings and threw eggs at the KMT office as they marched.

The 90-minute march ended at the new Taipei train station following speeches by several leading members. No arrests were made. Some of the 100 student activists had staged an around-the-clock protest at the hall since Wednesday, after it was confirmed that President Lee Teng-hui would name Gen. Hau, 73, as the new premier, replacing the popular Lee Huan.

The National Student Movement Alliance organised the march, which was joined by college professors, members and supporters of the opposition Democratic Progressive Party, and activists from labor, religious, farmers' and women's groups.

They blasted the president's "authoritarian rule" and called for Gen. Hau, formerly chief of staff of the armed forces, to step down. The demonstrators also vowed to stage another large-scale demonstration May 20 the inauguration day of Lee Teng-hui, who was re-elected to a full six-year term in March.

The president has defended his choice for premier: last week he told a group of legislators that Gen. Hau could accomplish enough, especially in fighting Taiwan's worsening crime problem, to counter his detractors.

Lee Teng-hui is to make the nomination after his inauguration, and then seek endorsement from the Parliament and KMT Central Standing Committee, which will be a formality.

SYDNEY (MAY 7) - A commuter train ploughed into the rear of a steam train special that apparently stalled north of here Sunday, killing at least six people and injuring 90, officials said.

Reg Cockburn, superintendant of the central ambulance district, also said that as many as six other people might be trapped inside the wreckage, but there was no immediate confirmation.

Six of the injured were in serious condition after the collision between the double-decker commuter train bound for Sydney and the steam train taking more than 300 people back from a jazz festival, police said.

"Everyone was screaming and people came out with blood dripping," said one witness to the crash near the Hawkesbury River about 50 kilometers (30 miles) north of downtown Sydney.

A police spokeswoman said that six people were confirmed dead and 90 people injured in the accident just after 7 p.m. (0900 GMT). Officials said the driver of the electric commuter train was among those killed in the crash, which demolished the back carriage of the steam train.

Rescuers worked through the night searching for more victims of the accident, which left the front car of the commuter train and the back of the steam train twisted and collapsed like accordions.

"I believe there's up to another six people still trapped inside," Mr. Cockburn said. He expressed doubt whether anymore victims would be found alive. The police spokeswoman in Sydney said she was unable to verify reports of people trapped.

Helicopters ferried the seriously injured to various local hospitals, while about 20 ambulance crews were dispatched to the scene as well as five paramedic units.

The accident occurred on a stretch of two-line track that winds around a steep incline, bordered by dense brush, with a steep cliff on one side and a sheer drop on the other.

Passengers on the commuter train said it stopped behind the steam train which had apparently stalled on a hill just beyond a tunnel as it was returning from the jazz festival in the Hunter Valley.

"The driver told us we would be about ten minutes as the steam train didn't have enough power to get up the hill," said 35-year-old Justine Reis, who was in the lead car.

"We stayed there for a while, then started up around a curve and next thing, bang," he told the Australian Associated Press. "People were thrown everywhere."

"I didn't know what hit me," said 20-year-old Jason Phillips, who was returning on the commuter train after visiting relatives in the port city of New Castle. "It was an awful shock."

Richard Stohr, a passenger in the second carriage of the commuter train, said it seemed to be trying to pick up speed to tackle the hill that curved sharply left out of the tunnel when it hit the steam train. "This woman just flew past me. Just sailed past," he said. "I think she was killed."

Rob Schwarzer, group manager for State Rail, said he did not know the cause of the accident, but did not rule out the possibility the steam train stalled.

HUARAZ, PERU (MAY 7) EFE - Suspected Maoist "Shining Path" rebels Sunday blew up a television relay station in northwestern Peru, blocking out reception of the country's state-run television network in the area, police said.

They said more than 50 Shining Path rebels attacked the Recresh station outside the city of Huaraz, 409 km north of the capital, and set off five blasts which destroyed the station's antenna, transmitter and power source.

There were no reports of injuries in the attack.

Police said that on Saturday they found 4,000 sticks of dynamite and 10 rifles which Shining Path rebels had hidden 10 km south of Huaraz.

Authorities on Sunday blamed a Shining Path death squad for the murder last Friday of two state bank employees near the town of La Merced, some 300 km east of Lima.

Officials say some 1,100 people have died as a result of political violence this year.

They say 20,000 people have been killed since Shining Path took up arms in 1980.

BOGOTA (MAY 7) EFE - Suspected pro-Castro National Liberation Army (ELN) rebels killed a geologist and kidnapped three others from a Canadian-owned mining complex in northwest Colombia, police said Sunday.

They said a column of heavily-armed ELN rebels Friday attacked the mining complex of El Limon, in the city of Zaragoza, 350 km northwest of Bogota, where they abducted the four geologists and stole dlrs 625,000 worth of property.

The bullet-riddled body of one of the geologists was found on a roadside by police in pursuit of the rebels. The victim was named as Jorge Villamil a Colombian.

The other kidnapped geologists were two Colombians and a Peruvian.

The rebels escaped with the hostages, mining equipment, four vehicles and explosives, police said.

The ELN, which has until recently rejected peace overtures from the government of President Virgilio Barco, is considered the most violent of Colombia's five leftist rebel groups.

But a spokesman for an organization that represents the five guerrilla groups last week announced moves towards peace talks with the government.

MANAGUA (MAY 7) EFE - Former Nicaraguan Sandinista president Daniel Ortega said Sunday he doubted Contra rebels would fulfill their most recent demobilization accord, and suggested they may be trying to gain time to restart their insurgency.

Ortega, in an interview with Sandinista radio station Ya, said he doubted the Contras would fulfill an accord signed Saturday with President Violeta Chamorro, under which they are to lay down their weapons by June 10.

He said the rebels had already agreed to disarm last month after talks with his brother, then defense minister Humberto Ortega, but were still not demobilizing.

The rebels, who waged a nine-year, U.S.-funded war against the leftist Sandinista administration, are attempting "to gain time," Ortega said.

"With what intention? In order to concentrate their forces and restart the war? This is what we must ask and we are right to be doubtful," said Ortega, now the leader of the largest single opposition party as head of the Sandinista Front.

The "Declaration of Managua", signed Saturday by Contra leaders after 15 hours of negotiations with Chamorro's 11-day-old administration, calls for disarming to begin Tuesday and end by June 10.

In exchange, Chamorro promised to provide land for the demobbed guerrillas and announced a plan to reduce the size of the Sandinista Army.

"If the Contras do not begin to disarm Tuesday we must demand that the government be firm and bring the Contras into line," Ortega said.

About 12,000 rebels are to begin surrendering their weapons in five security zones set up throughout Nicaragua under United Nations observation.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (MAY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Elton H. Rule, who as president and chief operating officer of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., was the chief architect of that company's rise to broadcasting dominance in the 1970s, died of cancer today at his home in Beverly Hills. He was 73.

Rule, one of the most respected and honored executives in the communications industry, served as president of ABC, Inc. from 1972 until 1983, a period during which the company achieved leadership in all areas of broadcasting, forged a new position as a major entity in the field of specialty publishing, and moved aggressively into the new arena of cable television programming.

On Elton H. Rule's departure from the company, Leonard H. Goldenson, ABC chairman and chief executive officer, said his tenure as president marked

"a period of unequalled growth and popularity for ABC" and credited him with assembling and motivating the superb group of executives forming the management team that achieved these successes.

After leaving the company as vice chairman in 1984 and returning to his native California, Rule remained active in the communications and entertainment fields. He and I. Martin Pompadur, another former ABC executive, together with Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. formed two public limited partnerships to acquire and operate media enterprises.

These two limited partnerships - ML Media Partners and ML Media Opportunity Partners - manage properties, including radio and television stations and cable television systems, whose assets total well over one billion dollars. Rule was chairman of both partnerships.

An insight into Rule's accomplishments at ABC can be gained by a look at statistics comparing the company in 1968, when he was named president of the television network, and 1983, when he announced his intention to step down as president of the corporation.

In 1968 there were but 146 stations affiliated with the ABC Television Network; in 1983 there were 214. The number of ABC Radio Network affiliates grew in that interval from 365 to 1,800. Corporate revenues grew from less than $600 million to more than $2.7 billion, and earnings from $13.5 million to $160 million.

Commenting on Rule's departure, Broadcasting Magazine wrote, in part, "Elton Rule ... has earned the ultimate compliment. He will depart that company far better than he found it ... To those who remember the company in 1968, the transformation is incredible ... It just shows what can be accomplished with a great deal of ability, a determined course - and just a touch of class."

The former vice president and general manager of ABC's owned television station in Los Angeles, Rule was called to New York by Leonard Goldenson in January 1968, to head the ailing ABC Television Network. It was a time when the network frequently was referred to jokingly as "the fourth network in a three network economy" because of its weak program schedule and anemic ratings.

Rule's style and reputation quickly earned the network desperately needed credibility with several important audiences - the Hollywood production community, the network's affiliates, advertisers, and the press. This soon would translate into popularity with an even more important audience, the viewing public.

One of Rule's first moves as network president was to sign Hollywood producer Aaron Spelling to an exclusive contract to produce programs for ABC. Spelling was to produce a string of mass appeal programs such as "Mod Squad," "Starsky and Hutch," "Love Boat," "Charlie's Angels" and "Family" that would be instrumental in propelling the network into a more competitive position.

Among Rule's first internal appointments was the promotion of Roone Arledge to president of ABC Sports. As executive in charge of the sport division, Arledge had brought ABC the only leadership position it enjoyed in the late 1960s. In 1969, while continuing as network president, Rule also was named a group vice president of ABC, Inc.

That year, he pioneered the presentation of made-for-television movies as a regular part of the schedule and over the next six years such films as "Brian's Song" and "That Certain Summer" made ABC's Movie of the Week a major factor in primetime television entertainment and brought much acclaim to the network.

In 1970, Rule was named to the ABC Board of Directors and also stepped up to the presidency of all ABC broadcasting operations, including the television and radio networks, and the TV- and radio-owned stations.

It was a year also in which he made the risky decision to program professional football in primetime on a weekly basis. The wisdom of this move was questioned by many, but "ABC Monday Night Football" quickly changed not only the viewing but also the living habits of much of the nation on Monday night, and has become one of the most successful programs in TV history over the past 20 years.

Leonard Goldenson, who had been president of ABC since its modern-day founding in 1953, was named chairman and chief executive officer in 1972 and with his elevation Rule was elected president and chief operating officer of the corporation.

Shortly thereafter, he restructured the broadcasting operations into two separate divisions, ABC Television and ABC Radio, and established ABC Entertainment as a separate programming division entirely apart from its traditional role as part of the television network.

The moves were questioned by many, but later copied by both competing networks. Rule placed an emphasis on long-range planning, program development and research in all operating divisions.

He introduced ABC Theatre in 1972 as a television showcase for exceptional dramatic presentations and over the next few years such quality programs as "Eleanor and Franklin," "Pueblo," "Love Among the Ruins," and "Missiles of October" were presented under the ABC Theatre banner to wide critical acclaim.

ABC Afterschool Specials and Schoolhouse Rock also premiered in 1972 as quality programs for children. By the end of the year the ABC Television Network was profitable for the first time in more than a decade. The ABC Radio Network also made money for the first time in several years, sparked by the recently introduced four-network concept encouraged by Rule.

ABC's surge to television network leadership began in earnest in the mid-1970s with the presentation of such regular primetime programs as "Barney Miller," "Three's Company," "Happy Days," "Eight Is Enough," "Welcome Back Kotter," "Baretta," "Soap," and Donny and Marie"; the entry into early morning television with "AM America" (later to become "Good Morning America") and the introduction of mini-series, the first of which was "QB VII" in 1974. By 1976 ABC was the highest rated network in primetime.

Among the most notable television presentations under Rule's leadership was the epic mini-series "Roots," the most watched and talked about program in TV history. ABC also became known as the network of the Olympics during this period.

U.S. television rights for six Olympics games (Munich, 1972; Innsbruck and Montreal, 1976; Lake Placid, 1980; and Sarajevo and Los Angeles, 1984) were negotiated for and won by ABC during Rule's tenure and the TV presentation of these events brought prestige, high ratings and profits to the company.

Rule assembled a collection of remarkably talented young executives to develop the programming and schedule that would bring ABC to industry leadership.

Among them were Martin Starger, first president of ABC Entertainment and later producer of the acclaimed Hollywood feature films "On Golden Pond" and "Sophie's Choice"; Fred Silverman, previously head of the CBS program department and later president of NBC; Michael Eisner, now chairman of the Walt Disney Company; Barry Diller, later chairman of Paramount Pictures and now chairman and chief executive officer of Fox Inc.; Marcey Carsey and Tom Werner, now heading television's most successful independent production company; and Arledge, whom Rule named president of ABC News in 1977 in addition to his sports responsibilities.

By the end of the 1970s, ABC was clearly the nation's most successful broadcasting organization. It was the leader in primetime, daytime, and early morning television. ABC Sports continued its dominance and ABC News, under Arledge, had become fully competitive.

The ABC Television Network was by far the most profitable of the three. The ABC owned TV stations were ratings and profit leaders in each of their markets. The ABC Radio Networks and ABC-owned radio stations were equally successful.

Rule was equally active in the publishing side of ABC's operations and during the 1970s directed the expansion of ABC Publishing through the acquisition of a number of successful specialty publications, including Los Angeles Magazine.

In recognition of these accomplishments during the Rule regime, ABC in 1979 was named one of the five best managed companies in the country by Dun's Review Magazine. A year later, Fortune Magazine cited the company's success as one of the "ten most newsworthy achievements of U.S. business" during the decade.

Entering the 1980s, Rule created a new division, ABC Video Enterprises, to provide programming for the emerging new communications technologies. The company also acquired an 80 percent interest in ESPN, the cable sports network.

Early in the 1980s, Rule informed Goldenson of his intention to return to California at an appropriate time and in January 1983, in an orderly transition, he was named vice chairman of ABC Inc., while Frederick S. Pierce succeeded him as president.

Rule left the company in 1984 to engage in his own business enterprises from his Los Angeles base. In 1986, ABC Inc. merged with Capital Cities Communications Inc. to form the present company known as CapCities/ABC Inc.

A third generation Californian, Elton Hoerl Rule was born in Stockton, Calif., on June 13, 1916. He received his early education at public schools in Stockton and in Sacramento and was graduated from Sacramento College in 1938.

He began his career that year with radio station KROY, Sacramento holding the combined positions of salesman, copywriter, and announcer. He served in World War II with the 7th Infantry Division, advancing from second lieutenant to major, and saw action in the Kwajalein invasion, and on Leyte and Okinawa.

He was with the U.S. occupation forces in Korea after the surrender of the Japanese. He received the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf cluster and the Purple Heart.

After the war, he was employed briefly as a real estate salesman in Sacramento before joining radio station KFBK there as an account executive. In 1949 he became an account executive with KLAC-TV now in Los Angeles and 1952 joined the ABC owned station there (then KECA-TV, now KABC-TV) as assistant sales manager.

He was named general sales manager in 1953, and vice president and general manager in 1960, remaining in that capacity until called to New York to be president of the ABC Television Network in 1968.

Among the many honors Rule received are the Gold Medal Award of the International Radio and Television Society, the Governors Award of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, and the 1984 Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of Broadcasters. He served as president of the California Broadcasters Association in 1966 and 1967.

Rule is a charter member of the UCLA School of Medicine's Board of Visitors, as well as a member of the Advisory Board and Executive Committee of the Institute of Sports Medicine and Athletic Trauma, Lenox Hill Hospital, New York. He also is co-chairman of the National Center of Film and Video Preservation formed by the American Film Institute and the National Endowment for the Arts.

He married Betty Louise Bender on July 12, 1942. He is survived by his wife; three children, Mrs. Cindy Dunne, Christie Rule, and James Rule, all of Los Angeles; a grandson, Patrick Elton Dunne; and a granddaughter, Andrea Rule. There will be no funeral and the body will be cremated, according to Rule's wishes.

GUATEMALA CITY (MAY 6) UPI - A Miami-bound DC-6 cargo airplane crashed in a heavily populated area of Guatemala City Saturday, killing at least 15 people including the plane's three American crewmen, authorities said.

The four-engine, propeller-driven DC-6, apparently owned by the Miami-based Aerial Transit Co. and leased to a Central American air transport company, crashed at about 3 p.m. local time, destroying two houses and sending a mushroom-shaped cloud of smoke into the sky.

Carlos Rodolfo Dighero Espinoza, flight operations officer for Guatemala's Civil Aeronautics agency, said the plane was carrying clothing and vegetables to Miami and crashed shortly after takeoff from Aurora International Airport on the southern flank of the capital.

Dighero Espinoza said the cause of the crash was not known. It also was not known how many of the victims were aboard the plane and how many were on the ground.

A spokesman at the city morgue said 15 people died and at least 20 were injured. A six-year-old boy was among the victims, many of whom were in their homes at the time of the crash.

"Three Americans died - the pilot, the copilot and the navigator," said Jorge Molina, a fireman compiling a list of victims at the scene. Dighero Espinoza identified the three Americans as pilot Joseph Babody, co-pilot J. Theodore and flight engineer Dallas White. Their ages and hometowns were not immediately available.

He said the U.S. Embassy in Guatemala had offered "any assistance possible" to the Guatemalan commission that will investigate the crash. "At this moment they are carrying out an investigation" into the reason for the crash, Dighero Espinoza said. He said DC-6s "are very old planes. They shouldn't even be flying them anymore."

"More will probably die at the hospital tonight. They were in bad shape," Molina said of the injured, eight of whom were taken in serious condition to local hospitals.

"We don't know how many of the bodies were passengers, but we pulled eight bodies out from the houses in front," Molina said. "They died immediately, they didn't have a chance."

The site of the crash, about five miles southeast of the airport, was strewn with burnt remains of the fuselage. Three-quarters of the plane disintegrated upon impact, leaving only the burned tail section looking like a broken cross encrusted in two houses that suffered the brunt of the crash.

"We heard a loud whistling sound first, and then the ground shook. The heat, the heat from the flames was tremendous. We had to leave the house because of the heat," said Carlos Ramon Perez, 18, whose house was across from the two houses that were destroyed by the crash.

"They were pulling out bodies from the houses on the block," Perez said. "That house over there, Juan lived there, I used to talk to him. I don't know what's happened to him." "Everything is gone. Everything is gone. How could this happen, God, why," screamed a woman whose house was being consumed by flames.

BYRON BAY, AUSTRALIA (MAY 6) UPI - Australian screen idol Paul Hogan, 51, wed his Crocodile Dundee film sweetheart, American actress Linda Kozlowski 32, Saturday in what was billed as Australia's showbiz wedding of the year.

"He's happy mate and she's a beaut lady," said Hogan's business partner and best man, John Cornell. "You know we made her an honorary bloke when we were filming Crocodile One. There she was in the middle of Australia with a tough Australian crew and she didn't complain once." It was Hogan's third trip to the altar - he married first wife Noelene twice - and Kozlowski's first.

Hordes of reporters converged on a hill, dubbed Hogan's Lookout, in an effort to catch a glimpse of the proceedings at the couple's new, $2 million mansion, dubbed Possum Creek, a half mile away. They were kept busy by locals loyal to Hogan, who baited the press with tails of star sightings throughout town.

Clint Eastwood reportedly had his hair cut at a local barber shop while Sylvester Stallone shopped for crafts in nearby Byron Bay and Arnold Schwarzenegger took an early morning dip in the surf.

None of the tips proved true and Cornell said later that of the 70 guests, only six were from America, including the bride's parents Stan and Helen Kozlowski. The rest were Australian friends and business associates.

He said the couple would honeymoon at a secret location before returning to edit their latest movie, "Almost an Angel," scheduled for release this Christmas. The bride wore a full white wedding gown created by Hollywood designer Renee Strauss.

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (MAY 6) UPI - Police used high powered hoses to douse anti-nuclear protesters who attempted to prevent the naval command flagship USS Blue Ridge from docking in Sydney Saturday, navy officers said.

About 70 members of the Nuclear Disarmament Party traveling in more than 50 small boats, most of them kayaks, met the warship as it docked at Sydney Harbor's Garden Island naval dockyard.

Police kept the protesters clear of the vessel, spraying them with jets of water when they got too close. No one was injured, but a few paddlers capsized and had to be rescued, police said.

The demonstrators, who began a four-day harborside protest vigil Saturday, called on the federal government to ban the entry of nuclear weapons into Australia.

Protest leader Robert Wood said the Blue Ridge was the command vessel for the U.S. seventh fleet in the Pacific and carried nuclear weapons. The charge could not be confirmed because the United States does not divulge whether U.S. ships are carrying nuclear cargo.

The Blue Ridge arrived from Japan to join in celebrations to commemorate the 1942 Battle of the Coral Sea and Australian-America Friendship Week. The ship and its 970 member crew was scheduled to stay in Sydney until Wednesday, when it will sail to Brisbane before returning to Japan.

Meanwhile, appeals went out for 500 Australian women to be escorts for crew members at the annual Coral Sea Ball. The required number of partners was filled within hours, officials said.

(MAY 6) UPI - Rickey Henderson horsed around and Boston pitcher Mike Boddicker made the rest of the Oakland Athletics pay the price.

After Henderson blasted the game's first pitch out of the park for a home run and dawdled on his trot around the bases, Boddicker decided he'd seen enough and allowed only six hits over seven innings in helping the Red Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Athletics.

"He kind of dogged it running around the bases and that made me mad," said Boddicker, 3-3, who surrendered Henderson's 42nd career lead-off homer. Henderson is the all-time leader in lead-off homers.

"The reason Rickey hit that home run was that I tried to get ahead of him," he said. "It seems like whenever he walks, he scores." But Boston did most of the scoring, not Henderson, despite going four for five.

Dwight Evans countered Henderson's shot with a three-run homer later in the game and Boddicker struck out six and walked four. Jeff Reardon pitched the final two innings.

"Boddicker had a good fast ball, and when he's got that extra on his heater he usually has a pretty good day," Boston Manager Joe Morgan said.

Boddicker admitted he doesn't pitch well right away. "Usually the first couple of innings are my worst," Boddicker said. "Today I had difficulty in adjusting to the mound. It's a high one, and it was quite a bit different from the mound in the bullpen."

Bob Welch, 3-2, took the loss, allowing six hits over eight innings, including Evans' homer in the eighth.

-- AROUND THE AL --

In other American League action, Toronto caged Detroit 5-1, Minnesota trounced Milwaukee 9-5, Texas scalped Cleveland 9-5, Seattle plucked Baltimore 5-2 and New York thumped California 11-3.

Blue Jays 5, Tigers 1

At Toronto, Todd Stottlemyre pitched a seven-hitter for his first career complete game and Tony Fernandez and John Olerud blasted first inning home runs to lead Toronto. Stottlemyre, 4-2, never needed more than 14 pitches in an inning. He threw 107 in going the distance for the first time since coming up in 1988. Jeff Robinson, 1-3, took the loss.

Rangers 9, Indians 5

At Cleveland, Julio Franco had three RBI, including a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the seventh inning to propel Texas. Kevin Brown struggled early, giving up five runs on ten hits in five innings but got the victory as he raised his record to 5-0. Cecilio Guante, 0-1, gave up Franco's home run.

Twins 9, Brewers 5

At Milwaukee, Brian Harper hit his first career grand slam, following a 25-minute rain delay in the eighth inning, to lift Minnesota to its fourth straight victory. It was Harper's third homer of the season. John Candelaria, 3-0, pitched two innings for the win. Chuck Crim, 1-1, took the loss.

White Sox 6, Royals 0

At Kansas City, Eric King, 2-0, threw a five-hitter for Chicago's first shutout of the season and Sammy Sosa scored twice to lead the White Sox. Last season, Chicago, which has won eight of its last 10 games, set an American League record for fewest complete games with nine. Richard Dotson 0-2, was the loser for Kansas City, which lost for the tenth time in 11 games.

Mariners 5, Orioles 2

At Seattle, Greg Briley and Alvin Davis each drove in a run and scored a run to lead the Mariners. Brian Holman, 4-2, allowed six hits and Mike Schooler pitched the ninth for his seventh save. Seattle took the lead for good in a two-run third inning off loser Dave Johnson, 2-2.

Yankees 11, Angels 3

At Anaheim, Calif, rookie Mike Blowers and Roberto Kelly each singled in two runs in a six-run fourth inning, keying a 14-hit attack that carried New York. The Yankees had not scored more than six runs in a game all year but peppered Kirk McCaskill, 2-1, for six hits in the fourth. Don Mattingly, who entered with only two hits in his previous 16 at-bats, went three for five with two RBI and two runs scored. Clay Parker, 1-1, pitched eight innings for the victory.

KALAPANA, HI (MAY 6) UPI - Searing lava from Kilauea Volcano threw a noose around the only store and remaining church in a remote rural community on the island of Hawaii before hitting the ocean, sending up billowing clouds of hazardous steam.

"The lava entered the ocean about 6 a.m. HST (noon EDT) Saturday at the site of the Star of the Sea Church," said Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim.

The 60-year-old termite-eaten church was lifted onto a flatbed truck and moved out of harm's way Friday. The church and four houses sat forlornly, but safely Saturday on truck beds along Highway 130, the Kalapana Bypass Highway, well away from any danger.

Fingers of molten rock encircled the only store and a second church in the area on the southeast side of the island of Hawaii some 200 miles from Honolulu.

Lava crossed Highway 137, also known as Old Government Road, to the east of the store and church and completely cutoff the Kalapana area to vehicular traffic.

No other structures were incinerated, leaving the total since the eruption started in January 1983 at 134. Damage in the seven-year-long eruption has been in excess of $25 million.

Red-hot lava filled a brackish pond about 200 yards from the shoreline and continued on into the ocean. The 2,000-degree molten rock slid into one pond transforming it from a quiet pool of water into a furiously boiling cauldron of brown liquid on red-orange rock.

Palm trees near the pond were surrounded and slowly began to burn, while fronds dropping onto the lava burst instantly into flame. Huge clouds of white steam from each of the incursions filled the sky causing a haze that shaded the brilliant Hawaiian sun.

The steam, called laze (lava-generated haze), posed a potential health hazard because the fiery rock hitting seawater generates hydrochloric acid and other potentially hazardous substances.

A warning was issued to the remaining residents in the picturesque area. The danger is greatest within one mile of the spot where the lava enters the sea, officials said.

Strong trade winds were blowing the steam out toward sea, but Kim was concerned that nighttime seabreezes or a wind shift could send toxic materials over land.

While street access to Kalapana has been cut off by lava, civil defense officials were still allowing some residents to go into the area on foot. "I'm just going to take a final, quick look and get out," a woman with a boy about ten told Kim.

"Don't let the bambino go (off by himself)," said Kim, after arranging for an escort by a civil defense official. "I've changed a lot. I now know how important it is for people to go in one last time to say goodbye," said Kim.

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (MAY 6) UPI - Six soldiers were killed when their helicopter crashed during an aerial search for a gang of thieves that preyed on tourists, a military officer said Sunday.

The U.S. built Bell 212 helicopter crashed about 4:30 p.m. Saturday, killing the two pilots and four other military personnel, the official said.

The helicopter was searching for a gang of gunmen who had robbed foreign tourists of their clothes, cash and jewelry at a hotel near the Sigiriya ruins during the early morning hours.

HANOI, VIETNAM (MAY 6) UPI - Vietnam is reserving choice, off-shore oil exploration sites for U.S. companies, but it will offer them to other nations if the United States does not end its economic embargo against Vietnam soon, a senior Vietnamese official said.

"If the embargo can be lifted this year, then there will be a good chance for the American companies," said Dao Duy Chu, the director of the state oil company, Petro-Vietnam.

"But if the Americans delay much longer than that, the promising areas will all be gone," he said in a weekend interview with United Press International.

Chu said Vietnam has signed six oil exploration contracts with Western oil companies in the past two years and four more agreements are due to be signed soon.

The urbane, silver-haired executive said four particularly promising blocks, where U.S. oil companies had operated during the Vietnam War, have not yet been put up for bidding. "If the U.S. companies are allowed to come back, there is a good chance they could be awarded these blocks," he said.

Chu said representatives of most major U.S. firms have visited Vietnam to discuss oil exploration prospects. "There is a man from Mobil in the next room right now," he said.

U.S. companies, however, are forbidden to actually do business in Vietnam under the "trading with the enemy act" and other U.S. legislation dating back to the war which ended 15 years ago.

Chu said there was great interest in the blocks being reserved. "The latest time for them to sign would be the first half of 1991 - I cannot wait any longer than that," he said. "The oil industry in Vietnam is developing very rapidly and we have to keep up with our schedule," he said.

Chu said U.S. companies were also losing chances to supply drilling equipment and other services. "We have to take British or French technology even when American technology might be better," he said.

Chu also said Vietnam would like to negotiate settlement of sea boundary disputes with Thailand, Malaysia, and Indonesia so that joint exploration of potentially oil-rich undersea areas could go forward.

Recent production-sharing agreements between Thailand and Malaysia and between Indonesia and Australia over disputed sea areas provided possible models for setting differences with Vietnam, Chu said. "Any solution must be reasonable and profitable for both sides based on international law," he said.

Chu said Vietnam had about 15,000 square miles of overlapping claims with Indonesia and about 1,500 square miles of overlap with Thailand and Malaysia. There are also conflicting claims made by the Philippines, Taiwan and China.

SIDERNO, ITALY (MAY 6) UPI - A 20-year-old man who was held by kidnappers for more than two years even though his father reportedly paid a $4 million ransom has been released, ending Italy's longest abduction case, authorities said.

Police said Carlo Celadon, who was seized at age 18 from his family's villa on Jan. 25, 1988, was released late Saturday. He had been held in chains during most of his 831 days in captivity in Italy's southern Calabria region, authorities said.

Celadon's release came less than three weeks after police mounted a successful search in the same area for an eight-year-old girl who was being held by a gang of kidnappers.

Italy's wealthy families have been plagued by gangs in recent years who hold family members hostage for massive ransoms. Carlo Celadon's father, Candido Celadon, reportedly paid a $4 million ransom in October, 1988, to the gang that held his son.

Police said Carlo Celadon was dishelved and weighed only 88 pounds when he was discovered wandering ten miles from the Calabrian city of Locri after authorities received a telephone call saying he had been released.

Celadon said he had been held with chains around his neck and wrists - first in a foliage covered pit and then in a ravine in the rugged remote Aspromonte mountains of Calabria.

"I was always kept in chains," he told reporters at a local hotel, where he was taken after he was found by authorities. "When the gang thought they heard someone approaching or a helicopter flying overhead, I would be blindfolded."

Celadon said the kidnappers fed him mostly salami. "The food was terrible " he said. "I didn't go hungry, but I was often too depressed to eat." The youth called his imprisonment "a psychological torture."

"I stayed as strong as I could by thinking about my girlfriend Gabriella. I never had doubts about her faith, no matter what the kidnappers said to me. They also told me at least ten times that my father had made appointments to pay the ransom. But they said that the arrangement had failed because he had brought along the police."

Celadon said the abductors had threatened to cut off one of his ears to show the seriousness of their intentions. "They also beat me twice, once when I was crying and another time when they caught me praying," he said. "I prayed a lot. And I'll pray more to thank God for my release. "I had nightmares, dreaming that I had died or that Gabriella had died," he said. "And when I woke up, it was time to begin another day of terror."

Candido Celadon, who was flown in a government plane to be reunited with Carlo, said he was shocked by his son's appearance. "I relived the day years ago when I saw my uncle, who had just been released from a Nazi concentration camp," he said. "I want to carry photos of Carlo to the government and show them to what level we've sunk in an advanced society such as ours."

(MAY 6) UPI - Two young boys and a girl were killed in a suburb of Chicago Saturday when a car plowed through a baseball field. A hospital spokesman says witnesses report the driver appeared to have fainted at the wheel. The Cadillac veered off a road, smashed through a fence and hit a team bench. It went on to strike a player and coach at third base before slamming into a nearby building. One witness says parents- quote- ''were in a frenzy.''

Guatemalan officials now say 15 people were killed Saturday when a Miami-bound D-C-6 cargo plane crashed into houses in Guatemala City. The plane's three American crewmen were among those killed. The four-propeller plane was apparently leased out by the Miami-based Aerial Transit Company. The cause of the crash... which destroyed two houses... is NOT immediately known. An aviation official in Washington, D-C, says the plane may have crashed after taking off from Guatemala City's international airport.

A grand jury investigation into the finances of Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley is said to be stalled. A published report says the holdup is caused by a recent plea bargain of financial wheeler-dealer Michael Milken and a vacancy in the federal prosecutor's office in Los Angeles. NO decision is expected for several months on whether to charge Bradley.

(MAY 6) UPI - Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro promised Saturday to reduce the size of the Sandinista army. That pledge came in exchange for a Contra rebel concession to begin disarming Tuesday. Contra leaders say the agreement will have little effect on the pace of disarmament. One leader still stressed that the rebels must see a total reorganization of the Sandinista army.

Elton Rule... who led the A-B-C television network to broadcasting dominance in the 1970's... died Saturday at his Beverly Hills home. He had cancer, and was 73. Rule served as president of American Broadcasting Companies from 1972 to 1983. He pioneered the made-for-T-V movie and prime-time football. Under Rule, A-B-C hit it big with shows such as ''Mod Squad,'' ''Three's Company,'' and the mini-series ''Roots,'' the most-watched program in T-V history.

47 people were arrested on suspicion of narcotics violations Saturday at a Grateful Dead concert at Cal State Dominguez Hills in Carson, California. More than 35-thousand fans spilled beyond the stadium entrances. NO serious injuries or violent incidents were reported. One police sergeant said some concert-goers- quote- ''were into wild dancing and carrying on... exactly what they were doing in the 60's.''

LAHORE, PAKISTAN (MAY 6) UPI - A powerful explosion ripped through a passenger train in northeastern Pakistan Sunday, killing at least 21 people and injuring about 30 others, police said. Police said they had not yet determined whether the blast was the result of sabotage.

The explosion occurred at about 2:30 p.m. on a moving train about two miles outside the northeastern Pakistan city of Lahore. The train was traveling from Rawalpindi, about 180 miles to the northwest. The explosion blew out the floor of a compartment in the train, police said. They said at least 21 passengers were killed and about 30 injured.

On April 26, a powerful bomb exploded in a crowded market in Lahore, killing two people. Four people died and 22 were wounded in another bomb blast in the city on April 3. Officials have not speculated publicly on who may have been responsible.

Lahore has so far been largely unaffected by violence linked to ethnic tensions and the civil war in neighboring Afghanistan that has hit other Pakistani cities in the past several years.

PARIS (MAY 6) UPI - Until recently, President Francois Mitterrand was frequently referred to as "God" in the French press. His omnipotence, aloofness, and fatherly manner commanded awe among Frenchmen.

But as he begins his tenth year in office, the longest period in power for any French head of state since Charles de Gaulle, Mitterrand is showing signs of political mortality.

A series of domestic political miscalculations, his inability first to foresee and then to react quickly to the changes in Eastern Europe, and the toll of his years in office have made the 74-year-old Socialist president increasingly unpopular at home and given the impression that he is a man overtaken by events.

"He thought German reunification would not take place and as a result failed to correctly analyze the situation. Now he is paying the price," said Franz-Olivier Giesbert, author of "The President," a highly critical best-selling biography of Mitterrand.

The success of Giesbert's biography, which depicts a cynical, scrupulous politician who frequently changes his views to stay in power, has come to symbolize the chief executive's current image problem.

By far the most critical of the many biographies that have appeared since Mitterrand entered the Elysee Palace on May 10, 1981, the book's publication coincided with a sharp drop in the president's standing in public opinion polls.

One poll in April showed Mitterand with only a 39 percent approval rate compared to 44 percent in March. A second survey showed 55 percent of the population expressed confidence in the president, down from 61 percent in March.

Ironically, this comes at a time when the French economy is among the healthiest in Europe and the right-wing political opposition remains deeply divided.

The president's popularity is at its lowest since early 1986, when the Socialists lost the legislative elections. Mitterand remained president but dealt with a conservative government with Jacques Chirac as prime minister.

The enigmatic Mitterrand has not reacted to the recent polls or to the spate of newspaper articles suggesting, ever so mildly, that age and fatigue may be among the reasons for his current troubles.

But Elysee Palace officials fear that unless the trend is quickly reversed it may signal the start of a long slide that could seriously compromise the president's authority with five more years of his current seven-year term still to run.

Although spectacular comebacks are a Mitterrand trademark, political analysts agree that it will be more difficult for him this time. "There is a kind of ten-year curse," said Max Gallo, a Socialist militant and well-known writer who is a friend of the president. "It happened to de Gaulle, to Margaret Thatcher." Indeed, in many ways Mitterrand is the victim of his own success.

The strength of the French economy, amply illustrated by the record profits registered by both public and private firms, has led to increased demands for higher wages and an end to the growing gap between rich and poor.

The rise in real wages between 1983 and 1990 was less than six percent compared with a 20 percent increase in Britain during the same period. French unemployment is still above nine percent compared with six percent in Britain.

Inflation, however, was just 3.5 percent last year, only half a percentage point higher than that in West Germany, France's major trading partner.

The choice of fighting inflation over unemployment earned Mitterrand the dubious honor of being labeled by the Financial Times of London as more monetarist - holding that the economy will improve if there is a steady growth in the money supply - than former President Ronald Reagan or even Thatcher.

"Before he was criticized for being too Socialist; now he runs the risk of not being Socialist enough," commented Serge July, the influential editor of the left-wing daily Liberation.

Mitterrand was also hurt by the recent Socialist Party congress, which ended in disarray because of public infighting among party leaders hoping to become president.

At a time when public opinion of politicians is at an all-time low, Mitterrand left the impression during a television interview after the congress that he had been too closely involved in the party's internal battles.

The problem was compounded by the case of Christian Nucci, a former Socialist minister who escaped prosecution for illegal use of campaign funds thanks to a recent amnesty law approved by the National Assembly. Mitterand is widely believed to have been the driving force behind the amnesty.

The Nucci episode deeply shocked the public and deprived Mitterrand of one of his favorite themes: morality in politics and the corrupting influence of money on the political process.

Despite the setbacks, most political analysts are convinced that Mitterrand's legendary political acumen will pull him out of this crisis just as it pulled him out of political oblivion so many times before. "He will not let go of the reins so easily," said biographer Giesbert. "I'm ready to bet that sometimes he dreams of a third term."

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 6) UPI - It is increasingly important for women who want to become pregnant to prepare a safe, nurturing environment within their bodies even before conception, doctors say.

With recent indications that fetuses are at risk from sidestream cigarette smoke, maternal cocaine use or improper maternal diet, doctors arriving for a conference in San Francisco this week say it is more important than ever for women to engage in serious pre-pregnancy planning.

A new "Before Pregnancy" kit, designed to help women identify and modify social, medical, and nutritional aspects of their lifestyle, is to be presented Monday at the annual meeting of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

The United States ranks 22nd among industrial nations in infant deaths and experts at the three-day conference also will unveil a new national strategy for reducing mortality rates.

Perinatal Health Inc. of Roseville, Calif., said the pre-pregnancy program was developed in response to findings showing that a fetus forms virtually all its vital limbs, organs and neural functions during the ten weeks immediately following conception, long before many women even realize they are pregnant.

Despite technological and clinical advances and an increase in the number of women seeking prenatal care, approximately $8 billion per year is spent in the United States for newborn intensive care, said Rigby Leighton, president of the company. Many doctors, he said, would like to see pregnancy become a year-long process with preconception care and counselling.

"It's called the '12-month pregnancy' for a reason," Leighton said. "Since so much of a fetus's vital development takes place during the early stages of that first trimester, it is critical that the mother be in extremely good health before she and her partner even try to conceive."

One advocate of preconception planning, Dr. Stanton Cherry, a New York obstetrician, said it is important that a woman stop smoking and drinking alcohol, reduce intake of over-the-counter medication and be aware of occupational hazards before becoming pregnant.

"There's just so much a doctor can do once a woman's pregnant, because the first four weeks are very critical," said Cherry, author of "Planning Ahead for Pregnancy."

Cherry said an educational campaign is being mounted to get women to accept pre-pregnancy planning. "It's becoming a very important public health issue," he said. "It's also a new concept. Very few women or couples know they should even get medical checkups prior to becoming pregnant. Even the baby-boom educated class are not fully aware of pre-pregnancy counselling and planning. One of the goals of the before pregnancy concept is to reach this group and every other group to achieve these health education goals."

A recent report by the American Academy of Pediatrics said 375,000 babies are born each year to mothers on illlicit drugs. One study showed that one in ten babies born in many urban areas of the United States has been exposed to cocaine in the womb. Commonly abused substances such as alcohol marijuana, and cocaine cross freely into maternal milk, the academy report said.

COLON, PANAMA (MAY 6) UPI - Despite rekindled hopes of economic recovery under President Guillermo Endara, this decaying wreck of a city shows no signs of rebirth.

Colon, a steamy ghetto of condemned shanties, dark cantinas, and festering trash heaps, has been dying for decades. The U.S. invasion of Panama last December added to its woes and delays in receiving U.S. aid have put urban renewal projects on hold.

"It is worse than Lebanon," said Mayor Alcibiades Gonzalez in a recent interview in which he lamented the state of security in his beleaguered city of 68,000 residents, mostly blacks and mestizos, those of mixed parentage.

During the fighting, looters cleaned out most businesses in Colon, 50 miles northwest of Panama City at the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal. About 70 percent of the stores remain closed.

Unemployment has topped 35 percent, and the understaffed police force is trying to check the soaring crime rate with the help of a handful of U.S. troops. Riots have broken out twice in the city's overcrowded prison.

The city has a nasty reputation for muggings, murders, and drug trafficking. Police will only venture into La Playita, a delapidated barrio on the edge of the canal, in large groups and with guns cocked.

Founded in 1852 as a terminal on the trans-Panama railroad, Colon thrived for a time, especially during World War II as sailors from ships passing through the Canal frequented the restaurants and cabarets on Central Avenue.

Later, tourism dropped, Canal Zone jobs decreased and factories moved to Panama City. Though they preached populism, the country's military governments largely ignored Colon's growing poverty. Today, with drunken derelicts wandering the sidewalks and pools of stagnant water in the streets, Colon smells of seaweed and sewage.

The Colon Free Zone, a tax-free trade zone of jewelry, fashion and electronics, and commerce from the canal keep the city alive, but the government swallows most of the city's wealth and pumps little back. But security problems and the depressed business climate scare off outside investors, locals say.

"Most businesses on the main streets are closed. There is no tourism. People walk around in fear," said Frederico Campos, who owns a grocery store.

When he visited Colon in February, Endara was welcomed as a savior.

Touring a garment factory, he was mobbed by hundreds of women who left their sewing machines to hug and kiss him, coloring Endara's white shirt pink with lipstick. Endara promised to help the city but like other government projects, that aid has been delayed as Panama waits for outside funds.

A proposed $420 million U.S. aid package awaits Senate approval. Endara is scheduled to meet with President Bush about "economic concerns" in Washington on Monday.

"We are waiting for foreign aid," said Vice President Guillermo Ford, who is also economy minister. "Colon will be a very high priority for our reconstruction."

Help may also come from the Colon Free Zone. Jaime Ford, Guillermo Ford's nephew and zone administrator, said a surcharge will be imposed on businesses there to create a fund for Colon that could amount to $500,000 per month.

A number of residents expressed confidence in Endara but Gonzalez said Endara is losing support in Colon, where he won 75 percent of the vote in last year's annulled presidential election.

"The people have the right to protest that the government is not giving them any attention," Gonzalez said. "I would be completely in agreement with them."

MILWAUKEE (MAY 6) UPI - Police searched Sunday for suspected gang members who opened fire with shotguns on a group outside a dance hall, slightly wounding eight teenagers. The victims were treated and released from area hospitals, officials said.

The shooting occurred at 10:55 p.m. Saturday on the city's north side. Authorities believe the incident began during a dispute over a teenage girl. One teenager, Jermaine Brown, said he thought he was the intended victim.

"I had talked to someone's girl inside and then I told her her boyfriend was looking for her," said Browne, who was not injured. "The guy was in back of her and he was drunk I guess.

"He said he was going to get me outside or something like that. I just kept on walking. When they got outside they just started shooting." Police think gang members may have been involved in the shooting and brought photographs of suspected gang members to show witnesses.

EAST BERLIN (MAY 6) UPI - East Germans voted Sunday in their first free municipal elections, giving them an opportunity to oust from city halls communist politicians who took power a year ago in a rigged ballot.

The result of the balloting could indicate the extent of any rising opposition to the planned economic, social and political union of the two Germanys. Indications were, however, that voter turnout was light. No major incidents were reported.

Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere, whose coalition government replaced a communist-led East German central government in a national parliamentary election last March, called on voters "to eject the socialists from the local councils." "We want to take over in the communities, too," he added.

The communists, who went down to a devastating defeat in the March 18 election, the first free vote in East German history, said their goal was to win "many 'red' city halls" to counter conservative control of the central government.

They hoped to win the votes of East Germans who are worried that swift economic and political union with West Germany will result in high unemployment and rising prices.

The election of 119,652 members of city, town and county councils was the first since the East-West German agreement to substitute the strong West German mark for its almost worthless Eastern counterpart as a major step toward reunification.

Many of the 12 million eligible voters arrived at the 20,247 polling places shortly after they opened at 7 a.m., apparently planning to cast their ballots early before relaxing on a warm, sunny day. Interest in Sunday's election did not, however, equal that aroused by the March 18 voting.

In Leipzig, Magdeburg, and Halle, election commissions had difficulty getting volunteers to man polling places and had to draft municipal workers for the work. In one Halle district, voters stood before a closed polling place because no volunteers had appeared to work there. Police said there had been no incidents except for bomb hoaxes in Schwerin and Magdeburg.

The election was held to replace councils chosen in communist-controlled elections on May 7, 1989, before last year's pro-democracy unrest led to the fall of the communist regime. In that election, the candidates of the communist-run National Front were unopposed.

The government as usual announced 98 percent of the voters had accepted the single slate, although groups who monitored the election reported widespread opposition.

The subsequent demonstrations protesting the stolen election contributed to the mass movement that caused the overthrow of Erich Honecker's hard-line communist government last fall.

Many of the councillors chosen in the rigged balloting retained their jobs after the change of the central governmnent in East Berlin. But some councils were forced out or resigned and were replaced by caretaker local governments. Some communities became virtually ungovernable because of a power vacuum.

In the March 18 parliamentary election, de Maiziere's Christian Democrats got 40.82 percent of the vote, the Social Democrats 21.88 percent and the Communist Party, which now calls itself the Party of Democratic Socialism, 16.4 percent.

The German Social Union, a conservative ally of the Christian Democrats, got 6.31 percent, and the Democratic Revival, another conservative ally, got 0.92 percent. The liberals took 5.28 percent and the Alliance 90 2.91 percent.

MOSCOW (MAY 6) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has rejected Latvia's declaration of independence and "reserves the right to adopt retaliatory measures," the official Tass news agency said Sunday.

Tass reported that Latvian Communist Party boss Alfreds Rubiks, in a TV speech Saturday evening, said Gorbachev had telephoned and asked him to convey to the Latvian people his dissatisfaction with the independence proclamation approved Friday by the Baltic republic's Parliament.

"The Soviet president believes that the adoption by the Latvian Parliament on May 4 of the declaration to restore the independence of the Latvian Republic is a violation of constitutional standards and leads to the rupture of the republic's state ties with the U.S.S.R.," Rubiks said.

"Any negotiations, without a restoration of the state status of the Latvian Soviet Socialist Republic that existed before May 4, are out of the question," he quoted Gorbachev as having told him.

Gorbachev's response raised the possibility that he would impose in Latvia measures similar to the harsh steps taken in Lithuania, where the Soviet leader cut off crude oil deliveries and stopped most supplies of other raw materials April 18 because of that republic's refusal to annul its March 11 independence declaration.

"If the (Latvian) republic ignores the U.S.S.R. Constitution, the president reserves the right to adopt retaliatory measures of a political, economic, and administrative nature," Rubiks said of his conversation with Gorbachev.

There was no immediate comment from Riga on Gorbachev's negative reaction, but it likely dissapointed the leaders of Latvia's new nationalist-controlled Parliament. The lawmakers had tried to draft a proclamation of independence that excluded some of the more militant clauses in earlier declarations by neighboring Lithuania and Estonia.

Unlike the unilateral act passed in Lithuania, Latvia's declaration of independence provides for a transition period leading to final secession from the Soviet Union.

And the Latvian deputies did not - as their Estonian counterparts did in a March 30 proclamation - declare all Soviet laws null and void on the territory of the republic.

Rubiks said Gorbachev told him that "all attempts to present the (Latvian) declaration as defining some kind of special path for the republic that differs from the Lithuanian alternative are unsound." The Soviet leader also rejected Latvia's provision for a transition period to full independence, saying "no mutual agreement was reached on this."

Rubiks, a member of both the Latvian Parliament and the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet in Moscow, walked out of the Riga legislature Friday just before the polling on the independence proclamation and did not participate in the momentous vote.

Fifty-six other deputies from the Latvian Communist Party, most of them ethnic Russians, remained in the Parliament but also refused to cast ballots. The declaration received the necessary two-thirds majority in the 197-member legislature by a formal tally of 139-0, with one abstention.

WARSAW, POLAND (MAY 6) UPI - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker said Sunday that Polish Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki was satisfied with Poland's inclusion in July's round of German reunification talks, which will deal with the issue of the Polish-German border.

During his five-hour official visit Baker briefed Polish leaders on the outcome of Saturday's German reunification talks in Bonn, and invited Polish Foreign Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski to attend the third round of talks in July in Paris. He left for home later in the day.

Poland has repeatedly asked to be included in the two-plus-four negotiations - they involve East and West Germany, along with the four Allied powers from World War II - because it wants guarantees a united Germany will respect the Polish border created after the war.

"We have had a good discussion," Baker said, adding that Mazowiecki had embarked on a course of "courageous economic and political reforms." "I am satisified with the talk," said Mazowiecki.

After reviewing the situation in Europe with President Wojciech Jaruzelski, Baker met Solidarity leader Lech Walesa in the residence of the U.S. ambassador.

"After the experience with Germans in Europe, all of Europe, all states, must take the responsibility for peace and development of the continent," Walesa said after meeting.

Analysts viewed Poland's invitation to the German reunification talks as a major diplomatic success for Poland's fledgling government, which shook off 45 years of communist rule last year. The Polish government has repeatedly stressed that Poland's western border on the Oder and Neisse rivers should be recognized by Germany.

"Particularly, the question of borders is on the agenda at the (Paris) meeting and I have a letter for the Foreign Minister (Krzysztof Skubiszewski) specifically requesting his presence at the meeting," Baker said on his arrival in Warsaw. While the agenda topic is borders, he will be free to raise and discuss whatever issue he would like to discuss."

Skubiszewski thanked Baker for Washington's support of the Polish request to be represented at the crucial talks. "I would like to thank the U.S. government on behalf of the Polish government for the support it received from the United States, and particularly from President George Bush and Secretary of State James Baker," he said.

Political experts noted that Washington, not Moscow, was the first to brief Poland on the outcome of the reunification talks, despite Poland's membership in the Warsaw Pact military alliance.

It was viewed as an indication of how much Poland has broken away from the Soviet sphere of influence. It was also seen in Poland as an acknowledgement of the Polish contribution to the defeat of Germany in World War II.

Poland bore the brunt of the German offensive in 1939 that started the war in Europe and millions of Poles died during the occupation, which was fought by the largest resistance movement in Europe.

By the end of the war, Poland emerged with the fourth largest army after the Soviet Union, the United States and Britain, helping to liberate the Netherlands, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

Britain-based Polish airmen took part in the Battle of Britain in 1940 and Communist-led Polish troops were with the Red Army when Berlin was seized in 1945.

West Germany has never signed a peace treaty recognizing Poland's control over former German lands ceded to Poland after the war. The territory had been gradually lost by Poland over the preceding six centuries as the result of German expansion.

On April 28, Polish officials handed the East and West German ambassadors a draft copy of a peace treaty that would guarantee Poland's western border with a Germany and assure Poles they would not face another war threat from its neighbor.

ROME (MAY 6) UPI - Pope John Paul II began a week-long visit to Mexico Sunday, his 47th trip abroad since being elected in 1978 and the second in 11 years to the only non-communist nation in Latin America which has no official relations with the Vatican.

The pontiff flew from Rome's Fiumicino airport aboard an Alitalia 747 jet on the 12-hour flight to Mexico City, where heavy security was in place. He was beginning a pilgrimage to the only Latin American nation besides Cuba which does not have diplomatic relations with the Holy See.

Under a constitution adopted in 1917, Mexico denies political rights to the clergy and prohibits the wearing of priestly dress in public. It also bans public gatherings for religious purposes as well as public preaching.

Despite the prohibitions on public religious gatherings, the constitution also guarantees freedom of worship in private services. The division between church and state in Mexico first came in the 1857 constitution formulated under Benito Juarez following independence from Spain.

John Paul was to be greeted at the start of his journey by President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, who announced Feb. 17 that he was exchanging "personal representatives" with the Vatican. That move is seen as a possible forerunner to the re-establishment of full diplomatic relations, which were broken off in 1857.

During the visit, which ends May 13, John Paul, leader of the world's 840 million Roman Catholics, will be treated as a head of state. He will visit ten Mexican states and 14 cities, celebrating ten masses and delivering eight speeches in addition to his homilies.

The pope will first travel to the Guadalupe basilica, in the north of the city, to celebrate mass. Up to two million pilgrims are expected to be in attendance. They will also witness the beatification of legendary Mexican religious figure Juan Diego.

John Paul will be well-protected on his first trip to Mexico since January 1979, his inaugural trip overseas after becoming pope in October 1978. Mexican officials have mobilized more than 30,000 troops and police to keep order during the papal visit. On his flight back to Europe, the pope will make a one-day stop on the Caribbean island of Curacao.

(MAY 6) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

Officials say a cargo plane bound for Miami crashed Saturday, shortly after taking off from Guatemala City's main airport. At least 15 people were killed. Three of the victims were the plane's American crew members. At least 20 people were hurt. A Guatemalan official says the plane was carrying clothing and vegetables to Miami.

An opening day Little League game in Chicago suburban Riverside was tragically broken up when a car charged onto the field, killing three children. Witnesses say the motorist looked like he lost consciousness. The car crashed through a fence and struck a team bench. The driver is among nine people injured, and is under arrest at a hosptial.

An official for Greyhound Lines said Saturday unless the strike-victimized bus company gets extensions on its debts... it faces bankruptcy reorganization. Contract talks resumed Saturday... but NO progress is reported. Greyhound officials have discussed debt restructuring with a primary lender.

A U-P-I review of federal reports shows eight of the top 10 recipients of contributions from political action committees in the Senate were Democrats. All 10 leading PAC recipients in the House were Democrats. The Senate is examining legislation that could eliminate congressional campaign contributions from PACs.

A chorus line of stars paid tribute to John Lennon Saturday with a charity concert in his original hometown of Liverpool, England. Performers such as Lou Reed, the Moody Blues, and John's son Sean Lennon sang the Beatles' music. Natalie Cole said the best tribute to the slain rock star is making sure his work lives on.

Australian screen idol Paul Hogan married his Crocodile Dundee film sweetheart... American actress Linda Kozlowski... Saturday at his home in Byron Bay, Australia. Hogan's business partner and best man, John Cornell, described the 51-year-old Hogan as a ''happy mate'' and the 32-year-old Kozlowski as ''a beaut lady.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 6) UPI - Half of all Americans think clinics offering unproven cancer treatments should be allowed to operate even if opposed by medical experts, a poll commissioned by advocates for such treatments said Sunday.

The nationwide poll, commissioned by the lobbying group Project Cure, showed 49 percent of 1,977 adults found 49 percent thought clinics that treat cancer "in ways opposed by the established medical community" should be able to operate in the United States. Thirty-six percent said they opposed such clinics, and 15 percent said they had no opinion.

Results of the poll, which was conducted in March 1989, were released Sunday in the midst of a campaign by supporters of "alternative" therapies to influence a congressional report they fear will portray their methods unfavorably. That report, conducted by the Office of Technology Assessment has undergone extensive revision and is now expected to be released late this summer.

The Project Cure survey found 89 percent of Americans polled said they would first turn to an established treatment if they had a serious disease. However, 63 percent said they were "very" or "fairly" likely to try a medical treatment that had not been accepted by the medical community if their illness was not responding to conventional treatment. Twenty-nine percent said it was unlikely they would seek such treatment, and seven percent had no opinion.

Over two-thirds of respondents said they believe health insurance companies should pay for "experimental" cancer treatments in cases where accepted treatments have not worked. Also, 66 percent favored the Food and Drug Administration speeding up its approval process of new drugs for the treatment of cancer and AIDS.

Grace Powers Monaco, chairman of the Candleighters Childhood Cancer

Foundation, said she considers the treatments Project Cure advocates to be "unproven and untested," not experimental. True experimental treatments - like those offered through the National Cancer Institute - require collection of data about patients' conditions to advance medical knowledge she said.

Examples of "unproven" therapies that have been offered to cancer patients include coffee enemas, injecting or drinking hydrogen peroxide and drawing blood from the patient, allowing it to pool and the re-injecting the proteins back into the patient, Monaco said.

"These people believe they do not have to put a testing structure in place to prove such therapies work before they start selling them to patients," she said.

Monaco said her group, which represents parents of children with cancer, is not opposed to patients using some alternative treatments, like herbal preparations, if it does not interfere with chemotherapy. But she adds, "If they are looking for a cure, they are looking in the wrong place."

Michael Evers, president of Project Cure, based in Dothan, Ala., said, "These results are important since they demonstrate Americans remain concerned about the availability of alternative methods of treating cancer and other diseases."

BONN, WEST GERMANY (MAY 6) UPI - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Sunday the six-power conference in Bonn removed all obstacles to unification of the divided country, including an apparent softening of Soviet opposition to a united Germany's membership in NATO.

"No more obstacles are in the path of realization of the right of self-determination of all Germans," Kohl said about Saturday's meeting of foreign ministers from East and West Germany and the four World War II Allies.

Kohl said in a statement the Soviet Union, United States, Britain, and France all agreed that the process of German unification should proceed "without delay."

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze had accepted the right of the two German states to decide for themselves the timing of unification.

Genscher said Shevardnadze had raised the possibility of a "transitional period" for considering the security problems posed by unification, but did not elaborate.

At Saturday's talks Shevardnadze repeated Soviet opposition to NATO membership of a unified Germany. He called it "a most negative idea" that would threaten the security balance in Europe.

Kohl and Genscher stressed their desire to allay such Soviet fears by expanding the functions of the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe and the forging of security links that transcend alliances. Kohl said his goal still is membership in "a changing Western alliance."

The West German news agency DPA quoted Genscher Sunday as saying that Shevardnadze told the other foreign ministers the issue of German membership in NATO could be decided after reunification.

According to DPA, Genscher said Shevardnadze raised the possibility that the questions of unification and military alliances do not have to be resolved at the same time and that a transitional period could be set for security problems arising from the unity.

But the West German Foreign Ministry later said "the DPA story is partly distorted and partly false" and does not correspond to statements Genscher made to the news agency. The ministry did not elaborate what was inaccurate about the report.

Kremlin foreign policy adviser Georgi Arbatov was questioned on television about the report Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" program. Without confirming the report, Arbatov said "the way could be found and will be found" to remove the NATO issue as a point of contention. By decoupling the security issue from the unification process, he said, the problem is not necessarily eliminated but "just delayed."

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (MAY 6) UPI - Ever pass a colleague at work too many times in the hall? It's "Good morning" at first and "How ya' doing" the second time, but then there's not much more to say. European foreign ministers may also suffer from the "Didn't I just see you a minute ago" syndrome.

When foreign ministers of the 12-nation European Community meet Monday in Brussels, it will be their third formal get-together in ten days. For some of them, it's the ninth time around since April Fool's Day.

"Sometimes I get this feeling that they've rented this house just outside Brussels and live there in sin, dropping into downtown Brussels every few days," joked one diplomat.

The forum actually bounces around, from Luxembourg to Dublin to Brussels, and the sponsoring organizations also vary: the European Community on April 21, the nine-nation Western European Union on April 23, the EC again on April 28 and the 16-nation NATO on May 3.

But the faces stay the same, and the topics are oh-so familiar. "It seems only hours ago we discussed all this in Dublin," British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said at a Brussels news conference when asked about Lithuania last month.

On Thursday, 11 of the foreign ministers played a doubleheader with Secretary of State James Baker, meeting in the morning at NATO and in the evening at European Community headquarters.

"I really had the feeling they had run out of things to say after Baker spoke to them at the EC," one source said. "They were asked who wants to have the floor and there was a long silence, and finally (West Germany's) Hans-Dietrich Genscher relieved the problem."

The mass meetings of foreign ministers are supplemented by constant bilateral sessions. "I see (French Foreign Minister) Roland Dumas almost as much as I see my own Cabinet officers," Hurd said in a recent Paris speech. "We seem to meet at least twice a week."

"This is as it should be," Hurd said of the incessant diplomacy. But others are not so sure. "Maybe there are too many meetings, when you add together the EC, NATO, the Council of Europe and everything else, because there is other work to do," said an aide to one foreign minister.

A Brussels-based diplomat responds: "If you're a foreign minister and you're good at what you do, you're not sitting at your desk. You're out talking to people."

After Monday's meeting at the EC, the rest of May looks pretty quiet for the nomads. But the pace resumes in June with major meetings in Scotland and Dublin, and perhaps a NATO summit in London at the end of the month.

"On the minus side, these constant meetings are extremely tiring for foreign ministers, and they seem anti-climactic to the public because there's an expectation that they'll always do something new," one well-placed diplomat said.

"But on the plus side," he said, "at a time of rapid change in Europe, all these decision-makers should be in rapid contact to avoid misunderstandings and get to know each other's minds."

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (MAY 6) UPI - A rock-throwing mob assaulted the presidential candidate of the opposition National Liberal Party in an attack party officials charged was an organized assassination attempt, the Rompres news agency said Sunday.

The reported attack on Radu Campeanu and a group of aides came a week after the Liberals and four other opposition parties complained their candidates were being physically and verbally harassed as part of what they said was an attempt to destroy their election campaigns.

The Liberal party, in a statement carried by the official news agency, said Campeanu was attacked Saturday after a campaign rally in the southeastern city of Braila.

"At the end of the rally, which proceeded in normal conditions, an organized group assaulted Mr. Radu Campeanu and the persons accompanying him," the statement said. "In spite of the intervention by the police, (he) and his party were hit, and the car that drove them away was stoned and its (windows) broken."

The party did not say whether Campeanu was injured, but said he canceled a scheduled appearance Sunday in the border town of Gugesti because of the incident.

Liberal party officials described it as an attempt on Campeanu's life, Rompres said. There was no immediate reaction to the reported assault from the provisional government.

Interim President Ion Iliescu, meanwhile, apologized for a verbal attack on the leaders of a two-week anti-government protest but said he would never give in to their demand to delay elections set for May 20.

The apology, also reported by Rompres, came on the 14th day of a marathon demonstration in Bucharest's University Square, where thousands of protesters have demanded that former communists and secret police be banned from running in the elections.

Iliescu, a former communist who is favored to become Romania's first democratically elected president in four decades, infuriated protest leaders last week when he referred to them as "vagabonds."

"Iliescu said he regretted (using) the word 'vagabonds' to describe the demonstrators ... stressing that, at the time when he did that, his information about the crowd was incomplete," Rompres said.

"On the other hand, he made clear in his statement that neither the election date nor the electoral law ... can be the object of negotiations " the agency said.

Iliescu said he would meet Tuesday with protest leaders to try to defuse tensions that have been mounting in final weeks of the election campaign.

The protests, which have drawn about 10,000 people daily, have paralyzed traffic around the city's main square. Fifty-four demonstrators have declared a hunger strike, and others have pitched scores of tents around the square and on the lawn of the exclusive Intercontinental Hotel.

CHICO, CA (MAY 6) UPI - More than 200 baton-wielding police battled 1,000 beer-swilling youths in the second night of weekend rioting triggered by warm weather and the city's annual spring celebration.

Several cars, a motorcycle and a television news van were overturned and burned during the night-long melee that finally ended shortly before dawn Sunday.

Police arrested 41 people on charges of failure to disperse, battery on a police officer, vandalism, and arson. Ten police officers were injured, a few seriously, as they were pelted by rocks and bottles while trying to disperse the crowd. In the first night of violence Friday, 52 persons were arrested.

The troubles called into question once again an annual springtime celebration in the college town 80 miles north of Sacramento. In 1987, California State University, Chico, weary of annual violence, canceled the school's Pioneer Days celebration. The city then took over sponsorship of the festivities, which it renamed Rancho Chico Days.

On Saturday, following the first night of violent clashes between police and party-goers, Mayor Shelton Enochs said he regretted the city spent $5,000 to promote the celebration. "I'm frankly embarrassed that we're participants in this," he said. "We probably did it with our fingers crossed, and we lost."

Angry Police Chief John Bullerjahn said, "I'm not exposing Chico Police officers to this kind of bull - any longer. I think it needs to end."

Jane Dolan, a one-time student-body president at the university and now a county supervisor, renewed her call to end the celebration. "Young people, alcohol, and springtime don't mix," she said. Dolan has been calling for the end of the celebration since 1972, when a woman was raped and murdered at a student party.

Saturday night's violence began when police tried to break up a free-floating party in an apartment area, and help firefighters extinguish a bonfire. Several times during the night, riot-helmeted police waded into the crowd, sending party-goers scurrying into houses and apartments.

Friday night's clashes between police and young people lasted until 3:30 a.m. They began when 2,000 people gathered outside a house party near an apartment complex nicknamed "The Zoo."

"We had about 200 people in here, mostly friends," said Will Ambler, who rents the house with two friends. "The people in the street were mostly strangers. I don't even think they were from Chico." Ambler said he stopped serving beer and pulled the plug on the live band when he saw the crowd outside.

Police were met with rocks and bottles when they approached. The original 21 officers retreated and called for help from other cities. "They were doing their best to hurt the officers," said Police Capt. Jim Massie. "I don't know what sparked it to go in that direction, but the crowd was very hostile."

After the first night, University President Robin Wilson called Rancho Chico Days "a clear and present danger" to the school's 15,000 students and said he was opposed to it.

Mary Andrews, executive director of Rancho Chico Days Inc., said the non-profit organization's board met Saturday afternoon and decided to go on with the weekend celebration despite the violence of the night before. "The community actually loves the festival," she said. "I think just sticking our head in the sand and saying 'go away' is not the solution."

The Chico riots recalled two nights of disturbances a week ago in Southern California, which were related to a festival at California Polytechnic University. About 100 people were injured and 110 others arrested in those clashes.

PILSEN, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (MAY 6) UPI - A sea of American flags floated above Pilsen's Republic Square and a U.S. Air Force band struck up the Star-Spangled Banner in an emotion-packed tribute by West Bohemians Sunday for the American GI's who liberated the region at the end of World War II.

On May 6, 1945, Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army rolled into Pilsen in tanks, jeeps and half-tracks to mop up the last resistance of the disintegrating German army.

During 42 years of communist rule Pilseners were forbidden to commemorate their American liberators, and school-children were sometimes taught the region had been liberated by Soviet troops in American uniforms.

But now, after last November's Velvet Revolution threw out the communists, Pilsen opened its heart to America as about 50 World War II veterans returned to see the town they freed.

U.S. Ambassador Shirley Temple Black thanked the people of Pilsen for the welcome they gave the GIs. "Forty-five years ago, the citizens of Pilsen welcomed the U.S. soldiers with kisses from pretty girls, and, I'm sure a few glasses of Pilsen beer," Black told the flag-waving crowd in the town square.

But for the scores of thousands of Pilseners who filled the square, the weekend's ceremonies have allowed them to rewrite their own history with the ink of truth.

"It is not true that Czechoslovakia was liberated only by the Red Army. The southwestern part of our country was liberated by the American Army," President Vaclav Havel told the crowd. "We'd like to remember this fact after years of silence," he added as the crowd cheered.

Many Americans appeared stunned and overwhelmed by the passionate outpouring of pro-U.S. feelings. "The patriotic feeling is incredible. We have never been greeted with such hospitality and warmth in any place we've traveled," said Sgt. Susan Plummer, Nashville, Tenn., a fife player in the U.S. Air Force-Europe Band.

Marie Zapotocna arrived at the ceremonies in the town square with three tiny photos of American GI's from the Second Infantry Division. "These three soldiers lived at my parents' house at the end of the war, and I came to see if these veterans know them," she said.

Zapotocna said that under the communists, she was unable to ask about the three GIs. Instead, she said, across Czechoslovakia young children in the Communist Pioneer scouts spent hours dredging up the slightest details on the Soviet soldiers who, under the Yalta agreements, liberated and then occupied most of Czechoslovakia from the East.

After the communists seized power in Czechoslovakia in 1948, many monuments to the American GIs were removed.

For the past week, American and Czechoslovak officials have been dedicating or re-dedicating monuments to the American troops who fell liberating Western Bohemia.

In Pilsen Sunday, Black and Havel laid a wreath at a new monument to the Second Infantry Division and laid the cornerstone for a general monument to all who fell in World War II for Czechoslovakia.

And in Pilsen's Town Hall, Havel and Black dedicated a new plaque to honor the 16th Armored, replacing a plaque that had been removed by the communists in 1951.

Walking through Pilsen, the casual observer might easily think himself back in 1945. American and Czech flags hung from nearly every window and lamp post and the local residents eagerly embraced the returning American veterans, mobbing them for autographs.

Hundreds of thousands of Czechoslovaks have filled the town during the two days of festivities, many carrying American flags and buttons while others wore pieces of American military uniforms.

Dozens of vintage American military vehicles, meticulously restored since the war by ordinary Czechs in a form of protest against communism, paraded through the center of Pilsen early Sunday morning.

"The Beer-barrel polka," and 1940s songs poured from loudspeakers in the town square as Pilseners cooled off in the town's favorite way - drinking cold beer from early morning. The local Prazdroj brewery helped the celebration by giving away 800 gallons of beer.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (MAY 6) UPI - The second huge car bomb in three days exploded Sunday in the city of Cali, causing no injuries but raising fears of the resumption of a bloody war between two powerful competing cocaine cartels.

Police also deactivated a car bomb with 550 pounds of dynamite in Medellin the other cartel capital. The army also uncovered 12 tons of cocaine in raids in Colombia's Amazon jungle region.

No one was wounded 5:10 a.m. Sunday when a truck loaded with fruit and carrying 220 pounds of dynamite exploded in Cali, 200 miles southwest of Bogota, said Police Commander Col. Rodrigo Millan.

The bomb exploded in front of the restaurant-swimming resort El Toro Rojo on the outskirts of the city of some 1 1/2 million residents. The early hour of the blast apparently accounted for the fact there were no casualties.

A car bomb of similiar size exploded Thursday night outside La Rebaja supermarket, killing four people and wounding more than 20 others. Four policemen were wounded when a car bomb exploded Tuesday at a Cali police station.

Officials said earlier the wave of attacks in Cali may signal renewal of the war between the rival Medellin and Cali cartels that distribute much of the world's cocaine market.

The war began in January 1988 when police said the Cali Cartel tried to assassinate Medellin Cartel kingpin Pablo Escobar, who was trying to move into its New York cocaine market.

Millan said police had not positively linked the Sunday morning bomb to the Medellin Cartel but it appeared the series of explosions marked the renewal of the war.

"It is very probable given the circumstances and the form in which they were executed and the evidence that exists about what occurred," said Millan. "Nevertheless, we cannot say that yes, this is an action by the Medellin Cartel and signals the reopening of this so-called war of the cartels."

Gen. Antonio Vargas Silva, National Police operations director, said that documents captured by the police and intelligence information pointed to the bombings and attempted bombings "having to with the Medellin Cartel."

Police in Medellin, 160 miles northwest of Bogota, also said demolition specialists deactivated a car bomb Saturday carrying 550 pounds of explosives.

The car bomb was in a parking area of a public market. Police said they did not know the intended target. However, officers arrested two men who were employees of a municipal security agency and two other people.

Medellin has been the site of numerous bomb blasts since the Medellin Cartel - through its hit squad called The Extraditables - launched a war on the nation in August 1989.

The army also reported it had seized 12 tons of cocaine in operations in two areas of the Amazon jungle area of Colombia south of Bogota. Two people were killed and 19 people arrested in the 48-hour action dubbed "Operation Autumn," the army's 7th Brigade reported.

Officials said the areas raided were used to gather cocaine from jungle laboratories for shipment to the United States and Europe. Army and air force patrols also located 30 clandestine landing strips in the area and began destroying them, officials said.

(MAY 6) UPI - President Bush is slated to meet with four senior Capitol Hill lawmakers today at the White House. Bush says the session will be a preliminary discussion about how his administration and Congress can ''move forward'' on a budget for fiscal year 1991. Observers say one possible outcome of today's upper-level meeting might be an agreement to stage a ''budget summit'' to try to rein in the nation's staggering deficit.

A report in Washington says the government funneled more than 40-Million dollars into Romania between 1979 and 89 to buy Soviet military technology. The report quotes U-S and foreign intelligence sources as saying the secretly bought military hardware helped the United States develop counter-measures such as the Stealth bomber. It's also reported that about 20 percent of the money went to the Ceasescu family.

Chicago area authorities have NOT identified the driver of a car who barreled through a crowded Little League field yesterday. Three children died and nine other people were injured after the Cadillac careened through the park in Riverside. It's NOT clear how or why the car veered off a road alongside the park. A hospital spokesman says the car's driver may have passed out behind the wheel.

Authorities in Guatemala City expect the death toll to rise following the crash yesterday of a cargo airplane in a densely populated section of the city. The initial death count is 15 people... including one-dozen people on the ground. It's unclear what caused the Miami-bound D-C-6 plane to go down, although one official says the age of the plane could be the cause.

MOSCOW (MAY 6) UPI - Russian Orthodox Patriarch Pimen was buried Sunday after thousands of believers heard him eulogized as "the first son of the fatherland."

About 5,000 mourners crowded into Moscow's Cathedral of the Epiphany for the eulogy service conducted by Metropolitan Filaret of Kiev and Galich, the head of the church in the Ukraine, who was chosen as acting patriarch following Pimen's death Thursday. "We cannot describe now all the tremendous spiritual accomplishments of Patriarch Pimen," Filaret said. "We are glad that we were witnesses."

Pimen was later buried at the Troitse-Sergiyeva (Trinity-St. Sergius) Lavra, a sacred Russian monastery in the town of Zagorsk, about 40 miles north of Moscow. The monastery is also the final resting place of Czar Boris Gudonov, under whose rule the Russian Orthodox Church in 1589 was recognized as an independent patriarchate.

Pravda, the official Communist Party newspaper, remembered Pimen as a "complex and interesting" man who "did not become cruel in a time that was cruel to him as a spiritual pastor."

The white-bearded Pimen, who died at the age of 79 after a long illness, lay in an open coffin upholstered with white and silver cloth at the center of the church during the two-hour eulogy service. His hands were folded across his chest over a black leather-bound Bible and a gold cross.

Brief quarrels broke out occassionally among jostling mourners as they pressed forward to try to get a final glimpse of the patriarch. "The first son of the fatherland was deeply proud of its successes and commiserated with its failures," Filaret said in eulogy.

Anatoli Lukyanov, chairman of the Soviet Parliament and a candidate member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo, attended the ceremony at the robin's-egg-blue cathedral with five spires capped by silver onion domes glistening in bright sunlight on a warm spring morning.

Filaret thanked Lukyanov and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for the religious reforms under which Pimen oversaw a renaissance of the 50-million-member Russian Orthodox Church.

In a message of condolence after the patriarch's death, Gorbachev said Pimen's "humanist activities, aiming to affirm the ideals of good, justice mercy, and peace, won praise in broad public circles in this country and abroad."

As clergymen lifted the veil covering Pimen's face, Lukyanov approached the coffin, placed his hand over his heart and bowed in solemn silence.

Religious leaders from the independent Eastern churches of Armenia and Georgia also attended the service, their white embroidered robes and crowns sparkling in the light of candles and five giant chandeliers hanging from a gold-gilded ceiling.

Throngs of people filled the church, spilling out onto the grounds through open doors on three of its sides. Many mourners wept and crossed themselves repeatedly during the service.

"The Russian people deeply need spirituality," said Simeon Gadeev, 78, a retired priest. A 35-year-old man who identified himself only as Igor said: "One patriarch is leaving and a new one is arriving. I want to be a witness to history."

Filaret, 61, former rector of the Moscow Theological Academy, will chair the church's Holy Synod until a permanent successor to Pimen as "Patriarch of Moscow and all the Russias" is chosen by a council of bishops, priests, and lay people to be called within six months.

(MAY 6) UPI - Authorities in Memphis say a Tennessee sheriff who committed suicide yesterday did NOT leave a note with his body. Shelby County Sheriff Jack Owens leveled a sheriff's department shotgun at his face and pulled the trigger. 56-year-old Owens had been criticized by civil rights activists and his office is being investigated for possibly racially motivated activities.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze told reporters after yesterday's initial meeting on German re-unification that ''the Cold War is over.'' But the introductory meeting of the so-called two-plus-four conference did NOT result in any agreements. NOR did it resolve differences between Moscow and Western powers who want a united Germany to affiliate with NATO.

The NON-profit Markle Foundation says American voters are growing increasingly apathetic about their leaders. The foundation commissioned a panel to study voter attitudes. The results show voters are detached about candidates. The panel, made up of academic officials and other experts, says NOT only is the public at fault, but the candidates and the media also share in the blame of reduced voter participation.

Lawmakers in Connecticut hope an item they have sent to the desk of Governor William O'Neill has a ghost of a chance. The legislators have penned a so-called ''Ghostbusters bill.'' The bill, if signed, would bar lawsuits against property owners or real estate agents who fail to reveal that a property was ''psychologicaly impacted.'' Such property includes places lived in by people suspected of having AIDS, or where a murder or suicide has occurred.

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA (MAY 6) UPI - Nearly three dozen prisoners housed in a special wing because of their good behavior were killed in a penitentiary fire that may have been started by quarreling inmates, authorities said Sunday. The Olmos Penitentiary, 35 miles south of Buenos Aires, released the names of 33 dead. Another 11 were reported injured, two of them in grave condition.

The prison warden, Prefect Maj. Julio Barroso, said the blaze that began in the good-conduct wing Saturday night at 8:30 p.m. was the result of "a quarrel between inmates, and testimony to this effect has been given to Judge Antonio Nadina," the official investigating the origin of the fire.

Barroso also said the fire was started after a prison guard was "assaulted" during a count of the prisoners Saturday night. "The fire began when prisoners set fire to mattresses," he said.

The warden's comments appeared to contradict a separate statement from the penitentiary Sunday that the fire was "set by one of the inmates, whose identity we are trying to establish."

The privately owned Argentine news agency Noticias Argentinas quoted residents living near the prison, which holds 3,000 inmates, as saying they did not hear shouts and noises that are usually associated with prison riots.

Barroso said the dead and injured had been housed in a special wing on the fifth floor of the penitentiary for prisoners who had been praised for "excellent conduct."

"One of the injured inmates had been scheduled to go free on parole today, because his sentence had been reduced," the warden said. He said nine of the 11 injured inmates were "out of danger" while two others were under intensive hospital care. It said the blaze spread rapidly and burned "the personal effects of the inmates, as well as their mattresses and other elements."

A special police unit called "The Hawks" surrounded the penitentiary shortly after the blaze began to prevent escape attempts. Guards took a count of the prisoners Sunday and reported that none had fled.

Relatives of prisoners, some sobbing with grief, jammed the gates of the penitentiary early in the morning to get news about the victims. They were allowed to enter and visit the inmates beginning at 7 a.m.

Officials said the total number of prisoners in the good-conduct wing was 58. They belonged to a work brigade that constructed improvements in the prison, which is located near the city of La Plata, the capital of Buenos Aires province.

Only days ago, officials said, President Carlos Menem visited the penitentiary to inaugurate the work projects. Antonio Cafiero, the governor of Buenos Aires Province, visited the penitentiary Sunday morning. He left after a brief tour without making statements to reporters.

DALLAS (MAY 6) UPI - The chief negotiator for Greyhound Lines said Sunday the company presented a new economic package during weekend talks with striking drivers that contains less money than originally offered.

Anthony Lannie led the Greyhound team in negotiations Saturday at the Washington offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. The talks recessed following nine hours of negotations.

"The parties exchanged and discussed proposals," the agency said. "The mediator sought to schedule another meeting within the next few days." Efforts to reach the union for comment were unsuccessful.

About 9,300 Greyhound drivers and other employees, represented by the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions of the Amalgamated Transit Union, went on strike March 2. The walkout has been marked by violence, though no serious incidents were reported in recent days.

"On Saturday we made a revised economic offer based on what we can afford today," Lannie, who returned to company headquarters in Dallas, said Sunday in a telephone interview.

"They (union negotiators) have distributed it to the 19 or 20 people who compose the Greyhound Council and it will take them some time internally to get their own ideas, their own reactions, to that proposal.

"They rejected it up front at the table, but they still sent it out for the presidents to look at. I don't hold much hope that the presidents would change the mids of the people at the table, but it is possible."

Lannie said union leaders are expected to study the new proposal before the sides can meet again. "The only real characterization I can give it (the new proposal) is that it is based on what the company can afford to pay now, as opposed to what we could afford to pay on March 2 when the strike was called," Lannie said.

"It doesn't have a lot of the bells and whistles the earlier one had. The safety incentive is removed. The one-for-one (savings) incentive and the profit sharing (plan) is gone. Those kids of things. "What produced it (the lower offer) is quite simply that we're out of money. What we had before we don't have now."

Lannie said strike-related expenses, including some $20 million spent to counter violence against working drivers and lost revenues, were at the root of the company's financial problems. On Friday the company announced it might have to seek bankruptcy protection if it cannot work out delayed payments on debts.

Lannie said the reduced financial package particularly reflects the effects of the strike on ridership. "There will be an effect on passengers for some time beyond, no matter what happens with a settlement," Lannie said. "If we settled today, it would take 30 days or more for ridership to come back.

"And we can never penetrate the charter market as we had. We sold charters in 197 towns and cities last year. Now we're going to service 19. We always were operating those charters at break even or a loss. We did them to provide year-around work for the drivers. We'll be forced to go with a smaller driver work force from now on. We don't have the luxury of subsidizing that kind of effort (charters)."

ST. LOUIS (MAY 6) UPI - Machinists with McDonnell Douglas Corp. ratified a new contract by a margin of more than two-to-one Sunday, averting a threatened strike against the defense contractor.

Members of District 837 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, which represents about 11,800 of the 13,000 union workers at the firm's manufacturing plant, approved the new agreement 5,379 to 2,463 at a meeting in Kiel Auditorium in downtown St. Louis. Details of the contract were not immediately released. The old contract was to expire at the end of the weekend.

Union leaders earlier in the week had urged machinists to reject a three-year contract offer that proposed a 5.5 percent wage increase the first year, followed by increases of three percent in each of the following years. Hourly wages at the company average about $14.

"We're delighted that the machinists have accepted this new contract," said Vince DeBlaze, personnel director and chief negotiator for the company. "We've been through a tough round of negotiations, but it all paid off today." The agreement was reached following a bargaining session that lasted from 10 a.m. Friday until the early hours of Saturday.

Cassell Williams, president of District 837, said the new agreement called for broader wage and cost-of-living increases than earlier proposals. Retirement benefits and contract language on absenteeism and seniority were also improved, he said.

Union members had expressed dissatisfaction with earlier contract proposals by the company, citing unfavorable comparisons with an agreement reached with workers at the McDonnell Douglas plant in California. McDonnell Douglas is the largest employer in the St. Louis area.

(MAY 6) UPI - Secretary of State Baker said today he will extend an invitation to his Polish counterpart to attend the next meeting of the two-plus-four German re-unification talks. Baker says the next meeting... in Paris next month... will focus on the question of a single Germany's borders... an issue which concerns the Polish. Baker says the next meeting will NOT be limited to merely the issue of borders, but will include any other Polish issues.

Relatives of slain Marine Gunnery Sergeant John Fredette gathered yesterday at Fredette's parent's home after learning of his death in the Philippines. 34-year-old Fredette was shot in the head Friday night by an UNknown assailant. The somber gathering in Chicopee, Massachussetts, was marked by Fredette's loved ones commenting that he loved being a Marine, his career for 16 years.

One witness describes the carnage left by a car that crashed into a Little League game yesterday outside Chicago as comparable to that caused by dropping a bomb. (MAY 6) UPI - Thousands of Romanians plan to mark today's 72nd anniversary of the annexation to Romania of Soviet Moldavia. They will form a human chain across the border between the now-separated states. The four-point-two-Million-person region of Moldavia has passed from Turkish to Russian to Romanian to Soviet control in the past century. Romanian nationalists want to re-unite the predominantly Romanian Moldavia with Bucharest.

WASHINGTON (MAY 7) UPI - The Group of Seven industrial powers agreed Sunday to increase by $60 billion the resources the International Monetary Fund has to back up lending to developing nations and the emerging democracies in East Europe.

The IMF said in communique that its members ''agreed that a 50 percent increase in IMF quotas (the institution's capital) would provide the Fund with the resources to fulfill its central responsibilities in the world economy.''

The finance ministers and central bankers of the G-7 nations - the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy - met in Washington before spring meetings Monday and Tuesday of the IMF and the World Bank.

IMF Managing Director Michel Camdessus, who participated in the G-7 meeting, asked two years ago for a 100 percent hike in the fund's $120 billion capital.

Developing countries also demanded a doubling of the institution's resources, fearing that new loans to East European nations would not leave enough money for other of the world's areas, especially the highly indebted countries in Africa and Latin America.

''There is, and there had been, a consensus about'' the 50 percent increase, David Mulford, treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs, said.

The G-7 officials also voiced concern about the low level of the Japanese yen, which makes Japanese products cheaper on the world market.

The communique noted that the yen has stabilized since the G-7 meeting in Paris in early April, ''but remained of the view that the present level may have undesirable consquences for the global adjustment process.''

Mulford said that the cheap yen is an obstacle to overcome ''longer-term imbalances in the world economy,'' an allusion to the U.S. $49 billion trade deficit with Japan.

But Mulford refused to say whether the G-7 had agreed to take any measures such as selling dollars on the world exchange markets, to prop up the yen. ''We never comment on operations,'' he said.

Mulford also noted that the G-7 worried about continued world inflation, and said that ''price pressures warrant continued vigilance,'' but the ministers and central bankers ''reaffirmed their commitment to economic policy coordination, including cooperation on exchange markets.''

The G-7 communique said the officials discussed German unification, and noted that ''they agreed that this process would contribute to improved non-inflationary global growth and to a reduction of external imbalances.''

In its ''World Economic Outlook'' published last week, the IMF anticipated that German unification would diminish West Germany's current trade and payments surpluses.

The G-7 officials also expressed satisfaction ''with the continued (economic) growth in the industrial countries,'' thus sharing the IMF's own assessment that although world growth seems to be slowing down to 2.25 percent, the lowest level since 1982, there is no recession in sight.

Mulford said Japan and West Germany would share the No. 2 shareholding position at the IMF, and that France and Britain have agreed ''in principle'' to share position No. 4.

Details still have to be agreed upon by the two countries, Mulford said.

The United States is the largest shareholder in the IMF.

Britain, now No. 2, and France at No. 4 disagreed about which nation should occupy to the No. 4 and 5 shareholder slots if Japan were to move up from No. 5 or about whether the two countries should jointly hold the No. 4 position.

The IMF capital consists of contributions and pledges from nation members. Those resources back lending to countries with shortfalls in their balance of payments.

The IMF's Interim Committe, a policy advisory board, will consider the G-7 proposal Monday. The panel is expected to endorse it.

The IMF resources increase will go into effect once it is approved by the governments of the 152 country members of the fund, a process that could take between nine and 24 months.

The G-7 supported Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady's strategy to reduce developing countries' debt by allowing the IMF and the World Bank to lend to heavily indebted nations even if those are in payment arrears to private banks, effectively forcing banks to negotiate debt reduction programs.

Last week private banks savaged Brady's plan, saying it allows the accumulation of arrears to be used by debtors as a ''negotiating ploy'' to reduce debt.

The plan has caused countries' arrears to banks to reach $18 billion, which are often used as a ''ploy'' to pressure banks into granting debt reductions, Barry F. Sullivan, First Chicago Corp.'s chairman and chief executive officer, said in Washington.

In its communique, the G-7 said that the leading industrial democracies support ''strengthening the IMF arrears strategy as an integral part'' of the IMF resources review.

(MAY 6) UPI - Secretary of State Baker left Poland today, heading back to Washington. Baker met with Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki and said the Polish leader was satisfied that his government will be included in German re-unification talks set for July in Paris. The next round of talks will deal with the issue of the Polish-German border. Poland wants a unified Germany to guarantee that it will respect the Polish border created after World War Two.

East Germans are casting ballots in their first free municipal elections today. Voter turnout is said to be light and NO major incidents are reported. Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere called on voters ''to eject the socialists from the local councils.'' de Maiziere's coalition government replaced a communist-led central government in a national parliamentary election last March.

The worst is still to come for flood-ravaged Arkansas as floodwaters from two weeks of heavy rain in neighboring Oklahoma swept downstream on the Arkansas River to the Little Rock area. Authorities say the rising waters are expected to reach the Little Rock area tomorrow and Tuesday and to reach Pine Bluff, about 35 miles south, by Wednesday. Some residents in North Little Rock today built sandbag dikes and evacuated low-lying areas along the river.

Police in Pakistan don't know whether sabotage was to blame for a powerful explosion on a passenger train today near a northeastern city. Authorities say at least 21 people died and about 30 others were injured when the blast ripped out the floor of a compartment on the moving train. The explosion occurred about two miles outside the city of Lahore.

Police in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, are continuing their search for suspects who opened fire with shotguns on a group outside a dance last night. Eight teen-agers were wounded, but NONE seriously. Authorities believe the incident began during a dispute over a teen-age girl... and that gang members may have been involved.

(MAY 6) UPI - East Germans are going to the polls today in local elections that could be chapter two of the ousting of the communists. Parliamentary elections in March handed the communists a crushing defeat, and Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere is calling on voters ''to eject the socialists from the local councils'' in today's election.

Latvia's declaration of independence has met with the expected response from Moscow. The Soviet news agency Tass says President Gorbachev rejects the declaration and- quote- ''reserves the right to adopt retaliatory measures.'' That raises the possibility of steps similar to those taken against Lithuania.

Secretary of State Baker visited Poland today and talked with Polish leaders about yesterday's round of German unification talks in Bonn. Baker says the Polish prime minister accepted his invitation to attend the session scheduled for July in Paris. That meeting will focus on Poland's borders with Germany.

Arkansas residents are building sandbag dikes in Little Rock in anticipation of flooding from the Arkansas River. People are being evacuated from low-lying areas as floodwaters from heavy rain in Oklahoma sweep down the river toward the Little Rock area. Farther south, flooding continues along the Red River that forms the Oklahoma-Texas border.

A federal grand jury is investigating whether Iraq's military buildup is being secretly funded with loans from the Atlanta branch of an Italian bank. A report says the bank's manager is accused of feeding Iraq more than two-BILLION dollars in loans without authorization from his superiors.

(MAY 6) UPI - Tass says Soviet President Gorbachev has rejected Latvia's independence declaration... West German Chancellor Kohl says there are NO more obstacles standing in the way of German re-unification... And Arkansas residents are bracing for the worst floods in years... U-P-I has these top stories and more, next.

The Soviet republic of Latvia tried to water down its declaration of independence, but the move is still drawing a stern response from Moscow.

The Soviet news agency Tass says President Gorbachev rejects the declaration and has told the Baltic republic that he- quote- ''reserves the right to adopt retaliatory measures.''

The report quotes Latvian communist party boss Alfreds Rubiks as saying Gorbachev telephoned him... and asked him to convey to the Latvian people his dissatisfaction with Friday's declaration.

Rubiks walked out of Parliament just before the vote Friday and did NOT take part.

Latvian lawmakers tried to make their declaration more palatable than Lithuania's and Estonia's. The Latvian proclamation calls for a transition period to independence from Moscow. It also does NOT declare all Soviet laws null and void in the republic's territory.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl says all obstacles to German unity were removed in yesterday's opening session of six-power talks on the issue.

Kohl says the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France all agreed that the process of German unification should proceed ''without delay.''

The four World War Two Allied powers met yesterday in Bonn with foreign ministers from East and West Germany in the first round of the so-called ''two-plus-four'' talks.

One of the thornier obstacles to unity has been Soviet opposition to Germany's membership in NATO. Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze yesterday repeated Moscow's opposition to such a move.

But the West German news agency quoted West Germany's foreign minister as saying Shevardnadze indicated the NATO question could be decided after re-unification.

In Poland today, Secretary of State Baker met with Polish leaders to brief them on the unification talks. The third round in July will deal with Polish-German borders, and Baker invited the Polish foreign minister to attend that session.

(MAY 6) UPI - Two weeks of heavy rains in Oklahoma are now taking their toll on Arkansas as floodwaters sweep down the Arkansas River toward Little Rock.

Officials say residents in North Little Rock are putting up sandbag dikes, and people are being evacuated from low-lying areas.

Emergency Services spokesman Gary Talley says the worst of the flooding is expected to reach the Little Rock area tomorrow and Tuesday, and is expected to reach Pine Bluff, 35 miles farther south, on Wednesday.

The Arkansas River crested yesterday in Fort Smith on the Oklahoma border, putting 52 homes under water.

Farther south, flooding continues along the Red River, which forms the border between Oklahoma and Texas. Part of the problem is that Oklahoma officials had to open the floodgates on rain-swollen Lake Texoma.

The heavy rains have left thousands of acres under water in north Texas, where flooding has been blamed for 11 deaths.

A published report says that for years, Romania sold key Soviet military secrets to the United States.

The report, quoting intelligence sources, says that during the past 10 years, Washington purchased more than 40-Million dollars in information from the brothers of deposed Romanian dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

C-I-A and U-S military officials reportedly obtained important components of Soviet tactical, NON-nuclear weaponry, including radar defense systems used to protect Warsaw Pact countries. The report says the Pentagon then used the intelligence to develop counter-measures such as the ultra-sophisticated stealth bomber.

The sources reportedly say the Romanian operation was made possible by the tacit approval of Ceausescu himself, whose overthrow and execution last year abruptly ended the exchanges.

The report says the Romanian transactions were part of a broader U-S weapons-buying operation that reached into the highest levels of the East bloc military.

(MAY 6) UPI - Congressional leaders from both parties are meeting with President Bush tonight at the White House for what's described as very preliminary talks that could lead to talks on the budget deficit.

It's an informal session with top Democratic and Republican leaders in the family quarters of the White House. President Bush has stressed that the meeting is only preliminary and specifics such as taxes and defense cuts will NOT be addressed.

It's hoped that what might emerge is a tiny first step toward the kind of compromise that has eluded budget negotiators for years.

Compromise is of seen as a possibility. Congress and the administration have embraced similar budget targets for next year... one-TRILLIONBILLION dollars in spending, and a maximum deficit of 64-BILLION dollars.

But the two sides would achieve their goals through different means and with sometimes incompatible priorities.

The Group of Seven industrial powers are meeting today in Washington to decide by how much to increase the resources of the International Monetary Fund.

The finance ministers and central bankers of the G-Seven nations... the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy... say the increase is needed to help both the emerging democracies of East Europe and poor nations elsewhere.

Representatives also are likely to discuss the current downturn in the world economy and the exchange rates of the dollar, the Japanese yen and the German mark.

The I-M-F estimates that the world economy will grow by only two-point-25 percent in 1990, the lowest rate since 1982, while inflation will remain strong.

I-M-F managing director Michel Camdessus predicts the G-Seven will agree to an increase of at least 50 percent in the I-M-F's 120-BILLION dollar fund.

(MAY 6) UPI - A grand jury is set to decide whether to indict a man who yesterday lost control of his Cadillac and plowed through a little league baseball park, killing three children and injuring nine people in suburban Chicago.

Riverside Police Chief Don Doneste says he'll take the case to a Cook County grand jury, which will subpoena witnesses to determine if any charges should be filed against James Harasek, a retired tavern owner.

Harasek initially told police he blacked out at the wheel and did NOT remember what happened. Later, he declined comment on the advice of his lawyer.

Relatives of Harasek, who is 60, reportedly told him NOT to drive because of a heart condition.

Harasek's car veered off a road and careened into a park bench full of youngsters. Witnesses say the car kept going, striking a player and coach at third base before slamming at high speed into a nearby building housing insurance agency offices.

Most of the victims were around ages seven to nine.

Doctors say it's increasingly crucial for women who want to get pregnant to take care of themselves before they conceive.

Obstetricians and gynecologists meeting in San Francisco agree that fetuses today face higher health risks from hazards such as sidestream cigarette smoking, maternal cocaine use or improper maternal diet.

One group of doctors has developed a so-called 12-month pregnancy plan designed to help women identify and modify social, medical and nutritional behavior.

California-based Perinatal Health says its program is in response to findings showing that a fetus forms vitually all its vital limbs and organs within 10 weeks following conception, long before many women even realize they're pregnant.

(MAY 6) UPI - Former American hostage Frank Reed today spoke out for the first time on his 44-month ordeal as a hostage in Lebanon. During a news conference, Reed described years of beatings and suffering. He says he was hit about 200 times because he tried twice to escape and suffered a broken jaw, a broken nose and broken ribs.

A search continues in the Philippines for the killers of an American Marine sergeant. Troops searched residential areas outside the U-S Subic Bay Naval Base today and dozens of suspects were taken in for questioning, but later released. 34-year-old Gunnery Sergeant John Fredette was shot and killed Friday night as he walked outside the base.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl says the six nations involved in German re-unification talks all agreed yesterday that the process of German unification should proceed ''without delay.'' Kohl says that the meeting on the issue cleared up all remaining obstacles standing in the way of uniting the two Germanys.

Pope John Paul today begins a week-long visit to Mexico, the only NON-communist nation in Latin America which has NO official relations with the Vatican. Mexico's constitution guarantees freedom of religion, but denies members of the clergy political rights and prohibits religious gatherings in public.

Wisconsin authorities report that two University of Wisconsin-Stout students were killed and four other people were injured last night when a car plowed into a group of partiers on a road outside a tavern in Lucas. Officials say about one-thousand people were attending a fund raiser hosted by the school's rugby club when the accident occurred.

A political rally in Romania today turned violent when mobs stoned the presidential candidate of the opposition National Liberal Party. The assault on Radu Campeanu is the latest in a series of reported attacks on opposition leaders. Party officials areN'T saying whether Campeanu was injured in the assault.

A Michigan property owner is finding out you CAN'T fight a city hall computer. Dan Chapp has tried to explain to the Bay Township review board that there is NO house on his vacant lot. The town's computer says otherwise, however, so the board rejected Chapp's argument. Chapp says ''It's NOT an argument, it's either there or NOT there.''

Wildlife experts in Florida are warning residents to watch out for amorous thirsty and stressed-out alligators prowling canals and lakes in residential areas. Biologists say a 21-month drought has driven gators closer to human habitats, making them more bothersome than usual during their April to June mating season.

(MAY 6) UPI - Former hostage Frank Reed is urging the Bush administration to negotiate with the Lebanese kidnappers still holding six Americans captive. At a news conference today in Arlington, Virginia, Reed said the United States- quote- ''has an absolute duty to negotiate and NOT to throw geopolitical slogans around about anti-terrorism.'' Reed also spoke angrily about his 44-month ordeal... saying he was beaten and blindfolded and chained to a radiator.

Projections from today's local elections in East Germany show Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere's Christian Democrats apparently headed for victory. West German projections show the Christian Democrats with about 33 percent of the vote... compared to 21 percent for the Social Democrats and about 13 percent for the Communists. Today's local elections are the first since the Communists were ousted from power last fall.

Arkansas residents are bracing for flooding along the Arkansas River and at least five other rivers as floodwaters from heavy rains in Oklahoma sweep downstream. Sandbag dikes are being built in North Little Rock, and people are being evacuated from low-lying areas. 27 counties in northwest Arkansas that were hit last week by flash floods have been declared disaster areas. In Southern California, a second day of record heat pushed the temperature to 97 degrees in Los Angeles.

The contract offer put forth by Greyhound in weekend talks with striking unions contains less money than was originally proposed. Greyhound chief negotiator Anthony Lannie says the revised offer is based on what the bus line can afford today... compared to what it could afford on March 2nd when the strike began. He says the bus line is ''out of money.'' Bargaining between the two sides resumed yesterday in Washington, D-C, for the first time since March.

(MAY 6) UPI - South African nationalist Nelson Mandela is urging President Frederick de Klerk to abandon reforms based on so-called ''group rights.'' Speaking at a Soweto rally today, Mandela affirmed African National Congress demands for one-man, one-vote. De Klerk has vowed to prevent governmental suicide by rejecting black majority rule in favor of a constitutional power-sharing formula.

Rival Christian forces in Lebanon may be preparing for a new offensive. Beirut radio quotes the Christian Maronite Partiarch saying the rival troops are erecting new positions and fortifications. In an updated toll of the inter-Christian conflict that broke out January 31st, Beirut radio says the violence has killed 973 people and wounded more than 36-hundred others.

Thousands of mourners today attended funeral services for Russian Orthodox Patriarch Pimen. About five-thousand faithful crowded into Moscow's Cathedral of the Epiphany to pay their last respects. The official communist party newspaper Pravda saluted Pimen as a man who- quote- ''did NOT become cruel in a time that was cruel to him.'' Pimen was later buried in a sacred Russian monastery.

Police are investigating the murder of a 38-year-old man in Geneva,

Florida. Authorities say Joe Thigpen helped plan a three-day bash at his home... which included a barbecue and rock band... before he disappeared. Friends reported him missing, but decided to go ahead with the party anyway. Thigpen was later found in a shallow grave near his home, about 150 yards from the festivities.

(MAY 6) UPI - In East Germany, the communists appear headed for a resounding defeat in today's local elections. West German projections show Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere's Christian Democrats with a commanding lead, garnering 33 percent of the vote. The communists are projected to get just 13 percent. It would be the second electoral loss in two months for the East German communists, who were soundly defeated in parliamentary elections March 18th.

Moscow is taking steps to clamp down on Latvia, which followed its other Baltic neighbors' example and declared independence. The Soviet news agency Tass says President Gorbachev rejects the declaration approved by Latvia's parliament on Friday. Tass says Gorbachev ''reserves the right to adopt retaliatory measures of a political, economic and administrative nature.'' That raises the possibility the Kremlin might take steps against Latvia similar to the partial economic blockade imposed against Lithuania.

South Africa has a problem that most African countries DON'T have- there are too many elephants in some areas. Kruger National Park, for example, has so many that each year scores are killed to prevent a population boom. But some babies are saved periodically and transferred to other areas to start new herds. In one such operation, six baby elephants today were taken from Kruger and moved to a game reserve in the Natal province.

Doctors say it's very important that women who want to become pregnant plan to provide a safe, nurturing environment inside their bodies for the baby. A new ''Before Pregnancy'' kit aimed at helping women identify and modify social, medical and nutritional aspects of their lifestyle is to be presented tomorrow at a meeting of obstetricians and gynecologists in San Francisco. Doctors attending the meeting say women who want to become pregnant should engage in serious pre-pregnancy planning.

(MAY 6) UPI - Former hostage Frank Reed speaks out in detail about his ordeal...

A relaxed evening meeting at the White House about the budget deficit...

And East Germany holds municipal elections...

These stories... and more... next, from United Press International:

Frank Reed spoke in detail today about his ordeal as a hostage in Lebanon, and he urged the Bush administration to negotiate for release of the remaining hostages.

Reed told a news conference in Arlington, Virginia, that being held hostage is worse than being sentenced to jail. He said prisoners have visitors and exercise, but he did NOT. Reed was forced to lie on his back for three and one-half years, chained to a wall or a radiator.

Reed also revealed he tried to escape twice, and was beaten because of it.

He said the United States should negotiate for release of the remaining hostages, and stop talking about what he termed ''geopolitical crap.''

In London, the father of a British journalist held hostage in Lebanon since 1986 says he blames author Salman Rushdie for his son's continued captivity. In a newspaper interview , Patrick McCarthy said his son, John, would be free now if Rushdie's book, ''The Satanic Verses,'' had NOT been published.

The book, considered blasphemous by some Muslims, caused a break in relations between Britain and Iran.

(MAY 6) UPI - President Bush and congressional leaders are meeting this evening at the White House to try to mend differences over the budget.

White House aides say the unusual event falls far short of its glamorous billing as a budget summit. Instead, they've described the meeting as a very informal get-together to ''talk process.'' Bush, they say, isn't planning on imminently pursuing a bipartisan compromise.

But even congressional leaders doN'T know what to expect. House Speaker Thomas Foley, a Washington Democrat, echoed the sentiments of other guests. Foley says he thought Bush called the meeting to- quote- ''talk about how we'd go about having talks.''

Congress and the administration have embraced similar targets for next year. Both have drawn up plans requiring one-point-two-TRILLION dollars, but are fueding about priorities... including defense spending, new taxes and the deficit.

Tonight's guest list includes Foley, Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine, House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois and Senate G-O-P leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

Early results from today's local elections in East Germany show Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere's Christian Democrats with a strong lead.

But the news is NOT all good for the Christian Democrats. Their vote total is about seven percent less than the party's showing in parliamentary elections March 18th. That might suggest voter doubt about de Maiziere's policy of rapid re-unification with West Germany.

Many voters interviewed in East Berlin said they feared a ''sell-out'' of East Germany to powerful and wealthy West Germany.

Preliminary results covering 92 percent of the vote show the Christian Democrats with nearly 35 percent... compared with about 20 percent for the Social Democrats.

The communists appear headed for resounding defeat, with about 14 percent of the vote. Today's local elections are the first since the communists were ousted from power last fall.

(MAY 6) UPI - Australian officials say at least six people were killed and scores more injured today in a commuter train accident north of Sydney.

Police report a double-decker InterCity commuter train carrying 330 people crashed into an historic steam train near Hawkesbury River, 30 miles north of Sydney. The steam train was carrying 260 passengers at the time of the wreck.

At least 90 people are reported injured, 36 critically. And police say the number of dead and injured could rise as rescue workers continue to free people still trapped in the wreckage.

Rail Authority officials say they DON'T know what caused the crash, but say an emergency brake at the rear of the steam engine had been activated.

The African National Congress says it will reject any South African reform which does NOT support a one-man, one-vote process.

Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela today joined other A-N-C leaders at a rally in Soweto to celebrate the successful end to last week's talks with the white-controlled government. Mandela told the crowd of 30-thousand that South Africa's black majority would NEVER accept

President Frederick de Klerk's concept of so-called ''group rights.''

De Klerk long has rejected black majority rule as a solution to end apartheid. He instead supports a power-sharing compromise which guarantees minority power.

The head of South Africa's Anglican Church is urging the United States to continue economic sanctions against his nation's government until the white minority surrenders its power monopoly.

Officials say the worst of the Arkansas River flooding is expected to hit the Little Rock area tomorrow and Tuesday. Pine Bluff, 35 miles farther south, expects heavy flooding by Wednesday.

The Arkansas is overflowing from rain that has already flooded parts of Oklahoma, including the Red River that forms Oklahoma's border with Texas. The situation was worsened when officials had to open floodgates in rain-swollen Lake Texoma.

Crews are searching the Red River for a reported drowning victim who tried to escape the raging waters on horseback.

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Curaflex Infusion Services Monday announced completion of a financing program in which an investor group led by Morgan Stanley Venture Capital Fund, John Hancock Venture Capital Management and Smith Barney's First Century Investors provided $9.5 million in venture capital.

Curaflex president Charles Laverty said these funds, plus the $3.3 million gained in the recent sale of its home care nursing respiratory therapy business, will be used to retire debt and fund expansion in the $2 billion home infusion services field. He said that Curaflex, whose home infusion revenues have grown from $5.3 million in 1989 to a projected $30 million this year, would grow faster than the 26 percent annual growth projected for the industry (by Biomedical Business International) through 1993.

The company, formerly Curaflex Health Services, currently has 21 infusion care centers nationwide and 300 employees.

Bob Burr, Morgan Stanley general partner, said Curaflex had been identified by the three venture capital groups as a rapid growth company with the management resources to meet its full potential in home infusion therapy, the fastest growing sector of the health care field.

The company recently sold its home care nursing and respiratory therapy-durable medical equipment businesses to Lifetime Corp.'s Kimberly Quality Care unit for $3.3 million.

Home infusion of medicines typically costs 30 to 40 percent less than the same treatment administered in a hospital.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - The Los Angeles-based chain of Oakwood Corporate Apartments has added the states of Maryland and Florida to their expanding portfolio of residential properties.

The chain's recent addition of four new apartment properties represents a total of 1,443 units added to the Oakwood network in the first quarter of this year. These portfolio additions signal an aggressive growth strategy for parent company R & B Enterprises, the firm that pioneered the concept of short-term rentals for extended business travel.

R & B currently owns or manages units in 78 locations throughout the United States. The new properties include 296 in Newport News, Va., 196 units in Santa Ana, Calif., 784 units in Gaithersburg, Md. and 167 units in Orlando, Fla. At the end of 1985, R & B managed 23,000 units in 43 locations. The apartment portfolio has increased 52 percent since 1985.

Gross revenues for the apartment division were $219.5 million in 1988, and by the end of 1989, had increased 14 percent to $250 million, with $301 million projected for 1990. In addition to these new properties, R & B manages facilities throughout California and in Texas, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Virginia, North Carolina, Nevada and the District of Columbia.

According to Klein, Oakwood's greatest area of growth over the next few years will be in the area of fee management. Oakwood contracts with owners of apartment properties to provide such services as leasing and maintenance, landscaping, maximization of income, accounting and security. The Oakwood name will be applied to all such fee management properties under the terms of R & B agreement. ''This allows R & B to increase its fee management business while giving owners of such properties the advantages of the Oakwood name and its nationwide marketing support,'' said Klein.

R & B Enterprises created the extended-stay concept 10 years ago, and has since grown into the largest network of its kind in the country. The Oakwood Apartments, positioned as ''The Un-Hotel,'' provide an alternative to hotel living for executives and other corporate travelers needing lodging for 30 days or longer due to relocation, training and special assignments.

Although not a franchise, Oakwood borrows franchise and hotel concepts, such as a toll-free reservations number, direct-mail campaigns and national advertising. In contrast to most hotels, they provide a home-like environment for long-term residents, including fully equipped kitchens, VCR rentals and answering machines in a resort-style setting that includes swimming, tennis and fitness centers.

PALO ALTO, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Co. Monday announced a strategy and introduced a set of software products and services designed to help customers manage computer data centers more easily and cost effectively.

Ten new HP systems-management products extend the capabilities of the company's high-end RISC-based (reduced-instruction-set computing) systems to take advantage of their mainframe-class performance. These capabilities are targeted for customers who have critical, on-line transaction-processing (OLTP) and decision-support applications.

In addition to Monday's product announcement, HP said it has consolidated a number of existing HP 3000 products under one systems- and network-management umbrella. This consolidation provides customers with a breadth of product selections as well as a framework for the combined management of systems and networks.

Computer data centers contain computer systems for high-volume or complex business operations. Data-center management activities, also known as systems management, are tasks such as production scheduling, data storage and backup, and measuring system performance. These tasks are necessary for efficient and error-free processing.

HP 3000 systems-management products increase the degree to which systems can run unattended and add to the number of tasks, such as data backup, that can be done automatically. These new products also make it possible for networked systems in a company's satellite offices to be managed remotely from a central location without attendants.

HP said Monday's announcement of a systems-management strategy and 10 new products extends its NewWave Computing strategy, a standards-based strategy that enables customers to select the best available products from HP and other vendors and link them into open, cooperative networks that make information easier to acquire, share, use and manage. New Products

HP believes service and support are key elements needed to meet the increasing demands of systems management, especially within large-scale-computing environments. HP provides 24-hour, seven-day coverage and dedicated on-site support, as well as disaster-recovery consulting services.

Among HP's line of customer service-and-support programs are HP SuccessLine Priority hardware-support and HP TeamLine software-support services. They provide rapid response to and resolution of problems, access to technical assistance and comprehensive support coverage. These services are structured to ensure flexibility in meeting customer needs.

Pricing and Availability

The new products are scheduled to be available beginning in June 1990. Pricing of individual components depends on the system configuration.

Hewlett-Packard Co. is an international manufacturer of measurement and computation products and systems recognized for excellence in quality and support. The company's products and services are used in industry, business, engineering, science, medicine and education in approximately 100 countries. HP has 94,000 employees and had revenue of $11.9 billion in its 1989 fiscal year.

KANSAS CITY, MO (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - United Telecommunications Inc. Monday said it will expand its corporate headquarters in Westwood, Kan. by constructing an additional 240,000 square feet of offices on the adjacent eight acres it owns at the northeast corner of Rainbow Boulevard and Shawnee Mission Parkway in Mission Woods, Kan.

The Mission Woods City Council and Planning Commission met Saturday, May 5 and approved United's plans and zoning variances for the property. Financial terms of the project were not disclosed.

United's current headquarters consists of 248,000 sq. ft. of offices extending west from the northwest corner of that intersection, and the two facilities will be connected by an east/west pedestrian walkway under Rainbow. United has occupied the Westwood site since 1966 when it acquired and converted a 50,000 sq. ft. Hallmark building there. The additional space was added in the mid-70s and early 80s.

''Developing our Mission Woods property provides a good solution for our need to consolidate Kansas City-based Sprint/United corporate staff functions, with some 700 people currently dispersed among 24 other buildings in the area,'' said Dave King, executive vice president.

About 1,300 corporate staff personnel are expected to be accommodated in the total complex when finished, he said. ''While a precise design and construction timetable has not yet been determined, we anticipate occupancy by the second quarter of 1992.''

King added that internal review was continuing on the most cost-effective approach to United's future facilities requirements, including a possible campus-like development in the Kansas City area. Design of the new Mission Woods structure by architects Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, will feature a trio of distinct, 3-story modular office buildings along Shawnee Mission Parkway, all linked by enclosed walkways.

A multi-tier parking structure for 800 cars will occupy the north edge of the property, with vehicle access from both Rainbow and Shawnee Mission Parkway.

TAFT, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Berry Petroleum Co. (NYSE:BRY) Monday announced net income of $4,395,000, or 20 cents per share, on revenues of $13,734,000 for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

This compared with net income of $2,299,000, or 13 cents per share, on revenues of $9,285,000 for the first quarter ended March 31, 1989.

Revenues increased 48 percent in the first quarter ended March 31, 1990, when compared with the first quarter ended March 31, 1989, due primarily to a 50 percent increase in the average price for the company's crude oil. Net income increased 91 percent due to a higher average oil price and higher interest income.

The company had working capital of $65,094,000 and long-term debt and capital lease obligations of $1.11 million at March 31, 1990.

The company also announced the purchase of the West Montalvo Field from Chevron USA Inc. at an undisclosed price. The leases acquired include proved reserves of 1.1 million equivalent barrels of oil and produce approximately 530 equivalent barrels per day from 21 active wells.

Berry Petroleum is publicly traded on the New York Stock Exchange and is a production and exploration company with headquarters in Taft.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Litton's Poly-Scientific division has been selected by the New Orleans International Airport to provide its SuperVision computerized central alarm monitoring and access control system for installation in the airport's terminal building and at perimeter gates.

The New Orleans system is the first in the nation to be approved and fully funded by the Federal Aviation Administration under a new regulation which requires a computerized access control system at all of the nation's largest airports.

The New Orleans airport is ninth largest in the United States in handling international flights. It is served by 17 passenger airlines and eight cargo carriers. More than 6.5 million travelers passed through the airport in 1989, and about 4,500 people work there.

Litton's SuperVision system is being installed in the airport's central communications facility and will consist of a central monitoring and control station capable of communicating with independent, programmable remote processors linking a network of security devices such as perimeter and portal sensors and closed circuit television monitors.

Approximately 250 access portals will be secured by the system, and more than 200 integrated keypad/card readers will be installed. The total system is expected to be completed next year.

Litton Poly-Scientific, based in Blacksburg, Va., is a major developer and manufacturer of electronic security systems, fiber optic data and sensor systems for aircraft applications, as well as a world leader in slip ring assemblies for commerce, industry and the military.

Littton is a technology-based company providing advanced electronic and defense systems, resource exploration services and industrial automation systems for U.S. and world markets.

SANTA MONICA, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - INTERACTIVE Systems Corp. Monday announced Version 2.2 of INTERACTIVE UNIX System V/386 Release 3.2 product family that is designed to make UNIX easier to use for both developers and end-users.

The first vendor to ship a System V 3.2 product, INTERACTIVE has added several new features to Version 2.2 based on extensive user feedback.

The new version includes a complete development environment to create POSIX-compliant applications, as well as a 60 percent enhancement to TCP/IP network performance. In addition, INTERACTIVE has reconfigured its ARCHITECH Series of system software to better meet the needs of UNIX customers.

Previously known as INTERACTIVE 386/ix, INTERACTIVE UNIX runs on a wide variety of leading 80386- and 80486-based personal computers. It features a menu-driven installation procedure that dramatically reduces the time required to install UNIX -- one of the most requested enhancements to UNIX.

In addition, new documentation, on-line manuals and enhanced support for international environments are included. INTERACTIVE UNIX serves as the foundation for the company's ARCHITECH Series.

INTERACTIVE UNIX simplifies installation with a new DOS-like color menu. In addition, INTERACTIVE has redesigned its documentation to ease system use and troubleshooting.

The new version of INTERACTIVE UNIX also provides a more comprehensive Software Development Systems (SDS). The SDS is now a complete development environment with AT&T C, ANSI C and POSIX options. The ANSI C option contains a new editor and a source level debugger. The operating system is also FIPS (Federal Information Processing Standard) 151-1 compliant.

For networked environments, the ARCHITECH Series features a 60 percent TCP/IP performance enhancement over previous versions. The improvement is realized regardless of what Ethernet board is installed in the networked systems.

INTERACTIVE Systems Corp., a Kodak Company, is the premier supplier of UNIX products and development services to the computer industry and is gaining leadership in the commercial UNIX marketplace.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Homestake Mining Co. (NYSE:HM) confirmed Monday that it has signed a contract to sell 42-1/2 percent partnership interest in The Doe Run Co. to Fluor Corp., Irvine, Calif., for $125 million in cash and indemnification against all liabilities.

The sale, which is expected to close within ninety days, will result in an after-tax gain of approximately $40 million and after-tax proceeds of approximately $95 million.

Fluor already owned a 57-1/2 percent interest in the partnership. The sale will give Fluor full control of Doe Run.

Doe Run, headquartered in St. Louis, Mo., is the largest integrated primary lead producer in North America. Doe Run was formed in November 1986 to operate the lead mining and smelting operations previously conducted by subsidiaries of Fluor and Homestake.

Under the existing partnership agreement virtually all decisions required approval of both partners. Harry M. Conger, chairman and chief executive officer of Homestake said: ''The sale will resolve differences of opinion about the direction of the business. After long discussion, Homestake and Fluor concluded that one company or the other should control Doe Run.'' The closing is conditional only on receipt of customary antitrust clearance.

Homestake Mining Co. is an international gold mining company holding significant interests in the United States, Australia, Chile and Canada.

TORONTO (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Corona Corp. of Toronto reports net earnings of $10,466,000, or 7 cents per share, for the three months ended March 31, 1990, according to preliminary unaudited results.

This compares to net earnings of $5,017,000 or 3 cents per share for the first quarter of 1989, which included an extraordinary item of $581,000, representing a reduction of deferred income taxes on the application of prior years' losses.

Earnings per share figures for both quarters are after preference share dividends. The 1989 figures have been restated to include Corona's 50 percent share of the Williams mine's results.

The comparative increase in earnings reflects significantly higher operating earnings as well as higher interest and investment income, partially offset by greater interest charges and increased income and mining taxes.

Revenue increases in the first quarter of 1990 resulted from higher production and a gold hedging strategy. Earnings remained strong for the first quarter despite the adverse effects of a strong for the first quarter despite the adverse effects of a strong Canadian dollar and increased interest rates.

Record gold and gold equivalent production at 193,200 ounces represented a 30 percent increase over production in the comparative quarter of 1989. Production from the Williams and David Bell mines at Hemlo, which account for over 60 percent of Corona's production, continues to increase, benefitting from high tonnages, excellent grades and consistent recoveries.

The Marigold mine in Nevada, which began production in September 1989, also contributed to the high output of the 1990 first quarter.

Corona's direct operating cost per ounce of gold averaged US $192 for the first quarter of 1990. This is a decrease of 8 percent from the average direct operating cost for the whole of 1989 and a decrease of 19 percent form the average for the first quarter of 1989.

Corona Corp., one of the lowest-cost gold producers in the world, has interests in 11 precious metals mines; a promising portfolio of gold exploration and development properties in Canada, the United States and Mexico; and maintains strategic interests in several emerging mining companies which explore and develop mineral deposits throughout North America.

LONG BEACH, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - The $100 million Intermodal Container Transfer Facility, the largest and most modern rail terminal of its kind in the United States, will be open to the public on Saturday, May 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., it was announced Monday.

The 247-acre facility, a joint venture of Southern Pacific railroad and the Ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles, is located at 2401 E. Sepulveda Blvd. (take the Willow Street West exit off the Long Beach Freeway). Admission is free.

The ICTF, a vital interchange point in world trade, speeds the movement of shipping containers between various modes of transportation: railroads, steamships and trucks.

The open house is being held in conjunction with World Trade 90, sponsored by the Ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles, Southern Pacific Transportation Co., Los Angeles Airport, Santa Fe railroad, and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, to celebrate world trade week.

The ICTF, equipped with the latest computer technology, has handled more than 1 million steamship containers -- mostly from Pacific Rim nations -- since it opened in January 1987.

More than 75 SP trains a week move containers in and out of the yard, officials said. From Long Beach, these trains go to all parts of the United States and into Mexico.

SAN DIEGO (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Operating results for the initial half of fiscal 1990 ended March 31 and the second quarter of the fiscal year were released Monday by Cubic Corp. (ASE:CUB), a high-technology company based in San Diego.

Walter J. Zable, the firm's chief executive officer, said in a prepared statement that both profits and sales for the six months and second quarter reached new highs.

Sales for the six months ended March 31 were $181,330,000, compared with $164,455,000 for the like period in 1989.

Income from continuing operations before income taxes was $20,690,000 vs. $8,636,000 reported for the like period in 1989.

Net earnings for the half year were $12,390,000, equal to $1.78 per share of common stock, compared with $9,156,000, or $1.25, reported for the prior year's first six months.

Sales for the second quarter were $96,348,000, while for the like period ended March 31, 1989, the amount was $84,220,000.

Income from continuing operations before income taxes for the second quarter was $9,951,000, as compared with $3,020,000 in the like quarter of fiscal 1989.

Net profits for the second period of fiscal 1990 were $5,951,000, or 86 cents per share, vs. $5,456,000, equal to 75 cents a share, for the like period one year ago.

Profits for the first half of 1990 all came from continuing operations. Last year's second-quarter earnings included a pretax gain of $5.3 million or 43 cents a share, that resulted from the sale of a subsidiary, G. S. Parsons Co., in February 1989.

SAN DIEGO (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - There's something new under the sun, and it's popping up all over Florida as cities intensify efforts to conserve water as well as taxpayer dollars.

Look for it in parks and median strips, in commercial landscape projects, country clubs and large residential complexes at locations all over the state: Ft. Lauderdale, Orlando, West Palm, Margate, Palm Beach, Wilton Manors and Pompano Beach, to name a few. And others are coming.

What you're looking for is easily mistaken for a parking meter. In fact, however, it is a powerful computer that controls when, where and in what quantity water is used to help keep our green spaces green.

The computer's sophisticated software program is enabling cities and other users to manage water usage more precisely and efficiently than ever before. It can automatically adjust watering schedules to account for seasonal changes, terrain and soil conditions. It will soak and/or spray and even split watering cycles to minimize runoff and erosion, of growing importance as population increases and water supplies diminish.

But perhaps the most unique feature of this computer is its complete independence from any external source of energy. The computer needs neither batteries nor AC. A compact, self-contained photo-voltaic array in the top of the computer harvests ordinary daylight and converts it into electrical energy that powers specially designed micropowered valves.

This energy independence has been a major factor in making the Solatrol system, called the L E I T 8000, the system of choice for many applications.

In Ft. Lauderdale, for instance, the city was paying an estimated $40,000 a month in salaries to crews responsible for turning sprinkler valves on and off.

At one installation, in fact, a conventional AC-powered irrigation system would have cost the city up to $130,000, he said. With the light-energized system, each installation costs under $1,000, including labor and retrofitting.

SANTA CRUZ, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - The Santa Cruz Operation Inc. (SCO) and HCR Corp. Monday jointly announced that SCO intends to acquire 100 percent of HCR, the leading UNIX System software company in Canada.

HCR will run as an independent subsidiary company, and will change its name to SCO Canada Inc. The transaction is subject to completion of legal review and final shareholder approval.

Detailed financial terms of the acquisition were not announced. Company officials said that the transaction would consist of a share swap with a multi-million dollar value. At the completion of the transaction, SCO will own 100 percent of HCR Corp.

The Santa Cruz Operation Inc. is a privately held company recognized internationally as the worldwide leader in open-system software solutions. SCO offers a wide range of UNIX System V software solutions, training, and support services for standard hardware platforms.

To date, SCO has shipped over 300,000 UNIX systems -- more than any other supplier. Founded in 1979, SCO fields a staff of over a thousand between its Santa Cruz, Calif.; Washington D.C. and London offices, including one of the largest UNIX System technical teams in the world.

HCR Corp. is a privately held company with headquarters in Toronto. Founded in 1976, HCR develops system software for the expanding UNIX System market. HCR's products include both custom and packaged software in the areas of UNIX System development tools, operating systems and networking. HCR serves a worldwide customer base of manufacturers, developers and end users.

SCOTTS VALLEY, CA (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Plessey Semiconductors is now shipping the world's first intelligent, user-customized, remote-programmable Silicon chip.

The chip can be programmed to intelligently and independently change its own wiring, allowing the chip to correct any problems and adapt to new situations. A remote personal computer can also rewire the chip, making it a natural for satellite applications. And costs are low enough that it could wind up in vending machines. In both cases, repairs can be made without picking up a screwdriver.

Traditionally, several weeks are required to program such information. Now, these chips can be programmed in only hours and at virtually zero cost with information to control electronic products at a customer's desk using a personal computer.

Called the ''ERA,'' for electrically reconfigurable arrays, Plessey's chips are different from others on the market because once in use they can be rewired in less than a thousandth of a second -- while the chip is still operating.

''In an industry where 'revolution' is the norm, these new chips open up a whole new era,'' said Ray Gleason, worldwide marketing director for Plessey Semiconductors, (Swindon, U.K.).

These chips are a type of application-specific integrated circuit (ASIC) called field-programmable gate arrays (FPGA). Plessey anticipates a large demand for its ERA products, especially because field-programmable gate arrays are the fastest growing digital logic market sector.

''In a recent semiconductor survey, Dataquest estimated that the field-programmable gate-array market sector will grow from $28M in 1988 to $456M in 1994,'' said Gleason. ''As Plessey Semiconductors intends to be the first vendor to ship field-programmable gate arrays with equivalent gate counts of up 100K, we expect to gain a sizable market share of that dramatically expanding market.''

Unlike other offerings in the field-programmable gate-array arena, the design of the ERA will allow customers to move to larger chips without switching to a completely different architecture. Also, there is no non-recurring expense (NRE) in prototyping the ERA devices, which reduces system cost.

''Our ERA devices directly answer the needs of customers who want to take advantage of ERA's capabilities and reduce development cost, risk and time to market,'' said Gleason.

Based in Swindon, United Kingdom, and with North American headquarters in Scotts Valley, Plessey Semiconductors has three fabrication facilities in England manufacturing CMOS and bipolar ICs. In addition to its ERA program

Plessey Semiconductors has developed a comprehensive range of standard parts and CMOS and bipolar arrays serving the industrial and consumer application market sectors.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Each of us generates about 1,547 pounds of trash per year at home and on the job.

Nationally, we produce a staggering 160 million tons of garbage annually. As a result, our country's landfills are bulging at the seams.

American businesses can play a significant role in helping reduce the burden placed on our country's waste-disposal problem and save money in the process.

For example, Los Angeles-based Transamerica Life Cos. (TLC) has found a way to make a dent in the mountain of trash and make money doing so.

The insurer started a comprehensive paper recycling program in 1988 that now recovers 75 percent of all its paper, aluminum and glass trash. Since becoming the first downtown Los Angeles business to institute a major recycling effort, Transamerica Life Cos. is setting an example other companies have begun to follow.

Charles Crouse, director of maintenance for TLC, says the company generates about 1,440 tons of waste each year. ''Of that, we recycle 1,056 tons,'' Crouse said.

In addition to the environmental benefits of recycling, Transamerica gained significant cost savings in implementing its program.

TLC started recycling computer printout paper in the early '70s and later expanded the program to include photocopy paper. Then, after discovering that Transamerica's trash was being sorted and recycled by the waste removal company, Crouse and Hedlund decided to institute a full-scale program.

Each evening when the janitors clean the offices of TLC's three-building, nearly 1.5-million-square-foot center, they separate the recyclable items from the non-recyclable garbage. To avoid creating extra storage space, the trash is then compacted and hauled off together to an off-site facility that sorts and processes the recyclable material.

TLC has found enormous employee support for its recycling efforts, including many suggestions on how to further refine the program. As a result, the company is enhancing its effort by donating all glass waste to the Los Angeles Conservation Corps who will keep the proceeds from the recycled glass.

Transamerica has also lent its expertise to other companies nationwide who want to develop similar programs.

LAS VEGAS, NV (MAY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Electronic Data Technologies (NASDAQ:EDAT), a Las Vegas-based designer and manufacturer of computerized systems for the gaming industry, announced Monday two agreements with Las Vegas Casinos, Vacation Village and Showboat, for installation of EDT's Slot Management System.

Vacation Village, now under construction on Las Vegas Boulevard, will be installing Player Tracking and Slot Information System on their 400 machines. In a phone interview today, Dave Suefert, general manager of Vacation Village, spoke enthusiastically about the system and its potential to enhance marketing abilities.

The system will be installed and operational for their planned July 1 Grand Opening.

Showboat Hotel and Casino is an established EDT system user since 1988. The casino is expanding and adding 772 machines to their EDT Player Tracking System. The director of Slot Operations for the Showboat, Ernie Crossley, has utilized the system and has plans to expand their system further by adding the EDT Slot Information System.

Mike Farnham, vice president of the systems division of EDT, commented, ''We have enhanced the slot industry with the EDT system and I am confident all planned expansions by our system users will include the EDT system.''

EDT is a leader in computerized gaming systems, monitoring over 30,000 slot machines in 40 casinos nationally and internationally. EDT employs more than 300 people, including approximately 70 hardware and software engineers and 70 customer service personnel dedicated to the support and development of quality computerized gaming systems and route operations.
